Group Plans Publicity For Tax Measures

An information, education, and organizational meeting to work for the passage of three local tax measures got off a united start Tuesday night.

Several Rockcastle County residents showed up at the Bookmobile-Library to organize a drive to inform residents of the need to vote for three tax measures, and to get detailed information themselves on the three tax measures.

On the November ballot will be a Rockcastle County Courthouse-Jail bond issue calling for up to 15 cents on the $100 assessed property valuation, a Bookmobile-Library tax measure calling for up to 5 cents on the $100 assessed property valuation, and a Rockcastle County Health Department District tax calling for up to 10 cents on the $100 assessed property valuation.

A feeling of outspoken unity on the need to pass the tax bills was very evident at the meeting.

As one resident put it: "We need the courthouse, the health department and the library. I'm willing to devote all my spare time to call attention to the need and to explain the facts and figures to the public. It will cost me much less money in the long run to vote 'yes' on all three tax measures."

Almost every type profession and type of business in the county was represented at the meeting. The general public was invited.

Plans for informing the public are being made. Every club in the county will be contacted. Clubs have been asked to send meeting dates and times to the health department so that a speaker, or speakers, can be sent to the meeting to explain the taxes.

There was also a discussion of a door-to-door campaign. The group was noticeably receptive to suggestions made by those present.

To be contacted to serve as co-chairman of the group's Steering Committee will be W. O. Nelson and Dr. Jack Lewis.

Asked to serve on the committees were: Wally Phillips, G. H. Griffin, John Cox, Mrs. Neureul Miracle, Mrs. Jack Henderson, Mrs. Charles A. Mullins and Dr. M. A. Shepherd, county health officer.

"We are in need of ideas as to how we can best put across the importance of these tax measures to the general public. All ideas are gratefully received and explored," Dr. Shepherd said. "We must all work for all these tax measures as the most economic way for the county to meet its ever-growing health, educational and building needs."

Hung Jury For Carl Price

After deliberating two hours and 45 minutes, a jury reported Wednesday it could not agree on the case of Carl Samuel Price, who is charged with murder in the slaying of his wife's sister, Mary Rose Vance, Dec. 3, 1961.

It was the third trial in the case.

Price is charged in the slaying which occurred in Sand Springs community in Rockcastle County about six miles from Mt. Vernon.

The first trial, which came to Bell County by change of venue, resulted in a deadlocked jury.

At the second trial, Price was convicted of manslaughter and was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

The conviction was appealed and the Court of Appeals granted a new trial on the basis of improper selection of the jury panel.

300 Gather At Renfro To Greet Governor's Tour

The Governor's Tour—minus its host, Gov. Bert Combs—sped through Rockcastle County Tuesday on the first day of a 3-day swing through Eastern Kentucky.

Buses loaded with about 100 VIP's paused for 30-minute stops at Richmond, Berea, Renfro Valley, London and Harlan to get a quick summary of the merits of the areas visited and to enjoy a little recreation.

Host Governor Combs couldn't come along, folks at Renfro Valley were told. He was meeting with other governors in Washington, D. C., trying to save $400,000 through the route of a Western Kentucky Interstate highway.

Everything was working well for the group when it arrived at Renfro Valley. Although a disappointing crowd estimated at 300 was on hand, the business and professional tycoons were primed to enjoy the tour around the state.

At Renfro Valley, and between songs, designated local businessmen took advantage of the captive ears. It also stirred the praises of a Western Kentucky Interstate highway.

The businessmen listened attentively, but listened more attentively to Renfro Valley entertainer, Ole Joe Clark. He sent the crowd into rales of laughter with his jokes on his visit to the Kentucky State Fair. So entertaining was Ole Joe that even his oo-hoos at the Barnhouse and croonings at Renfro Valley paused to listen and to laugh. As it turned out, it was all the Governor's Tour—minus the host.

At Renfro, things got undervalued with a short running time, five minutes talk by Clyde Linville, principal at Roundstone School, who introduced John Lair, Renfro Valley owner, who introduced the acts on his abbreviated Barnhouse. (Tour time left, 15 minutes.)

After the acts, one of the tourists responded to the entertainment with a brief "Thank you and evermore" filed out of the barn, took a look around by the turn of the head and headed for London.

At Mt. Vernon, they were told they were going through Mt. Vernon, not London, much, and located at the junction of USes 25 and 150, of the junction of the junction of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Knoxville roads.

We understand at Richmond, Berea and Harlan, the towns were lauded as progressive towns. London was labeled "one of the fastest-growing communities in the mountains." Barbourville was recalled one of the state's most historic communities.

Residents of Pineville and Bell County were commended by spokesmen for their efforts in advancing tourism in the mountains.

What the reactions were to Rockcastle County's capital, Mt. Vernon, will probably never be known since the tourist's faces were still smiling at Ole Joe Clark's jokes as they sped through Mt. Vernon.

