Boat Registration
Circuit—Court Clerks in Kentucky's 120 counties this week were mailed the 1963-64 forms for registration of boats, according to Director of the Division of Boating, Bud Calman.

The clerks will start taking registrations January 21, for the fiscal year 1963-64. The present registration does not expire until April 30, however, since so many have expressed the desire to get their registration over with before boating season starts, the Division is making an effort to cooperate by permitting registrations any time after January 21.

Also, those purchasing new boats before April 30 will not have to register for the remainder of the 1962-63 year and then renew in April. They can license their new boat now for the fiscal year 1963-64, which starts May 1, 1963.

Warn Auto Owners Of Procedures - Improper procedure in transfer of motor vehicles from one owner to another can result in imprisonment, a fine, or both, Kentucky Revenue Commissioner James V. Marcum said today.

Any owner who sells, trades or disposes of a vehicle to another person must immediately have the county clerk transfer the vehicle's registration to the new owner, Marcum said. This is done by presenting the current registration receipt and bill of sale for the vehicle to the county clerk.

The prompt transfer of the vehicle is the responsibility of the owner, Marcum warned. The purchaser's name has not properly transferred, the law provides for a fine of from $10 to $2,000 or imprisonment up to one year or both, he added.

These same penalties apply to any owner who signs a vehicle bill of sale before the purchaser's name has been filled in. For this reason a vehicle owner must carefully check the bill of sale before signing it to certain the purchaser's name has been entered, Marcum said.

Sewer System Plans Nearing Completion

Plans and specifications for a sewer system for Mt. Vernon are now in the final stages of preparation and should be ready for the Mt. Vernon City Council to check at its next meeting on Feb. 1.

The plans and specifications will spell out in detail where lines will be installed, the location of lift stations, and the details of the sewage disposal plant.

As soon as the council approves the plans they will be forwarded to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, Atlanta, Ga., for approval. The money for the estimated $419,000 project then would be appropriated. Approval of the loan of funds has already been made by this agency.

If approval of plans and specifications and the appropriation of money is made in the expected time usually taken by the agency, contracts could be released for bidding by March 1.

The construction of the sewer system is expected to cost about $419,000 and will be paid for through a federal government loan at a seven percent interest rate. Grants totaling about $35,000 will be made by the State Health Department.

The loan will be repaid with revenue bonds based on the customer's water bill.

Plans and specifications are being drawn by Crawford & Crawford, engineers, of Renfro Valley.

Worst Weather Of Winter Here

Old man winter put a heavy hand on Kentucky and Rockcastle County Wednesday.

Following 50 degree temperatures on Tuesday, a total of five inches of snow fell on the county between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. Wednesday.

To add to the discomfort of the snow—the deepest in the county since March 1960—the temperature fell steadily all day Wednesday.

At 8 p. m. the temperature was 4 degrees below zero and expected to go from 10 to 16 below zero by Thursday morning. The only hope held for the temperature to level off for the temperature depended on the cloud cover. Clearing skies brings colder temperatures.

With temperatures at 10 below zero, the area would be warmer than it is now in December when the temperature dropped to 14 below zero at Mt. Vernon.

Late Wednesday, the Weather Bureau reported no general thawing is in sight. The bureau speculated more snow would come on the week end and would find most of the present snow holding out.

In March 1960, a total of 18 inches of snow accumulated over the county. For those who have forgotten, there was snow on the ground from Feb. 28 through April 4.

Owens Twin Dies

Marla Jean Owens, two-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Owens, of Orlando, died Jan. 20 at the Rockcastle County Baptist Hospital.

Besides her parents, she is survived by a twin sister, Darla Lynn, another sister, Carla Ann, and two brothers, Douglas and Danmie, as well as her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Owens, and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bowman.

Funeral services were conducted at graveside at Corinth Cemetery Jan. 21 with Rev. Allen officiating. Sparks Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Discussion Of Burley Tobacco Hybrids

The Kentucky farmers are hearing a lot concerning burley tobacco hybrids.

