Progress Report on Brucellosis Testing

The following report was given to the County Agent by Dr. James Laughlin, Area Veterinarian:

The area brucellosis testing program is rapidly coming to a close here in Rockcastle County. We have had more cooperation and fewer stumbling blocks in this county than any other county in the state that I know of. We are at a point where it is much easier to point out the work that has yet to be done than it is to point out the work already accomplished.

We have nine communities that have yet to be started. They are as follows: (1) Community number 9 which is the area covered by the old highway between Brodhead and Mt. Vernon; (2) Community number 22 which is highway 150 between Mt. Vernon and Brodhead; (3) Community number 21 which is the Mareburg community; (4) Community number 24 which is the Freedom community and south; (5) Community number 23 is Spiro community; (6) Community number 16 which is the Providence community; (7) Community number 17 which is southeast of Willalla; (8) Community number 5, which is around Conway on east side of U. S. Highway 25. This area will be tested by Dr. Finley as soon as he gets back from vacation.

Area number 11 between Brodhead and the Lincoln County line on Highway 150 will be finished by our brucellosis technicians this coming week. There is one area north of Disputanta that will also be finished this coming week.

Dr. Woodbridge from Somerset, Kentucky is testing in area 18 which is around Quail, Kentucky.

Dr. Burdette is testing in area covered by the old highway toward Brodhead. Dr. Burdette will also be testing some cattle in herds that need a cattle chute in areas being tested by our brucellosis technicians. There are around ten herds yet to be tested over the county that were missed for some reason or other and there are fifteen herds scattered over the county that will be tested later by the brucellosis technicians when they get a cattle chute in from Frankfort.

So far there are fifty-seven suspects on forty-three farms that will have to be retested and nine herds that had testers in them that will have to be retested. The retesting mentioned above is besides what has to be retested in areas tested by Dr. Marx, Dr. Lacey, Dr. Woodbridge, Dr. Hicks and Dr. Burdette, which I do not have a record of. We will be able to give you better information next week on what retesting actually must be done.

We will have to apologize to many people for being so late on the retesting of reactor herds and suspect cattle.

A Lincoln county went on a test July 15, which has slowed us down on retesting because some of the veterinarians are now over the testing.

Some of the men that have been giving us tremendous help just recently on lining up cattle are as follows: Area 36, south of Red Hill and north of Livingston, Robert Ruppe; Area 46, around Horse Lick, Fred Gilliam; Area 48, north of Red Hill, S. J. Tankersley; Area 44, around Johnetta, Tom Owens; Area 45, around Brummer, Fred Mullins; Area 49, around Langford Station, E. S. Taylor; Area 47, northeast of Orlando, Richard Mullins; Area 42, around Three Links, Henry Martin; Area 43, north of Highway 70, Curtis Bradley; Area 14, around Ottawa, Wallace Reuter; Area 28, on Highway 461, Bradley Saylor; Area 20, around Level Green, Robert C. Gentry; Area 27, around Sand Springs, Hoover Bullock; Area 10, north of Brodhead, Clyde Sutton; Area 8, Brindle Ridge, Jack Fugate; Area 6, around Hickman School, Lewis Adams and Sherman Hansel; Area 7, north of Renfro Valley, Oliver Dowell; Area 50, around Mt. Vernon, Le Renner.

If there are any herds that we have missed would you please notify the County Agricultural Extension Agent, Lee Durham, or any of the veterinarians or technicians that are now testing here so that we can get them tested before the county is finished. If we leave a herd untested in Rockcastle County, it may be a herd that has already been accomplished.

Termites: "Termites in the house? Don't get panicky. Your house isn't going to fall down—and you personally can probably do the corrective work at reasonable cost."

A few things should be noted about termites: One, they work in twos; they MUST HAVE a connection to the ground; two, they die; three, a good termite-poison is rapidly available which has a long residual effect—four or five years as a rule.

So don't be stampeded when you find termites. You can use fieldlin insecticide around foundations with good results; this system will put a barrier between the termites in your house and those in the nest; termites left in the wood members of the residence will die almost immediately.

Call at the County Agent's Office for information on termite control.

The Antibiotic Problem Is Still With Us:

The problem: antibiotics in milk may endanger human health, make it impossible to manufacture high quality cheese, butter and other cultured milk products, may cause people to stop buying dairy products because of unfavorable publicity.

The U. S. Food and Drug Administration, the medical profession, the veterinary profession and milk manufacturers are alarmed by the increasing amounts of penicillin and other antibiotics found in market milk.

Although dairymen in some states have already received fines for selling antibiotic adulterated milk, the U. S. Food and Drug Administration has given a grace period in which to clean house before they really "crack down."

