SHOULD GOVERNMENT BE MAN'S SERVANT OR MASTER?

Americans believe:

Government should be strong enough to protect the people from aggression, foreign and domestic, but not strong enough to regiment them. The law should create and maintain the conditions under which the people are free from monopolistic restraint to plan, work, produce and develop themselves to the full measure of their individual abilities. Americans believe that a strong nation is based fundamentally on strong, self-reliant citizens.

Communists believe:

Government should be strong enough to dictate the work efforts of the people and channel them into the activities which, in the sole opinion of government, will best advance the security and welfare of the state. The individual is of insignificant importance except as a member of a disciplined mass. The law, therefore, must suppress individuality. Communists believe that a strong nation must be composed of servile, regimented citizens.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

To renew and quicken interest in our precious heritage of Freedom, and its superiority over the Communist philosophy, these messages are being published by Kentucky Utilities Company, an investor-owned electric company.

Fact 2: Theft coverage of your possessions, at home and away, should be included.

Fact 3: A lawsuit judgment against you could cost you everything you own. You need liability insurance.

Fact 4: You get all this and more in one Homeowners policy... with one low premium!

bi-weekly outlook letter, a-bout 2.8 million more acres than for 1962. However, the 128 million acres would be slightly below the 1961 level and some 23 million acres under the 1959 and 1960 planting levels. The drop in total acreage reflects the influence of the feed-grain program, the report says.

Farmers plan to increase the 1963 acreages of corn and sorghum from last year but slightly smaller acreages of oats and barley are in prospect.

Preliminary returns on the 1963 feed grain program indicate about 26 million acres of corn, sorghums and barley will be diverted to soil-conserving uses—even though more acres will be planted in these grains for 1963.

Present indications are that feed grain prices will continue higher than a year earlier during the remainder of the current marketing year. Higher feed grain prices prevailed in the first half of the 1962-1963 feeding year.

The report noted that while farmers plan about 29 million fewer acres this year to feed grains than in 1960, "much of this reduction may be offset by higher yields which have been trending upward at a five percent a year rate since 1954."

The report also stated that the number of grain-consuming animal units on farms in 1962-1963 is estimated at 174 million units, an increase of 14 million since 1957-1958 and the highest in 20 years. Increased cattle feeding will raise the total of grain-consuming animal units on farms in 1963 and 1964, the report says.

After 30 Years Langdon Only A Memory I-75 Gets Underway

LANGDON MEMORIAL SCHOOL

By: Ray McClure

"Oh, for our friends both tried and true
Oh, for the girls in polka-dot

This anonymous refrain sive education. The school was a mixture of a former student tells the wonderfully personal story of Langdon Memorial School that was Mt. Vernon's most important educational institution for a quarter of the 20th Century.

The refrain, however, does not indicate the hard work, the dedication to church and education, and the ever-present missionary zeal that affected the lives of many residents of Rockcastle County and Kentucky from 1899 to 1927.

What was Langdon Memorial School? The school, shown in an accompanying picture, was a boarding school for girls from 1905 to 1927. It was located on the lot now occupied by the residence of Dr. George Griffith and Vernon Cox, and was owned by the United Presbyterian Church, USA.

Also associated with Langdon, and existing before Langdon was constructed, and for sometime after, was the Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute, located on the lot now occupied by Carl Brown's Supermarket (See picture).

From all areas of Kentucky girls came to Langdon—girls who were especially studious, serious, and talented, and who could not afford a formal and expen-

she said, came to Mt. Vernon and established a mission school because there was a great need for education. When the town could support its own educational program and plant, there was no need for a mission school. So the school had to move to the mountains of Eastern Kentucky where an educational need existed.

In 1934, the school closed forever.

Looking back over the 30 years since it closed, there is one fact of the entire history of the school that is amazing, and it is a religious fact. The great majority of county young people attended Langdon or its associated school for many years—a school belonging to the Presbyterian Church. The school even constructed its own church on West Main Street, which was later remodeled into a home by Alex and Norine Milen (see picture). Most of these children one time or another went to services in that church.

With the educational and religious roots of Rockcastle County, so firmly planted in Presbyterian soil, why is it that 20 years later there is hardly a sprig of Presbyterianism left in the community? We found in our search for pictures and our talks with former students, that of them have but the fondest and kindest memories of the school and church. But all agree, the Presbyterian Church did not make a concerted effort to enlist community children in the Presbyterian faith. Quite the contrary, it was stressed, that non-boarding pupils who attended the school make up their own mind on the church to which they would belong.

In the case of boarding pupils from other areas of Kentucky, if there were no Presbyterian Church in their home towns, they were also told to join the church of their choice. Since the Baptist and Christian churches were represented in most areas of Kentucky, the most students chose one or the other.

Whether this failure to stress Presbyterianism to local people was a local administrative error, or an error on the national church level, or a deliberate decision, we do not find any former student or teacher ready to voice a definite opinion.

However, we venture to guess, could the church begin its school again under the same existing circumstances of 1899, it would likely allow its students to steer so obviously a non-sectarian course.

