"WE HAVE WORK TO DO AND LOADS TO LIFT. SHUN NOT THE STRUGGLE—FACE IT. 'TIS GOD'S GIFT'—Babcock

In the course of normal living we manage to take things in stride, meeting responsibilities, completing jobs of work, and in general, going about our daily lives in a reasonably smooth and workmanlike manner. However, certain events from time to time alter rather drastically our routine of living: creating hardships and unusual problems which demand considerably more of our physical and spiritual resources. At times such as this it may be difficult to realize that it is all the more necessary to go about our daily lives in an normal manner as is possible; facing up to the new and greater struggle until our problems are resolved to the best of our ability.

Vego Barnes Announces Aid Meet Here

An informational meeting for public assistance recipients of Rockcastle County has been scheduled for 2:00 p. m. on Thursday, August 7, at the Courthouse in Mt. Vernon. Announcement of the meeting has been made by Economic Security Commissioner, Vego Barnes.

Barnes said the meeting is one of 27 scheduled to be held throughout the state during July and August. Ten such meetings he said, were held in June. The meeting here will be conducted by staff members from the Central Office in Frankfort, assisted by local public assistance and child welfare workers.

"There will be little in the way of speech-making," Barnes said. "Rather, the people attending the meeting will be able to present questions and discuss their problems with representatives from my office in Frankfort."

"We met and talked with several thousand people in 10 counties in June—people who can't come to Frankfort to talk with us—and we expect to meet and talk with additional thousands during July and August."

Sturgill Urges Crackdown On Trucks

Law enforcement agencies in Kentucky were recently asked to crackdown on truckers violating traffic laws by Don Sturgill, Commissioner of Public Safety.

In telegrams to state police posts, Sturgill said, "With violations presently crowding the highways to an extremely high peak, every violation of the traffic laws becomes much more serious than it normally would be, and this fact is especially true as it pertains to trucks."

Conservancy District Vote.
Farmers voted unanimously, Monday, July 28, to form a water Conservancy District in the Buck Creek watershed. The vote was 110 for formation of the Conservancy District. The District will be made up of 32,000 acres of land in Rockcastle, Lincoln and Pulaski Counties. Rockcastle County has 20,000 acres in the district laying on Bee Lick, Bushy and Durman Creeks.

This is a necessary step in requesting assistance in a watershed program from congress in water retarding structures, channel improvement, tree setting, terrace and diversion.

Construction, tree setting and other conservation measures under the small watershed Act, P. L. 568. The next step will be the election of a board of supervisors, two of whom will be from Rockcastle County. This board must be made up of land owners in the Brush Creek watershed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ragland O. Ruspattburg of Cork, Ireland, spent a few days recently in Mt. Vernon with friends and relatives.

Retired Stranger Brings Us Books

A 75-year-old man who lives hundreds of miles from this town is bringing a load of books to Rockcastle County that few of us here might be expected to do.

Dwight R. Page, a retired tool and die maker and the custodian of Herick Memorial Library in Wellington, Ohio, recently made his sixth trip to Mount Vernon, bringing a load of books as a gift to the Rockcastle County Library.

Four years ago, when the library was supported by donations and private gifts, Page heard a radio plea for books for the local library and rounded up a load—and set out for Mt. Vernon.

Now, although our library is tax-supported, Page still makes a periodic pilgrimage by trailer—another of his book-laden trailer-loads for use here in the county.

Where does he get all these books?

Well, that's where his job helps out.

As library custodian, he has access to the many books any large library is constantly "weeding out" to make room for more, newer and better books. Many of these discarded books are perfect for a small library like the one in this county.

Besides his six personal visits to bring books here, Page has sent books by other persons many more times.

Sometimes, when he warms up, he hitches a trailer to his car, fills it with books and starts out for Mt. Vernon. On a recent trip, he left home at 7 a. m. on a Friday and drove south until he came to Richmond—some 350 miles from home. Deciding he needed a rest, he stayed over in Richmond and drove on to Mt. Vernon later. Quite a feat for a much younger man, much less a 75-year-old volunteer.

Page's work is not in vain, however. He is deeply appreciated by many persons in our area who have known—and we trust—after this story is read, he will have a much larger fan club. A fan club which is richly deserved by the man who brings us books just because he likes it.