What you can do: 1. Prevent mastitis. It's cheaper and wiser than treatment.

2. Consult your veterinarian if you have mastitis in your herd. Needless use of antibiotics may do your cows more harm than good.

3. Concentrate on cow comfort. Cows that are housed and managed properly usually have less mastitis.

4. Practice managed milking. Udder injuries and improper use of milking machines may cause mastitis.

5. Keep antibiotics and other adulterants out of your milk.

Milk from antibiotic-treated quarters must not be sold for 72 hours (6 milkings) following treatment.

Officials of the Food and Drug Administration have indicated that surveys to determine the extent antibiotics in market milk will be made this summer and again this fall.

Protect your milk market and your industry by keeping antibiotics out of your milk.

Night-Grazing Factor Important in Dairying:

Night-grazing is very important in dairying. It is one of the most important phases of summer dairy management.

In a recent test, researchers in a Southern State found that dairy cows grazed only 19 hours during daytime when the temperature was 90 degrees F. or higher.

But, they discovered, these same cows—in the cool of night in a good pasture—would graze an average of 6.5 hours. Thus, the cows actually were doing about three-quarters of their grazing at night.

Extra pastures are turned on for night-grazing, the pastures should be as good—perhaps better—than those used for day grazing.

Point of the experiment which showed the excess of night grazing over day grazing was that the cows were confined to a dry-lot at night were not getting a chance at good, first-producing food.

Topping Suckering Important in Production of Burley Crop:

Proper topping and suckering of burley tobacco is an important part of production.

Too early topping and keeping the plants suckered too closely, tends to increase the weight of the crop but will lower its quality and raise its nicotine content.

Here are some tips on topping and suckering:

Fields should be topped when the crop is from two-thirds to three-quarters in bloom. Farmers should top the plants about two leaves higher than usual.

Most growers will sucker one day prior to cutting; however, others prefer to sucker once or twice before cutting, making sure each time to leave the top two suckers.

Other growers prefer to let the plants bloom out fully and then top just before cutting; this eliminates the need for much suckering, but is destructive to the crop.

Returns Are Profitable From Priming Tobacco:

From $100 to $150 an acre in extra returns have been received by many Kentucky burley farmers who primed their burley crops.

Priming is the process by which bottom or lower leaves are removed at their maturity, although upper portions of the plant frequently have not yet matured.

Ripening starts with the lower leaves and continues up the stem. Frequently the lower leaves become damaged as the higher leaves approach maturity.

Here is where priming is most useful:

Priming once or twice—pulling off the lower leaves by hand—may increase the yield 10 to 15 percent, saving leaves that otherwise would be damaged or lost before the stalks are harvested. These returns may be as high as $100 to $150 an acre.

Priming is especially important to the grower who has a very small crop. With larger crops, labor costs tend to become high, although priming still usually pays.

Under most conditions priming leaves should be cured by use of artificial heat.

Frozen Uncooked Jam Has Delicious Flavor:

An uncooked jam made from berries or crushed peaches without heating the fruit has a delicious fresh-fruit flavor, a bright natural color and a jelled texture that enables it to hold its shape and spread well.

Stored in the refrigerator, it holds its appetizing flavor for several months, or in a freezer, up to a year. But kept at room temperature the jam will mold or ferment in a short time.

The ingredients required are 3 cups crushed strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries or peaches; 5 cups sugar; 1 package of powdered pectin and 1 cup of water.

To make combine fruit and sugar and let stand about 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Dissolve the pectin in the water, bring to a boil and boil for one minute. Add the pectin solution to the fruit-sugar mixture and stir for about 2 minutes.

Ladle the jam into jelly glasses or other suitable containers, leaving one half inch space at the top. Cover with lids and let stand for 24 hours, or until jam has set. Then cover jam with one eighth inch layer of hot paraffin. Makes about 9 six-ounce glasses.

The recipe was developed by USDA home economists. Canning Peaches Now In Process:

Home-canned peaches are first in canned fruits with many people, and luckily they are easy to make.

When the background of the fruit is yellow or yellow-white they are table-ripe, and that means right for canning. They must also be firm and without bruised spots.

The greatest of stiffness in under-ripe peaches may be used for pickles.

One bushel of the fruit will make from 18 to 24 quarts of sauce. The directions:

1. Prepare a syrup for canning by boiling together 3 cups of sugar and 4 cups of water for five minutes. This will make five and one-half cups; each quart will require from three-fourths to 1 cup of syrup.