The year-by-year history of Presbyterian schools and education in Rockcastle County would itself be a book. To discuss the many local people directly involved would take reams of paper and type, as would the many administrative and

L&N Repairs City Crossings

One of the things Rockcastle County motorists have been hoping for came about this week when the Louisville & Nashville Railroad began work on two crossings in downtown Mt. Vernon.

The L & N is completely reworking the Richmond Street and West Main Street crossings at an approximate cost of $10,000.

The crossings will be wood with asphalt tie-ins. There will also be a new walkway at the West Main Street crossing. Some fill work will also be done on a third downtown crossing.

Currently, the West Main Street crossing is under repair with street closures as need arises. When work begins on the Richmond Street crossing, only half the crossing will be worked at a time in order to allow traffic on US 25 continual access.

The only noticeable change on the Signal was honored by the Kentucky Press Association in the field of writing.

The Signal received second place in the area feature writing. The award was for three stories by Ray McClure: A story on the Fifth Hotel at Brohead, a story on Mt. Vernon's old swimming pool, and a story on William Harrison Proctor entitled "Roberts All Around, But Private Proctor Got Away."

Receiving first place in the statewide awards for feature writing was the Somerset Journal. Third place went to the Cynthiana Democrat. The Hancock Clarion and the London Sentinel-Echo received honorable mention.

Dr. Shepherd asked dog owners to be on the alert to protect themselves and their neighbors, and protect their livestock. Dogs will be vaccinated for free at $1.50 for a vaccine that immunizes the dog for three years.

Events for Dairy Day scheduled in downtown Mt. Vernon June 25 have been established.

The program begins at noon on a stage in front of the Bank of Mt. Vernon. There will be music by a Renfro Valley string band, a welcome by Mayor Carl Brown and County Judge C. Carter, general entertainment, a cow milking contest, and awarding of a trophy to the "dairy family." Drawings for prizes will be held from time to time during the program of events.

The public is invited to the activities.

Surveyors began moving into Rockcastle County this week to begin preliminary work on Interstate 75.

The surveyors are reported to be representatives of a Lexington engineering firm under contract with the State Highway Department.

A ground survey of the route I-75, taken through Rockcastle County is within the general pattern of the cautious location announced at an earlier date.

The intersection of I-75 will be from Richmond to a point near Williamsburg and will complete Interstate 75 through the state. Probably the next stretch actually constructed will be a by-pass of Highway 611, by a by-pass of Interstate 75, to avoid congestion through the town.

The survey of the entire section is expected to be completed sometime in September, followed by the acquisition of right-of-way.

NEW ZIP CODE EFFECTIVE SOON

In order to speed mail delivery and reduce the chance of misdirection, the Post Office Department is putting small communities under a five-digit code called a Zip Code.

The Zip Code is similar to zone numbers in cities, and will become effective July 1.

Mt. Vernon got its Zip Code number this week. It is 40456. The number should be placed on all letters mailed by persons who receive their mail through the Mt. Vernon Post Office, or a route from the Mt. Vernon Post Office.

Persons who get their mail through the following post offices should contact their postmaster as to the number they put on their letters: Boone, Wildie, Disputanta, Conaway, Renfro Valley, Brohead, Livingston, Miami, Sand Springs, Bloss, Lanier, Lamero, Pine Hill, Orlando, Johnetta and Climax. Each will have a different number.

As an example, and to use the Mt. Vernon number, the address should look like this:

James Jones
Mt. Vernon, Ky. 40456

Persons receiving mail from others should note the Zip Code number in an address. The number in the number will be used when writing at a future date.

Postmaster James O. Smith stressed the importance of all citizens of the county using the Zip Code number they have been designated.

Plan Water Rate Discussion

A discussion on a water rate suit against the City of Mt. Vernon has been scheduled for Rockcastle Circuit Court at 10 a. m. Saturday, by Circuit Judge R. C. Tartar.

Judge Tartar told the Signal Wednesday he would discuss the case with attorneys for the city and the plaintiffs at the meeting.

Whether there will be a ruling on the case after the discussion has not been determined, nor did Judge Tartar indicate a ruling was planned.

Since all testimony in the case has been before the court in the form of depositions since May 15, it is considered that a ruling could be handed down at the end of the discussion.

Before the court is a suit asking that new water rates established by the city in October 1962 be rolled back to the pre-October 1962 rate.

The base water rate at Mt. Vernon is $3.30 for 2,000 gallons. Prior to October 1962 the base rate was $2 for 2,000 gallons.

With the increased rate, the city plans to construct a sewer system and improve the existing water plant. Contracts for the construction has been awarded tentatively by the city and plans are now being made to acquire property easements for sewer lines.

MT. VERNON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

-- Brown's Supermarket Replaced It --

Later on, the girls were allowed a polka-dot blouse with their blue jacket-suit, and because of this blouse they became known locally as the "polka-dot girls."

From the 1899 beginning as the Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute until the new Art-McCord School (MVHS) was opened in 1928, the Presbyterian educational institution, which included Langdon, flourished throughout this section of the state.

Langdon's prestige mounted steadily. Its physical plant expanded rapidly. Its name became almost an educational legend in Kentucky.