BOOKS FOR ROCKCASTLE—Dwight R. Page, 75-year-old retired tool and die maker, stands near the Rockcastle Bookmobile with some of the many books he has contributed to this county since he first took an interest in the local library four years ago. Since that time, he has made six trips here with books which were discarded from the Herick Memorial Library in Wellington, Ohio, where he is presently employed as custodian.

Local Schools May Receive Federal Aid

Mt. Vernon Aid Rockcastle Have Had Help Before

Sen. John Sherman Cooper recently expressed confidence that Congress will renew financial aid to school districts in "federally impacted areas" where schools contain such a high percentage of pupils whose parents live or work on tax-exempt federal government property (such as military installations), that local taxes are insufficient to maintain adequately the schools systems. Rockcastle County and Mt. Vernon have received such aid in the past.

The House has already passed similar legislation, and the Senate Labor Committee, of which Senator Cooper is a member, has approved the bill after making only minor changes.

Several school officials from Kentucky traveled to Washington earlier this year to urge Senator Cooper to work for full extension of such aid, through which 49 school districts throughout Kentucky have received funds. The aid plan, by the terms of previous legislation, would expire this year unless Congress extends it. A budgetary recommendation was made that school districts eligible to receive funds be limited to those with pupils whose parents both lived and worked on federal property. Aid to schools for such pupils amounted to only 18% of the total aid received in the fiscal year 1957.

Following such a plan would have meant complete loss of federal funds for all Kentucky schools involved. However, the House voted for full extension of the plan as did Senator Cooper and the other members of the Senate Labor Committee.

Commenting further on the plan, Senator Cooper said, "Public Laws 815 and 874, which will be extended by this legislation, provide funds for both school construction and operating costs. This program is widely recognized as an example of how federal assistance can be given to education when necessary without federal control or interference in local policies."

The Senate Committee recommended the following changes:

- (1) School districts which have a "sudden and substantial increase of federally-connected pupils in one school year can apply to the federal government for additional assistance for that year; and
- (2) School districts in which the percentage of federally-connected children falls below the ordinarily required for receipt of federal aid will be allowed to continue to receive funds for the actual number of federally-connected children still in the school during the first year following such a drop in percentage, and to receive 50% of the sum given in the first year during the second year after the drop. Both a speech on Christian education and the missionary services of Baptist schools and colleges is scheduled for Tuesday morning, by Dr. Baggett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Campbellsville.

Rockcastle Jaycees Plan Work Meeting

The Rockcastle County Junior Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a get-together at the Mt. Vernon School at 5 p. m. Friday to discuss grounds, cut the grass and generally make the area ready for a ball game Sunday afternoon.

Jaycee President Jess Bullock said that anyone who is interested in helping out in this community project should bring a lawn mower and a strong back and be ready for work.

Bullock said that, as soon as arrangements are completed for adequate lighting, night ball games will be held during the rest of the season. Needless to say, everyone has been invited to the event.

Thomas Clyde Price Dies In Indianapolis

Thomas Clyde Price, 46, died July 23 at the veterans' hospital in Indianapolis. He was a veteran of the North African and Rhineland campaigns in World War II. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Fannie Price, Indianapolis, and one brother, John Price, Green Bay, Wis.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Cox Funeral Home by the Rev. Marion Parkey. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery. Cox Funeral Home was in charge.

Demo Dissension Cited As Factor

Pleaz W. Mobley, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, said here this week that due to Democratic dissension, the people could nominate and elect a Republican governor.

Mobley's statement was made in response to recent news that the Young Republicans' Club may endorse another candidate.

"I do not believe that any Republican group should endorse any candidate," he said. Let the rank and file voter have his say as to who will carry the Republican banner in the election.

Mobley, who stopped by his law office here on his way to Frankfort, also criticized the present administration for what he called "not questioning" the amount of money allocated to "federal aid for road building."

Referring to a news story dated Sunday which stated that Kentucky will receive $59,708,895 in federal aid compared to Tennessee's allocation of $92,528,394, Mobley said:

"We have voted $100 million bonded indebtedness. What is the administration doing? Why do they not question why Tennessee got almost twice as much?"

