

Farm And Home News

BY H. Lee Durham, Martha Owen and Paul Claiborne, Co. Extension Agts.

Farm And Home Week: The Annual Farm and Home Week has been scheduled for Jan. 27 through Jan. 30, at the University of Kentucky. This meeting will be the 47th consecutive Farm and Home Week and farmers, their wives and families will have an opportunity to discuss and to hear discussed some of the more important problems affecting agriculture today.

Two relatively new phases of farming, namely "contract farming" and "agribusiness" are on the Farm and Home Week Program this year. Contract farming is sometimes called "vertical integration." In vertical integration the farmer, for instance, raises broilers at a predetermined price and has certain fixed costs, like feed, which are met by the businessman. "Agribusiness" is an inclusive term that covers all phases of farm business from the farm production through food processing, transportation, merchandising, packaging, selling, etc.

Both of these terms are considered important to farming's future because great shifts in the farming operation and related activities have been made in the last few years. The program for the week is varied and extremely interesting. Some of the program topics are: Family Farming, Legal Problems of Farm Families, The Seed Industry, Cooperatives in Agriculture, State Planning, Rural Zoning, Water Conservation, Effects of Inflation, The Swine Industry, The Beef Problem in Kentucky and Tobacco Production.

Some highlights of the week are discussions by two of the foremost authorities of the United States in the field of family life who will discuss in a 2-day session the various phases of family living. Included in these discussions will be: Today's Young Family, The Teenage Group, The Middle Years, The Golden Age and Tomorrow's Family.

4-H Club members will also have a part in the program when they tell the oldsters how the older generation can better help the young people grow up.

Plan to be on hand at all sessions of the 47th Annual Farm and Home Week beginning at 9 a. m., January 27th.

Poultry Parasites: Thousands of dollars are lost annually by Kentucky poultrymen through reduced production and poor feed efficiency.

resulting from poultry parasites. Coccidiosis, for instance, is frequently fatal to poultry regardless of which of the eight types of the disease the birds catch. Good management, sanitation practices and the proper use of many available drugs can control coccidiosis. Many of the chemicals are used at low levels in the feed, others such as the sulfa drugs can be put in drinking water.

Internal worms also take a high toll of poultry. A liquid wormer called "piperazine" is very effective when put into the drinking water and controls round worms and some other white worms.

Most bothersome of the external parasites are lice and mites. Lice can be controlled by spraying a one and one-half percent lindane solution on roosts and litter using just enough to wet the surface of the litter. A one percent lindane dust can also be used at the rate of three pounds per one thousand square feet of space. Mites can be controlled by lindane or by a four percent malathion dust used at the rate of one pound per one thousand square feet. By mixing a five percent DDT dust with malathion, the birds can also be deloused at the same time. Many other parasite controls are available and will give good results. Old engine oil and kerosene for example painted on the roost poles are still good.

Winter Soil Testing: Next spring when the work load on the farm is at its peak many farmers will not have the time to secure an adequate soil sample. Farmers who have not had a soil analysis are reminded that it is not too late to secure these samples in this less busy time of the year. Soil testing now can save time and labor next spring. One of the advantages of soil testing in the winter is that moisture conditions are usually favorable for good sampling. This may not be true in the spring when heavy rains can make it difficult to obtain good samples or even to get out on the fields.

By testing soil this winter the fertilizer and liming program for 1959 can be planned and investments in plant food can be used on fields where it will do the most good. The following steps are suggested for getting the soil sampling job done easily and accurately.

