SADDLE CLUB

The Livestock Improvement Association will hold a meeting of all interested horse and pony owners to determine interest in organizing a saddle club for Rockcastle County.

The meeting will be held in the county courtroom Monday, October 9, 1967 at 7:30 P.M.

Seldon Hall, Area Extension Agent, who has been instrumental in helping organize such a club in Clay County, will be present to answer any questions about operation of the Clay County Club and to discuss setting up a constitution and by-laws for such an organization.

All people interested in forming such a club are invited to attend this meeting.

FORESTRY FIELD DAY

A forestry field day will be held September 28, 1967 at the Nuclear Engineering Company near Morehead. Activities will commence at 9:00 a.m. and end at 3:00 p.m. The program will be a tour of forestry practice demonstration. Tours will be continuous. Wagons will be used to transport people from one demonstration area to another.

Timber stand improvement, crop tree selection, and commercial thinning of hardwood timber will be shown and discussed by forestry experts at separate tour stops. Another feature is the explanation of how different soil types affect the growth of trees and the production of timber. The effect of woodland grazing on the ability of the soil to absorb water will be demonstrated. How to increase and protect wildlife while managing for timber production is also a topic.

A special tree planting demonstration will be conducted by West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. Representatives of the walnut using industry will explain and demonstrate how the growth of walnut trees can be greatly increased. The field day is a joint project of the Extension Service, U.S. Forest Service, Soil Conservation Service, Kentucky Division of Forestry, University of Kentucky Department of Forestry and Kentucky Wood Industry Association.

Arrangements have been made for sandwiches and drinks to be sold on the ground. To reach the field day site go about 12 miles west of Morehead on Ky. 32, then turn south on a county road and follow the signs. All forest owners and conservationists are invited for the forestry field day, September 28. Logging demonstrations will be conducted on the same site September 29-30.

PEONY DIVISION

Successful division of peony roots depend on two things: (1) division down to 3-5 "eye" divisions with adequate roots to support the growth from them and (2) planting shallow with the eyes only 1 inch below the ground. In addition, peonies should be planted where they will have full sun for best results. If less than half-sun is received, they often fail to bloom and grow slowly and spindly. Good surface drainage is also advisable.

The 5 eye division is the standard nursery division. The eyes are really protruding buds. They are located at the basal portion of the stems just above the swollen roots. Solder does not arise directly from a root. Like dahlias, a portion of the stem must be on each root division to get shoots.

Any time from late September to early November dig the old clump retaining all of the roots possible. Wash or shake off the soil until the root forms can be easily traced. Clip off the oldtops but leave enough to make handy "handles". Use a large sharp knife to cut through the clump without severing too many good eyes from the roots or otherwise wounding many potential divisions. After this initial rough division, finer, more particular cuts can be made to make the final divisions.

Small amounts of well rotted manure, peat moss, or similar materials can be mixed with heavy or light soils to improve them. In the case of peonies I want to stress small. Use 1 or 2 tablespoons of superphosphate mixed with the soil for each new division except in those areas of the state where phosphorus is naturally abundant in the soil. (Ask your county agricultural agent) Do not add other fertilizers when you set peonies. Set the division with the eyes only about 1 inch below the soil surface. Err on the shallower side rather than on the deeper side. Firm the soil well and water in. If the fall is very dry, soak the newly set roots often enough to keep the soil moderately moist.

FALL ROSE PROGRAM

Do not use any nitrogen-carrying fertilizer on your roses from now to winter. If a soil test shows your soil is low in phosphorus and potassium, add enough to bring phosphorus up to 200-300 pounds per acre and potassium up to 250-300 pounds per acre.

