Physical Fitness Key to be Found In Balanced Diet

When the future of the nation may depend on the physical fitness of its citizens, it's pertinent to stay fit.

The President's Council on Physical Fitness was established to urge all citizens, continually reminding citizens of the importance of a well-balanced diet.

Physically active people can consume more milk and other dairy foods — without gaining weight — than those who sit all day.

Also, there is growing agreement among scientists that physically active people may be less susceptible to degenerative diseases, including heart disease, and this could mean active people live longer.

Weight control through increasing the person's energy expenditure, rather than cutting down foods as the sole means of reducing weight, may be the logical approach to weight control.

We owe it to ourselves, our families and to our country to stay physically fit.

DID YOU KNOW?

- That milk plays an important role as an indispensable food for people of all ages?
- The calcium in milk builds strong bones for youngsters and helps maintain strong bones and bodies for oldersters.
- That an 8-oz. glass of milk provides one-third of an adult woman's daily need for calcium and riboflavin and one-sixth her daily need for protein?

Every year at this time, poison ivy comes out strong. Smart homeowners stamp it out with sprays or by careful grubbing and disposal. Lux homeowners frequently regret their laxness.

Poison ivy is always in a three-leaf cluster. Botanists describe its leaves as "notched" but that is, the outer border has cutbacks in it. (There are other similar looking plants, but none quite fits the description of poison ivy).

What does it take to produce... a Glass of Milk

Dairying today is a far cry from the pioneer days when many folks had a family cow... and dairymen worked from dawn till dusk with pitchfork and team in the fields and milked their herds before dawn and after dark to take care of people's needs for this wonderfully refreshing and nutritive food.

Today's population explosion with its growing demand for more and more milk - of highest quality - and the many tempting dairy foods derived from milk, has made a specialist of the farmer who produces milk.

It still takes hard work. But more than that, it requires good management of a herd and a farm, business acumen, if you will.

We salute the Dairy Farmers of our area for the modern industry in which they go about their work. We invite them to consult with us about equipment that will help them produce more milk - more profitably.

Proclamation

Governor Edward T. Breathitt has proclaimed the week of June 25-30 as "Selective Service Week in Kentucky" in his proclamation the Governor pointed out that the System is presently observing the 50th anniversary of the 1917 Act.

Governor Breathitt said, "In every major conflict in which this great nation has been involved the citizens have rallied to its defense through a Selective Service System, and thousands of Kentuckians have responded to the call of Selective Service for the defense of their freedom."

The Governor, who is a registrant under the present Act, had high praise for the hundreds of dedicated men and women who have staffed the local boards under the 1917 Act, World War II law, and the present operation.

The proclamation issued by the governor reads: To All To Whom These Presents Shall Come: Whereas, in every major conflict in which this great nation has been involved the citizens have rallied to its defense through a Selective Service System; and Whereas, thousands of Kentuckians have responded to the call of Selective Service for the defense of their freedom; and Whereas, many patriotic and dedicated Kentuckians have served as members of local Selective Service Boards, Medical Advisors, Appeal Agents and other duties without compensation; and Whereas, additionally, hundreds have served as local clerks and staff members and contributed immeasurably to the defense of this nation; and Whereas, in the month of June 1967 the Selective Service System will have been in being for 50 years;

Now, Therefore, I, Edward T. Breathitt, Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky do hereby proclaim the week of June 25 through 30, 1967, as Selective Service Week in Kentucky, and encourage all citizens to pay tribute to those fellow Kentuckians who have served their country.

assistant director of the project.

As a result of this project, a product will be selected for manufacture, and a community will be chosen as the site of the plant. A major problem in developing new or expanded job-producing industries in Appalachia is the lack of qualified management and leadership. For communities which have high unemployment and a low economic base, the program as planned by the CSM and EDA will provide guidelines which, through implementation of the findings, can realize significant job-producing opportunities.

A survey will be made of products which can be manufactured in small plants. This will include an extensive examination of current consumer trends and requirements, market characteristics, transportation methods and facilities. Communities, within counties designated by EDA, will be studied as specific industrial sites. Here many factors will be taken into consideration of specific locations: Accessibility of raw materials, manpower, resources, managerial leadership, initial capital, production facilities and technical assistance to help set up the plant. These findings will result in the choice of the product and community.

The feasibility recommendations relating to the final selections will be approved by EDA before being presented to local groups for implementation. All elements of the study will be documented.

Details of the negotiations will be delayed until after June 30, however, until the various governments have approved. Improving the use of U.S. Burley in world markets has long been a major project of the Commonwealth of Kentucky on the hands of the Burley Tobacco Growers

Vandals

Late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, Vandals cut down approximately one-half mile of four strand barbed wire fence on the farm of Clifford Pittman just south of Mt. Vernon. Mr. Pittman's farm is occupied by his son, George Pittman.

