Our forest fire insurance

Fire protection is Job No. 1 for timber growers. Forest industries grow trees as a crop and protect them as a crop. Strong fire departments are part of tree farming. Even more important than putting out fires is fire prevention. That's where everyone can help. When you're in the woods, be careful. Help keep our State green

America's forest industries maintain radio and telephone systems and weather stations, train crews of firefighters and even close down woods operations when fire danger is acute.

Fall Pasture Top-Dressing Pays in Early Spring Bite

Pasture growth is high on field (left) that had fall top-dressing of complete fertilizer, in Wisconsin tests.

YOUR BEEF and dairy cattle will get an earlier grazing bite next spring, if you top-dress permanent pastures this fall with a complete fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Other profitable "pay offs" from fall fertilizer application are: 1—More grass and better grass during the spring season. 2—More total grazing days. 3—Lower feed bills. 4—Higher net returns due to lower costs.

"In more and more areas, there is increasing evidence that nitrogen in fall-applied fertilizer gives as good results in pasture production as top-dressing in the spring," says the committee.

"There is reason to believe that fertilizer added to bluegrass in the fall will promote the growth of seed as much of more as fertilizer put on in the spring. However, agronomists recommend that fertilizer containing large amounts of nitrogen should be put on in late fall so that it will not stimulate excessive fall growth before frost comes, where nitrogen is used on sandy soils with excessive internal drainage, the possibility of loss by leaching is greater."

Spreading fertilizer in the fall spreads out the farmer's workload, says the committee. Farmers have more time for such jobs in the fall than in the spring. The turf is more solid, too, and there is a firmer footing.

"When a farmer buys fertilizer for fall use," it says, "he is not only sure of getting well-placed fertilizer, but also the kind and amount he wants. Farmers planning on fall fertilizer use are advised to see their dealer now to make arrangements for delivery when it is available. To meet the demand for all crops, the movement of fertilizer should be stretched over a period beginning in August and September."

Friendly NOTE

Alfred Sparks, Jr.

"Courage without conscience is a wild beast." The word "courage" means, among other things, bravery, boldness and mental strength. The word "conscience" means the moral sense which makes us determine right from wrong. Courage is the strength to do things beyond the ordinary routine of our daily life. Sometimes it is the final factor which makes us go into a business deal that was slightly doubtful. Another example which makes the little push that makes us overtake an other car, with barely enough room to squeeze thru before an oncoming car, from the other direction, collides with ours. The latter example illustrates the point that courage without conscience can be a deadly weapon. It is important to know first that by acting courageously we are not endangering ourselves or others in any way. Be held by all means, but be bold for an honest and sincere purpose. A teenager driving a hot rod may possess a false type of courage but, by his act of courage without conscience, he leaves nothing but destruction behind.

Q-What has the government done to sell its war-time-built synthetic rubber facilities? A-On Nov. 30, the federal government began advertising for the purchase of 28 government-owned plants and facilities. Under terms of P. L. 205, a three-man commission is slated to report to Congress on proposed sale contracts by Dec. 31, 1955. Congress may reject the proposed sale, either in part or in toto. Q-Who are the oldest and youngest members of Congress? A-The oldest Senator is Theodore F. Green (D R. I.) who is 88, the youngest, Russell B. Long (D La.) 35. The honors for age in the House are held jointly by Vera Brent Spence (D Ky.) and Robert Crosser (D Ohio), at 79. Youngest Representative is William C. Wampler (R Va.), 27. Q-Can private contractors working for the federal government attempt to practice racial or religious discrimination against employees or job applicants? A-Not according to law. Most federal contracts contain a provision forbidding discrimination. Agencies letting the contracts are responsible for enforcement, using contract cancellation as a weapon. The Committee on Government Contract Compliance reported that enforcement has been ineffective. President Eisenhower Aug. 13 established the new Government Contract Compliance to help the agencies enforce non-discrimination provisions. Q-What are the chances for a national sales tax in 1954? A-Not good, according to recent statements by Reps. Daniel A. Reed (R N. Y., Chairman, and Wilbur D. Mills (D Ark.), of the House and Sen. James Eastland (D Miss.), who originates tax legislation. House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R Mass.) and majority leader Charles A. Halleck (R Ind.) also have been quoted as saying the chances for enactment of a sales tax or a manufacturers excise tax are slim. President Eisenhower said Sept. 30 he opposed a tax at the retail level, but declined to rule out the possibility of recommending an impost on manufactured products at the source. Some legislators believe that levying any new tax in an election year would be politically unwise. (Copyright, 1954, Congressional Quarterly)

Fall-Added Fertilizer Can Up Corn Yield, Cut Work Load

Fall-fertilized corn (right) makes as vigorous growth as spring-fertilized plants (left), in Minnesota tests.

PUTTING ON this fall the fertilizer you would normally plow down or disc in for corn or small grains next spring, can give you a bonus now. The Joint West Soil Improvement Committee points out in a recent statement. Adding fertilizer this fall has these advantages: -It leaves you more time for work next spring. Fields and roads are firmer in the fall and the work is easier to get on with machinery. -The fall-added fertilizer will be there in spring with little loss of nutrients on most soils. -You will get just as good yields of corn and spring seeded grains from fall applied fertilizer as from the same amount of nitrogen, phosphate and potash broadcast and plowed under in the spring. Tests in Minnesota and other Midwestern states indicate that fall fertilization gives as favorable crop results as does spring-added fertilizer. Agronomists estimate that in the fall you are more likely to find the exact grade and amount of fertilizer you need for next year's use. It is important to act promptly, however, in making arrangements for your fall fertilizer supplies, so they will be on hand when you want them. Agronomists cite these precautions for the use of fertilizer in the fall: -Nitrogen fertilizers should not be applied until the soil cools down to 60 degrees or below. Nitrogen and to some extent potash should not be put on sandy soils where there is the probability of leaching through excessive internal drainage. Fertilizers should not be applied to frozen ground.

RAMBLINGS

There were no ramblings in last week's issue. This was not due to my own choosing. Some have told me they missed them, which I, of course, appreciate. I missed them myself, not because I am the author of them, but because the paper looked like a ship without a rudder, an instrument without a voice, a bow without an arrow.

Every newspaper should have an editorial policy, and express no uncertain terms, what it believes.

However, let me assure my readers that I am a perfectly comfortable and well taken care of by a lot of student nurses, who look after my daily needs.

Spending a little time in a hospital, most of the time lying flat on my back, staring at the ceiling and four bare walls. The doctor has not yet told me how long I am supposed to remain here. However, I have to remain until my heart makes its adjustment and will be able to function properly again.