Set aside mulching material for the winter. Recent research suggests that for covering the tops you can use tar paper cylinders that will comfortably contain the tops make them 24-30 inches high. Place the cylinders about the roses just as winter begins. Fill them with almost any airy material which can be kept dry—coarse sawdust, coarse ground corncobs, or buckwheat hulls. Shredded styrofoam is even better. Cut the rose tops short enough that a black polyethylene plastic top can be capped over the cylinder and fastened loosely in place. The plastic cap is to keep the material in the cylinder dry. Cleaning up chickweed is often difficult in a rose bed. Usually 2, 4-D plus 4, 5-T can be used as soon as most of the rose leaves have dropped. CAUTION: Keep the material off the rose canes. This material can be used as long as the chickweed plants are very young. Neburon can be used from rose leaf drop until the new shoots start in the spring or the chickweed begins to bloom, whichever comes first.

TIME TO . . .

1. Think about fall-setting landscape plants.
2. Lay in a supply of color film to take pictures of Kentucky's fall color show.
3. Mark some of the best fall-colored plants for future references.
4. Study up on spring-flowering bulb varieties.
5. Don't delay the grass seeding for your new lawn beyond September if you can help it. Don't overseed an old lawn without also curing the ills that caused your grass to be thin.
6. Remove and burn the tops of peonies soon to destroy the botrytis disease carrier.

'68s Top Secrets are here

1968 Chevrolets

The '68 Chevrolets are the very essence of modern design. Every line, every curve is in close harmony. It's a smooth, uncluttered look with roof lines compatible with body lines, grilles and bumpers that blend gracefully into long, rounded fenders. Clean, flowing beautiful in their simplicity, these '68 Chevrolets are rich and advanced in styling beyond any you've ever seen.

A MORE SILENT RIDE

And for 1968, we've gone to every length to give you more peace and quiet inside. The most sophisticated computers have been used to strategically place body mounts and successfully isolate noise and vibration. Shock absorbers have been improved. The wheel stance on many models is wider for greater smoothness. Exhaust systems have been redesigned to make them whisper-quiet. Even the clocks tick more softly. A sound car is a silent car. The '68 Chevrolets are the most silent, highest quality cars we've ever built.

BETTER PERFORMANCE

There are new engines—a bigger standard Six and V8. There's a new 250-hp V8 you can order that runs on regular fuel. Many new engine components increase dependability and keep your new Chevrolet running stronger. There's a new rear axle ratio you can add for greater economy. On most engines equipped with automatic transmissions, there's a special heater for the carburetor which gives you more efficient performance in cold weather. And with every engine, you get the new GM exhaust emission control.

UNIQUE ASTRO VENTILATION

There's a whole new idea in ventilation, called Astro Ventilation, for Camaro, Corvette and the elegant Caprice Coupe. It's also available on many other models. By opening two new vent-ports on the instrument panel, you bring in outside air that can be directed where you want it. This way, you can leave your windows rolled up and add still more to your peace and quiet.

PROVED SAFETY FEATURES

You get the proved GM-developed energy absorbing steering column, folding front seat back latches, dual master cylinder brake system with warning light, plus many more new features. Among them: energy absorbing front seat backs, and safety armrests that shield the door handles.

MUCH MORE THAT'S NEW

There are new roof lines, some formal and graceful, others sporty and quick. There are new instrument panels, richly designed and all controls within easy reach. There are new interiors, new vinyls, new fabrics, new colors. There are models with tie-A-Way windshield wipers and headlights that disappear behind grilles. There are new side marker lamps, new recessed taillights. There's even a new ignition alarm buzzer that reminds you not to walk away and leave your keys in the car.

These are the newest, the most different, the most dramatically changed Chevrolets ever. And they're at your Chevrolet dealer's now. You'll thoroughly enjoy slipping behind the wheel, experiencing the smooth new handling and library-quiet ride and, more than anything, seeing and feeling the even greater quality built into every new Chevrolet for 1968.

Be sure! Be sure! Buy now at your Chevrolet dealer's.

There's more quality and value built into Chevrolets than ever before, making every new 1968 model an even better buy!

Science teachers in grades seven through nine will enroll in a National Science Foundation Institute at Eastern Kentucky University, according to Institute director Robert M. Lathrop.

