1965 . . .

KENTUCKY HOMECOMING YEAR

It's Homecoming Year in Kentucky, by proclamation of Governor Edward T. Breathitt and by the natural homing instinct of thousands of former natives and their friends who are anxious to see and visit Kentucky in 1965.

More than a hundred communities across the state have made special plans to welcome and entertain the Homecoming Year visitors. In addition, hundreds of families, churches and schools are holding real, old-time reunions. No occasion is too small - or too big - to fit into Homecoming Year.

There are song fests, new dramas, flower shows, parades, picnics, parties, and most important, just plain people who have rolled out the welcoming mat to all travelers in Kentucky. A visitor is likely to pop into a homecoming celebration just about anywhere in 1965.

And, while all the festivities are being planned and carried out, the home folks are sprucing up, donning their aprons, thumbing their cookbooks, and getting ready to show the visitors a good time.

Kentucky restaurants have the homecoming spirit, too. Tables are groaning with delicious Kentucky dishes - from famous Kentucky Ham, catfish, barbecue or burgoo to sticky beans, summer squash, golden corn and black-eyed peas - all done up in typical Kentucky fashion.

And the clean-up brigades have been at work too, making Kentucky even cleaner, greener and lovelier for Homecoming visitors. All in all, 1965 is proving an unusually good year for the lucky traveler who comes to the Bluegrass.

Kentuckians know, and others are quickly discovering, that the Bluegrass State is a land of charm and variety where families find a new vacation and new interests each year.

There are excellent accommodations and the scenery is good but highly varied across the 350-mile wide state.

It ranges from 4,150 feet above sea level in the east to 300 feet above sea level in the west. The vacationer who seeks cool mountain breezes can find his perfect vacation in Kentucky - and so can the vacationer who prefers quietly rolling bluegrass terrain or who wants sparkling sun by the big lakes, resort pools, or along the flat Mississippi River level. In all, a dozen different vacation regions, each with exciting and distinctive attractions, scenery and accommodations, beckon the vacationing family to Kentucky.

Water, Water Everywhere

At the far western tip of the state there's the Land of Big Lakes - a real wonderland for water lovers with 134,300-acre Kentucky Lake and its rapidly-filling neighbor, 45,600-acre Barkley Lake, creating between them a nature-preserving National Recreation Area. Here are the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and a toe of Reelfoot Lake. Innumerable small, sparkling streams and ponds also are found in the region as are fields of high quality cotton.

Moving eastward, the Audubon-Pennycyle vacation region offers visitors a natural paradise. The Pennyroyal - the small mist that lends its name - grows profusely as do many other species of flowers, plants and trees. John James Audubon chose this region in which to capture on canvas many world-renowned bird and wildlife paintings. Lakes, streams and outstanding food add to the region's enchantment.

Just to the east is the area called the Bonanza Vacationland. Included are the knobs and valleys of the birthplace and boyhood home of Abraham Lincoln, and the area lies on the route of the Lincoln Heritage Trail. One of the "richest" spots is the site of Ft. Knox, where the national gold depository is situated. There are coal mines, a luxury vacation resort, lakes and a fast-growing young metropolis.

The Central Kentucky Cave Area was one of the state's first vacationing centers, and is the home of Mammoth Cave National Park as well as many smaller underground caverns. First-rate attractions lie above the ground as well, including Park Mammoth Resort and Barren River Reservoir, a new fishing lake.

Big City Beckons

For a city vacation, it's Louisville, the state's largest city, the home of Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby, the site of the great steamboat race held annually on the Ohio River, and a metropolitan mine of things to do and see. Museums, southern mansions, city parks, historic "Old Louisville," racing, boating and swimming, plus a multitude of night spots are among the city's attractions.

From Louisville to the Bluegrass is just a step across the county line. Rolling horse farms, criss-crossed by white fences; track and harness racing; historic old homes; the State Capitol at Frankfort; the University of Kentucky, two State colleges and six private colleges, including world-famous Berea; Bonebrough, Fort Harrod, the Shaker town restoration and My Old Kentucky Home - all are a part of the Bluegrass charm.

South from the Central Bluegrass is the Lake Cumberland-Dale Hollow angler's and camper's paradise. These two giant lakes are just a part of the region's lure, painted on a backdrop of forested foothills and timed to the mated roar of Cumberland Falls. There is an island park at Burnside, square dancing at Cumberland Falls, and unexcelled fishing and camping.

To the north - the Bluegrass is the Land by the River - a postcard-pretty region that borders the broad Ohio River and the widest reaches of the scenic Kentucky and Licking rivers. Water sports are a natural here, and vacationing pleasures are further enhanced by camping areas, historic sites, racing at Latonia Park, excellent restaurants, and scenic driving through big orchards and fine farms of an ever-changing countryside.

Sightsee Underground, Too

Crossing into the Historic Gateway of Kentucky, the traveler finds the combined vacation scenery of the outer Bluegrass, fertile riverbottom lands, forest ridges, lakes and caves. The Cumberland National Forest crosses the region. In rugged terrain at Carter Caves State Park you'll discover a choice vacation resort, while Blue Licks Battlefield State Park adds swashbuckling American history and a still-visible buffalo trail.

Reached by Kentucky's scenic Mountain Parkway is the Land of Natural Bridges. Natural Bridge and Sky Bridge are two of the most famous natural arches among the grotesque, unique rock formations found in beautiful Cumberland National Forest. Campers will find this region rife with locations to pitch a tent, hitch a trailer, and enjoy the great outdoors.

Following the Pathway of the Pioneers through the Appalachian country is a memorable trip. This southeastern mountain country contains several choice State parks. Mountain music, handicraft and folklore are plentiful here. From Cumberland Gap, where the white man first crossed into the American West, to the Little

Autumn in Kentucky

Special pleasures await the autumn traveler to Kentucky. From the highlands in the east to the land of lakes in the west, riotous color decorates the foliage of the forested countryside. More than 45 per cent of Kentucky's land acreage is woodland - eleven and a half million acres.

And, when Mother Nature applies her brush and the brilliant hues of her palette to the maples, oaks, walnuts and many more wooded giants of the land, the results are a magnificent blaze of color; to catch the traveler's breath and eye and lay out a ready-made scene for his camera.

This special supplement describing many of Kentucky's travel attractions is brought to you by The Mt. Vernon Signal and the Kentucky Department of Public Information.

We hope you will read it, enjoy it, and then go out and see for yourself in a "Tour Kentucky First" vacation. See the U.S.A. - and begin in Kentucky.

Land of the BIG LAKES Vacationland

This huge anchor at Columbus-Beimont State Park on Kentucky's western border was used to secure a giant chain across the Mississippi River during the Civil War. It kept the river from moving down to the Gulf of Mexico. Overlooking the Mississippi at Columbus, has tent and trailer camping sites, a souvenir shop, hiking trails, playground and picnic area.

Impoundment of Barkley Lake will be complete in 1965, giving the western waterland of Kentucky two giant lakes and forming a 170,000-acre National Recreation Area between them. Barkley and Kentucky Lake combined will have 3,200 miles of shoreline to serve millions of water-loving visitors.

Westernmost Kentucky is a land dear to water-sport fans of all ages, whether they fish, boat or swim - or just lounge on the beach. This is flatland, drained by mighty rivers, brightened by big lakes, a place with a tang of Dixie and barbecue smoke.

The waters that make Western Kentucky a recreation center had much to do with the settlement of the region. This vacationland is bordered on the north by the broad Ohio River and on the west by the mighty Mississippi. The Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers flow through it.

This was the last part of Kentucky to be settled; but once it was opened, a stream of Scotch, Irish and English settlers poured into the section.

The land they settled was flat, the weather considerably milder than in the rest of Kentucky. That, plus the fact that the Mississippi offered transportation to southern markets, brought about an agricultural economy, including the growing of cotton.

Thus the section was closely drawn to the Deep South, especially New Orleans, in social manners and buildings. During the Civil War, it was a hotbed of Confederate sympathy. Today, monuments to the Confederacy are found on many courthouse lawns. The people are hospitable in the southern tradition and greet you with a warm, welcoming drawl.

Despite its rivers, the region is known as the land of lakes. Kentucky Lake, created by a dam across the Tennessee River, has 2,380 miles of shoreline - longest of any man-made lake in the world.

Now this great lake is getting a big neighbor - near Kentucky Dam, another huge impoundment is rising to hold back the Cumberland River and create Barkley Lake. Mysterious Reelfoot Lake, created by earthquake, edges up into the southwestern tip of Kentucky.

The land of lakes is also the land of parks. The vast waters have spawned vacation resorts as well as plenty of game fish. Two State parks that are among the nation's finest have been developed along Kentucky Lake.

Another occupies the site overlooking the Mississippi River where the Confederates erected a Civil War fortification.

The Commonwealth has begun development of a resort-type park on the shores of Barkley Lake.

And the Federal Government is now developing almost 200,000 acres as a national recreation area between Barkley and Kentucky Lakes. This fascinating place is known as Land Between the Lakes. Pottsville Forest State Park, with its lake and 16,000 acres of forest, nestles on the eastern border of the region.

Two of these State parks - Kentucky Dam Village and Kenlake - have complete vacation facilities, including modern lodges, rustic-styled, and all facilities for fishing, boating, swimming, picnicking and camping.

At Paducah, largest city of the region, an excellent, new "follow-the-red-line" tour guides visitors to scores of interesting places. General Lew Wallace commanded a Union Civil War garrison there when he started writing "Ben Hur." Paducah, named after an Indian chief, was the home of Irvin S. Cobb, novelist, and the Veep, Alben Barkley. Near Paducah is the Atomic Energy Commission's gaseous-diffusion plant.

But most vacationers look for sports, scenery and historic sites instead of industry, and Western Kentucky has all of these, especially scenic attractions. For example, the Baldpate County Waterfowl Area is a 10,000-acre preserve, including public hunting and fishing in several lakes.

The waters of the region can also inspire wonder - imagine the sight where two of the largest rivers in the United States meet, the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers near Wickliffe.

Nearby, overlooking the Mississippi, is Ancient Buried City, remains of a city, including complete skeletons, of prehistoric Indians.

At Columbus-Beimont State Park is an anchor and a huge chain that Confederates stretched across the Mississippi to stop Union gunboat traffic.

More water-wonders, Kentucky Bend and Murphy's Pond, are found in the area. The Bend is a 27,000-acre chunk of Kentucky separated from the rest of the state by a horseshoe curve in the Mississippi. Murphy's Pond is a large swamp and cypress forest created by long-ago earthquakes.

The western waterland is on the flyway of North America's migratory birds. Each fall and spring great flocks of ducks, geese and other fowl fly over head.

The landscape of the region is an adventure, too. It ranges from the rolling farmlands of the Pennyrile, which also has its cliffs and scarps, to the western coal fields, which in some places resemble the prairie states, to the flood plains of the Purchase area, which has stream bluffs, cypress swamps, oxbow lagoons and even underground waterways.

Western Kentucky vittles are a tradition with vacationing gourmets. This section is noted for its cured hams, and they can be purchased at many stops along the way. Or you may have a taste for catfish and hush-puppies, or just a catfish sandwich. A touch of pork flavors many vegetables in Kentucky cooking, and barbecued lamb, pork and beef are regional favorites.

