Paul W. Mills
(County Agent)

Straight grass pastures or pastures with less than 25 per cent legume content may well use some nitrogen fertilizer in addition to phosphate and lime. When administering soil samples be sure to have estimated the percentage of legumes in the stand. Top yields must be obtained to justify use of this crop. Treat sudan grass as if you had a corn crop; you wanted to yield 100 bushels per acre. Use soil tests to determine phosphate, potash and lime needs. A 100 pound of actual nitrogen (300 lbs. of ammonia nitrate or its equivalent) seems close to the basic needs for good sudan yields. This nitrogen can be applied in two ways, (1) working it into soil prior to seeding, when the entire amount is put on; and (2) about a third of the required amount prior to seeding and a third following each grazing off by cattle. Both methods have proved satisfactory and help Kentucky conditions.

If these crops have more than 25 per cent legume content, they will hardly ever (if ever) need top-dressing with nitrogen. Their grain needs are phosphate and/or potash, and lime.

Successful Dairy Enterprise

by James Coomer

There are many factors affecting successful dairy farming. Among these are feeding practices, disease control, sanitation, and efficiency in operation.

First, consider feeding practices and their effect upon dairymen. There are two principal types of feed: roughage and concentrates. Roughage can be either pasture, hay or silage.

Dairy cows need plenty of lush pasture, 50 percent of which should be legumes. Other good quality roughage, hay and/or silage, and good quality concentrates or grains should be fed in proportion to the cow's use and proper assimilation of them in proportion to the milk production of the cow.

ADA Helps Farmers

By: Russell Parsons
Agriculture Teacher, MVHS

Dairy farmers are doing a fine job through the American Dairy Association in promoting dairy products. This has all come about by the dairy farmers producing milk joining together in ADA to do collectively what they can not do individually. The dairy farmer voluntarily contributes on the basis of pounds of milk marketed from his farm. This he does each pay period during the year. Many years ago the month of June was the period the dairyman contributed to ADA. Now however, he does this every month.

Let us consider some of the things ADA does. The American Dairy Association promotes the sale of milk and milk products. For instance in Washington County, Va., a promotion contest was held among the schools. The school drinking the most milk was awarded a prize. The sale of milk increased 250% as a result of this contest. This year ADA and local calthod vaccination, and d blacking, also controlled by vaccination. In dealing with disease the dairy farmer should remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Hand in hand with vaccination in the prevention of disease is sanitation. This keeps germs from multiplying and spreading. All-around cleanliness in the barn area is important and disinfectants are almost essential. The milking parlor and equipment should be clean at all times and the equipment should be sterilized frequently.

On many farms the size of the vacuum lines may be part of the trouble. Many of the lines may be too small in diameter. According to researchers at Pennsylvania State University, three-quarter-inch lines are never desirable. One-inch lines should be the minimum for one or two units and for more units, larger lines should be used.

Dairymen are constantly faced with the problem of new diseases infecting their herds. Many have never thought of leptospirosis being a problem. It could, however, happen quickly and easily.

One easy way for cows to become infected is while they are being exhibited at dairy cattle shows. For example, an animal can acquire the disease through the vapors of splashed urine contacting the eyes. Vaccination can help in controlling the disease.

Two other diseases which plague the dairy farmer are brucellosis, controlled by practices, disease control, sanitation and efficiency, which for successful dairy farming are greatly increased and he can look forward to a better tomorrow.

Number One Food - Milk

By: Jeanette Parsons

Milk is our number one food. Milk and milk products are high in proteins, calcium, vitamins and iron. Adults need at least a pint of milk each day, and children need a quart. Milk is also low in cholesterol, which is believed to be one of the causes of heart disease.

There is a milk product for everyone's taste. Let us consider two examples—cottage cheese and ice-cream. Cottage cheese is low in calories and high in proteins. One-half cup serving of cottage cheese provides the same amount of protein as three eggs or one three-ounce serving of lean meat.

It is an economical food considering its nutritive value. It is especially good in reducing diets and in diets for older people.

Ice cream is a delicious way to get the family to increase their intake of calcium, proteins and vitamins. Ice cream is easily digested. Approximately 5 per cent of the total milk production is used for the manufacture of ice cream.

In addition to cottage cheese and ice cream there are many more dairy products. Chocolate milk, dry milk, evaporated milk, butter, and approximately 400 different kinds of cheese are available to the consumer. Let's make this Dairy Month a month of increased use of dairy products.