Are burley hybrids any good?

Yes, burley hybrids are good varieties. Since they are crosses between the best varieties available, they are bound to be good.

Are the hybrids better than the standard varieties (Ky 9, Ky 10 or Ky 12)?

No, in all hybrids yet studied the best parent has been better than the hybrid in both yield and disease resistance.

Will hybrids yield more than the standard varieties?

It depends upon the comparison. If the hybrid is compared with the best parent of its parentage, the standard variety will usually prove superior. The present hybrids all have Burley 21 as the female parent and either Ky 9, Ky 10 or Ky 12 as the male parent. The hybrid would yield more than Burley 21 but less than the other parent in the cross. It is not likely that any of the present hybrids will yield more than any one of the three varieties used in the crosses (Ky 9, Ky 10 and Ky 12).

Are hybrids more resistant to disease than the standard varieties?

Yes, hybrids are more resistant to disease than the standard varieties. This is because they carry resistance to wildfire, black root rot and fusarium wilt, but the resistance will not be so high as in Ky 12 for the latter two diseases.

What advantages do the hybrids have over the standard varieties?

The hybrids are generally earlier than the latest parent. This means that a late variety like Ky 12 when crossed to Burley 21 would yield a hybrid earlier than Ky 12 but with less black root rot resistance and fusarium resistance than Ky 12.

What are the disadvantages?

There are no great disadvantages. If you have a disease problem on your farm, such as black root rot, fusarium or black shank, it would be best to grow standard varieties of known resistance levels.

How should hybrids be tested by farmers?

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has always suggested use of the "stick row test" for any new variety. The same should apply to burley hybrids.

What future is there for burley hybrids?

Hybrids will be most useful as short-term varieties when a particular characteristic is unavailable in a standard variety. For example, if a need should arise for a particular characteristic (quality or resistance to a specific disease), it could be made available more rapidly in hybrids than in standard varieties. By crossing two varieties it is often possible to combine characters into one hybrid that are not available in a standard variety.

What is the Experiment Station doing with burley hybrids?

George W. Brummett, 52, of Negro Creek, died Jan. 17 enroute to a Lexington hospital following an auto accident in the infrastructure of US 150 and KY 39 at Crab Orchard.

Mr. Brummett's vehicle collided with another at the intersection.

George W. Brummett was a native of Rockcastle County and a member of the Church of God. He was a farmer for many years.

Army's 42nd Signal Battalion, 42d Artillery, 1st Missile Battalion, entered the Army in May 1962, completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and arrived overseas the following December. Vacation Farms Can Be Profitable Vacation farms can prove to be a profitable venture.

So it was reported last week to the Rockcastle Development Council by William Miller, community services director of the University of Kentucky.

Vacation farms admit persons from other states and areas to live a week or longer on their farm and take a part in farm life. The visitors are charged a fee determined in advance.

Mr. Miller reported to the Rockcastle Development Council that if they are willing to shift their land use to include the development of recreation areas and facilities.

To follow up this announcement, the Farm Home Administration announced this week loan applications are being taken from associations (several farms in the point enterprise) for the shift in land use.

The FHA reported associations may borrow up to a million dollars. The maximum interest rate is five percent, and loans may be made up to 40 years.

These areas of facility purposes include ponds, lakes, picnic areas and parks. Sports areas including athletic fields, camping facilities including water connections, sanitariums, and other facilities.

Hunting areas and also access roads and parking areas in connection with recreational facilities.

To be eligible the association must propose a shift in land use which will primarily serve or benefit farmers and residents of rural areas of a 2,500 population or less and be unable to obtain credit for the development purposes from their credit sources at reasonable terms.

Loans can also be made to family farmers for the development and operation of recreational enterprises on their farms such as boating, fishing, swimming, picnicking, horse back riding, hunting, vacation cottages, camp grounds and nature trails.

