Friend's Note

By Alfred Sparks, Jr.

"Beauty lies in the behold. Everyday we are surrounded by beauty, if we will only stop and take notice of these wonderful treasures around us. THEY ARE OURS FOR THE ASKING. The smell of coffee brewing or newly cut grass; the sound of a child's laughter, or a bird's song; the feel of a warm rain or a kitten's fur."

It is said "two men looked through bars - one saw mud, the other stars." Beauty can be overlooked. If we don't train ourselves, and our attitude, to constantly be on the lookout for it. Without it, life is vacant, but with it, man reaches new spiritual heights.

Remember "beauty is the smile on the earth's face" and it is open to all. It needs nothing but the eyes to see and the receptive mind to understand.

FIRM STAND AGAINST TAXES

STATE SENATOR ED P. WARINNER ALBANY, KY., CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS. STATES:

His opposition to the state's new increase taxes is based upon the bad influence they would have upon the state's economy.

Warinner, candidate for the Republican nomination to Congress from the Eighth District, said the tax program adopted at Frankfort would further unbalance our present inequitable tax structure. He said that they do not see the fiscal problem of the State...

Warinner said this system which has no forgiveness feature such as the Federal income tax had when withholding was started, would produce a windfall of some $10,000,000 a year for the state. This will not be recurring in 1956, so they are going to have to go out and get the extra money someplace to support our ever increasing cost of state government.

Warinner called the State administration's tax program "a mad scramble to pile more law upon the people of Kentucky."

He asked support in his campaign for Congress on the strength of his record of two terms in the State Senate in which he declared, "I have fought for the people of Kentucky."

Warinner cited examples of tax liability of a person owning $100.00 in taxes in 1953. Just anyway you figure it, Warinner pointed out, it amounts to a 50 percent increase in state taxes for the next two years. He added:

"I voted against this because it is wrong principal to put that much extra taxes on the wage earners of the state. It is quite shock to the individual's purchasing power."

"The withholding tax is now effective with your first pay day. Then the wage earners, business men and all people of...

The three Gibbons men are brothers. Melvin is held under $1000 bond and will appear for trial in the November term of the circuit court in Lincoln County.

The story is told that the men from Brodhead had gone to the swimming hole the day before Friday and remained there all night and into the next day Saturday. The Adventure Called Death

On July 11th 1953, Mrs. Lillie Smith Haskett, from a life she loved to live, from family and friends to whom she was devoted. Death came as a swift messenger of a dream. Now life is swalled up in loneliness. The adventure of death comes unannounced and unfathomable. We are confused and afraid, of what is not easily understood. The discarded body has a message to the spirit, who has escaped earth, than broken chains are to a fleeing prisoner. To receive the natural body, as if it were the loved one, is to deny the spiritual triumph, and worse still, it makes a mockery of religion. The funeral did not put Lillie to rest, the open grave does not receive a person, who was "in the rim of earth."

This is the love, who is away for a little while, is not dead when the body dies. The God bound spirit has no death. The advent of a new life seems to die, if we mistakenly believe the body to be the person. Of course, this body has a spiritual essence, and the rose we wear when she was our sweet heart.

From early in our lives, we often dream of escaping the pangs of disappointment and failures, we fear sickness, we dread the loss of friends and loved ones, and other cares we live to, a paradise where there will be no night. Instinctively, we know the life is long, and beyond the grave, toward something that shall fulfill the unrelenting struggle toward a permanent rest.

Heaven in the language of Monroe Rush, Jr. is briefly stated: "The joyous realm where God completes his work." This common sense, as much as faith, would indicate that the potter prepares a room to meet the particular needs of his craft, in like manner, God has made Heaven to suit the work remaining to be done on earth.

Death is the opening and closing of a door, between two chambers in the house of God, that has, who knows how many rooms. Death some one has said "is a pause in the endless breaking of the waves against the shore of eternity, a rest between notes in the symphony of eternal life." Tears blind our physical eyes, We stand before them, away with the hands of faith, for we need a clear spiritual vision if we find strength to live, and make our lives a blessing to others.

Never doubting, never faltering, we need to praise God, from the alter hidden deep within our hearts, because between us and our dear loved ones who they are not experiencing. Do not spoil it for them." We should do our best to treasure over grief. Never doubting, never faltering, we need to praise God, from the alter hidden deep within our hearts, because between us and our dear loved ones who they are not experiencing. Do not spoil it for them." We should do our best to treasure over grief.