Month a month of increased use of dairy products. Serve Cheese Often Nutritionists Suggest

During June Dairy Month, serve cheese often. USDA nutritionists suggest combining a cheese sauce with other family favorites for menu variety. Whip cheese and milk into a creamy thick sauce and add sliced, hard-cooked eggs. Serve the sauce over the cooked rice, spaghetti, noodles, or biscuit halves or add it to buttered cooked vegetables. This same sauce can be used as the basis for meat-lean one-casserole to stretch left-over beef, ham, turkey, chicken, or lamb.

Dairy Results Are Many

We in Rockcastle County have experienced many changes and improvements in the last few years. We started out in the early 1900's with the Green Pasture Program. Which many farmers had a part in. And many more, after seeing the lush green fields of grass and legumes caught on to the idea and began to establish better pastures of their own. About the same time a move was started to utilize these lush green pastures by converting it into dollars and cents. By the cooperation of all Agriculture leaders, Organizations Cooperatives and many progressive farmers a Dairy movement was organized. Many truck loads of good dairy heifers were purchased from Wisconsin, Ohio and Kentucky.

PRINCESS CROWNED—State Dairy Princess Jane Harrison, of Graves County, crowns the new Rockcastle County Dairy Princess, Miss Jeanette Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons.

Dairy Day Full Of Fun, Laughter For 2,500

An estimated 2,500 persons converged on Mt. Vernon Tuesday for the third annual Dairy Day. The day was full of smiles and fun as the crowd enjoyed the free milk, antics of the clowns, music and entertainment from Renfro Valley, speeches, Kern's merry-go-round, a parade, and finally, the crowning of a new Dairy Princess for Rockcastle County.

Anticipation was also included in the day as many prizes were awarded by Mt. Vernon merchants. Various milk companies also brought milk trucks to the downtown area.

Miss Jeanette Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons, and salutatorian at Mt. Vernon High School this year, was crowned Rockcastle County Dairy Princess.

She was crowned by Miss Jane Harrison, of Graves County, reigning state Dairy Princess.

Miss Parsons was chosen

Rockcastle princess by three out-of-county judges. She has chosen the basis of healthy appearance and natural attractiveness, public speaking ability, personality, and dairy background. She received a watch, clothing, a $25 savings bond, jewelry and flowers.

The two runners-up, Rita Sutton and Beverly Sue Harris, both of Brodhead, received $10, jewelry, cosmetics and flowers.

It was the largest crowd to date that has attended a Dairy Day in the county, and for the first time the competitors couldn't have chosen a better day. The sun was bright and the temperature hovered around the 90 degree mark.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Sutton, of Brodhead, were chosen the most outstanding dairy family of Rockcastle County in 1963, and received a silver bowl from Roy Brown. The award was sponsored by the Cumberland Production Credit Association.

One other major prize, a registered heifer calf, was given by Mrs. Neal Thompson, of Mareburg. The calf was contributed by the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

Merchants from all over town contributed gifts to be presented when names were drawn from a box. Names of winners were not recorded. There were 25 reported winners.

Several waitresses at city restaurants were given silver dollars when they told the right customer "June is Dairy Month."

Mayor Carl Brown and County Judge C. C. Carter opened the activities with short speeches. Both praised the dairy industry in Rockcastle County and thanked those who helped make the day a success.

Masters of ceremonies also at 7:30 p.m., with Mrs. Wayne Stewart and John Lair, Co-chairmen for Dairy Day were Bill Norton and Kenneth Stewart.

Water Rate Hike Overruled

Council Condemns Action; To Go To Court Of Appeals

The Mt. Vernon City Council served notice Tuesday night it would explore every legal avenue before overruling its proposed half-million-dollar sewer system.

The councilmen at a call of meeting indicated city attorneys to take all necessary steps to overturn a Saturday ruling by Circuit Judge R. C. Tartar that a city water rate increase voted by the council in October 1962 is exorbitant and out of line.

The case will go to the Kentucky Court of Appeals for a decision.

The four councilmen present went on record taking exception to Judge Tartar's ruling overruling a $130 per month base water rate increase.

The councilmen said the judge was wrong in his ruling.

"We think the Judge Tartar has cost the City of Mt. Vernon considerable money because of the loss of good construction bids," the city has had on the project.

Actually, the council was "right on the term" good bids. By comparison with bids on sewer systems in the last few weeks, the city would be getting more than $90,000 in improvements to the project, the construction costs will likely be considerably higher.