1. See the County Agent and obtain an instruction sheet and an information sheet.

2. When sampling soil use a clean bucket and a spade or auger.

3. Mix at least 10 cores from each soil type into one soil sample.

4. Mix and air dry this sample.

5. Take the information sheet and one-half to one pint of soil to the County Agent's office for analysis.

Poison Center at Lexington: The Central Baptist Hospital at Lexington, Ky., has recently established a Poison Control Center at the hospital. This center is designed to give information to physicians and provide the necessary equipment for the treatment of poisoning cases. The center at Lexington is established in conjunction with a state wide program to provide accurate information to people. Farmers who have not had a soil analysis are reminded that it is not too late to secure these samples in this less busy time of the year. Soil testing now can save time and labor next spring. One of the advantages of soil testing in the winter is that moisture conditions are usually favorable for good sampling. This may not be true in the spring when heavy rains can make it difficult to obtain good samples or even to get out on the fields.

advise physicians regarding treatment and information can not be given to individuals. In the event of a poisoning the local physician should be contacted. He will, if necessary, get in touch with the poison control center in the area. The Poison Control Center at Lexington can be reached by calling 4-8820 or by going to Central Baptist Hospital, 1740 South Limestone, Lexington.

Selection Of Shoes: Soon many winter shoes will be on sale. The wise shopper can get good bargains at these sales if shoes are chosen for the purpose for which they are going to be used and also if the shoes fit properly.

To assure good fitting shoes check these points for fit: Toe, ball, vamp, instep, heel.

A good fitting shoe conforms throughout to the shape of the foot and gives support where needed. Shoes too narrow and short crowd the toes. Shoes that do not conform to the shape of the foot fail to give proper support to the arch.

Length. When you are standing, the shoe should extend 1/2 to 3/4 inch beyond the great toe. This is a general rule for shoes with a broad or well-rounded toe. Extra length will be needed for a pointed toe.

Width. In a correctly fitted shoe the broadest part of the ball of the foot will be at the widest part of the shoe; the big joint of the great toe will come just at the rounding-in of the sole.

Vamp. Not much free space is needed here but a little will prevent the shoe from pinching. If there is a seam on the vamp it should not press on the top of the foot.

Instep. For proper support the bottom of the foot should fit snugly against the sole of the shoe at the instep. As you stand and walk you will feel the support of the shoe at the instep.

Look at the thickness of the sole. Everyday shoes need soles that are moderately thick. The thin soles on many women's shoes make walking on any but the smoothest surfaces painful.

Heel. The back part of the shoe upper should center the heel of the foot in the heel seat of the shoe. The heel should fit snugly yet be wide enough to be comfortable when standing.

A heel height of 2 1/2 to 1 1/2 inches is practical when one spends much time walking or standing.

Heels that are nearly as broad throughout as at the heel seat, in other words, heels that taper very little, are best for general wear.

The pitch of the heel is also important. Heels that slant too far forward cannot steadily support the body or hold it in its proper posture.

The Bible is a CATHOLIC Book

People differ radically in what they think about the Bible. Some seem to think it was handed down from Heaven written in English and bound in morocco. Many accept it as the inspired Word of God without knowing why they are justified in doing so. And others say that the Bible is full of contradictions and must be taken "with a grain of salt."

It was the Catholic Church which treasured it and gave it to the world in its original and unaltered form. It is the infallible authority of the Catholic Church that always has been the only sure guarantee of its inspiration.

Nowhere in the Bible text will you find a list of the 73 inspired books of which it is composed. This list was given to the world by the Catholic Church almost three full centuries after the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. Before the time of the Crucifixion and the time the Scriptures were gathered into a single Book, millions had received and accepted the teachings of Jesus Christ and had died without ever seeing the complete Bible.

Those who are familiar with the Bible, as well as those reading it for the first time will find many important questions concerning it answered in an interesting booklet which we will send you on a free Pamphlet No. KY-5.

For more than a thousand years afterward, the Scriptures were preserved and circulated by Catholic monks and scholars who laboriously copied the sacred text by hand. And the Bible authorized by the Catholic Church was the first book produced by Gutenberg upon the invention of printing.

NOTICE TO THE TAXPAYERS

All real estate and personal property must be listed during January and February of each year with the County Tax Commissioner. The present average of assessment in Rockcastle County is one-third of the actual value of the property. The State Department of Revenue insists and it is only justice that all property be assessed at the same rate, that is, one-third of the value of the property.

