4-H Week

Several boys and girls from Rockcastle County plan to attend 4-H Week at the University of Kentucky at Lexington June 3 through 7. A county which has a Home Demonstration Agent and a County Agent to accompany the boys and girls may take 5 boys and 3 girls, in addition to their district winners. All boys and girls who go to 4-H Week must be outstanding 4-H members and must be 14 years old or over.

Those boys and girls who plan to attend from this county are: John Purcell, Mike Hunt, Paul Hansel, Jerry Dowell, Lester Sandusky, Norma Ramsey, Barbara Pittman, Mary Ellen Hansel, Nancy Helton, Barbara Witt, and Crawford Jackie Hayes and Dexter Roberts. The latter three will be attending as members of the winning soil judging team in the district.

Varied Program Planned For 4-Hers

A full program of activities, demonstrations, discussions, lectures and fun-times have been scheduled for the hundreds of 4-Hers, and county farm and home agents who will be attending 4-H Club Week.

Every county in the state is expected to be represented by club members, said George D. Corder, Chairman of 4-H Extension Program.

Included in the list of speakers are:

The Hon. A. B. Chandler, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky; Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University of Kentucky; Dr. O. W. Lever, president of Kentucky Wesleyan College, Owensboro; Miss Lois Allen, 1957 IFYE to Sweden, Webster County; Barney Arnold, WHAS, Louisville, and Col. Wm. E. Grubbs and Dr. E. J. Nesius, from the University.

The Rev. Sam Vander Meer of Morris Fork, will lead evening vespers each day, and George Campbell of Cincinnati, Ohio, will direct group singing. Outstanding 4-H club members also will take part in the program. Girls who were named district winners in bread making, dairy foods or general subjects will compete for the state championship in those fields, while boys will present demonstrations on "The Trug on the Bag." "The Kentucky Seed Law" and on different phases of water management and soils.

A girl and boy, state winner, in public speaking, in those fields, will be selected from a group of district winners.

The parade of champions and donors of awards will be presided over by Barney Arnold, on Friday night, and state 4-H club officers will be installed by Dr. E. J. Nesius.

The club members will leave for their homes Saturday morning.

Top-Dress Alfalfa-Crop After First '38 Cutting

Top-dress alfalfa stands after the first cutting in 1958, says Harold Miller, Kentucky Extension Service fertility specialist.

The fertilizer should contain ample amounts of potash, phosphorus and in some cases, boron, he says. No nitrogen is recommended, except for the original fertilization on the alfalfa seed-bed, because legumes (alfalfa is one) get nitrogen from the air.

Test soils for actual element needs, Miller says. Generally about 120 pounds actual potash per acre, 200 pounds of 60 percent muriate of potash is sufficient; phosphorus generally is recommended at the annual rate of 60 pounds actual per acre.

300 pounds of 20 percent super-phosphate, and boron, about 10 to 15 pounds per acre. These foods could be supplied in 600 pounds of an 0-10-20 fertilizer, or 300 pounds of an 0-20-40 fertilizer.

Maintenance fertilizer is a must for alfalfa fields if yields and quality are to be maintained.

Extension Circular 312 on alfalfa is available at county agents' office.

Prune and Care For Evergreens Now

From June 1 until July 15 is the best time of all the year to prune evergreens. Plants pruned at this time will set buds above the top of the small cuts made in pruning and that means a thicker, denser evergreen. The top should not be cut unless the plant is as tall as you want it to grow.

The way to prune evergreens is really quite easy; simply remove one-half to two-thirds of the new growth. This new growth is easily determined because it is light green. In the case of the pine, the new growth is called "candles" to be pruned with sharp pruning shears. Boxwoods are best pruned by cutting each young shoot off with a sharp knife over the finger. If the pruning shears are used on boxwoods, the plants have an unglazed appearance, and that is not natural.

Next in importance to pruning the evergreens at this time is the need for keeping the soil loosened in a circle around each plant to keep down the growth of weeds and grass. This is especially important to the young plants, those that have been set in the past four years. By having this circle around the plants, not only do you create favorable growing conditions but also make it easy to water them in case of drought.

This is the time when the red spider will be attacking the evergreens and this insecting should be controlled or they will do much damage. These tiny spiders are especially bad on the hemlock and spruce, and when these plants begin to look rusty and are not doing well, they should be examined for spiders. To see them, it may be necessary to hold a piece of white paper in among the branches and hit the twigs above the paper so that some of them fall off onto the paper. The spiders are about the size of a pin point and when shaken onto the paper will begin to move in a short time. The control is to dust with sulfur or spray with aramite or some material, especially prepared, for the spiders.