As of Wednesday noon, the judgment on Judge Tartar's ruling had not been filed with Rockcastle County Circuit Court Clerk George Murphy. Until the ruling is officially filed, the city will continue to collect the increased water rate.

The council agreed to cut off water if customers refused to pay the increased rate.

Phillips Honored

Master Sgt. John E. Phillips, who is in charge of the 1st Contingent Section of the 389th Strategic Missile Wings, Warren Air Force Base, Wyo., recently received the Air Force Commendation Medal. Sergeant Phillips is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thacker of Conway.

PERFECT RECORD—Donald Thacker, a recent eighth grade graduate at Roundstone School, has completed his eight years with a perfect attendance record. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thacker of Conway.

FILES NOTICE

The federal government's Water Pollution and Control Commission advised the city today it had approved all financing on the sewer system project suit as a friend of the court and filed a brief with the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The council also reminded the judge that engineers for the Housing and Home Finance Agency, Atlanta, Ga., for the project were "financially unsound" as the judge indicated.

After Judge Tartar's opinion has been filed with the Circuit Court Clerk, the city can appeal the case immediately.

3 Teenagers Held For Bank Robbery

Three Rockcastle police officers had a busy day Friday when they searched high and low, and finally caught and took them into custody, three teenagers who robbed the State Bank at Eubank of approximately $30,000.

Deputy Sheriff Tim Reppert, along with two State Detectives assigned to Rockcastle County, Johnny Sims and Gary Godby, may be reported to have been on the spot, as they tracked and double tracked the three fugitives over hill and dale through woods away from the bank across a field. He reported some of the money had to be recovered from a creek. Officers spent considerable time counting the water-soaked and torn bills, and $10 and $20 bills.

Police officers, and a FBI agent, gave the following description of the robbers: Three persons, two of whom entered the bank, robbed the bank at approximately 9:15 a. m. One of the gunmen stayed near the rear of the bank and held a gun on the customers and bank tellers. He said the other gunman went behind the counter and the tellers "this is a stick-

Boost Dairy Profits

By Clay A. Colson
Want top dairy profits this year? Then prepare to do some planning and use some action management of your pastures.

A money-making pasture usually is a compromise between what a cow likes best and how much grazing plants can take. Cows always prefer young, palatable, succulent forage. A compromise between what's best for plants and animals will "perk up" your pastures.

If you want top quality pastures, start with top-quality grasses and legumes or mixtures. Squeezing a lot of high quality feed from grasses and legumes takes as much management as growing 100 bushels of corn per acre.

Here are some ideas that mean the difference between small and large milk profits. See how many you can fit into your pasture.

Pastures, as any other crop need fertilizer and lime. A good soil test will help determine how much to use. This is especially important when determining lime, phosphate, and potash needs. If pasture mixtures are over 25% legume, legume should provide enough nitrogen. But if mixtures is less than 25% legumes, pastures need nitrogen along with phosphate and potash. Apply nitrogen or reseed legumes in the grass. When you get less than 150 days of grazing per acre each year, you are losing potential profits.

Mow pastures before they go to seed. This lengthens the grazing season and increases forage quality. Mow fescue orchard grass and ladino at about tobacco setting time or about the time seed heads start showing. Grass clipped at this stage keeps growing longer. And legumes in the sod are able to get more sunlight, air and moisture. When legumes are in good supply and you clip pasture, legumes have a good chance to supply feed until the middle of summer.

A second and even a third mowing is often quit helpful. Main objectives of late mowing is to destroy weeds and herbage that the cows have refused.

How about rotational or managed grazing? Most good grassland farmers practice managed grazing. They know they carry more animals when confining them to smaller areas for a short length of time when animals are allowed to roam the farm. Plants produce more and animals eat more when on managed grazing.

Pastures can't be neglected. Farmers who are cashing in on grass and legumes have their pastures working for them. Pastures help you produce more milk cheaper.

Milk -- A Bargain All Times

by Jeanie Mullins

Milk is a very important food. It is the chief source of nutrition in infants who cannot be breast fed. It has a vital place in the diet of children. Milk and its products are used freely by adults.

In this Country cow's milk is used almost exclusively. In some localities the milk of goats is consumed, presumably because cows are not available. The milk of cows closely resembles human milk, and is almost ideal for human consumption.

There's more than one good reason why every mother should be an authority on milk. First, of course, is the obvious one that milk is almost a perfect food. It comes closer than any other to supplying all of the essential nutrients and in the proportions needed for use by the body. The second reason is almost as important. It's up to mother to see that the children acquire a fondness for milk that will last a lifetime, for young and old alike need some milk every day. It is needed at every age for maintenance of bones and teeth, and for normal functioning of nerves and muscles, including heart action.

