If gum were to get into your carburetor, it could lead to unexpected repairs like this. One of the nine ingredients in today's Super Shell fights gum to give you top performance.

ANCIENT HISTORY:

Gasoline gum used to cause unexpected repair bills.
Today, one of Super Shell's 9 ingredients fights off gum —to save you money and give you top performance.

The gum preventive in today's Super Shell is so powerful that one thousandth of an ounce is enough to treat a gallon. Read how this "chemical policeman" works.

THE MECHANIC in our photograph is about to go to work on a gummed-up carburetor. A nice little repair job.

But to Shell scientists, gummed-up carburetors are ancient history.

And so are other gum troubles. Such as sticky intake valves. And fouled automatic chokes. Here's why:

1. Shell uses refining processes that hold certain gum-forming gasoline components to a minimum.

2. Shell guards all tanks, pipes, and trucks against dirt and other gum-forming contaminants.
3. Shell includes a powerful gum preventive in Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula.

"Chemical cop" at work

The gum preventive in Super Shell is so effective that a thousandth of an ounce is enough to treat a whole gallon of gasoline.

This remarkable ingredient has been described as a "chemical policeman." It helps to keep unstable elements in gasoline from sticking together—the way a skilled policeman prevents trouble by keeping a crowd from forming.

Hot Weather Blend

For a quick run-down on the other eight ingredients in today's Super Shell, see box at right.

And for top performance all summer, keep your tank filled with Super Shell's Hot Weather Blend. It's specially formulated to fight engine flooding and other hot weather troubles. At Shell stations now.

Here are the 9 ingredients in Super Shell—and what they do to give your car top performance

- #1 is TCP— for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is Pentane mix— for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix— for knock resistance.
- #4 is Allylate to control "high-speed knock."
- #5 is Butene— for quick starts.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline— for power.
- #7 is an "anti-icer." Added when cold weather sets in.
- #8 is gum preventive— for clean carburetors.
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

*Trademark for Shell's unique gasoline additive. Contains 100% TCP as covered by U.S. Patent 2,899,112.

At Shell, 1997 scientists are working to make your car go better and better

Local Quarries Good Shelter

banon Branch of the L & N Railroad.

Electrical power is furnished by the Kentucky Utilities Company. Telephone service is provided to the office. The 2.5 miles of secondary road is in fair condition. Although narrow, vehicles can pass and travel at reasonable rates of speed. Parking facilities adjacent to the quarry are limited; however, using the road side and the quarry itself, ample parking facilities are available for in excess of 1,000 vehicles.

Access to the quarry requires crossing a bridge over Roundstone Creek. This bridge is company-owned and has ample clearance and is capable of supporting any vehicle presently located at the Depot. Lighting facilities are available in the quarry. All lights are on a 220-volt system. There are individual sub-stations throughout the quarry which offer excellent points for connecting portable generators.

The quarry has three drift entrances with only one currently being used for traffic. An additional opening has been made high upon the mountain to promote circulation of air. This provides sufficient draft for ventilation, providing the quarry is not operating gasoline engine driven shovels. In case gasoline engine driven shovels are operating, 50 H. P. exhaust fans are used. Normally, the shovels in use are electric driven.

At the present time, there is approximately 2,004,000 square feet of available open space in the form of corridors or chambers. The average width of the corridors is 50 feet with heights ranging from 35 feet to 45 feet. All chambers or corridors are interconnected on horizontal plane.

Water is presently available and apparently comes from seepage through underground crevices. There is a pool of water that has been impounded which is approximately 400 feet long and 5 feet deep for the purpose of control of water and use as coolant for central air com-pressor. This water, in its present condition, is not suited for human consumption and some means of purification will be required for removal of bacteria and possible contamination—from draining operations. There are no sanitary facilities presently available in the quarry but facilities could be easily supplied.

Within two (2) miles of this quarry is the entrance to the Great Saltpetre Cave. This is a natural cave which has not been fully explored, but due to its large size, the citizens of Rockcastle County have considered developing it for a tourist attraction and have made some improvements to the road servicing the cave. Mullins Quarry usually has the following equipment on the site: three shovels, one bulldozer, five dumpsters and one pick-up truck.

Mt. Vernon Quarry is located on US 150 on the western outskirts of Mt. Vernon. It is served by the Lebanon Road Company. There are ample parking facilities for 1,000 vehicles. This quarry has been in operation in a new location approximately three years. Telephone service is available and electrical power is furnished by the Kentucky Utilities Company. There is a 220-volt lighting system throughout the quarry.

