John Houston, chairman of the agriculture committee, appointed the Rockcastle Development Association Monday night.

The Rockcastle County Development Association went on record as endorsing this project.

Motion also was made that the Better Business Committee approach the merchants of the county and look into the possibility of a wholesale grocery store for the county.

The county was also to sponsor a Rockcastle County Day soon at which time every merchant of the county would sell a special item at cost or below in order to build up a better friendship between the merchants and the county people and to try to promote more of trade with our merchants and in the county, rather than going out of the county to trade.

Clairie Chaney, chairman of the Better Business Committee, is to select the date for the "Rockcastle County Day" and build as much publicity for the day as possible, with each merchant to advertise his special. No to merchants would have the same special.

Arnos Owens, chairman of the Membership Committee, reported that the association now has 81 paid members.

Second Smith Trial Ends In Hung Jury

A jury which can reach a verdict in the case of Pfc. Ray Smith is yet to be found.

An all-male jury failed to reach an agreement at the young soldier's trial during this term of court. Smith has been charged with willful murder in connection with the death of Lewis Abney, who died last January of ice-pick wounds.

Smith was first tried during the March term of court. Three accused and nine men failed to agree on the young soldier's guilt or innocence during the pleading.

Ray Smith was home on leave from Marine Corps Base in Riverside, Calif., when the trouble occurred. He had gone to the Maple Grove Church for watch night services, in the company of another Orlando youth, Robert Ball.

Lewis Abney, a young man only a year older than Smith, also showed up for the services, in the company of three friends. According to testimony given at the trial this week all of the young men were drinking.

A bon fire had been built across the front of the church and here the trouble started. Abney first accused Smith of hitting Abney with a knife. Stewart testified that he did not see the fight.

The most damaging testimony against Smith came from Mrs. J. L. Stewart, who stated that she was standing at the door of the church when Abney ran into the building and saw Smith follow the wounded man to the door. According to Mrs. Stewart, Smith told Dewey Robinson that he was going to kill Abney. Robinson did not appear as a witness.

Smith told the jury that he followed Abney to the door because he "wanted to see if he'd hurt the boy."

The soldier stated that Abney Smith twice called him from behind. He had the ice pick in his hand at the time and started hitting back as he stated.

The jury will deliberate on the soldier's right of self-defense in November. The case has been set down for November 15.

This week's trial opened on Tuesday and was closed Thursday. The jury deliberated about 10 hours before reaching a verdict in some cases.

Three parents sat with bowed heads during the entire trial, Mrs. Abney's mother, Mrs. Carrie Smith, and the dead boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Squire Abney. No one could help but feel sympathy for all concerned as the trial progressed into its third day and then the announcement came that there would be a hung jury before the jury could honestly say that evidence had been presented to warrant a verdict.

Farm Production Contributes To Stable World Economy

By John Houston, President
Rockcastle Farm Bureau

We the members of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation are proud of our contribution to our national economy and to our social well-being. The abundant production of our farms has been an important factor in contributing to the stability of our world economy. We will continue to strive for the attainment of our goal of a well-fed and peaceful world. Increasing our total agricultural output, but volume of production cannot be relied upon as a means of attaining a high income.

We recognize that efficiency in farming, as in any other productive enterprise, has much to do with the level of net income and well-being of individual farmers. We are in the midst of an agricultural revolution, and progress calls for the adoption of more and better machinery, new and improved varieties of field crops, better herd and better livestock, better farm management practices and co-operative associations as a means of reducing marketing costs and purchasing of farm supplies.

We feel that the restoring of our soils to their proper productivity is necessary for a balanced farm economy.

Soil Conservation Aids Community

By Bradley Taylor

A lot is said and written about soil conservation but most people think of the program as only an aid to the landowner. Soil conservation is a program of conservation and at the same time fully utilizes the sources and fertility of the soil. A wise program of soil conservation will help the tenant farmer, the land owner, and the community.

First, soil conservation helps the tenant farmer because it increases his net income by providing for each hour of labor. Rich well preserved soil with proper drainage will increase the earning power of the actual producer. It also increases the yield per acre whether the crop be corn, tobacco or pasture.