Public health measures have yielded very happy results. Milk-borne disease is now a nightmare of the past. The tuberculin testing of cows has greatly lowered the incidence of infection and glandular tuberculosis in infants and children. The pasteurization of milk and the aseptic technique employed in bottling milk have almost entirely removed the hazards of tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and septic sore throat dissemination by milk.

The chemical analysis of milk has guaranteed its nutritional quality and has eliminated harmful adulteration.

Public health control is aimed not only at the purity, but also at the nutritional quality of milk and dairy products.

Smart shoppers never skimp on milk, for it's everybody's best friend, a must in most everyone's day. Dad, like it at breakfast, lunch, or dinner; youngsters go for it with meals and between times too.

For you it's the perfect pick-up when you feel plain tired. And in cooking, milk turns all kinds of dishes into creamy-good concoctions. Knowing what kinds of milk there are and when to use each can put pennies in your piggy bank.

Teenagers take note: Compared to many foods, milk is not fattening, for it gives you more good basic nourishment for each calorie. Just look: one glassful of whole milk is 165 or fewer calories, while a piece of apple pie counts 385; 25 potato chips, 250; and a 2 ounce chocolate bar, 290. To be fit, not fat, drink milk.

Remember, Milk's a bargain--ALL WAYS.

Cooperation Has Brought Successful Dairy Industry

By Bill Norton

June has become the one month of the year dedicated to the dairy industry. June is the month to salute the dairy industry for its contribution to the health and welfare of the nation. Giant sales and information campaigns of the industry help focus the attention of the public to the importance of the dairy industry to our economy. June information and promotional programs helps the dairymen become better known to the public he serves.

June brings together all groups directly or indirectly affected by the dairy industry. The producer, distributor, processor, consumer and businessman in a coordinated effort uses June as a special month to pay tribute to this great industry and continue its growth into the realization of its potential.

This is the 27th year June has been observed, nationwide, as Dairy Month, but only the third year here in Rockcastle County that we have made a special effort to recognize the importance of the Dairy industry in our county.

This year there has been complete cooperation from all groups (merchants, farmers, processors, distributors, consumers, civic organizations, agricultural personnel, newspaper and radio stations) in making June Dairy Month in Rockcastle the most successful we have had. All are to be congratulated for a job well done.

Here is a "special salute" to the merchants for their response in making June Dairy Day in Mt. Vernon the success it was. Many favorable comments have been made about the participation and enthusiasm of the merchants in celebrating the dairy industry of our county this year.

A special, special salute and thank you to Beverly Sue Harris, Rita Sutton and Jeanette Parsons for making possible the County Dairy Princess Contest.

We hope to see this continued cooperation of everyone in making our dairy industry of this county grow into a multi-million dollar business.

June Dairy Month And Barbecue Month

June meal planning should be easy, for it's both June Dairy Month and National Barbecue Month and you'll see much food store promotion of these products, says Mrs. Letta Jasper, University of Kentucky Extension specialist in consumer buying.

Milk, cottage cheese, other cheeses, sour cream, butter, cream (whipping, half and half, etc.), ice cream, and other frozen dairy desserts may be used plain; to make soups or salads, with meats, vegetables or fruit; or for snacks. Any of these can go on a cookout or be used for outdoor meals.

For the barbecue or outdoor grilling, a good supply of meats, poultry and fish are available, Mrs. Jasper notes. Beef—all types, of steak, boneless roasts, short ribs, kabobs, and ground beef—will be especially plentiful during the coming season. Broiler supplies also are most adequate to meet the heavy demands. Also plentiful for outdoor eating are sausage products—all types of wieners, chunkologna, Bologna cubes for kabobs, thick slices of ground meat sausage; luncheon meats; and a variety of cold cuts.

Eggs also are economical and plentiful, and they have a wide variety of uses—both indoors and outdoors. Fresh whitefish, perch, haddock, catfish, and acrod are in good supply this month, along with clams, scallops and portioned fish.

Early summer vegetables, appearing on retail counters during June can make meals more colorful and appealing and also will ease the food budget. Sweet corn, cabbage, potatoes, lettuce, greens, hot house tomatoes, and green onions will be in heavy supply. Carrots, celery, radishes, peppers, cucumbers, and squash will continue to be attractively priced.