Anyway, the Governor's Tour—minus its host—enjoyed the Renfro Valley fun.

Jarrett Funeral Held

Funeral services for Albert L. Jarrett, formerly of Broadhead, were held at Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 15 by the Masonic Lodge of Sacramento following cremation.

Mr. Jarrett, who died in a Sacramento hospital of a heart condition, was 63. He was a member of Broadhead Lodge #244, No. 66. He is survived by his wife, Gladys, of Sacramento; his mother, Mattie Jarrett, and two brothers, John and Jud Jarrett, of El Cajon, Calif.

Mayor of Mt. Vernon, Carl Brown, and Mrs. Brown

MAYOR OF MT. VERNON, Carl Brown, and Mrs. Brown, (top picture) talk with one of the visitors during the stopovers of the Governor's Tour Tuesday at Renfro Valley. In the second picture, N. M. Smock, of the Bank of Mt. Vernon, extends a greeting to two of the visitors. In bottom picture, three Mt. Vernon men talk with two other visitors who were taking the three-day tour of Eastern Kentucky. At center is Floyd Owens, along with Atty. James Lambert, and W. O. Nelson.

Name Omitted

The name of Mrs. Geraldine Deatherage, of Nicholasville, a step-sister of Charles Sower, was omitted from Mr. Sower's obituary in last week's Signal.

Save Money

Kentucky residents can expect to save over $1 million annually in property damage insurance premiums after Sept. 18, state Insurance Commissioner J. Elliott Flanery has announced.

The largest savings—ranging from 27 to 77 percent—will go to farmowners in reduced rates for wood shingle roofs under the Farmowners' Package Program. Also, a 20 percent reduction will apply to farm barns and outbuildings, tobacco barns, brooder houses and connected structures, and silos. Changes in the rating plan for better type farm dwellings will provide additional savings, Flanery said.

A seven percent reduction in overall basic policy premiums for all forms of homeowners insurance will also go into effect September 18. This change will include removal of charges for swimming and wading pools, and second motors of less than 25 horsepower. Also, the charges for outboard motors larger than 25 horsepower will be reduced.

DON'T FORGET

All parents are urged to support their PTA this year. Go out and join your neighbors.

KING AND QUEEN CONTESTANTS—Phillip Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Owens Jr., of Broadhead, and Darlene Lakes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lakes of Livingston, have been chosen as contestants in the Eighth District Farm Bureau king and queen contest. They will compete against contestants from Boyle, Lincoln, Laurel and Garrard. The contest will be held at the 7th Roundstone School. Phillip will also take part in the district Talk Meet Contest.

Remember 1940?

only electric living brings you 1963 values at prices even lower than 1940!

More than saving you work, electricity today actually does jobs better than was possible 23 years ago. Drying clothes, for example, fresher and more gently than sun and wind... or creating customer-made weather, warm or cool, in your home. What sparkling and sanitary dish washing electricity does, too. What safe, fast water heating — cool, clean cooking — amazing TV entertainment even from across the ocean!

And for every dollar you invest in these modern electric comforts and conveniences, we spend many thousands on power production, distribution, and expansion — to make sure you get the finest work from your appliances.

Yet, thanks to our new lower rate you pay even less for the average kilowatt hour of electricity used than you did in 1940. Your foremost contributor to better living — electricity — is also today's biggest bargain.

Safety Regulations

There are 10 major benefits of vehicle inspection. Check them below.

- (1) It improves the general standard of vehicle condition; Keeping cars in better repair reduces accident potential.
- (2) It maintains an automobile at a higher value level by lessening depreciation . . . keeps it in better operating condition.
- (3) It affords opportunity to check motor and serial numbers actually on the vehicles against registration certificates, and in other ways assists in the enforcement of motor vehicle laws.
- (4) It improves the quality of garage workmanship in making adjustments and repairs.
- (5) It provides an excellent opportunity for informing drivers about the condition of their cars and their responsibility for driving safely 365 days in the year.
- (6) The psychological effect on the driver is considerably for the better. It has been shown that his brakes meet only the minimum requirements will normally tend to drive more carefully.
- (7) Inspections also help to educate and keep car owners aware that certain parts need periodic attention and that it is less expensive to have the vehicle checked regularly and kept in repair than to wait until a breakdown occurs.
- (8) Rejection of a vehicle usually informs the motorist in a specific way that he is driving an unsafe car, and that as a consequence he is liable to be held as the negligent party in the event of a collision with a car that has been properly inspected.
- (9) The driver who subjects his car to periodic inspection tends to cooperate with enforcement officers and the general public in the observance of traffic rules and regulations.
- (10) Periodic inspection provides for the motorist an inexpensive maintenance service not available elsewhere. It lessens expenditures for repairs before little defects grow into big ones.