"We know Kentucky is larger than Tennessee. It pays more federal taxes. Why should we receive little more than half the amount of money Tennessee does?"

Congressman Eugene Siler pleaded Wednesday before the U. S. House of Representatives for Federal aid for the economically depressed area of Eastern Kentucky.

"Such an area," he said, "is one where the levee of misfortune is so high that the flood tide of prosperity never spills over into its little valley of despondency."

Siler said the House should enact "during these closing days of the 85th Congress" the so-called depressed-areas bill.

The bill, if passed, would provide $375,000,000 in grants and loans to distressed areas for stimulating new factories, public facilities, technical help and vocational training. Kentucky would be one of the biggest beneficiaries of this legislation.

Eastern Kentucky, the Williamsburg Republican said, is "a place where the jam is never cut out of the door, the lower shelf... It is a hungry bread line in the midst of a land flowing with milk and honey."

Siler criticized the U. S. foreign aid in about two weeks, and Siler's plea came in a last-ditch effort to get an aid bill passed.

Siler told the House that Eastern Kentucky "rolls in verid beauty, abundance in mineral wealth, rises high in magnificence of mountain peaks."

"Yet, paradoxically, it is something of a barren desert—that is to say, a desert in the matter of employment opportunities for its citizens."

"Eastern Kentucky lost about 92,000 people between 1950 and 1956, or more than a tenth of all its population."

"Its jobless folks increased more than 75 per cent from 1950 to 1957, during the very time when most of the remaining parts of America had so many jobs and so much currency that their people were buying two TV sets for their homes, two cars for the garages, and two pots for two hens to cook on brand-new electric stoves."

Siler criticized U. S. foreign aid when he spoke of building air fields in "camel-driving Afghanistan," and building "highways in Saudi Arabia for the Cadillac of wealthy King Saud."

"Why can we not approve this little measure to help our own flesh and blood...?" he said.

"The wolf has not only been in the door in my part of the country, but has come inside and now has a full litter of pups."

"We just cannot understand a Congress so much concerned over people east of Suez and so little concerned over people of East Kentucky," he said.

Adoption Program Is Discussed At Recent Mt. Vernon Meeting

Hazo Hellard Dies In Veterans' Hospital

Hazo Hellard, 33, died Saturday at the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Louisville. He was a member of the Pentecostal Holiness Church and a disabled veteran of World War II.

Hellard was in four major battles in the Pacific Theater during the war and was wounded five times. He was lost for a period on Leyte Island. He was a native of Rockcastle County and was married to the former Freda Mae Carpenter.

Survivors include a daughter, Flossie Jean, and a stepdaughter, Brenda Dale, both of Livingston; two brothers, Joe Hellard, Felicity, Ohio, and Jackie Hellard, Livingston; 3 half-brothers, Bobby and Kent Pinkerton, Covington, and Billy Pinkerton, Livingston; two half-sisters, Christine Pinkerton, Cincinnati, and May Payne Covington; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reynolds, Calloway.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Pete Hellard.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p. m. Monday at the Free Pentecostal Holiness Church at Pine Hill by Bros. George Murphy, Robert Hasty and Perman Jones. Burial was in Bales Hill Cemetery. Sparks Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

The Division of Children's Services adoption program was discussed by Thomas Payne, children's service worker of Rockcastle County at the county Social Service Advisory Committee meeting held at Mt. Vernon last Thursday.

Payne recounted that, as was stated at an earlier meeting of the Committee, the first emphasis of the Department of Economic Security is to keep children in their own homes with their own parents or relatives when possible.

After all rights of the parents have been legally terminated, the Department, through its professional staff, gives careful and individual attention to little concerned over people of East Kentucky," he said.

COUNT 'EM!—Five thousand rapidly-growing white rock broilers pose prettily for the camera this week at the recently constructed chicken house of G. H. Griffin on Fairground Hill near town. Griffin is only one of several persons in Rockcastle County who are finding that raising chickens is both pleasant and profitable. The chickens, 3-weeks-old, will be hauled away for processing when they are eight or nine weeks old. They are raised under a contract with Aubrey Feeds.

