THE WEEK IN LIVINGSTON

ROBERT WADDLE, REPORTER

Thomas V. Johnson Dies

The burial Tuesday at Danville of Thomas V. Johnson, who died at his home Friday night can be noted as the passing of another familiar landmark. Mr. Johnson was one of those rare people who seem to always be present when someone is in need, and if he had a fault in the life it was that he was overgenerous. It can be truly said of him that he gave of himself and his means until it hurt. His cheerful greetings, his songs and his prayers will leave an empty place in the hearts of all the community.

OLDEST RESIDENT DIES

We have news of the passing of Uncle John Jones of the Ford Hollow section. Uncle John, 94, was the oldest resident of this section, and only recently became a bed patient.

OES ANNIVERSARY

The local Eastern Star Chapter will celebrate its thirty-sixth birthday anniversary Friday night with a banquet and entertainment program.

HALLOWEEN SUCCESSFUL

Hallowe'en night in Livingston was deemed a success in every respect, but the most notable thing about the holiday here was that not one single case of vandalism was reported. This is ample evidence that child training is being done in our homes as well as in our schools.

SUCCESSFUL DEBUT

The Livingston Blue Devils opened their basketball season Tuesday night against McKee High on the home floor. The score was Livingston 94, McKee 68.

NAME-RELATED PERSONS NOT

No, I am not related to the Walter Waddle who made the front page last week, but if I was I could only say: "There but for the Grace of God go I!"

NEWS IS LIKE GOURD

We are cutting our column short this week for several reasons, foremost of which is a shortage of news. It is impossible to write a news column without the support of our readers. If you want this column continued, pitch in and help, otherwise it will be like my gourds and will die on the vine.

Timber Maret Directory Now At County Agent's Office:

A new publication available at the county agent's office may help Kentuckians find markets for their timber.

The publication, NOT published in sufficient quantity for distribution but in sufficient numbers to put one in each county agent's office, lists the following, says James Newman, Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service forester:

Major types of forest products, specifications for such products, quality and kinds of trees used for veneer, cooperage, saw timber, mine timber, cedar, pulpwood, handle stock and posts.

One section of the directory deals with out-of-state wood-using industries which buy products in Kentucky. They are principally in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee.

Newman said the directory was published by the Kentucky Department of Economic Development in cooperation with the Extension service forestry department, the U. S. Forest Service and the State Division of Forestry.

Three New Leaflets Issued By Service:

The Kentucky Agricultural Extension Service's publications department lists three leaflets as issued this week for general distribution.

They are: Leaflet 211, "Sowing Alfalfa in Kentucky"; Leaflet 212, "So You're on a Committee"; and Leaflet 213, "Care of Alfalfa for Various Uses." The leaflets are available at the county agent's office.

Care, Comfort Stripping Takes

Stripping tobacco requires care—and care is best taken by few weeks prior to sales.

Carpets Of Different Fibers Have Varied Characteristics:

If a carpet or rug is on your fall list of home furnishing needs, you probably will want to look at floor coverings made of the five important fibers before you make a decision, says Miss Marion Bartlett, UK Extension specialist.

They are the natural fibers—wool and cotton, and the man-made fibers—rayon, nylon and acrilan. Quality is the characteristic every housewife wants in carpeting, so consider not only the fiber, but also the construction of the yarn and the depth and closeness of surface tufts, which you can see by bending the rug back on itself. Yarns that are tightly twisted and closely spaced will give the best service.

The trend in manufacture is toward tufted floor coverings, says Miss Bartlett, a less expensive method of rug-making than weaving. Any type of fiber may be used, a coating of latex on the back securing the fibers. Latex backing is used also on many woven rugs.

For rooms that get the hardest traffic, such as family room, living room, hall and stairs, buy the best you can afford.

WOOL is an important rug fiber because of its resilience or springiness, its resistance to soil, color fastness and warmth. However, domestic wool is too soft to give the necessary wear, and imported wool that is used for most carpetings of this fiber results in a high price.

COTTON rugs are less expensive, but show soil and have a tendency to mat. Some are treated with soil retardants.

Man-made or synthetic fibers are tough, crease resistant to a degree and resist moths and mildew.

NYLON is durable, resilient, resists fading and spills may be wiped up. Nylon may be blended with other fibers, but should be used in the proportion of 20 per cent or more to give appreciable nylon qualities.

RAYON has soft pile and holds color if it is solution dyed; can be spot-cleaned without danger of fading. It comes in a medium price range.

ACRILAN has good resiliency, is durable and holds color. It is still in mental stages of cleanliness.