The strawberry season will move northward this month, but supplies are expected to be somewhat limited because of a small crop. Rhubarb will continue in season through June. Also in June, watermelon, a few grapes, cantaloupes, and blueberries will begin to appear. Pineapple supplies will begin to dwindle by the middle of the month. Good quality apples will be available, but apple prices will begin to rise this month because of lessening supplies in storage, Mrs. Jasper concludes.

Is Grain Feeding Worth Extra Cost

Milking cows fed a grain supplement while they are grazing good pastures are not being handled economically, says the U. K. Experiment Station Dairy Science department.

Feeding grain to the milking cows gave slight increases in milk production, says Dr. D. M. Seath, department head—but the increases were not enough to pay for the grain being fed. This was the main finding in an experiment along this line recently conducted at the University.

The work shows that although it is a common practice among dairymen to grain-feed cows on good pasture, they probably would increase profits considerably if they would either omit grain feeding during good-pasture periods, or drastically reduce the amounts of grain so fed.

Seath said a check on the reasons showed that cows tended to eat less pasture herbage when they were being fed grain. "A cow might eat 10 pounds of grain and reduce the amount of dry matter consumed from 40 pounds by eight pounds," he said. "When this happened there was a slight increase in production but it was not enough to take care of the cost of the grain being fed."

Farmers following a program of feeding no grain (or only a small amount) to cows on good pasture should be aware of the fact that grain feeding may pay later on when their pastures are no longer classified as good, Seath said.

Cow Is The Most Useful & Efficient Factory

The cow is one of the most efficient and useful factories man has ever developed. Through her unusual assembly line of four stomachs, she can eat and digest grasses that man himself cannot consume. She converts the grass and grain into what has been described as "nature's most nearly perfect food."

That's why Americans honor the milk cow this month in "June Dairy Month."

In the United States today there are some one million farms on which dairymen are at least part of the enterprise. Dairy farming is one kind of agriculture found in each of the 50 states.

In 1962 the average number of milk cows is estimated at 17,086,000. This is five million fewer milk cows than in 1950, but the average milk production per cow has increased from 5,314 pounds to 7,870 pounds in the 12-year period. American dairy farmers keep five major breeds of dairy cows and also one dual purpose breed which is used for both milk and beef production on general type dairy farms and also one dual up, I don't want to hurt anybody" and ordered them to open their cash drawers.

After the gunman had taken the money from the cash drawers, he ordered Mrs. Ed Buis, a teller, into the bank vault for additional money. Mrs. Buis, teller, Jewell Snyder and Rhea McCollum, and bank customers Estill Acton, Harold Trowbridge and a Mr. Sebastian were ordered into the vault and the door was closed. Officers said the bandit did not lock the vault door.
Bank employees identified the trio at a lineup in Somerset late Friday afternoon. The three were picked from a lineup of eight persons.

LT. Mays said Trooper Raymond Hill, who was arrested about the same time, was the first to arrive at the scene. After taking a quick description of the car, he drove out of the bank and found the getaway car abandoned.

Mays said Eldridge admitted being the driver of the car. Eldridge said the car developed trouble and they had to leave it. He also admitted signaling a Buick to park on a street near his home. The car is owned by the Poynter Auto Sales, Mt. Vernon.

Mays quoted Eldridge as saying the car probably ran out of gas. Eldridge said they purchased one dollar's worth of gas at the Reynolds store on the way to Elburn at 5:30 a.m.

The first report received by police indicated that approximately $27,500 was taken. Mays said $29,772 was recovered. The exact amount taken will not be known until an audit is made at the bank.

Mays also reported two pistols, a .45-caliber revolver and a .22-caliber subcompact gun, were recovered.

State Police also reported they had been searching for Eldridge prior to the robbery. For Indiana authorities who suspected him of being involved in an armed robbery near Indianapolis.

Three youths were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner G. Murray Smith Jr. at Richmond a few hours after the robbery and were ordered held for trial in federal court at London.

Smith said all three pleaded guilty and bond was set at $25,000 each.

Foster and Spears first gave their names as John Paul Davis, 16, and Paul Harris, 17, Cincinnati, the FBI said.

mediately. The defense then has 40 days to file briefs with the Court of Appeals.
At a minimum, submission of the case, followed by objection on the case by the Court of Appeals will take two months—more likely, longer.

Below is a capsule round-up of the basis on which the city will take its case to the Court of Appeals as reported by the council.