Ventilation is by natural draft. At the present time, there is approximately 200,000 square feet of available open space in the quarry. This space is in the form of chambers or corridors approximately 50 feet wide and 32 feet high. There are two drift openings to the quarry, but only one can be used for vehicular traffic at the present time.

There are no sanitary facilities available at the present time. Water is available from a well capable of producing 1,000 gallons per day. This is pumped into a storage tank and used for cooling the air compressor. This quarry is the smallest one visited as penetration of the mountain has only been around 600 feet deep and approximately 700 feet wide. It is practically located within the city limits and although the Civil Defense Director stated no plans were currently available for use of this quarry as a fallout shelter, it is believed that many of the citizens of Mt. Vernon would naturally go to the quarry in the event fallout was predicted for the area. Directly across US 150 is an abandoned quarry containing approximately four acres of open space that could be used for shelter in the event of extreme emergency. This quarry is considered unsafe due to rock falls. Equipment presently on hand at this quarry consist of one shovel, two dump trucks, 1 pick-up truck, 1 uke.

These are the facts as the Army sees them. To the civilian, they are facts that have never been thought of in this particular light. But they are facts that point up one thing. With arrangements, additions, and modifications, Rockcastle County has in its quarries a safe place for its residents in case of a nuclear war.

Of course, come that way, no one will invite or force anyone to go to the quarries. For instance, as we pointed out, could be most unpleasant in the quarries. But we venture to guess, if that day should come, there will be few who will argue over unpleasantness. For, after all, there is only one other alternative to this unpleasantness—death.

concerned with agriculture as it is with industry. The new work, agriculturalness, Wyatt said, "describes one of the most important areas in which our program of development is moving forward."

"The 148 new or expanded agriculture-based processing plants now in operation in Kentucky," Wyatt continued, "is graphic evidence that our development program is providing Kentuckians new opportunities in agriculture right along with new opportunities in industry."

Looking to the future, Wyatt concluded, "By every standard of efficiency, agriculture's gains have been formidable. Our new program of economic development will continue to give agriculture the basic support it merits as our number one industry in Kentucky."

Wayne Stewart was master of ceremonies for the banquet. The food was prepared by Mrs. Clyde Linville and the staff at the school.

Act, Public Law 87-27, signed by President Kennedy May 1, 1961. Federal aid is earmarked for several purposes. $100 million is set aside to help finance industrial land sites and buildings in designated rural areas. Other provisions applying to both rural and urban areas include $175 million for loans and grants for public facilities, $4.5 million for technical aid, and $14.5 million for retraining unemployed and underemployed workers.

The over-all program will be administered by the Area Redevelopment Administration in the Department of Commerce. At the state level, the Area Program Office has been established in Frankfort to assist area groups and to provide approvals for plan and projects.

County agents will play an important part in evolving a program, just as they did in the early days of the Rural Electric Co-ops and their beginnings. Local committees have been formed.

"Our board members and our entire membership know the advantages of wide-spread participation and the responsibility which a co-op offers. We have a responsibility for placing the matter of co-op organization of various projects before the local committee for discussion. The danger of pirating an industry away from another area, is a pitfall we hope to avoid."

Noting that "federal planning and no action" is bad, Farmer said, "We should move right ahead on project development, remembering that successful projects must be competitive. They must meet the challenge of the marketplace."

The US Department of Agriculture identifies itself with the program in the role of helping turn ideas into successful new enterprises. USDA offers help to legitimate projects, but in no way is to create a new project nor ideas from scratch.

According to John D. Whisman, Administrator for Kentucky, "We hope to have lots of projects such as new home-grown industries; sewage disposal plants; water systems; hospitals; more productive forms of agriculture, feed or fertilizer processing plants; restaurants; motels and the like. Basic community needs must come first, then a creation of new industries where the basics have been developed."

County Assistance Totals $41,600

Rockcastle County's public assistance total received more than $41,600 in aid last month from the Kentucky Department of Economic Security, Commissioner Earle V. Powell announced this week.

Statewide payments totaled more than $5.3 million up $195,459 over the amount in October 1960.

The county's needy aged received a total of $20,918 last month, Powell said. Families receiving aid to dependent children received $15,106, the needy blind $621, and the totally and permanently disabled $4,986.

APPEARANCE of the Blue-Gray Platoon from Fort Knox was one of the highlights of the recent parade at Mt. Vernon commemorating the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Shiloh. The first Civil War engagement on Kentucky soil. About 7,000 people watched the procession of flags, band, queens, bands and marching troops wearing blue and gray. Here soldiers dressed in Confederate Gray stand arms inspection with rifle-loading rifles. The ceremonies, sponsored by the Rockcastle County Civil War Centennial Commission, featured Dr. Hambleton Tapp, chairman of the state commission, as guest speaker.
