Forty Years Of Service As County Agent

(Continued from page 1) Mutter offered him the job. He ran into William Jesse Baird, then a student at Berea and later Dean of the Foundation School and President of Morehead. Baird slapped him on the back and said they couldn't have found a better...

want me to grind 'em up and spread 'em around some more?" But he was making a place for himself nevertheless. Not long after that he was out from Mt. Vernon, going down Scaggs Creek. The road followed the creek bed and even for that arrangement was uncommonly good of old what Bob said...

man for the job. The farmers of Rockcastle County owe Jean Baird more than they realize. One more discouraging remark that day, and Bob Spence says now he thinks he would have quit.

On His Way

He still has the saddle bags he bought when he went to work as of the first of July, 1914. (Actually he wasn't out of the hospital by then, but the government counts his term of service as of that date.) He used them for six and a half years, riding horseback on a horse furnished by Berea College. Her name was Kentucky Bird—John F. Smith had named her and she was two years old when she went to work with Bob. All in all she was in the Berea Extension Service for twenty-one years and was justly named.

The first year Bob spent largely in getting acquainted. It was no easy task for a young man, because the older farmers, who owned the land were set in the ways of their ancestors and many of them had an in-bad. Along about dusk, when they were too far from Mt. Vernon, the fact that Kentucky Bird cast a shoe. On the stony creek bed she could hardly hobble; Bob gave up making his destination that night, and began looking for a place to stay. Kentucky Hospitality Presently he came to a man and boy unloading bone dust as they called fertilizer. Bob spoke, the man spoke; Bob struck up a conversation, hoping the man would invite him to spend the night. But as time went by the man didn't seem to warm up. An hour and a half went by, and no invitation was spoken. It got dark and Bob got desperate. Finally he decided on one more effort. Surely, he thought, at least one of the men in the group would do it.

Kentucky hospitality would demand that the man ask him to stay the night. So Bob got on the limping horse, wheeled her around, and said, "Well, I'm glad to have met you." "Glad I met you," the man started back in the direction of Mt. Vernon. He got about thirty born prejudice against new-fangled science. He remembers making a talk about ground limestone and fertilizer soon after he began work. The idea was not much used in the hill country then, and Bob lectured on the benefits of lime in sweetening the soil and combating acidity. The meeting was in a schoolhouse jammed with people, some of whom really wanted help. Some of whom had known Montgomery and came in respect to his work, and some who were just plain curious to see what was going on.

feet when the man called after him, "Spence, I reckon you know you're perfectly welcome to stay with us if you can pull in with our fare." Bob turned around and said, "Mister, I've been trying for two hours to get you to say anything about farming and improvements. The farmer doubted a good deal of what Bob said, but the shoe was broken. It became a strong Spence supporter. Bird's lost shoe and the man's invitation to stay the night became an introduction to the whole country. The children of the family later became 4-H members, and the grandchildren are active in the program today.

Starting 4-H Clubs

The 4-H work was the first project he started. He had four members in his first club, which was organized on Silver Creek in 1915. They were Nelson Hurst, Ray McArthur, Charlie Smith, and Lonnie Fish. Hurst won early 4-H fame by raising a prize-winning hog, the biggest on record in Jackson Co. up to that time, and which started the Duroc business in the Clover Bottom area. Char-les Smith was an introduction to the whole country.

John Lambert, now attorney in Mt. Vernon, and Representative in the General Assembly, was one of Bob's early 4-H members, as were sixty per cent of the teachers now employed in Rockcastle County. The first county agricultural fair, which was one of the most important parts of his program, was the 1920, at Harrison. The two years later, the second opened at Loretta, and the third at Brush Creek. In 1924, he introduced the county's agricultural fairs, to which the community fairs sent their first and second prize winners. Later, with better facilities, the agricultural fairs tended to fade out, the county seat closer to the farm. The local community fairs became the main event in the program.

Organizing The Farmer

Bob's first county agricultural fair, which was one of the most important parts of his program, was the 1920, at Harrison. The two years later, the second opened at Loretta, and the third at Brush Creek. In 1924, he introduced the county's agricultural fairs, to which the community fairs sent their first and second prize winners. Later, with better facilities, the agricultural fairs tended to fade out, the county seat closer to the farm. The local community fairs became the main event in the program.

Starting Electrification

Bob went into a lot of opposition at first when he backed electrification. In the early days of electricity on their farms. One man stood up at a meeting and said that if a dime would put electricity on every farm in his county, he would not spend the dime. People said it was too expensive and too dangerous. Bob went ahead, backed the idea, and has seen electricity come to fifteen hundred homes, electricity not only for lights but for radios and stoves and sewing machines. As time went by he threw down the opposition of some of the local school boards, and saw lights come into the rural schools. He saw REA lines push through from place to place, until now in many of his area the lack of electricity is more to be commented on than its presence.