"The suit alleged that the increased water rates were unreasonable and exorbitant and this the city denies. The plaintiffs introduced evidence which they believed supported this contention. Although the city believed the plaintiff's evidence failed to establish that the rates were unreasonable, the city refused to sue, and the city introduced its evidence to support the rate increase.

The city attempted to defend the suit on two grounds. The first was that the increased rates were necessary for the continued efficient operation of the water works. Uncontradictable evidence on behalf of the city proved that the water works system needs over $93,000 worth of improvements in order to meet standards of the State Health Department, and to replace and extend lines. In addition, the city proved the lake needs to be cleaned at an approximate cost of $25,000.

The second defense of the city was that the rate increase was necessary to help finance the sewer system. Chapter 58 of the Kentucky

Revised Statutes authorizes a city to combine the revenues of one or more existing public utilities in order to extend these utilities or to construct new utilities. Some cities have used water revenues to build swimming pools (Hazard), flood walls (Barbourville) and sewer systems (Hodgenville).

The rate ordinance passed by the city was based on this statute, and by that ordinance the city combined the water works and the proposed sewer system.

Under the law, a city must pledge sufficient revenue and charge sufficient rates to retire revenue bonds before they can be sold. Because of this, the city had to increase its rates. The rates as set up in the ordinance were approved by the United States engineers, employed by the Housing and Home Finance Agency. They found the proposal financially sound.

The city believes that since it has the right under Chapter 58 to build a sewer system and issue revenue bonds, that the increased rates were justified and were not unreasonable.

All these facts were put in evidence by the city. In addition, the city proved that it was a receiving grant worth several thousands of dollars from the State Health Department, and the Housing and Home Finance Agency had agreed to buy the bonds at a three and three-eighths percent interest rate.

The city feels that these facts and arguments were erroneously overlooked by the court and this is the reason the decision is to be appealed.

proposed sewer financing is allowed to extend it will put a collar around the neck of the water works for the next 30 years. I do not believe the city council wants to jeopardize the water system. The courts have ruled time and again against such financing by city.

Judge Tartar then repeated he was not being asked to rule on a sewer system, only on the water rate increase. He agreed he could go along with a 20-cent or even 30-cent rate hike for the water works, but he could not justify a $1.30 monthly increase.

Judge Tartar ruled the city would not have to refund the additional money collected since the new rate went into effect.

Testimony on the water rate increase was not taken in open court. The judge made his ruling after studying depositions submitted to him in May.

The city began planning a sewer system about two years ago after the State Health Department warned the city to solve its sewage problems or face stiff penalties.

WEANING CALVES
 A new system of weaning dairy calves—at about three weeks of age rather than the 9 to 6 week system—has been tried out successfully at the UK Ag Experiment Station.

Essentially the system involves a cut in milk feeding of calves and starts them much earlier on dry feeds. A special feed formula has been developed for the system and is the key to much of its success.

D. R. Jacobson, dairy science researcher, says the system cuts feed costs and labor, reduces scours, improves sanitary conditions, and lets the calves gain as much weight (up to 12 weeks age) as if they had gone through the usual weaning system. In two years, he says, about 100 UK dairy calves have been so handled with no death losses. Some dairymen in Kentucky already are using the system.

Here's how it's done: At three days of age, the calf is removed from its dam. Some fresh dry feed is given daily to the calf—penned in a separate stall—with a replacer. At 18 days of age, the liquid feeds (milk, etc.) are abruptly discontinued and the calf continued on the special starter (the real key to the program) and hay.

This special starter is composed of corn, oats, soybean meal, minerals, vitamins, and antibiotics. Plenty of clean, fresh, water is kept before the calf, too.

Jacobson notes the "critical factor" in the system is getting the calf to eat dry feed at a very early age. For that reason, the UK formula is most important.

Jacobson says farmers who try it must insist that their local mills prepare it exactly in the prescribed proportions, and must use quality materials. Short-cuts in quality or quantity of materials may alter the palatability of the formula. If the substitutions are drastic, and palatability is reduced, the plan will not work. That's because the calf must be encouraged to eat dry matter as soon as possible, and in proper quantities.

At 12 weeks of age, calves properly handled on the prescribed formula will usually be above the normal weight for that age dairy calves. He estimates that savings in feed cost could be from $5 to $10 per calf on this Kentucky plan. Other benefits are the labor reduction, the better gains in weight and the reduction of scours.

The entire program is outlined in a special three-page mimeographed paper entitled "Early Weaning Program for Calves." It is available at the UK Dairy Science Department.