According to the younger Pittman, some posts were also torn out of the ground and damage was done to some tombstones in the Rowe Family Cemetery located on the farm. Damage to the fence was estimated by Clifford Pittman at $400.

Law officers believe an attempt was made by the vandals to herd cattle, belonging to George Pittman up to the opening made in the fence and drive them over the cliff.

Damage, done to the fences, forced Mr. Pittman to sell approximately 25 head of cattle Monday. A $500 reward has been offered by George Pittman for information leading to the arrest and conviction of these vandals.

KU Announces Reduction In Rates; Effective July 1

Kentucky Utilities Co. has announced rate reductions which will save customers more than $1.5 million annually on their electric bills.

The new rates schedules, affecting residential, commercial, industrial and mine power customers, which KU filed in Frankfort with the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, are scheduled to go into effect for bills rendered on and after July 1.

It will be the sixth general rate reduction KU has made since 1962 and will bring to customers the combined savings of these reductions to more than $6.5 million on an annual basis.

More than 80 per cent of KU's almost 240,000 customers in 77 Kentucky counties will share in the savings under the new rates. Residential customers will receive the largest total savings, amounting to more than $530,000 a year. The new rates bring a saving to all home users of more than 100 kilowatt hours a month.

The new rates for residential and commercial users are promotional in nature, designed to encourage fuller use of existing electrical appliances and equipment and the addition of new electric uses. KU hopes the new rates will introduce more people to the "all-electric" concept, particularly electric heating.

The industrial and mine power rates are also promotional to help the business and industrial development of the service area through new plant locations and expansions of present plants.

Babson's Authentic Report

FARM LAND VALUES
Babson's "Farm Values" for June 22. Prices for farm land are still trending up. The question is: Will they continue to rise -- and, if so, how fast? At this writing, the odds favor higher quotes on average, but no sharp boosts from current levels.

BULLISH FACTORS

For the nation as a whole, demand for farm land continues fairly strong, buttressed by rising food needs here and abroad as well as by the trend toward larger, highly mechanized farms. Although the national birth rate has declined considerably in very recent years, the number of people reaching marriageable age is rising rapidly. Hence, although the current tendency is toward smaller families, there will be a greater number of families and our population will continue to grow.

Perhaps the most important bullish factor in the farm land picture is the limited availability of such land. During the past 20 years, there has been a tremendous outpouring of our people from urban areas to the outer suburbs. Industry, too, has moved from the inner cities and their immediate environs to establish itself in what were once rural areas devoted chiefly to farming. Farm land has "also" been encroached upon by expanding highways, and the end of this is not yet in sight. As farm acreage becomes further fragmented -- other things being equal -- the line of least price resistance ought to be up.

BEARISH FACTORS

However, in business as in life, "other things" are not always equal and so it is necessary to examine the other side of the coin. Most observers agree that farm land values are being increasingly well supported at present -- would give ground in time of general economic recession. We also believe that, in the next year or two, the upward in prices of and demand for agricultural real estate will be slowed appreciably because of rising taxes and other costs, the likelihood of smaller crops, and the probability that crop yields may not continue to increase at recent rates. Of course, you can expect sporadic weakening of farm land values in selected areas; either because of local economic conditions or because the land itself is of poor quality. And from time and large-scale soil tilting might consider leasing the bulk of their land. Demand for long-term farm leases on a cash basis is expanding rapidly. Such cash leases can provide the landlord a steady income that will not vary with the management ability of the renter or with the vagaries of the weather.

BRINDAL RIDGE

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George York over the weekend were: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. McClure of Brodhead, Mr. and Mrs. James Robbins and daughter Lesia of Hamilton, Ohio.

behave the dairyman to provide them with his best pasture at night so that a maximum amount of the cheapest source of food nutrients can be utilized. Economically, high-milk production would seem to dictate such a practice.

MILK TOP ITEM IN DIET OF AMERICANS, U.K. SAYS

Throughout man's history, no food item has maintained its popularity more consistently than milk.

If milk-producing animals are available, man uses them as a source of daily food—whether these animals are reindeer, goats, sheep, mares or the dairy cow. Most of the diet of the "usual, famous African fighting tribe, is cow's milk. Dr. Arthur Rudnick, U.K. dairy science teacher, points out for June Dairy Month that during last winter's severe blizzard in Chicago, grocery stores reported milk was the one item customers demanded, and the one item that sold out consistently. If fresh milk wasn't available, the housewives turned to evaporated and powdered milk.