Reynard the Fox plays this summer at the amphitheatre in Kenlake State Park near Hardin, nightly except Sundays at 8:30 through August 31.

The Village Inn, at Kentucky Dam Village State Park on the shores of gigantic Kentucky Lake, provides modern air-conditioned relaxation and comfort for visitors. The park offers lake and pool swimming, vacation cottages, boating, camping, golfing and many more attractions. An addition to the Inn will be completed this fall.

Pennyrile State Park is a princely stopping-off-and-visiting-awhile place in the land of the Pennyrile plant in western Kentucky. The lodge contains a noted dining room and 24 modern guest rooms; vacation cottages and camping sites are also available. The Pennyril - a fragrant mint-abounds in the region, as do fishermen, swimmers, photographers and just plain vacationers, enjoying a good spot to visit. The park has both swimming pool and a lake.

This eye-stopping 351-foot high monument, at Fairview near Hopkinsville, marks the birthplace of the only President of the Confederate States of America, Jefferson Davis. Located in a 20-acre State park, the monument has an elevator to take visitors to the top where they can pause for a breathtaking view.

AUDUBON-PENNYRILE Vacationland

The dark-complexioned young man, looking in his mid-twenties, was a source of considerable curiosity as he ambled over the countryside. At times he would excitedly pull a sketch-pad from his cloak, walking softly as he came near a bright red-breasted robin or a snippy bluejay.

The year was 1810, the site was the area around the Ohio River port of Henderson, and the youth was John James Audubon, the celebrated 19th Century artist and naturalist. For 10 more years he remained there, painting, sketching and operating a general store and a mill which still stands.

Today the visitor can view Audubon's original paintings, the "Birds of America" series at Audubon State Park's Memorial Museum, situated in the very countryside where the artist worked in his Kentucky days.

At the park you can follow the beechwood-lined trails that he walked. There are house-keeping cottages, tent and trailer sites, swimming, boating and picnicking facilities and you may run into a young man who has followed closely in Audubon's footsteps - Ray Harm, the gifted naturalist and artist-in-residence at the University of Kentucky, whose own prints and drawings have rapidly become collector's items. Harm conducts a summer program of nature talks and exhibitions in the State parks, traveling throughout the system.

This land of Audubon and the Pennyrile stretches from the Ohio River in the north down to the Tennessee border, then east and west through a broad area of southern Kentucky. It is mainly rolling country, which the pioneers rightly judged excellent for farming and cattle-raising. The quaint, abstract names of some of the old towns, Providence, Justice, Apex, Paradise and Poverty - aptly reflect the simple hopes and trials of the early settlers.

One group of men and women, in the early 1800's decided to set up a community of true believers, away from the "modern" world. Some went to Mercer County, in central Kentucky, while others of the Shakers, as they were called, headed south to the border county of Logan.

There, near Auburn and South Union, they led strict lives of celibacy, detachment from worldly things, and simplicity and perfection in craftsmanship. Titled the United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearance, the Shakers earned their nickname from their swaying dance of prayer.

Today no Shakers remain, but the Shaker Museum at Auburn preserves the original furniture made in the community's shops. Each July a colorful pageant, "Shakertown Revisited," is staged by Western Kentucky State College students and local residents. The old South Union buildings are now occupied by the Catholic Benedictine monks of St. Maur, who, like the Shakers, are celibates with vows of common poverty and separation from the world.

The Kentucky region bordering Tennessee is a mine of the history that made Kentucky and the United States. Between 1800 and 1830 Logan County established itself as the home of statesmen. Four men from Logan became Kentucky governors, five were elected to the United States Senate, and still five others became governors of other states.

In 1806, the same year that saw outlaw Big Harpe hanged, in nearby Webster County, Andrew Jackson and Charles Dickinson met one early dawn near Adairville to fight a duel. Dickinson died for his insult to the fiery future president, and Jackson was wounded in the clash that, in years to come, his political enemies would never allow him to forget.

In Russellville, Jesse James robbed the first bank of his career, and is believed to have taken overnight refuge at the old Stage Coach Inn at Guthrie, still standing. In 1861, a convention meeting at Russellville proclaimed Kentucky the 13th state of the Confederacy, though Kentucky never officially left the Union and remained one of two neutral states. Presiding was General Simon Bolivar Buckner, later to become Governor of Kentucky after the Civil War.

Another Confederate shrine is Fairview, birthplace of Jefferson Davis, the only president of the secessionist states. There, amid picnic grounds on the Todd-Christian County line, is the 351-foot Davis Monument, tallest concrete-cast obelisk in the world. (And just 100 miles away is the Hodgenville cabin where Union President Abe Lincoln was born).

But this bonanza land is far from being a mere site of history. The pioneers' descendants, plus many visitors who later returned to settle, have built up a booming agricultural and industrial country. Henderson County, for example, is Kentucky's top producer of oil - over 4 million barrels in 1964 - and of hybrid corn and hogs, too. Other industries include wheat-farming, chemicals, plastics and fine furniture. Several plants in the area conduct tours for visitors.

The modern, four-lane Western Kentucky Parkway, serves the region, providing easy access to most vacation spots. Lake Malone State Park, off Ky, 431 south from the Parkway, has fine fishing in the 825 acres of water and, though a still developing park, has swimming facilities, a boat dock and playground with highly unusual scenery.

However, for all the sights, few can really compare with the magnificent vistas and comfortable vacationland of Pennyrile State Park, a 15,000-acre woodland preserve with its own small lake for pleasure boating and fishing. Nearby is 800-acre Lake Beshear. The park has a modern lodge, cottages, tent and trailer sites and new golf course. And it 'sets a good table' too.

Trails lead through forests of hardwood trees, ferns and wildflowers at Audubon State Park. The museum houses 110 paintings of native bird life by John James Audubon and his two sons. Here you can swim, camp, live in a vacation cottage, picnic, go boating or take a walk along the self-guided nature trail. Three picnic shelters are available.

At Lake Malone State Park in southwestern Kentucky the bass, crappie, bluegill and catfish are eager to tackle the angler's bait. Shores of the 825-acre lake have a boat dock, beach, picnic area and clubhouse.

The new lodge at Rough River Dam State Park at Falls of Rough has a big lobby and a noted dining room. Each of its 24 guest rooms has a private patio overlooking the scenic beauty of 5,000-acre Rough River Lake, one of Kentucky's top fishing and boating lakes. The park also has vacation cottages, paved airstrip, boat docks, launching ramps, swimming beach and picnicking and camping areas. This Park attracts more than a million visitors a year.

BONANZA VACATIONLAND

The Lincoln Heritage

Abraham Lincoln's birthplace near Hodgenville is a National Historic Site, part of the U. S. National Park Service. Much of the Lincoln Farm is contained in the park's 116 acres. There are facilities for picnicking, a souvenir shop, and visitor's center.

Just southwest of big and bustling Louisville, there lies along the southern bank of the Ohio River a green and tranquil land that invites exploring by vacationers.

Although tipped at both ends by the metropolitan areas of Louisville and Owensboro, this country is mostly a rural hideaway, great for camping and fishing and pleasure driving.

Part of this country lies in the Knobs region, with its flat-topped hills and valley, and part in the western coal fields, a prairie-like landscape.

This is the region that boasts proudly of Abraham Lincoln's birthplace at the Sinking Spring farm near Hodgenville. The knobby landscape is a reminder of his rugged looks and the gentle lowlands are a reminder of his kindness.

Lincoln's birth cabin is enclosed in a national shrine at Hodgenville. The country holds many other relics of Lincoln and his family and is on the route of the Lincoln Heritage Trail, which passes through three states. Lincoln once said "My earliest recollections are of the Knob Creek place," which is in the region. A side trip to Springfield takes you to the Washington County Courthouse with the original Lincoln marriage bond and to Lincoln Homestead State Park.

Well worth a trip in the spring is Bernheim Forest in red bud time. Its 14,000 acres have four lakes, nature trails and an arboretum.

At Falls of Rough is Rough River State Park, developed around Rough River Lake, with a modern lodge that is headquarters for an elegant vacation resort. The 5,100-acre lake is home to a large variety of game fish able to test your skill. The park has an air strip, camping sites, boat dock, cottages, beach and picnic area. Another favorite fishing spot is Nolin Reservoir in the southern part of this region.

Those who cherish the old and quaint will enjoy seeing the ancient water-powered grain mill still operating at Falls of Rough.

In the southern part of this region - old Indian land - streams meander, springs bubble and caves abound. There is a famous old mineral springs and health spa near Leitchfield known as Grayson Springs.

Much of this region is rich in historical background. At Elizabethtown is the inn where General Custer lived just before he led his troops to the Little Big Horn.

At West Point, Salt River empties into the Ohio, providing a spectacular view. In 1832 a steamboat carrying Henry Clay turned by error up Salt River, causing him to miss a speaking engagement and perhaps the presidential election. Kentuckians to this day say a losing candidate "has gone up Salt River."

This region includes Fort Knox, with its armor training school, national gold repository and fascinating exhibits at General George S. Patton Museum.

The area around Doe Run Creek was a happy hunting ground for Daniel Boone, Kentucky's greatest pioneer explorer, and much of the nearby land is part of Otter Creek Park, a game preserve and recreational area.

In the Rough River valleys, early settlers were raided by Indians and their descendants suffered from the forays of Quantrell, rebel guerrilla of Civil War fame. Near Irvington are the "hominid rocks" where Indians ground corn.

The westernmost tip of this vacation area is a land watered by the Ohio and Green Rivers, a center of dark-fired tobacco, oil and whiskey. Owensboro, the largest city in western Kentucky, was called Yellow Banks by early boatmen because of the color of its clay.

A striking view of the winding Ohio can be seen from an overlook east of Hawesville, the sorghum molasses capital of the world. The river town of Lewisport was at one time noted for boatbuilding. At another river town, Cloverport, young Abraham Lincoln and his family crossed the Ohio to live in Indiana.

Food of the region is typical of Kentucky, with old ham a big favorite. For an appetite not hearty enough for cornpone and sorghum, there are buttermilk biscuits and honey. Every cook worth her salt has a delicious corn pudding recipe. Hush puppies are Kentucky's complement to fish.

Kentucky recipes have inspired many a holiday gathering, put money into the cook-book business, settled political disputes and feuds, started new disputes and feuds, soothed the hearts of unruly husbands, and even won husbands for forlorn widows.

They'll add to your pleasure vacationing in the Lincoln Heritage Bonanza Land.

An outstanding attraction for visitors is Bernheim Forest near Shepherdsville, with 10,000 acres of Kentucky knobland where animals and birds, trees, shrubs and flowers are on view for public enjoyment. It is a wild-life refuge of unusual beauty, with fishing, picnicking facilities, foot trails and a nature center.

CENTRAL KENTUCKY CAVE AREA

Unique among all regions of the world is the cave country of south central Kentucky.

There, famous Mammoth Cave is only one of many underground wonders in the area, but it is the biggest and the best known and is Kentucky's earliest major tourist attraction.

Mammoth Cave was discovered in 1798 and has been a tourist center for more than 100 years. A national park of about 53,000 acres was established on land including the cave in 1941.