Silage Economical Feed For Livestock

By Roy Turner
Vocational Agriculture Teacher
Broadhead High School

I have had one year of experience with a trench silo and the making of silage and feeding it. The conclusions I draw from this year's experience are as follows: We had some spoilage. That essential steps to be taken in a silage conservation program is pick dirt on top to exclude the building of terraces and dams on a farm, conserve moisture and increase the supply of water for the summer months. Every farm of water where the terrain of the farm is so that through the construction of dams and ponds this supply can be caught during the winter season and used during the crop season. Through increase in land value and income the farm and community become prosperous more taxes are paid for highway improvement, for better schools and a better community. Yes, a sound conservation program carried on by the farmer will help all of the people in a community.

Master Pastureman For 1954 Reports

By Henry Brown

As a Master Pastureman for Rockcastle County, I am thinking that at this time of the year is a good time to make a few comments of the subject of our Pastures.

I am very proud of the fact that we have the opportunity and privilege of participating in such a program. We also must realize that the time has come that we have to so arrange our farming program that will gain for us the highest net spendable income. That high net income can best be brought about by proper management.

I think the Green Pasture Program has meant a lot to many people in the state. We must come to realize that by seeding more acres to grasses and legumes and less to row crops we will go a long way in saving our soils. That valuable top soil is the vital and essential part of the farmer's livelihood.

The problem of erosion plays an important part in the farm operation, and seeding our farms to grasses will solve this problem.

I am very happy to be a part of an operation where I can have the help and assistance of the various farm agencies and organizations in carrying out the program.

2. Our silage cost us around $3.00 per ton to produce and put in the silo.

3. Feeding silage was the easiest feeding we did because we built a gate across the silo which the cows could get through the heads through in other words we self fed it.

The entire herd we silage April 1. That included cows and heifers. As I see it the silage is in a tight squeeze between the high prices he is having to pay for the machinery, feed, seed, fertilizer and other things he buys for his farm and the products he is producing and selling from his farm. In order for a farmer to be able to stay in business under such circumstances, he will have to produce efficiently. Whether a farmer is producing beef or milk, silage is one of the most economical feeds he can use.

Know Your Pastures

By Don Pardue
Assistant County Agent

Good grass crops don't just happen; the farmers in the county have to take for them increasing pasture yields. Many are fairly simple or it may be complicated on your farm.

Better grazing management is the main thing that is needed on some pastures, while fertilizing or liming is all that is needed on others. Some pastures need drainage, irrigation, brush control, or removal of stones and stumps. Many pastures need to be renovated and replanted with improved grasses and legumes.

Your first step in planning for better grass crops is to become familiar with the capability of the land on your farm. This can be done quickly and easily by having your soil tested. You may need entirely different treatment or different kind of grasses for each pasture. Figure out the amount of grass you already have and how much more you need. This will depend considerably on the kind and amount of livestock that you wish to keep and the other crops that you can grow.

There are some management suggestions that can help you to better grassland farming:

1. Grow better grass crops that fit your farm program and your land.
2. Prepare a good seed bed and furnish the plants with good soil fertility.
3. Control weeds, grasses, or grass and legume seed that are adapted to your land and climate.
4. Control weeds, bushes, rodents and insects that compete with the grass plants for food and water or that destroy the plants.
5. Graze or mow the pasture so that best results can be obtained from the pasture.

If you have a livestock program on your farm, remember to your key to success or fail.

Choice Of Pasture Crops

By H. Lee Durham
County Agent

Pasture provides cheaper feed at less labor than other crops at all the same time, produces a high yield of digestible nutrients per acre as cultivated crops in a good rotation on the same land and space. Thoughtful owners and labor spent in increasing and maintaining the permanent pasture are there. Pasture livestock raises more money than any other type of livestock raising.

Red Clover - Red Clover is a perennial plant in habit of growth and well adapted to soils of moderate fertility. It is excellent for pasture in short rotations and for use in pasture mixtures.

Sweet Clover - Sweet Clover is an annual or biennial plant in habit of growth and well adapted to soils of moderate fertility. It is excellent for pasture in short rotations and for use in pasture mixtures.

White Clovers - There are two important white clovers in Kentucky, Common White and Giant White. Ladino is the variety of white clover recommended for Kentucky at this time.

Crimson Clover - Crimson Clover is of most interest in Kentucky. It is a perennial plant in habit of growth and well adapted to soils of moderate fertility.