Penalty Will Result From Marketing Of 'Sucker' Crops

Production and sale of harvested "suckers" from a farm tobacco acreage allotment will hereafter result in a reduction of the tobacco allotment the following year, according to the Hon. J. P. McMillin, chairman of the County Agriculture, Statistics and Conservation Committee.

The new provisions are included in an amendment to the law governing tobacco acreage allotments and marketing quotas recently passed by Congress and approved by the President.

The law now provides that if more than one crop of tobacco is grown from the same plants or different plants on the same acreage in one year, the tobacco allotment for the farm will be decreased.

The decrease in the farm tobacco allotment will be equal to the acreage from which two crops of tobacco are grown. Previously, two crops of tobacco from the same acreage in one year had no effect on the farm tobacco allotment the following year.

These new provisions go into effect beginning with the harvesting of 1958 crop of tobacco, and the reduction applies to the next established allotment for the farm.

Rape Case Continued To November Court

The trial of Orbie Allen, of the Red Hill section, indicted for rape by the Rockcastle Grand Jury last week, was continued Wednesday until November during the next term of Circuit Court.

Allen and two others, Denzil Singleton and Paul Owens, both of the Red Hill section, were indicted for detaining a female. This case was also continued to the November term.

The cases were continued due to what Circuit Judge R. C. Tartar termed a "legal impasse" which made it impossible to try the case at the present time. All witnesses in the case were admonished to appear on Nov. 20 and bonded for $500.

KPA Issues Reply On Provisions Of Publication Law

REPRINTED, WITH PERMISSION, FROM THE KENTUCKY PRESS

The Kentucky Press Association has issued the following reply to the Kentucky Municipal League in regard to statements made by the League about the recently issued financial reports and certain regulations in the State of Kentucky.

The statement by the KPA, which appears in the current issue of the Kentucky Press, is a free press of the organization, is reprinted in its entirety in the Signal for the information of our readers.

Since publication of public matters is of vital importance to us all, we urge you to read this article and give it some earnest thought.—(The Editor.)

Recent published statements of the Kentucky Municipal League, erroneous or advantageously assumed, in which the League announced that it would seek a declaratory judgment concerning the Legal Publication Statute, KRS Chapter 424, cause the Kentucky Press Association to issue a public statement to correct and refute the League's interpretations of certain sections.

The League has lost sight of two important facts relative to the passage of the Legal Statute. First, the inherent right of the people to have access and to know and understand through printed reports how their elected officials are receiving and disbursing public moneys entrusted to their care, and which are passed to, or by, direct, or curtail the public's actions, and.

Second, that the new statute was compiled to amend, consolidate, and make uniform the 232 statutes governing the county, municipal, town, and other political subdivisions. This codification was deemed necessary after a thorough and complete study and analysis of the existing statutes found contradictions, out-moded requirements, and unnecessary directives. Factually, many of the passages included in the League's contentions and arguments have been on the statutes for many years.

The need of stricter compilation of laws and regulations is evidenced every day when news stories report glaring discrepancies and misuse of embezzled funds through state audits. This emphasizes the disregard of certain responsible officials of the people's right to know which might be corrected through legal publication.

A free press was retained constitutionally so that the people as a whole might use the printed medium as an instrument, or weapon, whereby they could retain control of their government, rather than be ruled with out their expressed consent.

This right guaranteed to the people was not written into the constitution for the special benefit or financial profit of persons within the newspaper industry or trade. It was written into the constitution to protect the rights of the people: (1) to know what their agents in government were doing; (2) to discuss it freely according to the constitutional guarantee of free speech; (3) to meet in assemblies of their own choosing to take action upon it according to a third constitutional guarantee of free assembly. These were deemed essential to a free government.

Reputable legal opinions exist to the general effect that these three rights, fundamental to the process of free government, are so inter-twined though essentially separate, that the violation will make the others useless and futile. Of all the rights, it well may be argued by a prudent set of courts at the local grass roots of government and by the writers of the founders of the Republic that the right of the people to a free press that they may know what their government is doing, is the most important. Without the other rights, and the usefulness of the ballot itself, are impaired.

It is for this reason that publication of legal notices, especially those which are required as a report to the people how their moneys are received and spent, is so important in our democratic government of, for and by the people.