Private developments have sprouted up around the great cavern and many good motels, hotels and restaurants are located in the region. Nearby caves are operated privately and include Mammoth Onyx, Diamond Caverns, Crystal Onyx and others. New caves are still being discovered and professional and amateur spelunkers alike take great delight in the miles of lighted, underground passages.

A major new luxury resort, Park Mammoth Resort, has opened on a 1,000-acre plot that includes three newly-developed caves.

The cave country is a land of knobs and valleys, typical of the Pennyrile. The scenery is varied, from the gently rolling farmlands to cliffs and scarps, and from open fields to forested hillsides. Rivers are abundant in the upland and underground, are hundreds of miles of subterranean passages, including Echo River through Mammoth Cave.

This is a liberal land to fishermen. Any exploration of this region will lead to 10,000-acre Barren River reservoir, one of Kentucky's newer fishing lakes, between Glasgow and Scottsville. The state plans to develop a park at this lake complete with lodge and resort facilities.

Many a creek sends water into Barren Lake which teems with fish. You can expect to catch bass, muskies, walleyes, crappie and channel cats. The lake is being stocked with rainbow trout. You can also expect good fishing in Nolin Reservoir, a big impoundment north of Mammoth Cave.

This region has rich tobacco fields, green acres with grazing livestock, and a predilection for Dixie, as evidenced by Confederate monuments at Glasgow and other towns. Bowling Green once served as Kentucky's confederate capital. Glasgow is a stream-ringed city with livestock and tobacco markets and a number of gracious old southern homes.

In the land west of Glasgow, fertile hills and broad bottom lands grow deep pastures and crops of tobacco, corn, hay, and soy beans. The land is watered by the Green, Barren and Mad Rivers - all famous fishing streams.

This is a country in which to slow down and enjoy your surroundings. The Green River is in no hurry as it winds its way through woodlands and bottoms and takes a graceful turn at Indigo

Bend. Old time ferries still cross this river. Indian mounds are found in the neighborhood and some of the tastiest of sorghum molasses is turned out in picturesque sorghum mills which still use mules to turn the press that crushes the cane.

Horse Cave is a major center for good country ham, and you can buy choice cheese, locally produced at Horse Cave, Glasgow, Greensburg and other markets. You can watch a tobacco auction and hear the chant of the fast-moving auctioneers.

Look around and you may find an Indian arrowhead. Travel routes in this region were first laid out by the buffalo and Indian warriors and Nolin River gorge embraces land once inhabited by red men.

Mammoth Cave offers the thrill of adventure of its avenues showing colorful stalactites and stalagmites, huge cavern rooms and spectacular pits and domes. You can take a subterranean boat ride on Echo River and have lunch in gymnasium-clattered Snowball Dining Room, 267 feet underground. Authentic Kentucky handicrafts are displayed at Mammoth Cave National Park and demonstrations of various native Kentucky crafts will be given at the park this summer. Deer and other smaller wildlife abound in the vast, wooded park.

At Tompkinsville is Old Mulkey Meeting House, erected in 1798, oldest log church in Kentucky. It is now a State shrine. The congregation record book, written with pokeberry ink, has been preserved.

In the middle of this varied, interesting country is Bowling Green, home of Western Kentucky State College and Ed Diddle's famous basketball team.

This section of Kentucky, modernized with major roads and grand motels, still may be one of the last refuges for America's peaceful rural life. Here, not so long ago, recreation consisted of barn-raising, quilting parties, apple-peelings, mule-swappings, singing parties and square dance.

Some of the place names hereabouts suggest the rural man's problems and invention in designating things: Dismal Rock, Whistling Mountain, Cubby Hole, Big Difficult Creek, Indigo Bend, Grab, Cub Run, Possum Scratch and Shanty Hollow Lake.

Travelers are bound to get hungry and this is a good area for the hearty appetite. The south-central Kentuckian says vows to ham from hogs fattened on Kentucky corn, and many Kentucky-cured hams are hanging up for sale. Kentucky Wonder beans are good cooked with ham-bone. These people are mighty skilled with chicken, either Kentucky-fried or served with dumplings. Spoon bread, corn pudding, rich desserts - these are just a few Kentucky culinary delights.

Vacationers to Mammoth Cave pass under this modernistic bridge leading to the visitor's center on their way to begin one of the many cave tours offered at the national park in Kentucky's cave country. In addition to many miles of underground caverns with their spectacular sights, the park offers first class accommodations, tennis and shuffleboard courts, camping and picnic areas, trailer parking and nature trails. A new hotel opened in the park on July 1.

Barren Reservoir - one of Kentucky's newest and largest man-made lakes - was completed just last year and is already producing good catches of bass and crappie. Eight launching sites are provided around the 10,000 acre body, located between Glasgow and Scottsville. The State government is planning full-scale development of a resort port there.

Fishing on Nolin Reservoir is just one of the many pleasures offered by this 5,795-acre lake, a short drive from the Western Kentucky Turnpike. There are several ramps around Nolin to launch boats for pleasure cruises, fishing, swimming or skiing.

Louisville . . . PROGRESS CENTER U.S.A.

Louisville, largest city in Kentucky, is the shopping center for more than a million people, a center of culture and entertainment, the home of the Kentucky Derby and the site of the Kentucky State Fair.

Though Louisville is a progressively modern midwestern city just below the Mason-Dixon line, it still enjoys the hospitality and charm of the old South.

It is the metropolis of an essentially agricultural state but counts within its limits the homes of some of the best-known industries in the country - whiskey, tobacco, automobiles, home appliances, baseball bats.

It has actor groups, choral groups, and it is the home of the Louisville Orchestra which just this summer performed at a festival-of-the-arts celebration in the White House at the request of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

There are 18 major parks and numerous playgrounds in Louisville and Jefferson County. Among them are Irvinpark, where a skyline view of the city is seen from a high-drive overlook, and where the Wandering Minstrels present summertime musical comedy offerings, and Central Park, scene of "Shakespeare in Central Park" presentations of the bard in an outdoor amphitheater during the summer. There are performed by Louisville's famed Carriage House Players.

Louisville and Jefferson County outside the city have a large number of both public and private schools. It has several colleges, including the University of Louisville, the largest; Bellarmine and Kentucky Southern.

Birding, sailing, skiing and other water sports are popular on the broad Ohio River that flows past the northern limits. Many commercial docks and launching ramps are available to water-minded visitors.

Louisville's importance as a port for river transportation is growing constantly. Many are the boats and barges that pass through the McAlpine Locks and Dam there. Of these, probably none is more popular than the Belle of Louisville.

A sternwheeler complete with calliope, the Belle was purchased three years ago by Jefferson County and is operated as a city-county facility during the summer months to take both Louisvillians and visitors on regularly-scheduled river-boat excursions.

The Belle has gained most of her fame, however, by engaging in steamboat races prior to the last three Derbys against a sister craft, the Delta Queen from Cincinnati, upriver. Once the Belle has won, twice she has lost.

These steamboat races annually attract thousands of spectators who fill both banks of the mile-wide river to view the 15-mile contest up the river and back again.

The Kentucky Derby is run the first Saturday in May every year at Churchill Downs, the historic, twin-spired racing plant in Louisville's South End. The running of the Derby is preceded by a gala week of festivities. The Downs also houses a Thoroughbred museum that is open free to visitors year-round.

Miles Park, on the site of the old State Fairgrounds in the West End of Louisville is another popular Thoroughbred track.

Also popular with visitors are other museums such as the J. B. Speed Memorial Museum of art works, the Kentucky Railroad Museum, with many exhibits, the Filson Club and its collection of Kentuckiana, and the Louisville Library.

Distilleries of Louisville and Jefferson County produce more than half of all Bourbon whiskey made in the United States. Louisville ranks as one of the leading tobacco manufacturing centers of the world. Scores of Louisville plants, both large and small, conduct tours for visitors.

Louisville is fascinating architecture. It is the Jefferson County Courthouse designed by Gideon Shryock, a noted Kentucky architect. In his characteristic Greek Revival style in 1830.

It is also "Old Louisville" that extends south from Broadway. Many of the stately homes and mansions are more than a hundred years old. A monument was spared several years ago to preserve the best part of this section of the city.

Louisville is famous, the home-identified by Thomas Jefferson where Abraham Lincoln visited his friend, Judge John Speed. It also is Zachary Taylor's home, where monument and tomb form the focal point of a national memorial and military cemetery.

Louisville, too, is George Rogers Clark's home, Locust Grove, a must on your holiday visit. Both Farmington at 3033 Bardotown Road and Locust Grove on Blankensbaker Lane are open to the public and have guided tours.

Another noted place of interest on Shelbyville Road at the edge of the city is Oxmoor. The magnificent estate contains a late-18th-century log structure, and is the site of the annual Oxmoor Swap each spring.

Louisville is some of the finest parks in the country. The parks and playgrounds cover some 3,300 acres. Facilities include picnic areas, golf courses, tennis courts, baseball and football fields.

Louisville is also an outstanding convention and sports center, with the enormous Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center at the southern outskirts of the city and the Convention Center at Sixth and Walnut Streets downtown. Both schedule entertainment and sports events year round.

Statue of the Thinker by Rodin is one of the University of Louisville's campus features that delight sightseers. Others include the Rauch Planetarium, where the armchair astronomer can go on fascinating voyages around the moon and the planets, and Speed Museum, where excellent permanent displays are supplemented by special exhibits of all kinds.

Cruising down the river on the Belle of Louisville, one of the last Ohio River steamboats, is a favorite with visitors to Louisville. Once known as the Avalon, the Belle, at 50 years of age, is still grand dame of the Louisville waterfront. Excursions are reasonably priced and often open to the public.

On the first Saturday each May, millions of Americans turn their thoughts to the fabulous Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. First run in 1875 over the same course, the Derby has since grown into a classic of the sports world. The 145-acre Churchill Downs property includes greenhouses where more than 75,000 plants are grown each year for the Downs' famous flowerbeds. A fascinating museum of racing is open free to the public.

THE BLUEGRASS

History and Heritage Land

It's said that heaven is a Kentucky of a place, and Central Kentuckians are convinced that the Bluegrass is a choice spot in the promised land. It's a rich realm of history heritage and horses, blended with a delightful array of things to do.

Central Kentucky is the Inner Bluegrass region. Hospitality here was always lavish when the Commonwealth was still a part of Virginia. The first oval racetrack in America was built near Crab Orchard Sportsmans Hill in the 1780's. Its builder, William Whiteley, watched history being made at his doorstep on the Wilderness road and welcomed such figures as George Rogers Clark and Daniel Boone to his prior. The home, first brick house west of the Alleghenies, is open today as a State shrine.

Boone himself built a fort on the Kentucky River in the Bluegrass section; and today Fort Boonesborough, with its wide beach, is the location of a developing State park.

Boone and other settlers in the Bluegrass found the good life and were eager to share it with guests and visitors.

This is rich farm country. The air is scented with neatly clipped bluegrass, covering the meadows like velvet. There's the smell too of tobacco, green in the fields, or richly perfumed and brown as it hangs in the barns and warehouses in the fall. And there are distilleries of premium Bourbon whiskey, made by use of limestone spring water which also produces strong-ankled, long-winded thoroughbreds. Bourbon is named after the Bluegrass county of Bourbon in the region where it was first made. The county, in turn, was named for the French House of Bourbon.