Evergreens should be sprayed or dusted only when the temperature is below 70 degrees; otherwise, the plants may be injured. It may be necessary to repeat the control two or three times at 15-day intervals.

First Feeder-Pig Sale Averages $38.49 Per Head

A report of the Northeastern Kentucky Feeder-Pig Association first feeder-pig sale has just been received by this office. The report was sent to us by Zack C. Saufley, Extension Specialist in livestock marketing.

According to Mr. Saufley, the pigs averaged $38.49 a hundred weight, with 462 pigs being sold. Average weight was 57 pounds per head. Pigs brought an average of $20.85 per head. The sale was held at the Farmers Stockyards in Flemingsburg. Mr. Saufley stated, "We feel the sale generally was quite successful. Of course, numbers were low and the quality could have been better." Mr. Saufley also stated in his report to us that the Feeder-Pig Sale that he recently attended at Osgood, Ind., was similar to what we have at Renfro Valley and Brodhead. According to Mr. Saufley it doesn't take fancy or elaborate facilities for feeder-pigs in Renfro Valley. Mr. Saufley also said, "If you all can get the pigs for the sale, you might even have a feeder-pig festival at Renfro Valley."

Cull Non-layers

Flock Owners Told

Cull "laying-loafers" from the flock rather than selling the entire stock, the Kentucky Extension Service poultry department recommends for farmers who own small, general purpose flocks.

Many such poultrymen customarily sell their entire flock, which means in the spring and development, young replacement stock, particularly when hen prices were good and egg prices were low.

But both hen and egg prices are holding up well, says C. E. Harris, specialist; so culling the loafers rather than selling the entire flock is recommended.

Commercial egg producers rarely cull, Harris pointed out, except for disease or extremely low production. Commercial men, by good management, are able to get 12 to 15 months profitable use from their highly bred strains of layer hens; this is a must since they sell throughout the year to special markets.

Harris says small-flock birds improperly fed will not lay at profitable rates. Sometimes hens get too much grain, and too little protein and minerals for heavy production; in such cases, he advises, flock owners should reduce flock size and feed balanced rations for profitable production.

Get ready to apply the proven bluestone-lime treatment to tobacco beds to help control leaf spot diseases, particularly wildfire, says Russell Hunt, Kentucky Extension Service tobacco specialist.

Need for this treatment in 1958 probably will be great. This has been a wet, late spring and many beds are poorly prepared; much weeding undoubtedly will be needed, and that's when wildfire thrives, particularly when pulled-out weeds break the surface of the ground and let the wildfire organism come to the surface. The standard mixture is prepared by mixing one part (per sulfate) and four parts hydrated lime mixed in 50 gallons of water. This preparation should be sprinkled on the bed WITH THE CANVAS STILL OVER THE BED. Sprinkle until the canvas has a bluish cast. Hunt says, sprinkle edges and sides four to six feet OUTSIDE the bed, also, to treat those areas; wildfire can be tracked into beds by shoes, etc. Hunt noted the bluestone-lime forms a protective coating on the ground surface. This prevents the wildfire organism in the ground from getting to the small plants. The material should be applied when two to three leaves of the young plant are visible. Make the original application then, and follow up a week later with a second, to insure thorough coverage of the ground in the plot. Bluestone lime is more effective on fall-plowed beds which have been thoroughly tilled. Hunt says, spring-plowed beds, particularly those where water has been running across them, frequently get infected to "wildfire trouble" and 1958 seems now to be such a year. Make a third application after weeding operations, preferably the day the bed is weeded. Wildfire can appear within three days after weeding.

Another stop was made at one of the general supply warehouses. The visitors were conducted through the warehouse by Roy Hensley of the Storage Division. A large crowd of visitors at the depot saw a color film entitled "The Pentomic Army" which showed these and other of the Army's latest weapons in use under simulated combat conditions. Following the movie, a bus tour covering much of the depot's 15,000 acres was made. Several storage locations were visited. The group entered one igloo containing huge 1000 pound bombs and was briefed on the construction of the igloo and the design of the bombs.

Roy Norton Named Best Tree Planter

Roy Norton is the champion planter of Rockcastle County, according to Ranger Howard Baker, of the Kentucky Division of Forestry. He is one of many who planted trees in this county.

Two and one-half million trees will be planted in the 10 counties of the Southeastern Forestry District which includes Bell, Harlan, Knox, Laurel, Whitley, Clay, Leslie, Jackson, Rockcastle and McCreeky counties.

