Judge Carter said the head of the family must come in person to make application for surplus food.

Burley Increased 6 Percent

A six per cent increase in burley tobacco acreage in Kentucky will be granted by the Department of Agriculture, State District Office, C. W. Watts said Monday in Washington.

Watts said the increase amounts to 34,781 acres available for allotments in 1962 in the seven-state burley-producing area. Allotments totaled 3,068 acres for the 1961 crop.

The 6 percent boost was sought by major burley groups at a hearing conducted in Lexington Jan. 16 by Claude Turner, head of the tobacco division of the Department of Agriculture.

Turner was to report to Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman, who is authorized by law to set the quota before Feb. 1.

Tree Seedlings Can Be Ordered Any Time

With the season for planting tree seedlings fast approaching, Rockcastle County farmers and landowners are being reminded that orders for seedlings from the Kentucky Division of Forestry should be placed now.

Seedlings at the State forest nurseries are carefully removed from the beds with the use of a large steel bar drawn underground, inches below the root systems, the forestry chief explains. Nursery workers then pull the seedlings gently from the loosened soil and

Help Recreation Program

On Feb. 13 at 7 p. m., the Rockcastle County Recreation Council will meet at the Bookmobile Library to formulate its plans for the coming summer recreation program.

The two past summers have proved highly successful in the recreation program that was initiated by the council. Hundreds of persons gathered regularly to watch the softball games that had representatives from every corner of the county.

The council is now beginning its third year in sponsoring the program. We believe this is the critical year for the recreation program. Statistics show that a recreation program in a small area is "made" or ended in the third year.

We sincerely hope the county recreation program does not die this year. We feel sure no one will deny that the recreation program has kept many a family in town, has kept him out of autos and out of trouble.

No doubt the success of the program depends mostly on money contributors. Statistics show that a recreation program will have to come from you. If you do not contribute, the program will be discontinued, or passed along to some other organization willing to foot the bill.

We hope you will pledge your time, your money and your support to the program this year and next.

making that recommendation to the Department of Agriculture. Sen. John Sherman Cooper said the increase in burley that Secretary Freeman has proclaimed an increase of 6 percent on farmer's burley allotments for 1962. This action is in accord with my recommendations and that of farm organizations and tobacco growers. The increase will help burley growers by making their products of quality tobacco at home and abroad, and was justified by the facts."

for the new rate schedule on November 14. W. H. Skinner, Lexington, vice president, said the new rate was established to encourage more customers to "live better electrically by making it more economical for them to add new appliances with less additional expense," he stated.

The new rate will result in an immediate saving in the electric bills of more than 22,000 residential customers, K. U. estimates. As the use of the other residential customers increases, the rate will bring savings to more and more people and increase the first-year total savings of $350,000.

been established in each area and that preliminary overall programs have been drafted. The 19 areas organized so far in the state include 64 counties which are presently designated as eligible for Federal assistance under the Federal Area Redevelopment Act. Under terms of the act, over-all area organizations and programs are required in order for communities of an area to meet qualifications for Federal benefits.

"One of the major accomplishments in which the Area Program Office has had a part, along with many other agencies, is in the coordination of a variety of programs to assist these areas," Whisman said.

"Active projects are anticipated in all areas by April," Whisman said. "In some of these sections leaders may be created to create projects from scratch."

The new Federal program places chief responsibility on local initiative. Following designation of redevelopment areas, local leaders in each Area Program Council submit a preliminary overall program to the Kentucky Area Program Office and also a preliminary overall program to the Federal Administration of approval.

The Federal plan, backed by State funds, seeks to help counties where unemployment and other conditions of economic depression are prevalent.

The Kentucky Area Program Office lists many program objectives. Among them are: to obtain needed technical information; to know what agencies might provide services on particular problems; to plan new solutions to problems not met by available programs; to gain benefits of loans, grants, training, technical assistance and coordinated Federal services available under the Federal Area Redevelopment Program. Already the program in Kentucky is paying dividends. Business loan applications are in process for a number of projects, including a proposed aluminum plant in Boyd County, a wool-working plant at Corbin, a new timber products company in the Cumberland Valley, and an egg producing and marketing company in the Big Sandy Valley.