Chants of the tobacco auctioneer and the horse auctioneer echo throughout the area, against a background of pounding hooves as great Kentucky horses round the turn at Keeneland, the beautiful Lexington track, or the steady rhythm of standardbreds prancing neck-and-neck around the Lexington Trotting Track - the Big Red Mile.

Central Kentucky delights the eye. There are more than 200 fine horse farms. Miles of white-painted fences frame the rolling countryside. Most horse farms welcome visitors to their grounds and paddocks which produce the top racers and trotters of the nation, and where future Kentucky Derby winners can be seen. Most of the horse farms lie in Fayette and adjoining counties, in a wide arc surrounding Lexington.

Around Lexington time stands still along scenic backroads, such as Shady Lane, the Iron-works Pike, Shannon Run and Yates Creek Pike. Each year thousands of sightseers visit Idle Hour, Main Chance, Spendthrift, Galumet, C. V. Whitney and many more horse farms whose colorful silks carry Kentucky's fame. On the Iron-works Pike is the statue and grave of the greatest of them all, Man o'War, known affectionately as "Big Red."

The Bluegrass is a cradle of learning, too, with the University of Kentucky, Transylvania (oldest college west of the Alleghenies), and the College of the Bible, in Lexington; Georgetown College at Georgetown; Kentucky State at Frankfort; Eastern State at Richmond; Centre at Danville; Berea College at Berea; Asbury College at Wilmore; and these junior colleges: Midway; St. Catharine, in Washington County, and Loretto in Marion County.

At Frankfort visitors discover one of the nation's prettiest state capitols. Guided tours are available at both the new State Capitol, completed in 1909, and the Old State House, now the home of the Kentucky Historical Society. You can see the Kentucky Legislature in session, trace your Kentucky ancestry in the Kentucky Historical Society library, or stare down the full six-foot-length of Daniel Boone's rifle, on display in the Society's museum.

Ol' Daniel himself is buried in Frankfort, along with his wife, on a bluff overlooking the Kentucky River. This river, with miles of pallsades, is one of the nation's loveliest waterways. From Frankfort travel south for good fishing at Herrington Lake near Harrodsburg and see Danville, the state's first capital.

For playgoers, Harrodsburg and Danville are "musts." Danville is the home of the Pioneer Playhouse, Kentucky's State theatre, where a different show is seen each week from mid-June to Labor Day.

"Home is the Hunter," saga of Kentucky's early days, is seen each summer at the Pioneer

Memorial State Park amphitheatre in Harrodsburg. The park, open all year, is a replica of Kentucky's first permanent settlement, Fort Harrod.

In the western end of the Bluegrass, white fences give way to split rails and you're in Lincoln county. Enshrined at Pioneer Memorial State Park is the Lincoln Marriage Temple, the cabin in which Abraham Lincoln's parents were wed. The original marriage bond is in the Springfield courthouse. Five miles north of Springfield, off U.S. 150, is the Lincoln homestead shrine that includes the restored cabin of Kentucky's first Lincoln, the president's grandfather.

Here also are the Berry House where Nancy Hanks lived during her courtship with Tom Lincoln, and the blacksmith and carpenter shop where Tom, the Great Emancipator's father, learned his trades. Combine your visit with a round of golf at Lincoln Homestead State Park's 18-hole course.

Kentuckians get sentimental when a famous Stephen Foster melody is heard. "My Old Kentucky Home" was composed by Foster during a visit to his cousin at Federal Hill in Bardstown. The estate is now a State shrine, open all year. In summer, in the amphitheatre at My Old Kentucky Home State Park, the heyday of steamboats and musical shows is re-created, complete with Foster melodies in a colorful presentation of "The Stephen Foster Story." Bardstown is also a distilling center.

Nearby is the famed Trappist monastery of Gethsemane, a retreat house for men, and source of Trappist cheese and other delicacies equal to any made in the famed abbeys of Europe.

The village of an extinct religious group, the Shaker (United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearance) is undergoing an extensive $2 million restoration on U.S. 68 near Harrodsburg. Dozens of the original Shaker-built structures, situated on 2,000 acres of choice Bluegrass land near the Kentucky River palisades, figure in the project. The buildings include solidly-built limestone "family" homes for the celibate believers, the old meeting house and work shops.

Two buildings are now open to visitors and include exhibits of Shaker artifacts and a pictorial history of this curious sect. The Trustee's House, originally used for meetings of the ruling elders and olderesses, will be opened in the spring of 1966 as the Shaker Inn. Overnight accommodations and dining facilities will be available.

Kentucky's Capital at Frankfort, completed in 1909, replacing the Old State House which now houses the State Historical Society and Museum.

Shakertown at Pleasant Hill, once the home of a now-vanished religious sect, is being restored near Harrodsburg at a cost of more than $2 million. It will be both a tourist complex and an educational center. Portions of the unusual attraction are now open to the public.

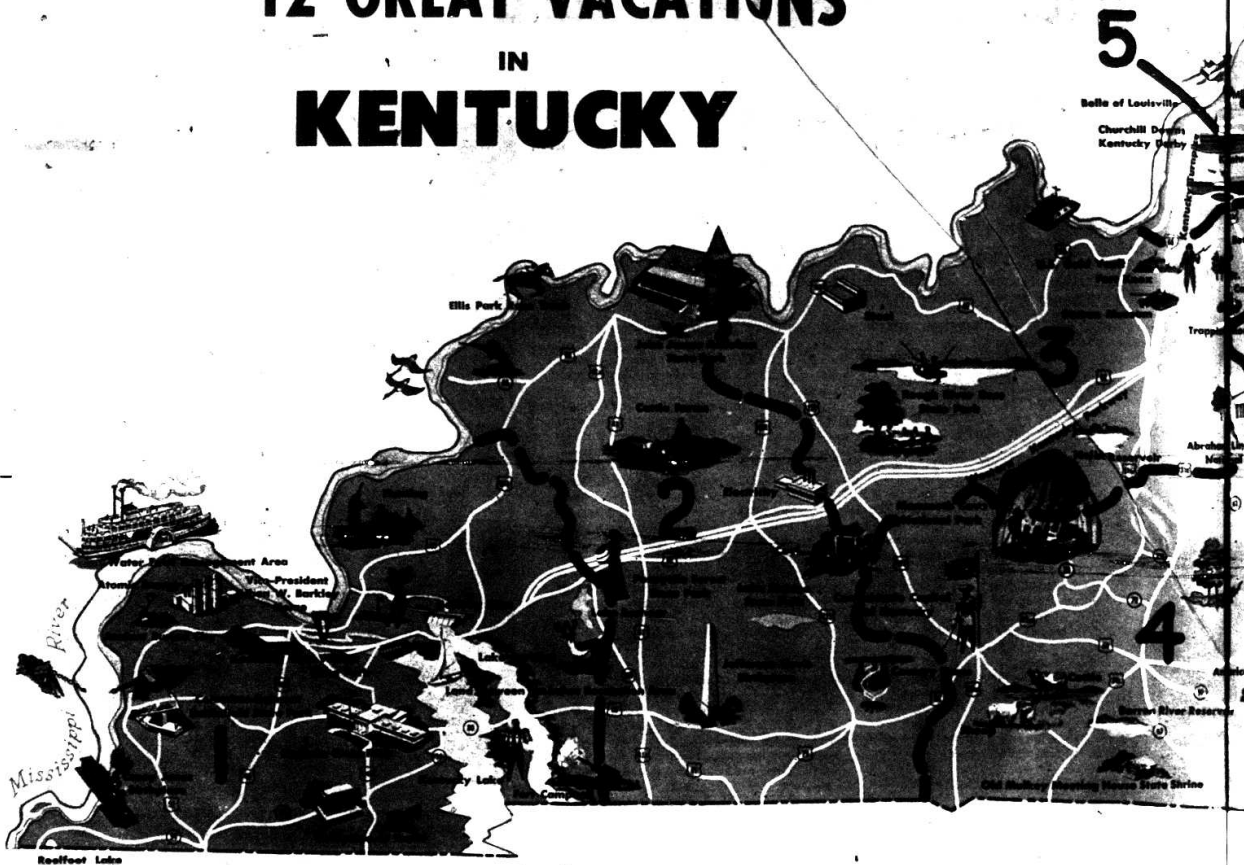

The dramatic story of Harrodsburg is told in "Home is the Hunter" at Pioneer Memorial State Park in Harrodsburg. Nearby, at Danville, Pioneer Playhouse, the State theatre, offers a series of plays. At Bardstown, another drama, "The Stephen Foster Story" plays at My Old Kentucky Home State Park.

Lush Bluegrass pasture, prancing thoroughbreds, gracious ante-bellum homes and miles of white fences delight visitors in the Thoroughbred horse farm country of the Central Kentucky Bluegrass area.

Lake Cumberland — Dale Hollow Region

Surrounded by beautiful Lake Cumberland, Burnside Island State Park is reached by a paved causeway. A beach, nine-hole golf course, picnic area and shelters, and tent and trailer parking are in the park, which is located at Burnside near Somerset.

Cumberland Falls State Park, near Corbin, is in the heart of the Cumberland National Forest. The famous falls are 68 feet high. There are excellent lodge and cottage accommodations, beach and pool swimming, camping, picnic areas, horseback riding and playground equipment at the park.

Vacationing in the forested foothills of the Cumberland Mountains in Southeastern Kentucky, you can lose yourself in magnificent, uncluttered scenery without being at "the ends of the earth."

Just look at the map and figure the mileage. From Columbus, Ohio, it is 334 miles and from Cincinnati only 203 to Cumberland Falls State Park in the heart of the region. And, from Huntington, W. Va., it is 252 miles; Roanoke, Va., 372; Charlotte, N. C., 300; Chattanooga, Tenn., 190; St. Louis, Mo., 455; and Indianapolis, 294.

Chicagoans are only 543 miles away, and if they like to camp, fish, or just while away the time in a congenial atmosphere, they find a trip to this region worthwhile.

Scenic beauty, excellent accommodations, food, hospitality and a variety of recreational facilities have made this area one of the fastest growing vacation centers in America.

Lake Cumberland, which averages more than 90 feet in depth, with a shoreline of 1,255 miles and clear azure waters, is a mecca for sightseers, anglers and boating enthusiasts.

De's Hollow Reservoir, spilling across the Kentucky-Tennessee border, has been giving record catches for years to fishermen from Kentucky, Tennessee and other states.

The Cumberland River, scene of mighty Cumberland Falls, provides fine fishing as do the Green, Rockcastle, Laurel and Dix rivers which flow through the region.

Part of the area falls deep within the Cumberland National Forest, where campers and others delight in the miles of shaded trails and wooded camping areas.

Real old country music and folk dancing are part of this area's way of life. At Renfro Valley, near Mt. Vernon, the two Saturday night barn dance shows (at 7 and 9 p.m.) to foot-tapping Bluegrass music, are a long-standing tradition. Square dancing is a popular pastime at Cumberland Falls State Park, near Corbin.