To encourage reforestation of Kentucky's 1,500,000 idle or eroded acres, the Division of Forestry furnishing tree seedlings at nominal cost. Said Ranger Baker, "This land planted to trees, becomes more valuable and will grow timber, pulpwood and fenceposts in addition to watershed protection values."

The Division's nursery has sold its planting stock for this year, but now is the time to be planning for next year's tree planting.

Foster Care For Needy Children

The Division of Children's Services foster care program was discussed by Thomas Payne, Child Welfare Worker of Rockcastle County, at the Rockcastle County Social Service Advisory Committee meeting held at Mt. Vernon, last Thursday.

Mr. Payne, recounted that as was stated at the March meeting of the Committee, the first emphasis of the Department of Economic Security is to keep children in their own homes with their own parents or relatives when possible. For children whose parents cannot maintain a home for them the Department strives toward placement in foster care according to the individual needs of each child. The Department, through its professional staff gives close supervision to children in its approved foster homes and institutions.

The Department provides for the dependent and neglected child upon the request and commitment of the child by the Eligibility for price support on 1958 tobacco will be based on the harvested acreage of tobacco, according to Shellie Mullins, Chairman of the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

This means that a tobacco grower who harvests more than his farm acreage allotment will be unable to place any of his tobacco under price support.

Under current regulations County ASC Committee representatives will measure the tobacco fields and determine the acreage on each farm. When a farm is found to have tobacco in excess of the farm allotment, the farmer will be given notice of the excess acreage. If he wishes his tobacco to be eligible for price support he has 10 days to file a request for a certification to the disposition of the excess acreage, or remeasurement with the County ASC Office.

Excess tobacco disposed of must be destroyed in such a manner that no part of the excess can be harvested or salvaged.

Mr. Mullins emphasized that the harvesting of any tobacco in excess of the farm allotment will make all the tobacco from the farm ineligible for price support.

Put Faith In Leaders Mrs. Miracle Urges

TO THE PEOPLE OF ROCKCASTLE COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT:

(This letter expresses the opinion of Mrs. Neurel Miracle, Superintendent of Rockcastle County Schools. It is printed as it was submitted to the Signal.—Editor)

I would like to say to you people that I have had nothing to do with the Mt. Vernon merger and do not plan to take any part in it. That is their business.

Several people from Brodhead and Livingston have been disturbed about the matter and for this reason I would like to present some facts. You people have elected me to administer your schools. This I have tried to do, to the best of my knowledge. From the day I was appointed I began to plan for better schools. I have kept in contact with Frankfort and even Washington which has necessitated trip after trip to get our building plans approved for Livingston, Brodhead, and Roundstone. It has been no easy road. There were opposition groups and political pressures that the Board and I had to fight to get the plants our dear boys and girls needed. On some occasions I could not keep the tears back when it looked as if our children could not have the advantages of a good education. We cannot put children on cold storage and let them wait. They must be educated at the right time.

Frank C. Strunk Named Editor

Frank C. Strunk, 26, a graduate of the University of Kentucky School of Journalism, has been named editor of the Signal, publisher Elmo Anderson announced this week. Strunk will begin work Monday.

He is a native of McCreeky County and a graduate of Cumberland College at Williamsburg.

Strunk has been editor of the Kentucky Kernel, UK student newspaper, and also a member of the staff of the Lexington Herald. His duties will include the writing and editing of local news, the soliciting of advertising and general makeup of the paper.

He is a member of the Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, and a veteran of the Korean War, having served one and one-half years in Germany.

Strunk married to the former Miss Barbara Jean Lay of Williamsburg, who is a medical technician at the Kent-Bellevue State Hospital in Danville.

I am so thankful that I have always had a progressive and cooperative Board of Education to work with. There couldn't be a better Board of Education anywhere.

Now we have two high schools equal to any two of their size in the State of Kentucky. They are well disciplined, offer a good curriculum, kept clean and orderly, therefore, offer a good environment for boys and girls to learn. The County has a faculty to be proud of. We have an in-service program which is outstanding. Our faculty members are professionally minded. They have attended in-service meetings and spent their own money on their own time. When teachers graciously attend professional meetings without complaining you may know that they are definitely interested in doing a good job. After all, INSTRUCTION is the one and only objective in our schools. We must keep on improving. Each year we survey our needs and do the projects which are most needed. Our own finances will allow. Plans are now being made to put in an adequate science department at Livingston which will cost around five thousand dollars. This is one of two things that has come from

Control Algae On Farm Ponds

Green algae, non-poisonous type, are beginning to show up in Kentucky farm ponds; if not controlled, they eventually will make the ponds unattractive looking and make it difficult for cattle to get to drinking water.