And since having touched the hands of faith, the way is open to become not only a better person, but a better citizen. (Continued on page 4)

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

When the Jesse James Gang Were at Pine Hill

Dear Sir: Being a native of Rockcastle County (Livingston) have heard my father, Clell Pike speak of the Jesse James outlaw gang being killed at Pine Hill near where my father was reared. While on leave here in California I was reading a book entitled "The Complete and Authentic Life of Jesse James" by Carl W. Breihan. The following portion of the book devoted to the robbery of a bank in Huntington, W. Va., on September 1, 1875, by members of the James gang and their subsequent flight into Southeastern Kentucky is quoted herewith for what historical value that might be gained from the conversation with some of the older residents of Rockcastle County who might shed more light on the subject.

"Another robbery attributed to Jesse and Frank and their companions was the looting of a bank at Huntington, West Virginia, on September 1, 1875. The names of the robbers were finally narrowed down to James, James Cole, Young Tom McDaniels, and a man named Tom Webb who also was known as Jack Keene. Mounted men, wearing long linen dusters, rode up to the bank. Two dismounted and entered, leaving the other two outside to frigate any curious citizens. Cashier Robert T. Oney, being a sensible man, wasn't long in opening the safe when ordered to do so. Unluckily the safe was disgorge of its contents. The entire operation did not take over fifteen minutes.

The pursuit is said to have been one of the best ever put up against the boys, and they were rather hard pressed. The general route of the get-away was to the southwest through the mountains of West Virginia, across the state border, and to Southeastern Kentucky.

Ten days or two weeks afterward two young brothers by the name of Dillon, who were living on a farm near Pine Hill in Rockcastle County, read the accounts in their local papers in which it was stated that perhaps the fugitives were hiding out somewhere in southeastern Kentucky. With a sense of precaution and a single excitement, the Dillons, plus their heavy rifles in good condition. Sure enough they did discover four heavily armed men. The Dillons called for them to halt and to throw down their weapons. They were the strangers made their escape and Dillons returned home.

Next morning they returned to the scene of the fight and saw blood stains on the ground, and they realized they must have wound up in the vicinity of the Dillons. They followed the bloodstains to a cornfield a short distance away and found Tom McDaniels' referring from his wounds. He, as carried to the Dillon home and a Doctor was called. Nothing could be done for him, however. After his death, a photograph was found on his person, and Cashier Oney positively identified him as one of the four men who had robbed his bank.

W. D. Dillon, one of the brothers who had fired on the bandits, later made this statement: "One night while McDaniels was 'sitting' at our home three men came and asked me the corpse. Luckily, I guess, I was not at home, arrived about midnight after they had left. At the time the three men requested to see the body only Mrs. Dillon and one or two of the neighbor women were present, they refused at first to allow the visitors to view the body. The men insisted, however, and were allowed to see the remains." The three men inquired who had shot McDaniels, but they were informed that no one knew it. One may question this report, yet it is possible that McDaniels

Annual Meeting and Electric Farm Show

July 16 and 17 are red-letter dates for folks around here. These are the dates the member-owners of the Jackson County Rural Electric Cooperative will meet together for their Annual Meeting and Electric Farm Show. The meeting will be held at Bond Memorial Park, McKee.

The local cooperative is one of 21 co-ops in the state to be visited by the Farm Show caravan, a traveling collection of top-notch professional entertainment, rides and other amusements for the kiddies, many valuable prize drawings for youngsters and adults, and exhibits and demonstrations of the latest in appliances and farm equipment.

The Farm Show will be presented in conjunction with the Annual Meeting of the Jackson County Rural Electric Co-op at which time the member-owners will take time out to help elect directors and vote on co-op policy. Everyone is welcome to the show, co-op member or not, says Luther Farmer, Manager of the co-op. It's free and open to the public.

Consistent crowd-pleasers in the annual event are the four contests for standouts in beauty, driving, valuable prizes are offered and local winners will

A miniature train for the kiddies to ride. There will be other rides and amusements too, plus a bicycle and adult watch as attendance prizes. Valuable prizes for the adults also.

And then a form glides into him in the field for his pursuers to find with the hope that he might have a chance to live if given proper medical care. It is therefore likely that he "was not abandoned" but given a chance to be nursed back to health. Respectfully, Jesse T. Pike, 303 Third Street, USMC, Chamber, Georgia.