Colorful cotton skirts swirl, the fiddler's music rings out and experienced callers round the steps, handed down through generations. Beginners join in too, as instructors teach the intricate movements. At the park the dancing is often done under the stars.

The formation of Lake Cumberland by construction of Wolf Creek Dam was instrumental in converting this rugged region of Southeastern Kentucky into a haven for fishermen, campers, boaters and all who enjoy the great out-of-doors. Boat docks on the lake, including one at Lake

Cumberland State Park near Jamestown, are well-equipped and provide sportsmen with complete equipment for holiday fun. Boats, motors, bait, fishing tackle and launching ramps are available in all seasons.

Campers like this place too. There is a large tent and trailer camping area at the park with central service buildings and hot showers and rest rooms. Groceries and other supplies are available nearby. There's a new olympic swimming pool and a par-three golf course. (For those not so rugged, the park has a modern lodge and complete vacation cottages.)

A second State park on Lake Cumberland is General Burnside Island, at Burnside. Formed when the lake backed into the South Fork of the Cumberland River, inundating all but the top of the island hill, the park is reached by paved causeway. It offers swimming, boating, fishing, picnicking, golf on a new nine-hole course and plenty of island camping space.

Lake Cumberland has bumper crops of crappie, usually best fished on minnows along the bank at a depth of 15 to 20 feet. The white bass jumps are renowned and black bass, bluegill, trout and sauger add to the variety.

In the evening, campfires flicker as the day's catch sizzles and browns in hot-iron skillet and happy campers prepare fish and hush puppies for the night's feast.

Magnificent Cumberland Falls, the Niagara of the South, has for years been one of the top tourist attractions of the Southern United States. Cumberland Falls is alternately awesome and exhilarating. By day it is a sparkling cataract, by night a mysterious marvel.

When the moon is full, the mist from the Falls shows a broad, clear moonbow. It's the only moonbow seen in the Western Hemisphere—the only other one in the world is at Victoria Falls, South Africa.

The State park at Cumberland Falls has lodge and cottage accommodations as well as camping areas. To the delight of nature lovers, trails criss-cross the park, with markers designating species of trees and plants.

You can find good, satisfying food all over the region. The dining rooms in the parks and the many motels and restaurants specialize in regional foods and Southern dishes. The area is noted for Kentucky-cured hams, fresh pan-fish and hush puppies. In the Lake Cumberland-Dale Hollow region the lakes and rivers are calling and so is Old Kentucky Ham sliced thick, with plenty of hot biscuits and red-eye gravy.

Visiting Lake Cumberland is a traveler's treat. The State park's 24-unit lodge and dining room offer the finest accommodations to guests who want to enjoy the fishing, boating, water-skiing and swimming on the 50,250-acre lake, or horseback riding, pool-swimming and other forms of recreation also available. In addition to the lodge, there are complete vacation cottages and camping facilities at the park, located near Jamestown.

Greenbo Lake, with 225 acres of fishing, swimming and boating waters, attracts thousands to a park near Ashland. Complete dock facilities, beach and picnic area with shelter house, are all available at Greenbo Lake State Park.

Campers delight in Falmouth Lake State Park's many ideal tent and trailer locations and swimming, boating and fishing. There is also a playground and picnic area at the park located at Falmouth in Pendleton County.

The HISTORIC GATEWAY

Kentucky's Historic Gateway, lying on a wide arc on the Ohio River at Kentucky's northeastern edge, combines the outer Bluegrass area, river bottomlands, knobs on the east, and ridges of Cumberland National Forest into one neat package representative of the state as a whole. Several lakes dot the area, and caves provide underground adventure.

You'll find many old families in the river towns with German-sounding names that bespeak their heritage. Germantown, founded by a Rhinelander who envisioned the Ohio Valley as a great wine-producing area, never saw this dream realized (you'll hardly see a grape) but offers visitors the state's oldest fair, dating from 1854. Originally, a get-together for German-speaking people up and down the river, the August fair includes music from the cone-topped handstand (kiosk), farm produce and other exhibits, and a popular "courtin' gallery" in the wooded circular amphitheatre.

Kentuckians in these parts were staunch defenders of the Union cause during the Civil War and in Vanceburg is the only Union monument erected at a courthouse south of the Mason-Dixon line.

Washington, in Mason County, however, contains the birthplace of Confederate General Albert Sidney Johnston. The two-story white frame building was originally a log house, dating from before 1800. Also in the town is the slave block on the courthouse green where Harriet Beecher Stowe, later to write "Uncle Tom's Cabin," saw slaves sold at auction.

The land here is good farming country and you'll see field dotted with broad-leaved tobacco, acres of corn and bright green gardens. Brooksville, a center of the tobacco-growing area, claims the honor of the discovery of Burley tobacco.

Carlisle is famous for blackberries, and holds an annual Blackberry Festival with plenty of pies, ice cream and other delicacies concocted from the fruit on hand.

For a spectacular view of the nearby forested mountains, visit the Cumberland National Forest Lookout Tower in the Clearfield area five miles southeast of Morehead. From the glass-topped observatory 1,100 feet above sea level, you will see a magnificent panorama of mountain scenery and can pick out a camping or picnic site.

For railroad buffs, a visit to Clearfield is worthwhile to see in operation one of the nation's few remaining steam-powered railroads, the Morehead and North Fork, a line only four miles long.

Ten of Kentucky's 18 remaining covered bridges cross streams and rivers in the Gateway area. Included are the state's oldest, the longest single-span bridge, and the world's only suspension-covered bridge. The latter, known as the Sherburne Bridge and located on the Fleming-Bath County line, was built over the Licking River in 1867-68.

The oldest timbered bridge in Kentucky, built in the 1820's, spans Locust Creek near Wellburg in Bracken County. Tables and outdoor grills are scattered around the bridge for photo enthusiasts. Maps and information on the location of Kentucky's 18 covered bridges may be obtained from the Kentucky Covered Bridge Association, Box 100, Newport, Ky., 41072.

Bridges mean water and there's no shortage of streams and lakes in this Gateway to history area. Two of the largest lakes are Falmouth, in the northwestern part just off U.S. 27, and Greenbo, about 15 miles from Ashland.

Long strings of bass, crappie, bluegill, channel catfish, walleye pike and several species of rough fish are taken daily from the two lakes. Launching ramps are provided at both places or fishermen may rent boats at the docks. Woodlands around the water beckon campers to pitch their tents and for swimmers there are sandy beaches and bathhouses.

Kimmincock Creek, which flows through Lewis County, is also noted both for scenery and fish. And in Cynthiana, a marker attests to the skills of an early Kentucky fisherman, Dr. James A. Henshall, who lived nearby and fished the Licking River during the late 1800's. One of America's foremost authorities on the black bass, he authored the classic "Book of Black Bass," was a pioneer fly fisherman and an authority on the famous Kentucky multiplying reel.

The resort center for vacationers is Carter Caves State Park, off U. S. 60 between Grayson and Olive Hill. The 1,000-acre park, complete with a new 28-room lodge, has three caverns where guided tours are conducted. Camping and supervised recreation for the youngsters, plus a sandy beach, bathhouse, and boat dock on sparkling Smoky Valley Lake round out the vacation offerings.

Still another State Park in the Gateway area is Blue Licks Battlefield State Park, on historic U.S. 68. The road was once the old Buffalo Trace which cut a wide path from Maysville on the Ohio River to the Blue Licks and other beasts off the plains. The last battle of the Revolutionary War was fought at Blue Licks nearly a year after the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, in August 1782.

Also on the park grounds are picnic shelters, bathhouse, swimming pool, playground facilities, and a museum with eloquent exhibits tracing the history of the Blue Licks area from the Ice Age through the Revolutionary War battle.

Lighted displays tell the story of pioneer life and the history of the area around Blue Licks Battlefield State Park, Mt. Olive, where an important battle occurred in 1782 between Kentuckians, Indian braves and British soldiers. An 80-foot swimming pool, picnic shelter and hiking trails help make a visit to Blue Licks pleasant and interesting.

In a land of natural bridges, caves, and virgin forests are Smoky Valley Lake and Carter Caves State Park, between Olive Hill and Grayson. A 28-room, modern lodge with dining room, vacation cottages, swimming area, guided cave tours, plus a nine-hole golf course, make vacationing fun at this mountain resort.

Land of NATURAL BRIDGES

"The wild, lonely, beautiful country," a writer has described the natural bridge country of central eastern Kentucky. "Wild with its rivers grimly marked in swift shoals and hidden rocks, lonely in that you can go for miles along its riverbanks without seeing more than a house or two, and made beautiful by its brilliant streaks of flowers and trees and sky."

The rivers - the Licking, the Rockcastle, the Kentucky and its forks, and the Red - were the original highways to and from American man's early settlements.

The Palisades of the Kentucky once echoed to the chatter and songs of Daniel Boone. "Big Jim" McBride, James Harrod, Doctor Thomas Walker and John Shuffelbean, as well as to the shouts of river pirates who lay in wait for unsuspecting travelers.

The fact is, both pioneers and Indians were relative newcomers compared to the ancient Adena people, among the earliest inhabitants in all North America. Their burial mounds, constructed about 800 years before the birth of Christ, are still being located here in present-day Wolfe and Montgomery counties.

Nature had a mischievous heyday here, creating fascinations like Hell's Half Acre and Tea Kettle Rock, near Salyersville. And within Cumberland National Forest is the Red River Valley, just off the new Mountain Parkway.

Three-story-high Sky Bridge, Half Moon Princess, Rock Bridge and world-famous Natural Bridge, are stone arches cut many thousands of years ago from an ancient sea bottom. Scenic hiking trails, creeks stocked with rainbow trout, special hunting preserves, and the Red River Gorge Drive lead from one attraction to another, then back to Natural Bridge State Park's modern Hemlock Lodge, fine dining room, big pool and cottages.

Not very far to the south, off Kentucky 52, is Glen Eden Falls, where no picnicker can pause without a hearty chuckle. For it was here that fiery circuit-rider Lorenzo Dow delivered an old-fashioned sermon seated on his trusty mount.

While Preacher Dow warned his flock of the perils of hell, the horse, no doubt frightened at the prospects, suddenly bolted over the sheer cliff. The good reverend grabbed the limb of an overhanging cedar tree and, saved by an alert listener, completed the lesson of the day with feet firmly planted on the ground.

One historic spot to see in Powell County is lofty Pilot Knob, located at the Westend intersection of Ky. 11 and 15 close to the Mountain Parkway. From this height on June 1, 1769, Daniel Boone and his exploring party first viewed the "beautiful levels of Kentucky" - the Bluegrass area. The superb view from the Knob takes in the towns and surrounding countryside of Winchester and Mount Sterling.

In the Frenchburg area, old ~~gas~~-powered sorghum mills provide visitors with a scene that is fast vanishing from America. Travelers can satisfy their "sweet tooth" merely by pulling over to the roadside and buying excellent sorghum straight from the cane fields.

Around Beattyville is a recreation and sportsman's paradise, at the junction of the three forks of the Kentucky River. In the city and close by are a good-sized public swimming pool and a modern public golf course and driving range.