The law requires the property owner to list his property and place a fair value thereon. However, the law also requires the Tax Commissioner to assess the property at the same rate as other property in the County. If you are sure your property is fair and honest in listing the property, no changes are made. But, if the property owner lists his property at less than one-third of its value, then his assessment must be raised to one-third of the property's fair value.

Intangible property that must be listed each year for taxes includes notes and mortgages, accounts receivable, stocks and bonds and money due from insurance companies and all investments.

SELECT CORRECT FORMS FOR INCOME TAX FILING

(Ed Note: This is the first of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, ary.)

If you are one of the millions of American taxpayers who spends the lion's share of his income feeding, clothing, housing and entertaining his family, chances are there is a little you can do to reduce your 1958 federal income tax bill — but you owe it to yourself to try.

First of all, decide which of the two individual tax forms you are going to use to report your income. If you choose the wrong one, you may automatically cut yourself off from a possible tax savings.

The easiest way to file is to use the simple 1040-A Form. It's a card the size of a check, on which you answer a few simple questions and have the choice of either computing your own tax or letting the Government do it for you.

You are permitted to use the card form if your gross income consisted only of wages, dividends or interest totaling less than $10,000 and if you did not have more than $200 of gross income apart from that listed on your W-2 withholding slips.

Before deciding to use the card Form 1040-A, you should consider these facts:

1. Your tax will be figured from a table which allows you a deduction of about 10 per cent of your income instead of itemized deductions for contributions, taxes, interest paid, medical and dental expenses, etc.

2. There is no provision in this form for filing as the "head of household," as a "surviving spouse" or for claiming special credits for dividends and retirement income.

3. If you are sure that these two points would not cost you any tax savings, and your income is within the limits for filing a Form 1040-A, you might as well use this simple card form.

Whether to file as a single person or as a married couple. When you elect to use the regular Form 1040, you still must decide whether to itemize deductions or take the standard deduction which usually amounts to about 10 per cent of your income or $1,000, whichever is less. Generally, you will save by itemizing deductions if you:

(1) Own real estate (2) Had unusual medical expenses (3) Had deductible child-care expense (4) Suffered losses from fire, storm, accident or theft. (5) Made fairly large charitable contributions.

If you are supporting a dependent although you are unmarried, you may be able to qualify as a "head of household" and figure your tax on a special table that gives you part of the advantage enjoyed by married couples filing joint returns.

You may qualify for a "head of household" status if you provide more than half the support of a parent and more than half the cost of maintaining the dependent household even if the parent does not live with you. You cannot claim a "head of household" status if you file a Form 1040-A.

The 1040 Form is arranged again this year so that a taxpayer whose income was entirely from wages needs to use only the first one or two pages. Pages three and four are for other types of income and for computing the special credits for dividends and retirement income.

The instructions which come with your tax forms give further information on how to select the correct tax form. Help is also available from the Internal Revenue Service.

CO-OPERATION PAYS OFF

The decision this week of the Jaycees, at the request of March of Dimes chairman Preston Nunneley, to conduct a road block for the drive, is a perfect exemplification of the type of co-operation which is required between groups to get a job done. Polio is a job, a big one, and it takes the active support of every one of us to make that job a successfully-completed one. Now that polio has more or less taken a back seat among our fears, we no longer feel as we did toward the dread disease that has demoralized many persons of many nations.

Now that the National Foundation has undertaken the mountainous tasks of conducting research into the cause of birth defects and other diseases, this same co-operation is needed as much as ever.

Mt. Vernon and Livingston can co-operate this Friday night when the basketball teams from those two places clash in the high school gym at Mt. Vernon. They can help the March of Dimes and humanity by pledging a nickel a point for each point scored by their favorite team in the affray.

If citizens of both communities will back this imaginative venture, this can be one ball game in which no one is really the loser.