CONGRESSIONAL I've never been to Washington, and I've wondered: Is the White House on the Capitol grounds? A-No! The White House, the official residence of the President is located at 1800 Pennsylvania Avenue, Northwest. Approximately blocks east is the Capitol, a building which houses both chambers of Congress. The White House is the oldest public building in Washington. President George Washington laid the cornerstone for it on Oct. 13, 1792, about a year before he laid the cornerstone for the Capitol. Q-I heard a reference the other day to the "United States Code." Just what is it? A-The U. S. Code is a consolidation and grouping by subject of the general permanent federal laws of the country. It is prepared by the House Judiciary Committee with the aid of law-book publishing firms. New editions are issued every six years and cumulative supplements are issued after each regular session of Congress. The Code states the law as it currently exists, by including amendments and excluding repealed statutes. Q-What is Congress doing to carry out President Eisenhower's plan for an international pool of atomic material and information for peaceful uses? A-Nothing so far. In requesting amendments to laws controlling atomic energy, the President Feb. 17 explained that these recommendations were apart from the atom-for-peace proposal submitted to the United Nations Dec. 8, 1953. He said legislation on that plan should await results of international discussions. (Copyright 1954, Congressional Quarterly)

RAMBLINGS

The farmers are very happy. A heavy rain fell over the county Wednesday afternoon and night. Pasture land that was brown and parched has been revived, corn which was planted on higher ground was beginning to show signs of being fired, late planting of tobacco failed to grow. But now everything is feeling the effects of copious moisture.

Mr. Roy Owens manager of K. U. here has commiserate water gauge that measures the rainfall. He stated that Mt. Vernon had 2.46 inches of rainfall, by far the heaviest this summer, in fact the only heavy rains for many weeks. The rains were general over the county. Creeks and brooks that had run dry were again filled with running water. Ponds have been replenished. It was one of those "it rains sometimes call" million dollar rain seems to have fallen over Brindle and Seafoad "Cane" Ridge, thence towards Brodhead and south towards Livingston. The rains in almost the whole county. No damage was done by the rains or wind, except that a few limbs were blown off and at one place I saw a tree of corn partly bent over. At several places I saw water standing in the fields. This will soon be absorbed into the dry earth.

I was much interested in the letter from Jesse T. Pike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ciel Pike. He is a first lieutenant in the United States Army, stationed at Ft. Meade, Georgia. He tells of an incident that happened here in this county years ago and many readers will be interested in that story when the Jesse James gang came to Pine Hill. The letter is well written and exceedingly interesting.

A special "Green Pastures" edition will be published on August 12. It will be of interest to every farmer and businessman of Rockcastle County. We hope that every merchant and businessman of the county will want to place an advertisement in this issue. We are now printing in green ink.

Farmers in Hickman county used two pounds of toxaphene an acre to control armyworms.

IN MEMORY

At the beautiful ponies standing out there That surely were not there before

Then each one got on his pony With graceful child like pride An streaked across the desert sky

As I stood there by his side I wept as I watched that wild band ride away

I felt like I had been left alone Then Jesus told me to follow him Up there to his great white throne

Then we talked in the Indian sign language I never knew it before He told me the secrets of the red man

How he would ride in the heavens once more I could still see them off in the distance

They had stopped from their first wild ride A spotted pony stood there by the bar

He said your place is there by their side I mounted that pony with a shout in my heart

And started with a wave of the hand I was glad when he told me my place was out there

By the side of that wild Indian band I rode up to where they had stopped

They were silently standing in line Then we waved good bye to the great white chief

As he gave us the Indian peace sign Ray Rickels

(Continued from page 1) wiser, in which means so much, for us in the future, but a victorious person in the end

"I will trust and not be afraid, for the Lord Jehovah is my strength and my song." Isaiah 12:2

DWIGHT M. SEATH CHARLES EWING BEN ADAMS STATE DAIRY COMMISSION

Appointment of a State Dairy Commission to promote the sale and use of dairy products was announced Thursday by Dean Frank J. Welch of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, U. of K.

The six members of the commission are: Ben S. Adams, State Dairy Commissioner of Kentucky; Charles O. Ewing, II, Louisville, representing the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation; Dwight M. Seath, Lexington, Head of the Dairy Section U. of Kentucky.

This appointment carries out the directive of the act passed by the Kentucky Legislature at the last session, proposing that a maximum of 2 cents per 100 pounds of milk be deducted from each producer's milk check and a minimum of 1/2 cent per pound be deducted from every producer's cream check, on a year-round basis. The act also provides for advertising, promotion, and research to sell more milk and other dairy foods. No such deduction can be made, however, until the program has been approved in a referendum by a majority of the dairy farmers voting.

Americans used an average of three glasses of milk a day, there would be no surplus of dairy products.

A set-aside for sales promotion is not new, Dean Welch pointed out. In 25 states dairy producers have already adopted a set-aside program similar to that proposed for Kentucky.

Plans for the referendum vote will be made by the Commission at an early date.

There will be a singing concert at Brindle Ridge Baptist church July 11, Sunday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock C.S.T. Every one invited.