2. Wash the peaches, dip quickly in boiling water, then in cold water to loosen the skins. Peel and halve. To keep them from turning dark, drop them into water containing 2 tablespoons each of salt and vinegar to the gallon.

3. Drain fruit and place in boiling sugar syrup. Heat through for about 5 minutes, but do not cook until soft.

4. Wash jars and lids in hot soapy water, (except lids with sealing compound) rinse well and place in hot water until ready to use. Have new rubber rings in hand if used.

5. Remove one jar at a time from the hot water, place hot, wet rubber ring and pack peach halves in overlapping layers concave side down.

6. Cover peaches with boiling syrup, leaving one-half inch head space. Wipe jar rim and rubber ring with damp cloth and put on lid. Partially seal, screwing lid tight and then turning back one-fourth inch.

If self-sealing lid is used, put in place, then screw metal band down tight.

7. As each jar is filled, place it in the canner of hot water. When all jars are in, see that water is 2 inches over the tops of the jars.

8. Boil quart jars 25 minutes and half quart jars 20 minutes. Then remove jars. Quickly seal one-piece screw-top jars by screwing until tight. If the self-sealing, two-piece vacuum seal is used, let stand 24 hours then remove the metal band.

9. Cool jars top side up, on a cloth or rack with the jars separated enough to let air get to them from all sides.

Dept. Of Agriculture Allocates Over Half-Million To Fight Cattle Disease

Kentucky Gets $542,388 For Treatments

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture recently allocated $542,388 to Kentucky for treatment of brucellosis and other animal diseases.

This preliminary figure for work in the current fiscal year compares to $469,659 appropriated to the state last year, and $368,814 in fiscal 1957.

This amount should enable Kentucky livestock farmers to move forward rapidly toward their goal of wiping out brucellosis, and eventually having the entire state certified as "modified brucellosis-free."

Six Kentucky counties (Calloway, Graves, Trigg, Wolfe, Rowan, Elliott) have already been credited under the accelerated national program. 20 counties are currently testing livestock under the area program, 21 counties have completed petitioning, and many in additional counties are in the process of petitioning for the work to be extended to their own counties—a total of 79 counties.

"The increase in Federal funds for disease eradication work in Kentucky during the coming year should enable the State Department of Agriculture to vigorously pursue its brucellosis eradication program," said Sen. John Sherman Cooper. "I am glad to be able to report that my efforts in behalf of this work are resulting in adequate funds for the Kentucky program."

Earlier this year, Cooper played a key role in having funds restored for the national brucellosis eradication program. The amount for that program was cut sharply in the budget, and in the appropriation bill sent to the Senate by the House, Cooper succeeded in adding $5 million to the Senate, to provide a total of $20 million or roughly the amount used last year. He argued that money would be saved in the long-run by allowing the disease-control program to proceed as rapidly as farmers wanted to undertake the job. The House later agreed to full program adopted by the Senate.

Hundreds of livestock farmers throughout the state had asked Cooper to work for adequate funds to help them eliminate brucellosis in their own contagious abortion, which has cost the nation's dairy and beef cattle farmers alone over three quarters of a billion dollars in the last 10 years.

The same infection results in heavy losses to farmers raising hogs. In his capacity as Senate committee member, Cooper also pointed to the human concern, and the opportunity to conquer the related malady of undulant fever.

"Eliminating this single persistent and chronic disease problem will be a substantial step forward in avoiding unnecessary economic loss in livestock farming," Cooper said.

"The enthusiasm, the local leadership, and the group effort in the brucellosis eradication program (which nearly all farmers of a county petition for, and promise to support) would have been wakened if the Federal Government had simply reduced its efforts at this time."

Buying Of Local Firm OK For Northeastern

Approval of the purchase of the plants of the Rockcastle Telephone Co. and the Pulaski County Telephone Co. by the Northeastern Telephone Corp. was authorized recently by the Public Service Commission of Kentucky.

The two companies were merged with Northeastern, which has its headquarters at London and is managed by Oscar Munz.

The commission also granted Northeastern a certificate of convenience and necessity to operate in the two counties.

The Rockcastle Telephone Co. has operated as such since it was bought in 1937 from J. P. Dees of Brodhead.

It was operated at that time under the name of Mt. Vernon Telephone Co.

During the hearing before the commission, the company was authorized to borrow $2,451,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to finance improvements and new construction in the areas served by the two companies.

This will establish service for some 3,680 subscribers. The REA has already formally approved the loan.

The Public Service Commission also granted the corporation an interim rate increase effective with August billing to continue through the period of construction of a new-dial telephone system throughout Rockcastle and Pulaski counties.