In the study, culminating in the new statute, it was found that there were 222 statutes, many of which had numerous deficiencies or were contradictory, with a distressing lack of uniformity. The analysis was conducted upon six categories: what is to be published; who is responsible for causing publication; qualification of the printed medium; alternative or additional methods of notice; period of publication; and form or content of publication.

In the analysis it was found that 30 statutes required proceeding or official action of governmental bodies or officers such as ordinances, journals, regulations and orders; 12 statutes required financial statements, audits or reports of public officers or bodies (and of certain corporations).

Fifty-two statutes required advertisement for bids and notices of sales; 73 required notices of hearings or meetings, or tests or examinations, or of opportunity to inspect or production of records; 30 required notices of elections and publications in connection with elections; four required service of process by publication in court proceeding; and 20 required notice to creditors, or prospective creditors, or to claimants, or owners of property. Only six former statutes did not fit under any one of the six categories.

There was indeed need for clarification and unification. One disclosure was no statute defined or qualified a newspaper. There were 97 different ways of designating the kind and number of newspapers in which publication was to be made; 24 statutes required state publication; 78 required county publication; 87 required city publication; 31 required district publication; and 19 required publication "in a business area."

The analysis further found that there were 67 different ways of specifying periods of time of publication; 62 statutes required publication every day for 60 days; other specified consecutive publication from 2 to 30 days. Many required publication once a week for a specified number of weeks ranging from two to 12. Many were ambiguous, using such language as "twenty days' notice" or "at least five days prior thereto."

This "time" analysis surely indicated the need for uniformity in the new statute which, with few exceptions especially stated in special statutes, were incorporated in chapter 424, section 3, which allocated the majority of publications into three time-categories—once completed actions; twice regarding elections, hearings, or tax due-dates; and three times when the public is required to file petitions, exceptions, protests, or objections, or the submission of bids.

This Section 3 refutes the implications of the Municipal League that ALL public notices "must be advertised from one to thirty times before they can become law or be carried out." Many notices of a completed act of a governing body, such as ordinances, resolutions, regulations, statements, etc., where the purpose of the publication is not to inform the public that they may or shall do an act or exercise a right within a designated period, need only one publication, not an excessive number of publications as the League implies. Many former requirements of "times" of publication were reduced to the maximum of three, thus saving the taxpayers many hundreds of dollars.

Section 17 of Chapter 424 states, "No regulation promulgated by any officer, board or commission of a city, county or district, which is intended to impose liabilities or restrictions on the public, shall be valid unless and until it has been advertised by newspaper publication." This section is under attack by the League, and, in the opinion of the Association, the arguments advanced are downright preposterous. The League cites an example in these words pertaining to Louisville:

"To be even more ridiculous, we could use the incident of a big fire. Before the fire chief could redirect or route traffic, he would have to advertise his intentions in the newspapers three times over a period of two weeks."

Indeed, what could be more ridiculous than this statement. Perhaps established by previous ordinance, the Chief of Police of that city has every right to direct traffic at any and all times without any previous notice, especially in time of emergency; this is just ordinary police power, regulated or implied. There are many rules, regulations, resolutions, or minutes, passed by governing bodies of political divisions which are not required to be published under section 17 which expressly states: "Only that which is intended to impose liabilities or restrictions on the public. Let's be reasonable in application. To take the League's example. Under the police power, the Chief of Police can issue regulations, permanent or temporary (as in case of emergency), without public notice. On the other hand, a directive to the Chief of Police, designating certain one-way streets, is surely of public interest as an ordinance directing or restricting public use of certain streets "imposes liabilities or restrictions on the public."

Again, many actions by governing boards will not come under this "restrictive and directive" clause; let's be reasonable. The application without regard to the section requirements that are not there. No one will contend that the minutes of any governing board are required to be published, another false contention of the League. We call attention of the League to the definition of "regulation" as found in KRS Chapter 13.080.

Another premise of the League is that political subdivisions are bound strictly by section 16 in that all agencies must advertise for bids if the amount involved is more than $500, and that no provision is made for emergency purchases. The Association acknowledges that this was an oversight in the preparation of the chapter, but emphasizes that no newspaper publisher would oppose emergency purchases, even if the purchase was not legally (sic) made by means of advertisement. Again common sense should prevail in the interpretation of section 16.