Nearly Surgeon Creek, emptying into the Kentucky River at Heidelberg, has excellent stocks of bass, muskie and rock perch. The waters are bounded by beautiful picnic grounds.

A few miles from Beattyville is The Cathedral, started about 10 years ago as an Episcopalian mission priest's labor of love. The wooden structure is impressive with its massive Gothic roof, columns and gables.

Wild Dog Creek, once the site of a great lumber operation in Owsley and Jackson counties, is now a ghost town. It is, however, an ideal spot for out-of-the-way hiking, in-season hunting, fishing and just plain exploring. It can be reached via an excellent U. S. Forest Service road, off the New Zion Road.

One source of some of the mountain ballads we hear today, telling bittersweet stories of the past, is "Bloody Breathitt." This beautiful county was bloodstained by the feuds that once raged among the ridge clans. In World War I, Breathitt County was the only county in the United States from which not one person was drafted; reason was that when war was declared every able-bodied man and youth in the county volunteered. Today, however, the visitor need have no fear as he enjoys open-handed hospitality and the spacious scenery of the Kentucky River's North Fork or takes in the quaint and useful mountain crafts.

Near the town of Jackson is newly-completed, 102-acre Panbowl Lake, 19th link in Kentucky's many-purpose "chain of lakes" developed since 1960.

Nailor's Rock, just a few miles southwest of Jackson, identifies the spot where Nailor sought the fabled lost silver mine of John Swift, said to be hidden in the area. He sank a mine shaft near the unusual rock-pedestal formation that today bears his name, but never found the hidden lode, nor has anyone else.

Whatever the modern traveler's quest in these parts - whether it's for fun and relaxation, a busman's holiday, a prow for antiques, or serious historical interest, it's all here to be found. The beaten path is available in the form of the Mountain Parkway and other new or improved roads, or the off-beat trail may be leisurely explored.

The outgoing, friendly nature of the people will like as not draw you to the front porch of some cross-roads store to join the leisurely talk of a region where time presses very lightly.

Sky Bridge, on Red River in Wolfe County, is a startling natural rock formation in the Cumberland National Forest. A favorite spot for sightseers, Sky Bridge is located just off the Mountain Parkway on Ky. 715 near Pine Ridge.

Kentucky's scenic Mountain Parkway, stretching from the lush Bluegrass region near Winchester through the heart of the land of natural bridges and shaded forest trails, is a main gateway to popular vacation areas in the Cumberlands.

Kentucky's Natural Bridge State Park lies within huge Cumberland National Forest. Unusual rock formations, arches, bridges, tunnels, and balanced rocks add interest to mountain scenery. The new lodge provides modern accommodations and excellent food at moderate prices. Swimming, fishing, horseback riding and hiking the many miles of trails are among popular vacation activities at Natural Bridge.

Pathway of the PIONEERS

A great way to enjoy America's sights is to "follow" the pioneers who made this land - from the Plymouth Rock landing of the Puritans to the beckoning romance of the Old West.

Worth exploring as the first great frontier in the west is a misty, wooded passage - the Cumberland Gap, where today the commonwealths of Kentucky and Virginia and the state of Tennessee join. In 1750, from atop Pinnacle Mountain, Doctor Thomas Walker caught the white man's first glimpse of the Indian's "Happy Hunting Grounds." And here young Daniel Boone led an early party of settlers through.

An early English tourist wrote prophetically of the new territories then just opening up:

"Kentucky ... is extending in every direction over a tract of the finest and most fertile country in the world; and it is from ... this vast country that America will derive her future greatness and establish new empires ... Here surely is a rational and ample field for the well regulated imagination of the philosopher and politician!!!"

However, few politicians or philosophers were among the rough-and-ready war veterans who pushed through the Gap after the Revolutionary War. They envisioned better ahead, save a hard life, maybe good crops in the field, and wild game to kill. Such a man was Abraham Lincoln Sr., killed in an Indian raid long before the birth of his namesake and grandson, the 16th American President.

Today, the visitor can share the feelings of these hardy pioneers on an exciting hike along Boone's Trace and the historic wagon trail, Wilderness Road. On the way, he can find choice camping near old McFargue's Mill and a second-structed village - complete with split-rail fences, log cabins and authentic pioneer's tools, in Levi Jackson State Park, near Corbin.

The Civil War wrote more chapters in the history of the Cumberland's key mountain doorway for the opposing armies. Occupied until late 1862 by Union forces, the passage then fell into Confederate hands thanks to "Long Tom," then the biggest gun in service. Pioneer families whose forefathers together had fought to tame the region found themselves at odds in the tragic conflict.

At the entrance to vast Cumberland Gap National Historical Park in Middlesboro, a city unlike any in Appalachia. Founded in 1868, it was built as a model town by British capitalists interested in the area's coal, iron and timber resources. The wide and long avenues, stately homes, and golf course - oldest in the United States - show a planning vision unusual for that day.

Song and story play a great part in the area. Happy fiddles and haunting dulcimers ring out in the wooded hollows and many a mountaineer has a wide reputation for his "tall tales" or folk tales. Collectors of almost-forgotten ballads and stories sift through the mountain area for the rich words handed down from one generation to another. And you'll find the singers and story tellers are always eager for an audience.

But there is more to the land of the pioneers than its rich and historic past.

Mountain laurel, rhododendron and the bright blooms of other wildflowers deck the hills.

A few miles up the road from Middlesboro at Pineville, beautiful Laurel Cove, a natural amphitheatre, is host each May to the Mountain Laurel Festival where a bevy of Kentucky beauties seek the crown of the Laurel Queen. A month later, and continuing through August, "The Book of Job" - a choral drama based on the Bible story - is staged by actors elaborately made-up and costumed in imitation of European religious mosaics. Both these events are at Pine Mountain State Park, a modern vacation resort with lodge, cottages, pool, golf course and many other attractions.

The great Pine Mountain range is a nature-lover's delight, with magnificent vistas of rolling hills and remote hollows, wildflowers and, last but not least, Little Shepherd Trail, which extends 38 miles along the mountains' crest and commemorates novelist John Fox Jr.'s beloved stories. Kingdom Come State Park is being developed near the trail.

No description of the area would be complete without a mention of "King Coal." Middlesboro's town fathers saw fit to construct their chamber of commerce building from blocks of this mineral. From Harlan, "Coal Capital of Kentucky," the first railroad was retrofitted out in 1911. Nearby is Lynch, a model mining town developed by the U. S. Steel Corporation around the largest underground coal mine in Kentucky, if not in the world.

The famed Daniel Boone Festival at Barboursville is the scene of the annual revival of a treaty between Kentucky and the Cherokees. No store-bought or Hollywood Indians here: Cherokees come, robed in full tribal regalia, from the Quallish Reservation in the Great Smokies.

Food in the region is hearty and at Harlan there is a fun-filled annual festival based on the mouth-watering poke salet greens. This true mountain-style feast, attended by thousands, consists of the wild poke greens, onions, corn-pone and buttermilk. Or, to the northwest, you can buy some real homemade Swiss cheese at Bernstadt, for 80 years a miniature "Switzerland in Appalachia."

You'll find charming locally-made handicrafts at Harlan and along picturesque backroads that follow the mountain valleys.

At Buckhorn Lake, a state park with a brand-new lodge awaits the traveler following the pioneers' pathway. Located at Buckhorn, a charming valley community with several homes and buildings constructed of logs, the park also offers picnicking and a playground area and swimming, boating and fishing in the 1,200-acre lake.

To top off such a richly historic and truly different vacation a restful stay might be in order at Cumberland Falls, the Niagara of the South. When the moon is bright (honeymooners, take note), the mist from the cascading waters shows a clear mombow, said to be the only one greater than Africa's Victoria Falls.

The old grist mill at Levi Jackson State Park, near London, recalls bustling activity of pioneer days. Numerous items of a bygone era are displayed in the Levi Jackson museum, and swimming and camping are popular at the park.

"The Book of Job" plays nightly except Sundays in the Laurel Cove Amphitheatre at scenic Pine Mountain State Park near Pineville. Play time is 8:30. The park has a modern lodge, vacation cottages and camping area, and facilities for boating and swimming.

Headquarters of Buckhorn Lake State Park at Buckhorn is a new ultra-modern lodge with 24 rooms. New facilities here include a boat dock, beach, bathhouse and picnic shelter building. The 1,230-acre lake has developed into a great fishing center.

The Pinnacle Overlook in Cumberland Gap National Historical Park near Middlesboro offers a breathtaking panorama of mountain scenery. With the discovery of this pass through the hitherto impenetrable Allegheny Mountains, the wilderness became accessible to the pioneer and conquest of the American West began.

KENTUCKY HIGHLANDS

Towns named Beauty and Lovely give the casual map-reader a clue about Kentucky's magic mountains, for this area holds some of the state's most majestic scenery. Mountain folk believe the altitude of the Southern Appalachians puts the area a bit closer to heaven than other places, and you'll find them to be hospitable people.

Rugged scenery offers choice spots for campers and canoeists, explorers and sportsmen but for those who desire the easier life, State park lodges and fine motel-hotel accommodations are available.

The Kentucky Highlands area was a main passageway to the early west. Its people are an earthy blend of Scotch, Irish, and Welsh settlers. High-perched homes many times are reached by swinging bridges which straddle the "hollers" from highway to home site. But within sight of some of these footholds are modern, limited access highways. The Mountain Parkway, starting east at Winchester, is completed through to Salyersville while Interstate 64 to the north is inching its way toward Ashland.

Ashland is a steel-making center and the industrial hub of Kentucky's eastern border. Here the big furnaces play their reflections on the waters of the Big Sandy River. The town is the home of the annual American Folk Song Festival, founded 35 years ago by Jean Thomas, the Traipsin' Woman of Ashland.

The festival, held early each June, takes place on the grounds of the founder's Wee House in the Wood, on Cogan Street. The rough stage is built on the front of a century-old McCuffey log schoolhouse. Courting and answer-back ballads, work songs of the Big Sandy, and topical songs which were contemporary music to the early settlers are kept alive here. Accompaniment is provided by cornstalk fiddles, gourd banjos and dulcimers. Miss Thomas' museum-home is open to visitors the year round.

The Big Sandy river system, with more forks than a formal dinner, bathes almost the entire mountain area. This built-in transportation system, together with the heavily timbered hillsides, gave birth to the first boomtowns in the region, all lumbering centers. Oak, maple, nilp and hickory brought top prices in England for hull beams of ships, in France for wine casks, and in Italy for fine furniture.

At about the same time, the Kentucky Highlands were providing bear skins for the elegant headgear of Napoleon's armies. Within three years 8,000 bearskins were taken by hunters for adornment of the conqueror's forces. Later, another natural resource, coal, came into the picture. Today gas wells are also seen in the area.

Most of the land in the Highlands greets visitors with sweeping vistas, luxuriant in the colors of the season. The most storied spots are along the Little Shepherd Trail, named for the John Fox Jr. Civil War era novel, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which described the Pine Mountain setting of the trail.