The interim (temporary) rates are as follows:
BUSINESS: 1-party, 57; 2-party, $6; multi-party rural, $5.75, and extension (same building), $1.75.

RESIDENCE: 1-party, $4.50; 2-party, $4.25; 4-party, $3.75; multi-party rural, $3.50, and extension (same building), $1.25.

In final action, the commission authorized dial rates effective with the conversion to dial telephone service.

According to Oscar Bruner of Northeastern, staking of new lines in Rockcastle County will begin as soon as crews are available by the engineering company contracted to erect the outside plant.

10-Year-Old Is Drowned In Accident

A 10-year-old boy drowned in a small pond near Three Links last Thursday while his father and some other members of his family watched helplessly because none of them could swim.

Ray Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Bowman of Three Links at the edge of Rockcastle County, died in a little pond about 60 feet across and 15 feet deep at its deepest. The pond is man-made and is located on the farm of the boy's brother-in-law, Harry Sell.

The victim, his father and some others decided to go for a midday swim after they had been working in the tobacco field of Sell. The boy's mother had asked them not to go in the water since they were not swimmers.

They did go in the pond, however, and young Bowman drowned about 1 p. m.

Rescuers immediately began trying to recover the body, but not until a bulldozer was brought in about two feet of water was drained off of the body discovered.

 A survey by the Northeastern Telephone Co. has assured our city of a telephone exchange. A representative of the company is at present getting easements for rights-of-way.
 Mr. Bruner of London has set a completion date of March 1959 on the new dial system. We believe that new telephones and a new water distribution system will be the "boost" that Livingston has long been waiting for.

Elza Lakes, who has been ill for some time, entered the Pettie A. Clay Infirmary at Richmond for treatment Monday.

The city has opened temporary offices in the Webb block on Main Street and the mayor says "Come in and visit with us."

The editorial in last week's Signal should apply to the entire county and a "face-lifting" on the new dial system. A new 85-foot fibre-glass awning has been installed on the Webb Building, which incidentally is the longest fibre-glass job in Eastern Kentucky. A Main Street merchant is enlarging and modernizing his store and several homes about town are undergoing "surgery." It is surprising what a lawn mower and a bucket of paint mixed equally with community pride can do for an ailing home or business. Let us try seeing ourselves as others see us.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE LAW?

A series of two articles in the Louisville Times this week evoked official reactions at Frankfort and in Northern Kentucky which make a mockery of the law and place hypocrisy on a pedestal.

The articles, which exposed big-time gambling in Northern Kentucky, said or inferred that Nevada's Las Vegas casinos were no bigger-time, indeed, perhaps smaller-time, than those in our own Newport.

Now, in a very real sense, the articles did not actually "expose" vice of Newport, but merely dug them up again. Most of us who have ever been in Northern Kentucky are only too well aware of the gambling which flourishes there.

Whether the gambling exists is not so much the question as whether it is illegal. We have no intention of debating the "rightness" or "wrongness" of gambling here. We advocate neither the continuation nor the abolition of it. We do advocate, however, the enforcement of the law.

As things stand now, it is illegal to gamble in Kentucky. It is not necessary for a country editor to point this out to the Governor and the Attorney-General. Yet, when confronted with the reports of Northern Kentucky gambling, both of these men denied any knowledge of it—official or otherwise. Surely, our state officers are better-informed than this.

What it amounts to is this: Locally, if we catch a man shooting craps or playing poker, we haul him before a judge and lower the boom. Yet we allow big-time operators to conduct these same games at the rate of $20,000,000 a year in Northern Kentucky.

And the Governor and the Attorney-General, when confronted with such stories, become as uneasy as men with two dollar tickets sitting in twenty dollar seats.

It seems apparent that one of two things should be done: Send in someone to stop the flagrant violations or make gambling legal.

The latter certainly might be contrary to the wishes of the majority of our citizens, but it actually wouldn't change things a bit in Northern Kentucky.

A healthy respect for the law is one of the first requisites for a well-organized society. It seems that this is somewhat lacking right now, even at the top of the hierarchy.

ACCIDENTS

The County Baptist Hospital. Other traffic accidents investigated by Trooper Martin were:

An accident which occurred about 3:50 p.m. Saturday about 2 miles north of Mt. Vernon on U. S. 25 which resulted in minor injuries to two persons and a conviction for drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident for another.

Raymond H. Kitchin, 41, of Ashland, was driving pickup truck in the direction of Mt. Vernon when he hit the automobile driven by Margaret Coffey, of Mt. Vernon. Other passengers in the Coffey vehicle were Christine Coffey and 6-year-old Janice Coffey.