The League's opposition to section 12 which requires officers to print annual financial statements is not well founded as section 12 is simply a restatement of the old KRS 61.290—there has been nothing added or subtracted to the statute which has been in force since 1928. The provisions of this section definitely state that an officer must report and itemize, in a prescribed manner, all expenditures made during a fiscal period. It does not prescribe that every single amount received must be itemized, only that the source and amount be given accordingly to certain periods. For instance, tax receipts by the sheriff's office can be given in a "lump" sum each month, a practice that has been followed for many years. The provisions of Section 12 were upheld by an opinion of the State Court of Appeals in the case of Robert F. Cooper, et al. vs. The Paris Kentuckian-Citizen. Many public officers have known, and have followed, these provisions since 1928. It is illogical and absurd for the League to now state that it interprets this statute of long-standing to mean that every single payment, such as an electric light account, must be itemized in "accounts received." The Association respectfully requests that the officers of the League read the court of Appeals' opinion—and keep it on file.

The Association plans to join in a test suit seeking declaratory judgment as a third party should such a suit be filed by the League. The Association believes that it has kept the best interests of the public in mind when it entered into the task of writing this uniform publication statute and preceding its passage by the Legislature. In all deliberations the public's right to know was paramount.

Could This Be Cough?

Have you had this unpleasant experience? You are in a rush to go somewhere; you pull out your best suit or dress from the closet and it smells so musty that you can hardly wear it or your best pair of shoes is covered with a thick coat of green mold and perhaps many of you are wondering just what to do about the musty odor in houses as a result of a long spell of rainy weather. Here are some suggestions:

Clothes—closets that seem damp can be helped by placing an electric fan in the doorway to blow air up through the garments. See that the clothes are not hung too tightly on the clothes rod. An electric light left burning in the closet will dry the air, particularly if it is placed on the floor, as heat will rise through the garments.

Mechanical dehumidifiers and chemicals that absorb moisture may be purchased for use in basements or closets. Chloride of lime is a deodorant and can be used in the same manner. It is better to keep the latter on ice until shortly before it is to be spread.

Canned foods, such as beans, should never be heated in the unopened can as it may burst and cause serious burns or other injury. Open the can and drain the food in a stew pan of skillet.

Take water from home in a thermos if there is any question about its availability or purity.

Rockcastle County Dairy Field Day: Approximately 65 people attended the second annual dairy field meeting and tour in Rockcastle County July 23.

The group assembled at Jack Fugate's farm at 8 a. m. to see his dairy setup and to go over his farming program. Fugate is farming 40 acres and at the present time is milking 9 cows. The usual number of cows he is milking is 14.

The second stop of the tour was Bob Lear's farm. Bob's farm has a total of 60 acres and he is milking 11 cows.

The third stop of the tour was Lewis Adams' farm. Lewis and his sons, Wayne, Kenneth and Billy are farming a total of 155 acres and usually milk 20 head of cows. All of the farms mentioned above have very nice milking parlors which are kept neat and clean and are all equipped on a grade "A."

The program at Lewis Adams farm was as follows:

Talk by Clay Colson, soil conservationist, on "Land Capabilities and Farm Planning;" talk by Garland Bastin, extension specialist in dairying, on "Feeding and Management of Dairy Cows and Heifers;" judging of two rings of dairy cows by all of those present who wanted to participate; official placings and reasons for placings were given by Garland Bastin. First prize of 5 silver dollars was won by Mary Ellen Hansel, Rockcastle Ridge, second prize of 3 silver dollars won by Danny Fish, deal for outdoor appetites. During this hot month, special care must be taken to prevent food spoilage. There is a need for some type of portable refrigerator so that foods which sometimes spoil quickly may be kept thoroughly chilled until it is time for them to be served. Stuffed eggs, cold meats, hamburgers, chicken, mayonnaise or other salad dressing, meat and vegetable mixtures of various kinds are some of the foods which should be given refrigerated protection.

Be sure that hamburgers that are to be cooked rare are made of an all-beef combination. Beef patties made of a beef and pork combination require long, thorough cooking as pork must be cooked well done.