This rugged, challenging trail is approached by U.S. 421, Ky. 160, or U.S. 119. Valleys and pinnacles hold delights for the rock collector, wildflower enthusiast, or birdwatcher and there are no commercial developments to distract the plain sight-seers. Dotted the trail are 14 picnic areas, including Table Rock Overlook where a huge stone slab serves as a table. The trail's highest spot is Holcomb Spur, 2,880 feet above sea level. And within sight of the trail is Kentucky's highest-peak, Big Black Mountain, 4,150 feet.

Although level land is precious here - one laconic soul declared "there never was much and we're not making any more" - the area does have appeal for the non-hiker who confines his climbing to getting in or out of his car. Such a vacationer will find that Jenny Wiley State Park between Prestonsburg and Painsville combines the mountain scenery with resort luxury. Many recreation facilities are at hand for more energetic moments.

The park is situated on a knoll overlooking Brandy Keg Cove of Dewey Lake. The 1,150-acre impoundment with an abundance of bass, crappie, bluegill, and walleyed pike provides challenge to the fisherman. A swimming pool, nine-hole golf course, sand beach, horseback riding, boating and water skiing take visitors outdoors from the sparkling new 36-room resort lodge.

Southeast from Prestonsburg through Pikeville and on to the Kentucky-Virginia border is some of the nation's finest scenery at Breaks Interstate Park. A unique undertaking of the two states, it is set on the rim of a steep canyon cut out through the mountains by the Russell Fork of the Big Sandy.

The water, twisting and turning, spills through the five-mile-long cut, faced with steep 1,000-foot walls most of the way. Sometimes called "Grand Canyon of the South," the cut winds around the Towers, a pyramid-shaped formation of rocks about half a mile long and as wide. Here, some say, fabled John Swift and his band cached away a vast fortune in silver. (Alas, neither the Swift Silver Mine nor the treasure has been located.)

The wide variety of plant life from the Canyon floor to the rim is dominated by rhododendron which blossoms out in the early spring. The flower lends its name to the new Rhododendron Lodge. Camping sites, trails and scenic overlooks abound.

The road from Pikeville south through the Cumberlands affords scenic vistas at frequent intervals. Especially good is the view from the mountaintop near Whitesburg. Worth a special visit is picturesque Pigeon Loyal College at Pippa Passes, near Hindman.

Fish, fresh from Dewey Lake, the Big Sandy, or other waters of the Kentucky Highlands, are just the beginning of the area's distinctive food. Mountain folk know that wild greens, gathered at their tenderest peak in the spring, are good eating, especially with homemade cornbread and a pitcher of butter-milk alongside.

Delicious too, are shuckey beans dried in the shell, either strung crosswise on long threads or cut in pieces and laid out in the sun. Brittle and shiny when dried, shuckey beans are also called "leatherbritches". They are prepared by cooking slowly with only salt pork for seasoning. Stack cake, tiers of ginger-flavored cake with dried apple filling in between, is the Kentucky Highlands version of fruitcake. Another tempting specialty is stack pie, a concoction of several pastry rounds filled with fruit, most often blackberries.

May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg overlooks 860-acre Dewey Lake. In addition to the 200-seat dining room and a swimming pool for lodge guests, Jenny Wiley has vacation cottages, a nine-hole golf course and excellent fishing and boating.

Scenic covered bridge - the Yatesville Bridge in Lawrence County - is one of 18 remaining in Kentucky. This timbered span carries considerable traffic over Blaine Creek.

Guided tours by organized groups are welcome at Ashland Oil and Refining Company operations in the Ashland area. It ranks in the top 500 corporations of the nation.

High above Russell Fork of the Big Sandy River, near Elkhorn City, Breaks Interstate Park encompasses an area of 1,250 acres on the Kentucky-Virginia border. Dramatic views earned the park its nickname, "Grand Canyon of the South."

Robert D. Bell Heads State Parks

Kentucky's State Parks Commissioner Robert D. Bell has an interest in parks development and progress dating back to 1950. Then the parks agency was a division in the State Conservation Department, and Bell was executive to the conservation commissioner, Henry Ward.

The 39-year-old Lexington native was named parks commissioner in 1963 by Governor Edward T. Breathitt. He brought to the job a background of nine years experience in State government and five years of private business.

In addition to his service in the one-time parks division, Bell has also been a deputy commissioner of highways and State Revenue Commissioner.

KENTUCKY VACATION

Shepherd Trail atop Pine Mountain, the pioneer traces are seen everywhere.

The Kentucky Highlands captures repeat vacationers year after year. Here along the eastern border the Big Sandy River, with its many branches and forks, leads the way from Ashland in the north down past Jenny Wiley State Park and beyond the Breaks Interstate Park on the Kentucky-Virginia border. Along the way, through the Highlands, the mountain spirit and hospitality are prevalent and the mountain food is delicious.

Visit Any Time

Any time is a good time to vacation in Kentucky. From the first rustles of spring the greenening meadows and hillsides are refreshing. Long summer days bring fresh-grown produce from Kentucky gardens and lazy hours or busy playtime in the golden sunshine.

Then come Indian-Summer and autumn-many say Kentucky's best season.

Woodlands Abound

Nearly half of all Kentucky's variety-packed acres are in woods or forest lands and the state is in the direct path of the fortunate strip of the U.S. where leaves turn every brilliant hue and blanket the ground with fallen gold in autumn.

The vacationers not only can choose from a dozen choice vacations and return year after year for new pleasures in Kentucky's distinctive regions - he can pick his own favorite vacation season.

Kentucky's Travel Industry And How It Grew

Kentucky was actually, if unofficially, the first national park in America. The various Indian tribes set aside this land south of the Ohio for a mutual camping and hunting ground. The first "tourists" here were the Indians who found in the "Happy Hunting Ground" a paradise of wildlife, fishing streams and camping spots in the lush and bountiful land.

These first travelers to Kentucky were drawn by word-of-mouth publicity - from tribe to tribe - with perhaps a few smoke signals thrown in - and while no records of "tourist revenues" are available from those early days, indications are that the first Kentucky visitors took out much more in buffalo, fish, wild turkeys and other game than they ever contributed to the state's prosperity.

Kentucky today still maintains its reputation for good hunting, fishing and camping, and with the modern additions of resort parks, new man-made lakes, and ultra-modern highways to ease the traveler's way, the tourists of the 1960's are starting to tie the Bluegrass State in record numbers.

Kentucky no longer depends on word-of-mouth advertising alone to tell the story of the state's attractions. Every means of modern communication is used to attract more and more travelers.

Development of Kentucky's tourist industry has been highly successful. Out-of-state visitors to Kentucky in 1964 alone totaled more than 22 million - and they spent more than $238 million while they were here - an increase of 183 per cent since 1948.

Tourism Big Business

Travel and tourism as a potential multi-million dollar industry was not really recognized in Kentucky until the post-World War II days, although development of the first State Park - at Pine Mountain - had begun in 1924, and the first national park - the Abraham Lincoln National Historical Site at Hodgenville - dated back as far as 1909. (Mammoth Cave, discovered around 1798, was a public show-place by 1837 but did not join the national park system until 1941.)

The first big organized parks push was begun in 1948 by then-governor Earl C. Clements and was followed by his successor Lawrence W. Wetherby. Prior to 1948, 17 State parks and shrines had been dedicated, but the real resort-style attractions available today had not been developed. By 1955, these two governors had devoted $8.3 million to development of Kentucky's recreation areas. Tourist expenditures increased by an average of $8.8 million a year during the eight-year period, rising from $84 million in 1948 to $146 million in 1955.

Both Kentucky Dam Village and Kenlake State parks were dedicated in 1948, and the first modern resort lodge was built at Kenlake in 1951. Lake Cumberland State Park was dedicated in 1954, and a lodge and vacation cottages were added. Isaac Shelby State Shrine and Carter Caves Park were added to the system, as were the Kentucky-Virginia Breaks Interstate Park and the National Cumberland Gap Historical Park. Improvements were made all over the existing parks system.

One park was dedicated during the period from 1955 to 1960 - General Burnside Island in 1955.

1960 Parks Boost

In 1960, the parks program received its second big boost. In November of that year Governor Bert Combs asked for and received from the public approval of a $10 million bond issue for parks development. An additional $9.9 million was made available in 1962 and, in 1965, under Governor Edward T. Breathitt the program continued with $3 million provided for parks improvements. A bond issue, slated for submission to the voters in the fall of 1965, will contain an additional $4.5 million for parks which, matched by available Federal funds, will bring the total to $9 million.

During the $20 million expansion period that began in 1960, nine new parks were dedicated - at Big Bone Lick, Falmouth Lake, Greenbo Lake, Buckhorn Lake, Jenny Wiley at Dewey Lake, Kingdom Come atop Pine Mountain, Lake Malone, Rough River at Falls of Rough, and Boonesborough on the Kentucky River.

New Lodges Built

Twelve of the State parks now have modern, architecturally-nosed vacation lodges - eight of them new, two with new additions, and two completely remodeled since 1960.

The funds provided in 1965 are building additions to lodges at several parks and providing 600 new camping sites and 160 covered boat slips. Money from the 1965 bond issue will be used to develop two new full-scale resort parks, for which land has been acquired - the Barren River Reservoir Park in southern Kentucky, and the Barkley Lake Park at the site of newly-impounded, 45,600-acre Barkley Lake in western Kentucky. Several other sites for new parks or shrines are being investigated for development in the upcoming expansion program.

But parks expansion and development do not write the whole story of Kentucky's successful tourist industry, expecting to pull a quarter of a billion dollars from out-of-state travelers this year, and already employing some 65,400 people in travel-related businesses.

New lakes have been built. Big New Land Between the Lakes National Recreation Area will be a great magnet, and - most important of all - private industry has made great investments to serve the traveler. New restaurants, motels, hotels, swimming pools, golf courses and other entertainment facilities have been built.

Promotes Good

Promotion of Kentucky's scenic beauties, water paradises, parks and private vacation spots, and many other attractions, has developed at a fast pace.

Determined to develop the tools needed to make Kentucky an outstanding state for tourists, the State recognized the need for an agency to promote Kentucky's attractions.

The Department of Public Information was created in 1961 to do this job and the budget for attracting travelers was doubled. A broad but intensive program to reach the tourist was developed.

In 1965 alone more than five million color travel folders are being printed and distributed - 12 times as many as in 1960. Close to a half-million pieces of literature are passed out at annual exhibits in out-of-state travel and sports shows.

A national advertising campaign in major newspapers and magazines helps draw travelers to the Bluegrass. The department's mail, asking for information on Kentucky attractions, averages nearly 7,000 requests a week six months out of the year.

Movies are filmed for both in and out-of-state showing, and this year three new films with more than a hundred prints will be placed on distribution.

While the department mails frequent stories and photographs to publications and editors across the country, with special press kits to 600 publications each spring and fall, the State recognizes the value of also having out-of-state travel writers see for themselves the beauty of the Commonwealth.

Travel Tours

Travel writers from leading out-of-state publications are secured on special tours, in groups of 20 or 30, in the spring and fall. This year, the department snagged a special plum when it convinced the Society of American Travel Writers to hold its annual convention in Kentucky. Representing some of the nation's top publications, this group will spend nine days this fall, meeting and exploring Kentucky's travel assets.

The 1964 Kentucky Legislature, provided $115,000 for a new Kentucky travel advertising matching fund. Starting July 1 this money, with local matching funds, is helping to promote-tourist attractions across the state.