These loans run a maximum of 40 years at 5 percent interest.

The loan program of the Department of Agriculture is aimed at helping them to supplement their incomes, and after the loan is repaid, they can continue to receive a substantial portion of this income from farming. As in the case of association loans, the farmer must be unable to secure credit from other sources at reasonable conditions which he could reasonably fulfill.

Rockcastle's Madison and Laurel were chosen in Kentucky to spearhead the program of the rolling, wooded terrain and accessibility to towns, highways, water resources and other recreational facilities.

Vacation farms are not new in other states, particularly in the New England states, C. Howard Phillips, of the Tennessee Department of State University, has supplied with information a brief description of the program. (Continued on page 8)

Our Railroad Crossings

Day by day residents of the county as well as travelers on US 25 in the Mt. Vernon city limits are confronted with an increasing hazard.

Over the past two years, particularly, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad crossings in the downtown area of Mt. Vernon have become progressively worse. With each freeze and thaw, or extensive snow and rain, the crossings become more difficult to cross. At times this winter, holes from six inches to eight inches deep have proved a nemesis to traffic as well as pedestrians.

We are not at all sure upon whom lies the responsibility for the remedy. We suspect it is the L & N.

We are sure railroad officials will say they are continually repairing these crossings as weather permits, and we'll go so far as to agree they do fill in the holes, eventually. However, these quickie repair job only last until the next freeze, thaw, snow, or rain. It does seem to us the continual manpower costs in these temporary remedies would, in the long run, outweigh the costs of a more premanent remedy—say, concrete wood.

We hope the L & N will take necessary steps, weather permitting, to solve this problem once and for all. It would be unfortunate if the railroad found itself involved in court with damages resulting from a serious accident at the crossings.

Tree Seedlings Ready For State Distribution

Some 7 million tree seedlings are being prepared for delivery throughout Eastern Kentucky by the State Division of Forestry's newest seedling nursery near Woodsbend in Morgan County.

This is the largest number of seedlings yet produced by the new nursery, put into operation two years ago to meet the expanding need for seedlings in Eastern Kentucky, an area particularly well adapted to tree farming. Forestry experts foresee timber production developing into an important part of the area's future.

the assistance of the Tennessee Valley Authority. The seed orchards produce short-leaf and loblolly pine seeds from trees grown from highly-selected grafted seedlings which produce the best possible seed for Kentucky tree growing conditions.

The seedlings at the Morgan County Tree Nursery are grown from these seeds and other top-quality seed collected in Kentucky or, when necessary, purchased on strict specifications from commercial seed dealers.

Designed to aid in this economic transformation, the nursery near Woodsbend—officially the Morgan County Tree Nursery—is expected to eventually produce about 15 million seedlings a year, according to Jack Rhody, who heads the State Forestry Division's nursery operations. Before the Morgan County nursery was established, the Forestry Division was finding it necessary to buy seedlings from out-of-state to meet the growing needs of Eastern Kentucky tree farmers and conservation groups.

With the February seedling shipping season approaching, the tempo of activity at the nursery is speeding up. While only three men are assigned to handle chores most of the year, some 60 workers are needed during the shipping season to take care of the careful packing of the several million seedlings and the other work in getting the seedlings to their destinations in all parts of Eastern Kentucky.

The seedlings are bundled in sphagnum moss, which holds 20 times its weight in water, and is the best material known for preventing drying-out of the tiny young trees during shipment. These bundles are wrapped in waterproof paper for extra protection during shipping. Planting instructions are included with each shipment.

The seedlings are priced at $8 per thousand and are delivered by the State Forestry Division whenever there are orders destined for a specific area to justify it. Otherwise the seedlings are shipped by parcel post or Railway Express.

Extra workers are also needed at the Morgan County Tree Nursery to weed the seedling plots during the