Here's what to do, says James Herron, Kentucky Experiment Station botanist:

Use one of three materials—bluestone, copper sulfate, or sodium arsenite—on Phygon XL.

It takes 8 pounds of bluestone per million parts of water to control algae. Use the material in spray form, low pressure equipment, or in a porous sack which can be dragged back and forth across the pond.

Sodium arsenite is used in spray form only. Methods by which amounts of material to use, in relation to farm pond area and capacity, are in Extension Leaflet 191, "Control of Green Algae in Kentucky Farm Ponds."

Phygon XL is used as a wettable powder spray, at the rate of 1 1/2 pounds of material per million gallons of water. Label directions should be followed closely.

Herron said sodium arsenite generally controls this type algae all season with one or two treatments in April or May; if more than one treatment is needed, the interval between them should be from 10 to 14 days.

Phygon XL and bluestone take up to 4 or 5 treatments for effective control.

Keep livestock away from treated ponds, regardless of material used, for 10 days to two weeks, Herron says.

143 Truck Drivers Arrested Recently

A State-police crackdown on truck drivers violating traffic laws resulted in 143 arrests in a recent one-week period, State Safety Commissioner Don Sturgill has reported.

He said the campaign will be stepped up for several weeks. He added that some of the arrests were at roadblocks set up to check all moving traffic.

Sturgill said speeding brought about the largest number of citations, with 52, with following too closely bringing 37 and passing on hills resulting in 16.

FAITH IN LEADERS

(Continued from page 1) Our evaluation program. The evaluation program at Brodhead and in the rural schools also brought out other plans for improving our high schools but we are emphasizing the need of good elementary schools. With Roundstone completed we will have three outstanding grade schools. We are doing our buildings and improvements on the fifth pay level of $1.50 which we have to levy under the Foundation Program and are not asking for consent of the voters. We are not only taking what is required and make it go as far as we can. We intend to stay within the budget.

Now just why has Rockcastle County gone forward with a progressive school system? It is because you citizens of the County have indicated by your vote and cooperation that you want that kind of schools. You have cooperated in every move. We have not had groups and sections fighting against each other. We have all pulled together. You have had confidence in your leaders. I will remember the nights that Livingston Board and Brodhead Board merged with the County Board. There was no written contract of future plans. There should not have been. From year to year we are not asked for a written contract of what will be done the next year. The budget takes care of that. Instead of a written contract there was a handshake of faith and confidence to work together. We trusted each other. That faith has been kept and should never be broken. You County people are to be highly congratulated. When a need arises you have been found ready and willing to help. For instance, when Brodhead needed to improve their elementary library and Mr. Robbins asked for cooperation in the matter, around $4000 was made up. Was there when the Boosters Club decided to try to pay for the uniforms, it wasn't long until they had $3000. Now the uniforms are paid for. When Mr. Parsons goes to the people of Livingston School with a need you have always cooperated. You people of Brodhead have helped to put in lunch-rooms, running water, playground equipment, electricity and many other needed projects. So after all you people have made your schools what you are. It is indeed a pleasure to work with you.

You people of Brodhead and Livingston do not be disturbed for as long as we meet the minimum requirements they cannot force us to discontinue our high schools. With the enrollment we now have it would take an act of the Legislature to force us to do so. If that should ever happen of course that would be beyond our control.

With the best wishes for more and more successful school years.

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs.) Myrtle Miracle, Supt. Rockcastle County Schools

Higher Quality Dark Tobaccos Sought

To retain present markets of dark tobacco, farmers growing such type leaf must concentrate on producing higher quality, says George Everett, Extension specialist at the Substation.

Improper fertilization and lack of cultivation are two factors which have contributed greatly to deterioration of quality, he says. "Don't be afraid to plow dark tobacco and don't use too much nitrogen." Dark tobacco plowed once a week usually grows more slowly and a higher quality leaf results.

Yield per acre is closely related to amount of nitrogen available; and it has become the common practice on many farms to apply too much of this nutrient. This results usually in long thin, unripe tobacco highly undesirable to the manufacturers and dealers.

Medium length, brown tobacco is in short supply at present and every effort should be made to produce more of this type leaf in 1953, Everett says. "Leaf dealers and manufacturers are gravely concerned about excessive length and poor quality of dark tobacco now being produced. Concensus of the group is that any foreign country can grow big, long tobacco and sell it more cheaply than we in America; if we are to maintain our home and foreign markets, we must strive for medium length and high quality. The ideal crop of dark tobacco is one that has all grades represented in proportional amounts. Such a crop is useful to all segments of the industry, and is the ultimate end toward which we are working."