Information centers, speeches, contacts with automobile clubs, tour services and cooperation with many citizens, companies and organizations also engaged in promoting Kentucky are all part of the work to attract tourist dollars to Kentucky.

Kentucky currently has an estimated $750 million travel service and transport business. Close to 15,000 firms in the state are engaged in the travel business - about a fifth of the total number of business firms in the state.

That Kentucky does not plan to slow down or stop the growth of travel is evident in the plans for the future - more highways and parks being developed and increasing promotion for the whole travel picture. Kentucky's travel industry will continue to grow, bringing more happy travelers and more tourist dollars and jobs for Kentuckians.

"WHERE THE BOONEWAY JOINS THE DIXIE"
VOLUME 78—NUMBER 48

THURSDAY, AUGUST 19, 1965

MOUNT VERNON, KENTUCKY

ALMOST READY - Above is a picture of the new sewage disposal plant on Town Branch at Mt. Vernon. A check with Engineer Jack Crawford shows that the sewer system will be tested in about two or three weeks, or weeks ahead of schedule. Some tests have been made at the plant. The plant is about 80 per cent complete, and installation of lines about 90 per cent complete, Mr. Crawford reported.

PRIMARY CLARIFIER - Into this bowl will go all sewage to be separated into solids and liquids and passed along to a disposer. In the foreground of the picture is a grider. An open house probably will be held at the plant after cut-over.

MARY, WHEELER - In the main pump room of the disposal plant there is a maze of wheels (wheels) to be turned on and off as needed. Several are out of the picture. Jack R. Craig, superintendent of water and sewer, is standing in the background.

Housing Official Visits Town

Several citizens from Livingston, including Mayor Calvin Webb, conferred with a representative of the Housing and Home Finance Agency Tuesday on Livingston's proposed housing project.

On hand to discuss the project was Agency official Robert Wootton of Atlanta, Ga.

Livingston has under study a federal low rent housing project for the city. The number of units would be determined only after a survey.

Mr. Wootton told the group that all Livingston has to do to get the money is to follow the Agency's rules and regulations on such items as electrical codes, building codes, sanitation, and water.

The official reported his Agency has considerable money available for housing projects. The projects are constructed through grants that do not have to be repaid.

Mr. Wootton recently got final approval on a project and is awaiting an architectural study, a survey, and a location. Brody has shown an interest also in a housing project.

On Dean's List

Wayne Mason Gregory, a senior at the University of Kentucky, was on the Dean's List for the summer semester at the University. He achieved a perfect 4-point standing in his courses. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gregory of Mt. Vernon.

Moonshine Still

A four barrel moonshine still, intact but not producing, was destroyed last week in Pine Hill Hollow by Deputy Sheriff Wayne VanHook and Federal Officer Dick Lutz. No one was in the vicinity of the still at the time.

PLAN PETITION FOR BLACKTOP

A petition with about 120 signatures will be presented to State Highway Department officials at Frankfort within a few days asking the state to blacktop the Brush Creek-Climax Road.

About 39 persons attending a meeting at Johnetta School recently agreed on the petition, and then at a later meeting agreed to present the petition to highway officials on Aug. 23.

The petition points out that the road as a major access road between US 26 and US 421, and that there is a large local population dependent on the 136 families live along the route from the point where the pavement ends at Orlando on Aug. 13.

The group also discussed the forthcoming road bond issue to be voted on in November.

Complex Course

Pvt. Billy J. Robbins, son of Mrs. Bessie Robbins, Route 3, Mt. Vernon, completed a radio course at the Army Armor Center, Fort Knox, on Aug. 13.

During the ten-week course Robbins received instruction in basic radio theory and was taught the Morse Code.

The 22-year-old soldier entered the Army in March 1965 and completed basic training at Fort Knox.

He attended Mt. Vernon High School.

THAT ROAD BUSINESS

It's good to know that folk other places know we're a route. Or so we indicated by the flurry of letters from people in "high places" we have received the last few days concerning the proposed Lexington - to - Chattanooga highway. As we see it, Spindletop may make the vital difference in the routing one way or the other. Looking at the situation, we would like to see the route we still have some hope the new road will go down KY 461 because of distance and cost. We only lack one trump card - Highway Commissioner Henry Ward.

A GLAMOROUS NAME

Speaking of the proposed road and the state's wish to take it down KY 80 to London, one thing is certain. There'll be quite a bridge over the Rockcastle River. True, the Western United has the Golden Gate Bridge, but the Eastern United States will have the Rockcastle River Bridge. We ought to choose a glamorous name for the bridge for the benefit of tourists, if any accidentally go that way.

BRING OUT THE FANS

High temperatures and high humidity combined this week to bring out the fans. All-entirely correct report of 102 degrees Sunday. The official temperatures recorded by Bill Cox at the Weather Bureau Station at Mt. Vernon were not as high. Here they are since last Sunday, 90; Saturday, 91; Sunday, 93; Monday, 95; Tuesday, 93. It's really the good old summer time.

CHANGES IN PRINCIPAL

Eddie Hurt tells us that he has decided to stay on this year as Burrser at the Somerset Community College. He leaves the position as assistant principal at Brodhead last year and later reported he'd return to Brodhead in 1966. In his decision, he said, came this week.

PLENTY OF FISH

The Rockcastle Fish and Game Club reports they're going to the Brodhead Fairgrounds on Aug. 26 for a fish fry. They report there'll be plenty of fish for members and guests going, serving begins at 6 p. m.

FOR THOSE WHO ASKED

No, only one State Trooper (Gary Godby) is assigned permanently to Rockcastle at this time for patrol duty. Since most reports of accidents and other items, must be official, we'll have to wait until later for more detailed reports. Trooper Godby does not investigate all wrecks.

A FAMILY TREE

Our old friend, James Henderson of Hamilton, Ohio, and "skin" as he calls it, of Dr. John D. Henderson, sends us a history of his family tree dating back to early England. It was interesting and we have passed it along to Dr. Henderson, and sons, for their files.

ON DISPLAY

The 1965 summer league bowling trophies for the Mt. Vernon Mixed League will be on display at Rush Jewelry Store for the next few days. The summer league ends next Tuesday night. Anyone interested in bowling in the fall and winter league should contact Mrs. Elmo Anderk of Jack Noe.

Assign McKinney

Army Pvt. James V. McKinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. McKinney, Route 1, Brodhead, was assigned to Battery D, 3rd Missile Battalion of the 66th Artillery in Bethel, Minn., Aug. 6.

The unit part of the national U. S. Army Air Defense Command, provides air defense in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

McKinney, a missile crewman with the unit, entered the Army in May of this year and received basic training at Fort Knox.

The 21-year-old soldier is a 1962 graduate of Brodhead High School.

Spindletop To Check Area During Survey Of New Road

Two Groups O K Bonds

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court and the Rockcastle County Farm Bureau are on record in support of the $178 million bond issue. The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court's endorsement was signed by Magistrate Sherman Sargent, John Houston, president, affixed his signature on the Rockcastle County Farm Bureau's endorsement. It was announced today by the Kentucky Better Roads Council, Lexington.

The endorsement points out that failure to approve the bond issue means that Kentuckians will pay their federal gasoline taxes and will receive nothing in return.

Approval of the bond issue, the resolution adds, means that Kentucky will get $697 million from Washington funds to continue the highway program.

Also endorsed in the endorsement was the $17.1 million set-aside for college and university construction. The care for the expanding student body attending the University of Kentucky and the state colleges.

No Rubber Bands

Don't use rubber bands to tie up tobacco leaves, warns Ira Massee, University of Kentucky Extension tobacco specialist. Use of rubber bands on your tobacco probably will cost you a lot of money when the crop is sold at market time, graders will be asked to search for rubber bands in tobacco, he says. If they are found or suspected, a "no grade" will be placed on the basket. Farmers also are liable for no support on their tobacco when rubber bands are used.

Game Club Writes Highway Department

The following letter was sent last week by the Rockcastle Fish and Game Club to the Appalachian Regional Commission, Washington, D. C. regarding the proposed alternate route running along I-75 to London, then south on KY 80 to Somerset, and then south to the Tennessee line. The distance via the Spindletop official said his survey would be complete for at least two weeks.

"It will take considerable time for us to collect all the information needed in this survey and then make a rational and sound judgment. When that report is ready we will release the information you request," the official said.

He pointed out that since the survey is made of all routes, it is not a "one-way" road, then all of Rockcastle County would have to be considered.

Mr. Wesley meant that KY 461 would be included in the survey since it is a major route in the county and a part of the economy of the county. Whether or not KY 80 will be included in the survey because of the survey, KY 461 probably remains for the report to clarify. A guess is that it will not be included.

"I cannot, of course, predict what is going to be said in the survey simply because the survey has not been done. It would be premature to say that."

From PTA's to Appalachia's Children: 1,000,000 Books

Children without books. Children attending schools that have hardly any books. These are the children of Appalachia...

Mrs. Jennelle Moorhead, national PTA president, picks out children's favorites for the bookcase box she's readying for shipment to Appalachia schools.

From this central collection point in Barbourville, Ky., books are distributed by the Appalachian Volunteer, an organization of college students who are devoting their free time to helping the deprived youngsters living along the mountain ridge in eastern Kentucky and neighboring states. Trained librarians on hand, in Barbourville, to help in assigning books to individual schools.

Books "most wanted" by teachers in the area have been listed for PTA's—and for other Americans who wish to contribute books for Appalachia's children through PTA's in their communities.

Selections range from Bible stories through the fairy tales of Hans Christian Andersen, from "All About Dinosaurs" to "All About Radio and Television."

in our form of government, which is a "representative democracy," all governmental functions are created on through elected officials, chosen by the voters of each governmental unit—nation, state, county, city, or district—as the case may be. Such elected officials represent "the people" of the governmental unit for which they are chosen—NO territories, land areas, farms, factories, roads, streets, nor houses—but "persons," men, women, and children,—of whatever race, creed, occupation, religious belief, or political persuasion.

A true "representative" must have thorough knowledge and full understanding of the needs, desires, and problems which face the "people" he represents. As a farmer, a teacher, a worker in coal mines, on railroad and highway construction jobs, timber-cutter and sawmill "hand", employee in defense plants, plus service in the U. S. Army in World War I, I have had formal education was secured in Berea Normal School, Eastern Kentucky State College, Peabody College (Nashville, Tenn.), and the College of Law in the University of Kentucky.

I served three terms as Lincoln County's Representative in the State Legislature, under three Governors,—Republican Simeon Willis, and Democrats Eddie Clements, and A. B. Chandler,—with each in mutual respect and good-will. I hope you will allow me to serve YOU as YOUR Representative and good-will. For a fourth term, come next January. To that end, I ask for YOUR VOTE and support in this Election.

SINCERELY YOURS,

Such elected officials represent "the people" of the governmental unit for which they are chosen—NO territories, land areas, farms, factories, roads, streets, nor houses—but "persons," men, women, and children,—of whatever race, creed, occupation, religious belief, or political persuasion.

A true "representative" must have thorough knowledge and full understanding of the needs, desires, and problems which face the "people" he represents.