Then, quite suddenly, and quietly in 1927, the school ceased to function as a school and became a Christian home for mountain girls attending public schools. From that day until 1938 when the property was finally sold, the school no longer exerted its influence in the daily life of the community.

We say, quietly . . . for it was quietly. When the decision came to discontinue the school, public education in Rockcastle County had begun to bloom. The times were quickly changing. The horse and buggy had been parked forever. The slow pace of the county was giving in to races with machines. There were few local people to argue the need to continue Langdon. The times had simply passed Langdon by.

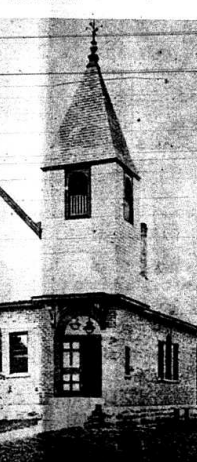

To be more technical, the present Mt. Vernon Grade School (Baker-Stewart-McCord School) was being constructed and a need for the Presbyterians to continue their mission school in Mt. Vernon no longer existed.

Miss Anna Belle Stewart, the gray-haired lady of Langdon in its last incarnation, reported the facts to the town.

June Dairy Month

A SALUTE TO THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

June 1963 is the 27th nationwide salute to the dairy industry. June has become a month of recognition throughout the country of the dairy industry's vital contribution to the health and welfare of the nation.

June Dairy Month has grown year by year into the biggest single dairy food sales and information campaign in the food field. Battleships of all kinds and orders, and support the marketing campaign whose observance is spearheaded by dairy groups.

June was selected as the right time to tell the dairy industry story as it is a peak production period. June dairy month has become (open house) time for dairies throughout the country. Exhibitions, special events, ranging from a three minute cow wash to milking contests to ice cream eating contests, attract attention to the dairy industry. During June dairy month the dairy industry takes time to acquaint the public with the industry and make dairymen better known to the public they serve.

June Dairy Month is also a coordinated effort to inform Americans about the need for proper nutrition and diet habits, which of course, include milk and milk products. Food editors, nutritionists, and others concerned with the American diet will emphasize milk as "nature's most perfect food" during June dairy month.

The president's committee on physical fitness, recommending a diet which includes milk and proper exercises to build the nation's youth, the president himself, has suggested that all Americans drink more milk as our national consumption rate is well below that of many European nations.

June dairy month will be promoted from coast to coast. Let's "speak up" and "sing out" for milk and the vitality it contains. Get on the milk wagon and help make June dairy month in Rockcastle big and better than ever before. Tuesday, June 25 will be the big day in Rockcastle County celebrating our dairy industry.

Langdon

educational decisions made by the school's several administrators. Below we hope to recount, with the help of the Board of National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, Lexington, Ky., as briefly as possible, with the hope that those who remember the intimately rich and rewarding years at Langdon will not chastise us too strongly.

We would like to thank Mrs. Lewis Miller, a former Langdon teacher; Mrs. Roscoe Adams, a former student; Mrs. Henry Anderson, a former student who was married in Langdon Chapel; and Miss Ella Carson, for their help in obtaining pictures and information on Langdon.

In 1899, a school was founded by the Presbyterians of Transylvania Presbytery and named the Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute. There were two teachers. As noted earlier, it was located on Richmond Street in the area of Carl Brown's Supermarket.

Between 1899 and 1903 the school progressed and a third teacher, name unknown, was supplied by the Women's Board of the church. On Nov. 28, 1903, the Rev. Charles R. Hunt, of Mt.

on Richmond Street was gained the support of townspersons. Through church officials repeatedly did not believe in the need to try its wings on complete control of the school, nevertheless the church decided not to let the issue go to a public school (the first in Rockcastle), and day school work was taken over by the town.

With the proceeds from the sale (amount unknown) the trustees used as the money for the enlargement of the home (Langdon) as an industrial school. Several classes were now taught in the Langdon building.

With the school's first expansion under the direction of the new principal, the building adjoining Brown Memorial School on Williams Street and was further expanded through a contribution from Mrs. Thomas P. Langdon, of Baltimore. The name of the school was changed to Langdon Memorial School. The school now accommodated 40 boarding pupils.

At this time (1914) one of the two most dedicated educators in the school's history arrived at the school as a teacher. Miss Anna Belle Stewart (née picture). She showed a keen interest in efficiency, that in 1915 she became principal, replacing a teacher who was transferred to another recently opened mission school where her particular type of administrative ability was needed.

Whereas Miss McCord's administration had been one of the most progressive in discipline for a growing school, Miss Stewart brought to the school a new point of view. Her administration was to be marked by a more relaxed attitude. She has been said to be a builder and businesswoman—Miss Stewart a friend, teacher and scholar. It is reported Langdon was coming of age.

In 1916, intelligence tests were administered at the school and a city playground director established a recreation program.

In 1918, Langdon pioneered in the construction of a small, five-room school (now the home of Vernon Cox) was constructed on the corner of Adams and Sixth Streets. Six girls lived in the house at a time. In the school there was a staff of seven and an enrollment of 79. It is reported that at that time it cost $125 to keep a girl in school for a year. Most girls averaged about four cents per day.