Looking At Progress

Now, as he retires, Bob Spence can look at progress which can hardly be called anything but wonderful. When he started work the corn yield in Rockcastle County averaged 13 bushels to the acre and a half bushels to the acre.

Now stands at 45, with some raising a hundred or more and twenty, and 65 is far from uncommon. The tobacco average in 1915 was three hundred and ninety pounds to the acre, in Rockcastle; now the average has passed sixteen hundred and eighty-five. Many farmers are not satisfied with more than a ton and some have gone up to twenty-five hundred or three thousand.

Pasturage was increased by leaps and bounds. When Bob was riding Old Bird he went for a week at a time without seeing a calf pasture. Thousands of acres are now being improved every year, and last year Rockcastle County raised as much pastureage as in any three years previously. The Green Pastures tours which are now an annual event would have seemed ridiculous twenty or thirty years ago.

In 1915 the average cow in the area produced three quarters of milk. Now that average is four gallons, and some farmers report seven. Bob has seen artificial breeding bring in better bloodlines, so that the dairy averages alone now brings in $400,000 a year in Rockcastle County. The beef cattle industry shows a rise just as spectacular.

Receives Many Honors

He has received many honors. As early as the Nineteen Thirties the National County Agents Association gave him a certificate for distinguished service. Last November Dean Frank J. Welch of the University of Kentucky School of Agriculture handed him the Lederle Award for distinguished farm service as the oldest County Agent in point of service in Kentucky. In July of this year came another plaque, presented in London by the 4-H Club Office, and the County Agent of this district, in recognition of his statewide service to their organization.

The first sudan grass ever grown in this section of Kentucky

It was grown on Bristol Taylor's farm at the top of Seaford Cane. Back in 1927 the 4-H people had given him a silver cup already distinguished at that early date. There have been many other such recognitions. He has had 148,943 official calls during the forty years. He has made 41,847 telephone calls. He has written 4,379 news articles, record which many professional newspapermen will envy. He has distributed 274,893 farm bulletins.

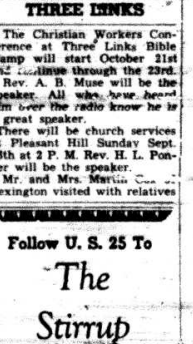

He has traveled 18,523 miles by rail, 185,537 by car, walked 6,015, traveled 13,749 by horse and he put in 100 miles in the seat on an aerial tour of Rockcastle County. The total comes to 223,834.

He has sent out 833,335 circular letters and 119,600 individual letters. He has held 895 training meetings, attended in total by 21,775 people.

He has held 8,184 other meetings with a total attendance of 608,836. He raised his family in Berea. His wife, whose maiden name was Mary Clagett, was a Berea girl. His son, Robert F. Jr., graduated at Eastern State College and is now an auditor for Ashland Oil. One of his daughters, Helen, now Mrs. Abbey Scruggs lives in Berea with her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. F. Scruggs, on Pearl Street. His other daughter, Esther, is married to Clyde Phillips of Ashboro, N. C. She is secretary to the State Highway Department there, and her husband is associated with the Ford Motor Company. The Spences have three grandchildren, Brenda and Robert, III, children of Robert Spence, Jr., and Abbey Scruggs, III, son of the late Abbey Scruggs of Berea.

Bob will take about a month to clear out his offices in Berea and in Mt. Vernon. He has no intention of quitting work. He could have stayed longer as County Agent, but he says that forty years seemed a long enough record.

Robert F. Spence now clearing up offices here and at Berea. Has trained forty men for County Agents.

The readers of the Signal, especially the many rural subscribers, will be much interested in the story of Robert F. Spence, their county agent for the past forty years. The following sketch, partly abbreviated, was written by Warren Lambrecht of Berea, and its detailed account brings out many interesting facts of a long and useful service given by Mr. Spence.

Forty years ago a man called Red Bob went to work for the Farmers. He is still at it. And people who know Robert Spence know that his retirement as County Agent this past week is not likely to stop that work. July, 1914 it was a very different time from ours. Edna Ferber once wrote that she lived a life that had 1914 in the middle of it was to have lived in two different worlds. She was

The Fish That Didn't Get Away !!

Down around Brodhead and Crab Orchard there should be a new fish story going around, and the Signal can assure any of its readers who happen to hear the story that it's true.

Elmo Anderkin, who passes out the pay checks at the Signal each week, was there in fact Mr. Anderkin helped bring Mr. 'Jonnie' was the fisherman, Mr. Jonnie was at the Huntington Lakes Sunday and weighed fifty pounds. A fifty pound catfish!

On second thought Mr. Anderkin will admit that maybe Mr. Jonnie would should be estimated at between forty and fifty pounds, but below forty he won't go. The fish was as big as the other ones, that's a joke four men to bring him in.

RAMLINGS

I liked the speech that John Sheppard Cooper gave last Monday night. It was one of those speeches to which every voter should honestly subscribe. There was no indulgence in flippant oratory. There was no bitter criticism and there were no sneer words. Not once did he mention the name of his opponent nor did he ever say anything derogatory about him.