Tobacco Hollow Stalk Reported in County

Quite a few cases of hollow stalk tobacco have been reported to the Rockcastle County Agent's office in the past few weeks, according to agent H. Lee Durham.

Hollow stalk is a bacterial soft rot of the pith of tobacco plants that are nearing maturity. Infection may occur through wounds on the plant before it is topped, or through the wound left by breaking out the top. Seed stalks sometimes become infected through wounds made when the lower branches of the flower cluster are broken off.

The disease is most destructive during cool, wet periods. Following topping, it frequently starts in the exposed pith, which turns into a slimy mass. Rot proceeds down the stalk and out into the leaves—causing them to wilt, turn yellow, and sometimes fall off the stalk. If affected plants are hung in the barn, the leaves are likely to fall off.

Not much is known about how the organism is spread in tobacco, but it is known that the bacterium that causes the decay is the same as the one that causes black leg of tobacco in the plant bed, carrot soft rot, potato seed piece rot, black leg of potatoes, and decay of many other vegetables. This organism is spread by the adult maggot of the corn seed maggot. When it lays its eggs on living plant material, the eggs hatch into larvae which hatch and hatch, and then the maggot lives on the decaying tissue. It is probable that the hollow stalk organism is spread in the same way. The disease does not develop during dry periods, so growers can reduce losses from hollow stalk by delaying their topping, and during time when weather predictions indicate a couple of days of dry weather. No adequate means of prevention is known, but the disease is rare and not considered of major importance. According to Dr. E. M. Johnson, professor of plant pathology University of Kentucky, Lexington, there is no danger in carry over of the hollow stalk bacteria from one year to another and in putting tobacco back in the same field again next year where hollow stalk occurred in the tobacco field in this year.

Carson Promoted to Captain

Commander Albert C. Carson, of Kettering, Ohio, and son of Gus Carson, Broadhead was promoted recently to the rank of captain in the Navy, it was announced by Rear Admiral Robert H. Northwood, USAF, command-er of the Defense Electronics Supply Center, Dayton, Ohio. Captain Carson, assistant director of Engineering Standardization, has served at the Dayton center since February, 1962. He reported to DESA following a two and one-half years assignment at the Naval Electronics Laboratory, San Diego, California.

Born at Manchester, Ky., Captain Carson was graduated from Starkville, Mississippi High School in 1938 and attended Mississippi State University two years before his appointment to the Naval Academy in 1940. Captain and Mrs. Carson, the former Katherine Brown of Columbus, Miss., have four children: Thomas, Katherine, Gayle and John.

University Discusses Beef Calf Creep

Creep-feeding of beef calves generally is stopped by May 1—but unusual weather conditions which affect pastures can change this rule, says George J. Pendergrass, U.K. Ag Extension Service beef specialist. Many producers fed creep rations to calves long after May 1 because of pasture-shortages.

This was true in Kentucky this year, says George J. Pendergrass, U.K. Ag Extension Service beef specialist. Many producers fed creep rations to calves long after May 1 because of pasture-shortages.

Here are some general rules on creep-feeding:

Creep-feed if you raise breed replacements and have a good calf market at weaning age. Creep-feed cows are poor milkers and pastures are just fair.

If calves are on the Kentucky cow-and-calf plan, creep-feed. Also, creep-feed calves going into the feed lot full feeding at weaning time.

If you are producing feeder calves for sale, you should creep-feed them in winter months, or late summer or fall if pastures are short. But don't creep-feed if you intend to winter calves on roughage or other rations, or if you are producing feeder calves and pastures are good, cows are good milkers and calves have sufficient flesh and bloom.

Brucellosis Work Proves Successful

Kentucky has won a major battle in its long war against brucellosis in cattle.

A ceremony at the Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, has recognized the State for the fact that all of its 120 counties have reached the status of "modified certified brucellosis-free areas." This means that less than one percent of the cattle in less than five per cent of the herds in each county were found to be infected by the disease.

A certificate honoring Kentucky for its achievement in fighting the disease was a presented Agriculture Commissioner Emerson Doo Beauchamp by Dr. C. K. Mingle, chief staff officer of the brucellosis section of the Animal Diseases Eradication Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"It has been a difficult task for the Kentucky cattle industry to reach this objective, and we cannot afford to stop at this point," Beauchamp said. "We must set our sights on achieving the certified-free status now."

Beauchamp said the brucellosis program has expanded market outlets, reduced the cost of production and caused an awareness that freedom from disease is a vital part of quality livestock production.

County Forest Inventory

Frankfort, Sept.—Preliminary results from Kentucky's first forest inventory including Rockcastle county, released in 13 years have been announced by the State Division of Forestry in the State Department of Conservation, and the U. S. Forest Service Experiment Station, Columbus, Ohio.