Other Clovers - Black Medick, Yellow Trefoil is an annual or biennial plant in habit of growth and well adapted to soils of moderate fertility.

Bullfinch Clover - A winter annual growing during fall, winter and spring. There are two main varieties, the one is known as Common Lespedeza and the other as Koba and Koba.

Hop Clover - There are no named recommended varieties. In general, Hop Clover is a small growing annual clover with small yellow blossoms appearing in June.

Series - A drought perennial in general, Hop Clover is a small growing annual clover with small yellow blossoms appearing in June.

Crop Residues Useful In Improving Soil

By Herbert Thompson
Vocational Agriculture Teacher
Brookhead High School

Conservation and use of crop residues and farm manure is part of any good soil improving program that cannot afford to be overlooked. All crops remove plant nutrients from the soil...

One ton of manure per acre will produce about 10 tons of manure per year. A horse will produce about 7 1/2 tons of manure per year...

It is well to remember that the full benefit of farm manure is not secured the first year, but remains effective over a period of several years.

Crop residues, particularly tobacco stalks, are very valuable in a sound farming program. The ratio of leaf produced to the stalk is about 1.5-1. That is, every 1 1/2 lbs. of leaf produced, one lb. of stalk is produced...

The play, which also was made into a motion picture, will be staged in the uncut Broadway version. Producer Eben C. Benson stated...

Erosion Vs. Conservation

By Robert Winn, FHA

In every area of life in our country today there is a battle being waged - nation against nation; race against race; ideal against ideal.

ions, and no longer being able to personate an angry man, commended all that were present to depart that he might make himself known to his brethren when he had them alone and when the others were gone out, Joseph made himself known to his brethren, and commanded them for their virtue and kindness to Benjamin.

There is a battle between the forces of nature that tend to erode the soil and the forces of nature that tend to conserve the soil. Until man took the ax and plow in his hand the forces for conservation, trees and grass, were the strongest. Now to conserve the soil man must work with nature in order to battle against the forces of erosion.

Do not you, therefore, let your evil intentions, when you sold me to strangers and that better remorse which might follow, be a grief to you now, because those intentions were made void by the mysteries of God who does all things for good to the faithful and true.

Go therefore, thy way rejoicing in what has happened by Divine providence and in from your father of all things best his life should be spent with mourning for your return and deprive me of the joy I long for in seeing him again.

The Story Of Joseph

Chapter XVII

So Judah, being able to undergo anything whatsoever, for the deliverance of his brother, cast himself down at Joseph's feet and earnestly labored to pacify his anger.

We Believe In Greener Pastures For ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

While many in Rockcastle County have been talking green pastures, H. C. Martin, Three Links, has been practicing green pastures. Mr. Martin's farm consists of 220 acres of rolling land on the border of Rockcastle and Jack Counties. Mr. Martin tends about 2 acres of tobacco and a garden and has 132 acres of lush hay and pasture. The grasses and legumes found on his farm when a group of his neighbors had a soil and water conservation field trip were orchard grass, timothy, blue grass, bromegrass, fescue, red clover, alfalfa, ladino clover, sericea, Korean lespedeza and sweet clover.

He cut hay for his 18 head of cattle and has about 3000 bale to sell each year. More livestock are needed on the farm and Mr. Martin has not decided whether to buy 50 head of ewes or to buy beef cattle. The danger of dogs, hogs, may influence him to buy beef cattle.

Mr. Martin's philosophy of treating each acre with the needed lime and fertilizer has really paid off in production. Several farmers remarked that he had more grasses and legumes than they had seen on any other farm in the County. Mr. Martin has certainly done his part toward making Rockcastle County green.

American Farmer Credits Success To Green Pastures

By John T. Houston

As a member of the Future Farmers of America, I look to Green Pastures as one of the greatest soil conserving practices that can be carried out on a farm. The soil is the foundation of our food and much credit for the success of my making the American Farmer's Degree.

Soil Conservation in my thinking is very closely related to the Green Pastures style of farming, awakening us to the great need of not only conserving the fertility of our soils but the need of building back the plant food that had been lost already.

We, the younger farmers of today, are faced with the grave problem of becoming established on a small time of national production. The soil is our most precious asset and we must have it in the best possible condition to produce the most profitable crops.