Sandwiches made at the picnic spot are safer (and fresher) than those made at home. This is especially desirable if mayonnaise or other salad dressing has been used in the sandwiching. It is better to keep the latter on ice until shortly before it is to be spread.

Sandwiches and drinks were made available to the group by the Sunshine Homemakers Organization.

Pyrethrum Sprays, Repellents Helpful During Picnicking: No need to let flies and mosquitoes make you miserable during picnic outings. Use pyrethrum sprays and repellents for relief.

An aerosol spray containing pyrethrins can be very effective. Direct this material into underbrush at the picnic area in the grass, around chairs and tables, and even into the air if there is no particular breeze. These pyrethrins will hang around several hours and give good relief. They are not poisonous, either, to warm blooded animals.

Use of certain commercial repellents applied to the skin and to trouser cuffs, shoe tops, etc.—also are helpful.

The aerosol bomb types are easiest to handle but small power sprays or even hand sprays can be used to advantage.

LET'S CLEAN IT UP

During a recent meeting of local citizens who are actively interested in the future of Rockcastle County, it was suggested that Mt. Vernon get its citizens organized in a project to make the town more desirable as a possible location for industry.

Last week the Signal discussed some of the many things Mt. Vernon has to offer such industries as might want to locate here. As much as we already have here, we are nevertheless falling miserably short in one thing at least. We are not showing other persons that we are solid on Mt. Vernon. We are not displaying our civic pride. We are not showing off our local plumage.

One suggestion was made that certainly seems worthy of consideration. This was that we start a clean-up, paint-up campaign. It was pointed out that, for the price of a couple of gallons of paint—mixed liberally with plenty of elbow-grease—Mt. Vernon could show visitors a side of itself which has heretofore been hidden by the ravages of age and weather. A bright new face on the city could pay astronomical dividends for the nominal effort of a day's work.

Why not set aside a day—through the week, preferably, when business is slow—and let all of us get a brush and a bucket of paint and go to work? Let's paint the place up and show the people who pass through that this would be a nice place to stop off for a while—maybe longer.

So long as suggestions such as this stay in the "why not" stage, nothing will be done, so let's not put it off.

If anyone—groups or individuals—is interested in displaying a little pride, call, write, or drop in at the Signal office anytime.

We will start a list of names and as soon as we have enough, we will all go to work.

Until we show others how much we like our town, we certainly cannot expect them to show much interest in it.

Signalites

In this issue of the Signal, we are reprinting an article which appears in the Kentucky Press, official organ of the Kentucky Press Association. It deals with the new law regarding the publication of financial reports and other documents by officers of our government. For your own information, we suggest that you read the article in its entirety and form an intelligent opinion on the issue.

This law went into effect June 19 this year. It was passed by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky early this year, and certain interests are attempting to make it appear absurd and unfair.

Our lawmakers passed this law in order that we might know how our public money is being spent and how our elected officials are serving us—these things should be of interest to all of us.

Congressman Eugene Siler's appeal to the House of Representatives recalls the golden days of flowery oratory. He may not know it, but public speakers seldom talk that way anymore. Nevertheless, it is mighty refreshing to hear someone talk in favor of Eastern Kentucky and tell about our problems, even if it is in the style of William Jennings Bryan.

ADOPTION PROGRAM

the needs of each child when selecting his adoptive parents. Payne told the Committee, that the Division of Children's Service is now developing additional ways and means of broadening its adoptive resources for older children, Negro children and family groups. It is comparatively easy to maintain an adequate resource for white infants, he said.

The Department recognizes the anxieties experienced by approved adoptive couples when waiting a child. It is their experience, however, Payne said, that these feelings are quickly abated when a child is placed.

S. warehouses for use in times of national emergency or major natural disaster on-ter, electricity or other essentials in order to save presidential approval when other supply sources are exhausted. Conservatism!

It might be called another name for "caution." An elephant is conservative when he carefully tests a bridge, before crossing it, to make sure it will bear his weight.

Similarly, a conservative bank is careful about the financial bridges it crosses. Their strength and soundness are carefully tested before proceeding.

This type of conservatism is necessary if the bank is to merit your confidence as a sound and dependable financial institution.