Model of 4-H Camp:

A model of the J. M. Felner Memorial 4-H Camp, which will be constructed near Levi Jackson State Park, was the theme of the 4-H Club booth at the Rockcastle Tobacco Festival October 30 through Nov. 1.

The display was assembled by members and leaders of the Maple Grove 4-H Club. Members of the Mt. Vernon, Maple Grove and Wildie 4-H Clubs attended the booth to accept contributions toward financing the club activities in order that the camp will be available for the 1959

Siler Defeats Challenger Scalf By Two-One Majority, Gains Re-election To Congress

Is Only Republican To Represent State

Although the muskets of the Democratic Party were blasting away successfully in most parts of the nation Tuesday, C. O. P. Representative Eugene Siler of Williamsburg retained his Eighth District seat in Congress by gaining a majority of more than two-to-one over his challenger, Democrat W. D. Scalf of Barbourville.

Since Kentucky's other C. O. P. Representative, John Robison, beaten out for re-election in the Third District by more than 6,000 votes, Siler remains the only Republican Congressman from Kentucky.

With 406 or 556 precincts reporting, Siler was out front 27,362 to 13,224. In Rockcastle County, Siler's re-election followed the two-to-one trend as the incumbent polled 1,394 votes against his opponent's 634.

In the race for seats on the Mt. Vernon Board of Education, Preston Nunneley garnered the greatest number of votes with 456. John D. Henderson received 441, and incumbent Gordon Graham won re-election with 417.

Otto Mullins, running unopposed for a seat on the County Board of Education as a representative of Division 1, received 167 votes, while L. B. Elder, also running without opposition, received 138.

Benefits Available For Children Now

"Before the enactment of the 1958 amendments to the social security law, dependents of a person receiving disability insurance benefits could not qualify for monthly payments," R. A. Tweedy, District Manager of the Lexington social security office said Monday.

Under the newly-amended law, monthly payments beginning with the month of September, 1958 can go to children under age 18; a disabled son or daughter 18 years of age or older, if the disability began before or on her 18th birthday; a wife, age 62 or older, or a dependent husband, age 65 or older; a wife, under age 62, she has in her care a child under 18 or a disabled child 18 or over who is eligible for benefits.

"Dependents included in these categories who may be eligible for these new benefit payments should get in touch with their nearest social security office promptly," Tweedy said.

The new law also provides that a worker is no longer required to have one-half year of social security coverage out of the three years immediately preceding the onset of his disability. A person may now qualify for the disability freeze at any age or cash disability payments starting at age 50, if he worked five years out of the ten-year period preceding the onset of his disability under the law.

Congressman Watts To Address Legion

Congressman John Watts will be the principal speaker at the Veterans' Day Meeting of the Claude Smith Post 291 of the American Legion when the group meets on Tuesday, Nov. 7, p. m. in the Howard Furner Home chapel at Crab Orchard.

Congressman Watts, who has been helpful to the Crab Orchard Post in getting veterans admitted to hospitals and with their claims, recently reconducted a investigation at the VA hospital in Louisville to determine if veterans were being mistreated. Watts' appearance will not be a political matter.

Post Commander Oliver C. Holcomb, who announced the lecture, urges all veterans and non-veterans to attend the meeting. He said he also hopes to have present a representative from the state organization. All veterans will have an opportunity to discuss any personal matters with the congressman.

A business session will follow Watts' speech.

National J C C Director To Visit Local Jaycees

Jess Bullock, president of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, announced at Monday night's meeting that Jack F. Royce, a director of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, will visit with the local group next Monday to discuss the group's activities, progress and plans for the future.

With the missing nanny goat back in possession, business went on as usual for the Jaycees. Five members, three of which were recruited by the group that handled gopher chores last week, were added to the roster, bringing group strength to 32 members.

Of foremost importance at the meeting was the discussion of a means by which local police can be contacted in times of emergency. A committee was appointed to check into the various methods by which a central system could be established for making contact with police.

New members who joined the Jaycees Monday night were Herbert Robbins, Carl Robbins, Thomas Coffey, Glen Cary, and Claude Sweet. O. C. Yates and James Earl Hammons were newcomers last week, but their names were not mentioned.

NORTHEASTERN PRESENTS CHECK—Alvin Adams, manager for Northeastern Telephone Company in Rockcastle County, presents a $2,400 check to N. M. Smock and Bradley Saylor. The check represents deposits made by the Rockcastle Telephone Co-operative for dial service before Northeastern assumed the chores.