The average housewife spends about 19 cents of her food dollar on milk products. But she gets 25 percent of the family's protein, 22 percent of the fat, 77 percent of the calcium, 20 percent of the vitamin A and 16 percent of the energy requirements from this source. The main reason milk isn't the "absolutely perfect" food is because it does not contain enough iron and Vitamin C to maintain man at peak efficiency.

In 1952, dairy farmers averaged 2.36 man hours work to produce 100 pounds of milk. Today, through more management efficiency and higher producing cows, they spend only 1.10 man hours.

"There are about 400 varieties of cheese or some 2,000 names. Consumer discovery of these is one reason cheese consumption rate per capita in the U.S. is rising annually, and why much of the increase has been in the foreign type cheese," he says.

GETTING ENOUGH MILK

A great deal of food faddism is rampant today, promoted by pseudo-scientists, publicity seekers, and others who are in the business to sell "health foods." Nearly all modern, nutritious, wholesome foods come in for criticism by some segment of the food faddist crowd. It is refreshing, therefore, to note that a recent publication issued by a branch of the federal government is entitled "Getting Enough Milk."

This publication points out that milk is especially important as a natural food source of protein, calcium, and riboflavin (a B vitamin essential for healthy skin and nerves).

"It's hard to get enough calcium and riboflavin in particular," states the publication, "without a good deal of milk." In addition to these three vital nutritional elements, milk contains a large number of other nutrients in favorable proportions. This is why milk can team up so well with other kinds of foods to produce a healthful diet.

The publication goes on to say that, from the standpoint of the total food supply of our nation, milk supply three-fourths of the calcium, nearly one-half of the riboflavin, and one-fourth of the protein. But there are certain segments or groups of our population, and surely many individuals who do not get enough milk in their diets for adequate nutrition.

Quoting further from the publication, "The need for milk increases from childhood through the teens as more calcium is required to keep up with the needs of the growing body." While it is true that adults can get along with less milk than teenagers, they sometimes underestimate their needs. Expectant mothers and nursing mothers require extra milk to meet calcium demands.

Nutritionists recommend a quart or more of milk a day for teenagers, and from a pint to a pint and a half or more for children up to age twelve. Adults, should, on the average, drink at least a pint of milk a day. The recommendation for expectant mothers is at least 1½ pints, and for nursing mothers at least a quart of milk a day. Of course if milk products are consumed—such as cheese, ice cream, buttermilk—or if prepared food dishes contain milk or milk products, the fluid milk requirement would be proportionally less.

FLEABEETLE, BUDWORM INFESTATIONS

Fleabeetles and budworms are two destructive insects on tobacco that are causing some concern now in state crops, says Ira Massie, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service agronomy Specialist.

These two insects can cut yields drastically if uncontrolled, he says. Control methods:

FLEABEETLES: These are probably present in most tobacco fields now. Examine plants to see if fleabeetles are present. They are small and hard to see. Check about 12 to 24 plants in the field. If the insects are present, use DDT for control.

BUDWORMS: These pests chew small holes in plant leaves and have been found in some fields already.

They chew small holes in leaves, but as the plant grows, the hole becomes larger, reducing yield and quality.

Use DDT or TDE, Massie says. Both are effective.

"Do not direct the spray directly into the bud. Instead, hold the nozzle about 12 inches away so the spray comes out as a fine mist. This will give a good spray over the tops of the plants."

Be sure plants are at least knee-high before emulsifier-concentrates (oil emulsion) sprays are used. These can damage small plants.

Check area extension offices in the counties for information on preparing sprays, safety precautions, and application methods. Ask for the large pamphlet listed as Extension Service Misc. 270e, which deals with tobacco insects and materials.

POISON IVY-FUN SPOILER

If it's notched and has three leaflets, leave it alone, please.

Else you may find yourself bothered by watery blisters that itch and torment you. If you're on a vacation, the fun-time could be spoiled.

NIGHT PASTURE FOR DAIRY COWS

With the approach of hot weather, a good night pasture for the milking herd should prove profitable by helping maintain milk production during the "summer slump" period. This maintenance of production is brought about by providing good forage at a time the cow is willing to graze it—"in the cool of the evening." Heaping cows in a dry lot or a short pasture at night just because it is close to the milking barn may save a few minutes of the dairyman's time but this cannot be called a sound dairyherd management practice.

These conclusions are apparent when one considers the results of experiments on the observations of dairy cows on pasture during the hot summer period. Where cows were provided good pasture both day and night, they grazed about three times as much as in daytime.

To take advantage of this habit of dairy cows it would Celebrity?

You bet he is! He's one of our area Dairy Farmers. And this is their month, June Dairy Month. Each year they supply us with billions of quarts of protein-rich milk, tons of tempting cheese varieties and millions of pounds of pure cream butter. It's a big job, so there are many thousands of dairy farmers in America. Lucky for us there are.