Cooper did not intend to sway his hearers by high-sounding platitudes or empty rhetoric. It was a sound, accurate, statesmanlike appeal to the good common sense of Kentuckians. I have tried to do what he believed was best for our nation and our state and this I will always do," said Mr. Cooper.

Nobody doubted the sincerity of his words.

Cooper is a big enough statesman in the eyes of many voters to stand across party lines and will receive heavy support not only of his own party but also that of many thoughtful Democrats and Independents.

The call for a prayer for peace by the President of the United States at the Mt. Vernon world again shows the attitude of mind of a big man. This prayer was beamed to the little people behind the curtain.

It should bring an upsurge of hope to multitudes of oppressed persons over the entire world.

To write my ramlings from a hospital bed is about like doing absentee farming. I really can't do it. My pen is not available to comment on the going-on.

My hands that were hard and calloused from a lot of manual labor have become quite white and flabby. The ink and grease spots underneath the fingernails have disappeared. There were a thousand things that I wanted to do with my fingers, but how I have to read magazines, listen to the radio, or do some book work which is uninteresting, or do some strange but routine of a thing, I wish to say that I'm making progress and I hope to be able to be out within a short time.

The other day I received a letter from one of the Signal subscribers from Pueblo, Colo. Her name is Elizabeth Swinford. What she says I would like to share with my readers. As you have stated in your RAMLINGS which I enjoy very much, Mrs. Swinford writes, "the trouble seems to be your heart. Well I presume you know the heart is the toughest and most overworked organ in your body. Beginning when we are born and ending without a minute's rest if we are no more. So with a lot of rest and practically no worry about your paper you should overcome this attack."

I enjoyed your little poem last week, but would have been sunk had you not translated them.

Mrs. Swinford enclosed a poem in her letter which I am sure many readers will appreciate. I got a big kick out of it.

The poem was sent to her by her daughter who has been in the newspaper business for more than twenty-five years and who is now with the Free Press in Colorado Springs which is owned by Edwin P. Hoyt who is the son of Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post. Mrs. Swinford said the poem has no name, so she named it "An Ode to a Newspaper Guy."

Here it is:

I see a man pushing his way through the crowds.
Gets to where the work of a friend shines.

"Free Chief!" then some one scurries.
Gosh, no! that's one of them newspaper guys.

I see a man standing in line at a show,
Where throngs are backed by a sign S. R. O.

Is this man the star that no ticket he buys?
Star nothing! that's one of them newspaper guys.

I see a man start on the trail of a crook,
And he scans the police, but he brings him to book.

Sherlock Holmes? I inquire But to my surprise They tell me he's one of them newspaper guys.

I see a man sit in the seats of the great,
And they ask his advice on matters of state,
A diplomat surely Someone he put me wise,
They told me he's one of them newspaper guys.

Someday I'll stand by the great oratory of empty rhetoric,
And see a man pass unquestioned and bold,
A Saint? I'll inquire and St. Peter will show
He carries a pass. He's a newspaper guy.

And he'll interview all the Saints in their glory,
I'm willing to bet he'll send in the story
The next day's greatest scoop,
That he'll bid an goodbye
For Heaven's no place for a newspaper guy.

Mt. Vernon Students To See Late News Reels

The March Project continues at the Mt. Vernon School. Now instead of just reading about the news of the world through the current news sessions, students at the school are seeing news reels each week.

The film strips are loaned to the school every week. News events of late Saturday afternoon are shown at the school the following Monday.

The project is being sponsored by the Senior Class. The first film was shown Monday morning by James St. Puckett, representative of Hadden Films in Somerset. In the future teachers will be supplied with narrations to accompany the film strips.

The news reels will be furnished to each school each week. In addition to the news film strips, the school will be provided with additional film strips in geography, general science, art, music, chemistry, biology and other school subjects.

Each of the additional films will be shown each week.

The teacher's manuals and narrations are prepared in three grade levels, primary, intermediate and high school. The service has been put into practice in 18 states, and according to School Superintendent Clyde Linnville, tests have shown that students learn 85 per cent more through this type of education, and retain what they learn 60 per cent longer.

Film Kentucky, a total of 59 schools now are using the service. Altogether 4,300 schools have added the service to their schedule.

Students in the science department now are seeing microscopic objects magnified twenty times per foot of projection. The closer scientific study is being made possible through the addition of a microscope attachment for the school's film strip projector.

The new trophy cases at the entrance of the school were presented by the Class of '54.

Compromise With Satan

This thought was brought to my mind by a faithful reader from Orlando, Ok. and I would like to pass it on to my readers.

It is very often that we make a compromise with satan and let him crowd out all things that are worthy and good.

Satan appears in so many ways, usually disguised in little here and a little there just to obtain so many of the worthy things we want, that before we realize it we are walking hand in hand with Satan.