Northeastern Presents Large Check To Co-op

A check for $2,400 was presented to officials of the Rockcastle Telephone Co-operative from the Northeastern Telephone Corporation this week for services and expenses incurred in the Co-op's endeavor to bring modern dial telephone service to Rockcastle County.

According to Saylor and Smock, the money will be allocated to members of the Co-op who deposited cash while the Co-op was active in getting a telephone system for the county. A meeting of the Co-op will be held and the checks will be mailed after the meeting.

"We wish to thank Northeastern for taking over for us after a battle of seven years," Mr. Smock said. "That modern service will soon be a reality. We of the Co-op sincerely hope the people of Rockcastle will take advantage of this service when it becomes available."

"We are also very happy that we can refund the money that our members made available to us during our efforts," he added.

Northeastern took over the Mt. Vernon Telephone Company in 1957. Since that time a loan has been granted by the Rural Electrification Administration to bring dial service to Rockcastle. Currently, the sinking of telephone lines is progressing rapidly and applications are still being taken for future service.

Mr. Adams reported that sign-up efforts in the county are almost concluded and that in some areas the signups have been less than expected. He urged residents who want telephone service to sign up for it immediately.

BAPTIST LOYALTY DAY

The First Baptist Church of Mt. Vernon will observe Loyalty Day Sunday, Nov. 9 at morning worship service at 10:30. Bibles will be presented to the oldest and youngest members present, and the largest family unit will be recognized.

Fall Fertilizing Pays in Top Corn Yields Per Acre

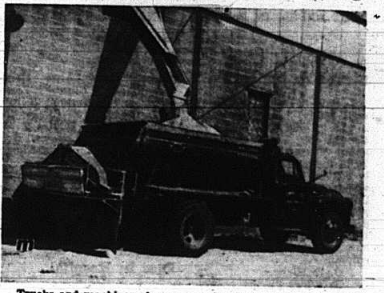

40-40-0 FALL 40-40-0 SPRING

Reasons given by farmers who use fertilizer in the fall include the saving of time that means faster planting in the spring; easier application of fertilizer through the use of broadcast spreaders and bulk spreading with trucks; greater choice of fertilizer grades; and prompt delivery. These farmers say, too, that fertilizer plowed down in the fall is in moist soil next spring and summer, while fertilizer disked in next spring may be in dry soil with the first dry spell. Research tests show that phosphate and potash in fertilizers is just as efficient applied in the fall as in the spring on nearly all Corn Belt soils. However, whether the nitrogen put on in the fall will be there in the spring depends on several factors. There is little chance of loss of nitrogen under the following conditions: 1—Where subsoils are dry and there is not enough winter rain to leach down through the root zone before the crop begins growing in the spring. 2—On soils where drainage is a problem and water is likely to pond for short spells. 3—On medium to heavy soils where large amounts of corn stalks or straw are plowed down with the fertilizer. Even where there may be some water running through the soil, the ammonia form of nitrogen in fertilizer will be held if the plant food is put on after soils have cooled down to 35 degrees. But where water leaches quickly through the soil, as on very sandy soils, serious losses of nitrogen can occur.

Fertilizer Put on This Fall Saves Time, Work Next Spring

Trucks and machinery have an easier time getting onto fields with fertilizer in the fall.

FALL is an ideal time to plug the gaps in a soil fertility program, reports Marshall Christy, University of Missouri extension soils specialist. "Lime and fertilizer applied this fall can save you time and labor next spring when every minute counts in the planting season," says Christy in a statement summarized by the Midwest division of the National Plant Food Institute. "Plant food applied now will be just right for plowing deep this fall. The nutrients can be more useful to crops next season than fertilizer disked in next spring," he says. "Christy points out that a fall top-dressing adds to the life span of legume-grass mixtures.

This can save the cost of completely reworking and treading permanent-type grasses and legumes. An annual top-dressing also can mean extra tonnages of hay, silage and pasture for lower-cost, higher-profit milk and meat production. One big advantage of fall fertilization is that the ground in farmer and trucks and machinery have an easier time getting on to fields. There is less chance of damage to the soil from packing down by heavy equipment. Christy says soil tests are the best guide for determining what plant nutrients are needed to produce top yields. Farmers still have time to take soil samples and have them processed by the testing laboratory, he says.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

I haven't been feeling too well lately, but I am feeling better. The weather is fine here at the time of the year. It is about 50 degrees at night and 70 in the daytime. It is generally cold at this season. We have wonderful crops this season. Corn averages 100 to 125 bushels per acre and oats and wheat are doing extra well. I would like to see more Callaway news. We sure do enjoy reading that column.