We put forth an all out effort to accomplish an on our farm. In 1934 we began to use "fort" law, low and blue cover crops and use every possible method to build up and hold our soils.

John Houston Reports As Master Pastureman

As we travel around over the country we observe great differences of very good Green Pastures as well as better kept farms in a general way. It causes us to be thankful for the progress that has been made, although there is room for much improvement.

Thursday, August 25, 1955 at 9:30 A. M. CST

LOCATION: This exceedingly desirable farm is nicely located about 5 miles Southwest of Brodhead, Ky., being about 3 1/2 miles West of Highway No. 150 and about 1/2 mile North of Highway No. 79, in the settlement of Ottawa, Rockcastle County, Ky. A good location, close to the main highway, and a reliable bus connection.

ADJOINING PROPERTY: Adjoining property of Messrs. Homer Cash, Virgil Lawrence, John Brown and the Scoggins land.

LAND: All in grass except about 10 acres, of good merchantable timber, predominating in poplar and white oak. 37 of an acre in tobacco and the garden spot. A variable tractor farm — level to very gently rolling and is limestone land. Watered by springs, spring fed branch and spring fed pond. Has a good orchard with choice variety of fruit; also a vineyard. Grasses predominate in alfalfa, fescue, lespedeza and pasture mixture. This fertile land has produced this extremely well improved farm. All fencing is well above average.

IMPROVEMENTS: Consist of a lovely home with a full concrete basement, inside and outside entrances. Connected in this basement is the 42 gallon capacity water storage tank and electric pump for own water system and that of adjoining buildings. First floor contains a large living room, dining room, bed room, kitchen and dinette combined with double floors throughout. Large concrete veranda.

Second floor contains 3 bed rooms, 2 with closet spaces and hallway. All rooms have private entrances into the hall. This house is new, having been constructed in 1948 of choice seasoned materials. First floor is built of concrete blocks, sealed, plastered and painted. Second floor is of frame material.

Near this home is located a frame storebuilding 18 x 32 feet with storage room at the rear. There will be a small stock of merchandise and some fixtures to be sold as personal property. The stock is being sold out for the convenience of the buyer of this farm.

The next building in order is a garage with 4 living rooms overhead and water is piped into the kitchen. At the rear of this garage is located a feed room with concrete floor. This structure also is built of concrete block material. 3-room tenant house on back of farm.

Adjoining the above on the West is located a large, modern poultry house built of concrete blocks and has electricity and running water. The second concrete block poultry house adjoins the above and has running water — electricity easily available.

East of the home is located one of the best banked stock barns to be found anywhere. This concrete block building is 32 feet wide and 72 feet in length. Has a concrete entrance drive and 18 stalls with concrete floors in each stall. All partitioned off with gates. The upper portion of this barn consists of a huge loft and gambrel type roof. This barn is so arranged that trucks can back up to the loft from the exterior and load and unload with ease. This splendid barn would cost no less than $5,000 to construct today — it is lost!

East of the above mentioned barn is located a combination stock and tobacco barn 48 x 72 feet with gambrel type roof over main portion and sheds on both side. This is a frame building, well constructed and well braced and can cure 4 acres of tobacco. Stripping room is located near above barn. All above buildings are equipped with lightning rods.

Where visions grace the sky, Freedom shall bless the land. VISIONS are elusive sometimes, but they have a way of coming down to earth. This thing called soil conservation on the land was once a vision - little more than the seed of an idea, the idea that farmers could work together to solve their mutual problems. The seed proved to be remarkably viable, for the soil conservation district idea has sent down like a protective blanket over our good earth. There is more than physical resemblance between a contour-strippes field and the red and white stripes of Old Glory. The soil conservation district embodies the very essence of the rights and freedoms for which our flag stands. Cherishing those rights and freedoms, farmers have organized soil conservation districts that are of local people, by local people, for local people. A soil conservation district is composed of local people who see their own problems and solve them, who see their own responsibility and shoulder them. They are local people doing that which they should do voluntarily, with no infringement of rights and liberties, with scarcely a law, rule, regulation, or tax. The soil conservation district, in action, is literally a bit of the freedom enterprise that made America a land of opportunity and abundance. Soil improvement, through good land use, is a modern vision, a new frontier of rural America.