The Coffey vehicle was off the pavement and parked when the accident occurred. Margaret Coffey had stopped the car when she saw Kitchin driving toward her on the wrong side of the road, Trooper Martin said.

Martin said he arrested Kitchin in Mt. Vernon about 10 minutes after the wreck. County Judge Money Ed Cummins found Kitchin guilty of driving while under the influence of intoxicants and leaving the scene of an accident.

Passengers in the Coffey auto received only minor injuries. A wreck about 4 a.m. Sunday on U. S. 150 at Proctor's Crossing in Mt. Vernon led to a charge of failing to yield the right-of-way against Dewey M. Lake, 22, of Norwood, Ohio.

A tractor-trailer driven by Lake and a car driven by Charles Bray, 23, of Brodhead, collided and Bray was treated for cuts and bruises at the Rockcastle County Baptist Hospital.

Virgil Charten, 29, of Berea, was found guilty in the court house under the influence of alcohol of leaving the scene of an accident which occurred July 26 on Fairview Road about 9 miles north of Mt. Vernon.

Alex D. Combs, 20, Route 1, London, suffered head cuts and was treated at Berea College Hospital after the truck he was driving turned over about 12 miles north of Mt. Vernon on U. S. 25 on July 30.

No other vehicles were involved in the mishap and no charges were placed against Combs.

A wreck which occurred about 6:45 a.m. Wednesday seven miles south of Mt. Vernon on U. S. 25 resulted in no injuries and no charges against the two-vehicle operators involved.

John Milton Owen, 58, Tipp City, Ohio, collided with Albert Lee Loy, 18, Powell, Tenn. Damage to the autos was minor, Trooper Martin said.

BAPTISTS MEET

This Association is to be congratulated for undertaking such a responsibility as operating a hospital.

By sponsoring this hospital, the Baptists of this county have expressed themselves as concerned with the care of the sick and injured, he said.

The next year's association meeting will be held at Livingston the first day and at Pine Hill the second day, the Rev. Hopkins said.

BOY DROWNS

Six sisters, Mrs. Mae Spivey, Pine Grove; Mrs. Okla Sell, The Links; Barbara, Edith, Shirley and Mary Bowman, all at home; one brother, William-Bowman, also at home.

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p. m. Saturday at the home by Bro. Ted Allen. Burial was in a cemetery near the home by the Morris School in Jackson, Kentucky.

The Kentucky legislature appropriated $400,000 for animal disease-eradication work in the next year, plus an additional $200,000 contingent on Federal matching.

An additional $7,186 was made available by the Department of Agriculture for eradication of vesicular exanthema. This amount, plus possible funds for equipment and other items, promises to bring the Federal total close to the $600,000 figure which would allow full use of the state appropriation.

Many Misled About Social Security Law

Many young farmers, as well as the older ones, are misled when it comes to their responsibilities under the social security law, according to R. A. Tweedy, district manager of the Lexington social security office.

"All self-employed farmers, regardless of age, must report their farm earnings and pay the social security tax each year that they have net earnings of at least $400. This is true even if they are receiving social security monthly payments," Tweedy said.

Some farmers believe that they have to report their farm earnings for social security for only two years to get their social security benefits at retirement age, he said.

"It is true that some farmers over 65 years of age and in the case of women, over 62, are receiving social security benefits after having paid the self-employment tax for two years. But if these farmers continue to have net earnings of $400 or more each year in their farming operations, they must continue to file their self-employment tax returns and pay the tax each year," he said.

How long a self-employed farmer must operate his farm in order to qualify for social security benefit payments depends on the date he reaches retirement age, according to the law. In surviving cases, the length of time he must have farmed depends on the date of his death. For example, a self-employed farmer reaching retirement age in early 1961 will need five years of farming covered under social security to qualify for monthly payments; if he reaches retirement age in 1971, he will need at least 10 years of farming under social security.

All farmers have been urged to keep accurate records each year of their farm income and expenses so that they can file a correct self-employment tax return and get credit under social security toward their benefits at retirement.

Most self-employed farmers know by now that a man must be at least 65 years of age and a woman must be at least 62 years of age to file a claim for old-age retirement benefits, Tweedy said.

"A GOOD REPUTATION IS MORE VALUABLE THAN MONEY"

Fortunately, a reputation is not a commodity hawked over the counter and readily available to all who can meet the price. As has always been the case, one's good name and reputation comes of strict adherence to qualities of good citizenship and Christian behavior. A reputation cannot be bought at any price—it must be worked for. It is a product manufactured in the great mill of daily life and fabricated of the many standards of our personal and moral integrity.