Whisman said other business loan applications are being processed for a garment plant expansion, other timber products companies, a lumber processing operation, a timber products plant expansion with a related water system project, a cabinet factory, a machine tool company expansion, a greenhouse tomato-producing operation and a pig-breeding loan to a local development corporation.

"The largest single problem found in all the areas is the problem of development of water systems in small communities," Whisman said.

Community inquiries for technical and financial assistance for sewage and water facilities are numerous. But, Whisman said, these require technical assistance to work out problems and formulate feasible projects acceptable to the Federal Area Redevelopment Administration.

Applications for Federal grants to train new workers to allow for expansion of existing new industries are also in process. Specific information about the work of the Kentucky Area Program Office can be obtained by writing the Kentucky Area Program Office, Frankfort, Ky.

for shipment. To protect the delicate root systems of forest tree seedlings in shipment we pack each bundle of trees in a layer of moistened straw. "This unusual moss is ideal for nursery use because it holds many times its own weight in water and for long periods of time. With the added protection of an outside wrapping of waterproof paper, we are ensuring the delivery of seedlings to the planter in the very best of condition this spring."

"The 1962 planting stock is the best we've ever grown," reports John P. Rhody, head of nursery operations for the Division of Forestry. "If the weather is not too severe, we should begin lifting the trees at our nurseries about the middle of February."

The three State nurseries are at Kentucky Dam near Paducah, in the county of Gilbertville, in the Kentucky State Forest near Dawson Springs and near Woodburn in Morgan county. The 18 million seedlings available for planting by Kentucky landowners this spring will be shipped out in bundles of 500 and 1,000 seedlings each, priced at $1 for a 100-unit bundle. Planned at the recommended spacing of six feet apart in rows spaced seven feet apart, a bundle of 1,000 trees will plant one acre.

Orders for the tree seedlings are now being accepted by the Division of Forestry. Official order blanks can be requested from the State forestry office at Frankfort or from any of the division's field offices. Forms are also available at county agricultural agents' offices, county soil conservation offices and county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee offices.

Species available are shortleaf, white and loblolly pine and yellow poplar and black locust. Advice on reforestation problems on individual farms or timber tracts can be obtained from any of the Forestry Division's 40 technical foresters. The names and addresses of the field technician nearest you can be obtained from the director, Kentucky Division of Forestry, Frankfort.

BROWN HONORED

He also helped form the Northeast Kentucky Herford Association and has been its president for 10 years.

He has been a 4-H Club member and has served as his county beef leader for a number of years. The citation noted that Boyd owns and manages one of the top Herford herds of the nation. Five of his animals now are within a few points each of the coveted Register of Merit status. He has shown at county, state, national and international shows and has won his share of honors at the Chicago International Live Stock Exposition, the World Series of such shows. He is a show adviser for the Kentucky State Fair and is sought out frequently for advice on breeding, feeding and management of beef herds. He is operator of the Highview Herford farm near Maysville.

Mr. Boyd, who retired as county agent in Barren County in 1960 after some 40 years service there, operates his own 425-acre farm. He was cited for outstanding advisory work over the years in livestock improvement.

Among his accomplishments, the citation said, were promotion and guidance of dairy and meat programs for 40 years, promotion of purebred livestock, organization of a Dairy Association, work with county and state Farm Bureau organizations, promotion of poultry raising in his area, stimulation of soil testing work and assistance in organizing a sheep growers protective association in his area.

A message from the Treasury of a free people

How to invest in freedom on the installment plan

You can't buy freedom. For cash or installments or any other way. It's not for sale.

You can make a sound investment in freedom, though, by investing in U.S. Savings Bonds. Just $4.33 a week on payroll savings where you work will buy a $25.00 Bond each month.

As your savings grow, built up by 3 1/2% interest, you get closer to financial freedom—a desirable state for each of us if America is to be financially strong.

At the same time, your dollars go to work for another kind of freedom... the kind you'll find in the document conceived nearly two centuries ago at the Independence Hall.

Start buying Bonds where you work now. When you do, you'll be joining 8 million Americans who have signed up for a regular share of freedom each month.

Keep freedom in your future with U.S. Savings Bonds

The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertisement. The Treasury Department thanks The Advertising Council and this newspaper for their patriotic support.