The Federal agency will pay for books, tuition and travel to the Saturday morning meetings, Professor Lathrop said, and Eastern will give five hours of graduate or undergraduate credit to teachers students successfully complete the course.

"We particularly invite those who are teaching science or supervising its teaching," Lathrop said, "as well as teachers who feel they need more work on their discipline."

Candidates must have had at least one year of teaching experience.

Meeting from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturdays through the academic year (September 23-May 25), the class will include lectures, laboratory work and field trips.

According to Dr. Joseph R. Schwendeman, Jr., chairman of the department of geography and geology, "This is the first university institute ever awarded to Eastern by the National Science Foundation."

Lathrop says the course, called "Science 500," will cover a "bit of astronomy, geology, meteorology and climatology, and oceanography."

Field trips are planned to Cumberland Falls, Natural Bridge and the Kentucky River fault in Madison County, among others.

Students may enroll in Room 200, Student Building, on the Eastern campus, the day of the first class meeting, September 23.

Field trips will see his claims that government costs need not be increased.

"But, we suddenly learn that Mr. Ward is speaking out of the other side of his mouth now! And if you really examine his record you will learn that Mr. Ward is a tax man... he believes in taxing the laborer, the housewife, the farmer, and the business man!"

"Ask him these questions... is it true he said in 1934 as a member of the State Assembly, didn't you vote for a sales tax? And isn't it true Mr. Ward... in 1936 voted for the Kentucky income tax? And isn't it true Mr. Ward... you later voted for increase in the gasoline tax in Kentucky?"

"At the very time my opponent is calling for more money to run Kentucky's government... two nearby states, North Carolina and Kansas, will both announce reductions in their state taxes! How do you answer that Mr. Ward?"

"Possibly some of you here today read the editorial in Life Magazine a week ago, which pointed out that the Johnson Administration believes it owns the United States Government lock, stock, and barrel. And I say to you... This entrenched Frankfort political machine believes it owns our state government lock stock... and barrel!"

"There is a great similarity between the charges made by the Life Magazine editors against the Johnson Administration in Washington, and Kentucky's Frankfort Political machine."

Judge Nunn Opens Campaign

Louie B. Nunn, speaking in Somerset Saturday at one of the three major meetings of the 1967 Republican state campaign, charged that all Kentucky could expect from his opponent was more taxes and wasteful spending of the people's money. Nunn said "My opponent is the 'private property' of the same clique which has increased state indebtedness to astronomical heights while serving their own private interests but failing the people of Kentucky."

The Republican candidate for governor also said: "My opponent speaks from both sides of his mouth! First, he tells Kentuckians that he should be elected because he has an intimate knowledge of the workings of state government due to his having been a part of the Combs-Breathitt political machine for the past 10 years; then in the next breath, without changing the facts on his face, he brags about all the good things he has done for the state."

Mr. Lair is bearing all expense involved with moving and restoring the house.

No PTA This Year?

For various and sundry reasons, there will probably not be a PTA this year in Mt. Vernon? Why? This is one of the most important organizations connected with the school system of a county. One of its purposes is to provide for a better relationship and understanding between interested adults in the community and parents of school-age children and their teachers. This is an important function. Another purpose is to provide, through fund-raising ventures, needed additional material and educational supplies not ordinarily provided for in school budgets.

It was even impossible this year to find enough persons, willing to serve, to elect officers. Why? One of the reasons that has been voiced for this is "there's no point in going because the school end of the organization has its own way about everything anyway." Whether this is true or not, we do not know, but we must remember that in PTA, as in every other civic club, majority rules and each member present has only one vote. Naturally, if only one faction of the organization is represented that faction's wishes will be fulfilled. Never, never, sit back and criticize or give up because "that's just the way it is!" do something or try to do something about it. It only stands to reason that if only the parents were represented only their plans, ideas and wishes would be considered. Only with representation of both groups will accomplishments satisfactory to both sides be achieved. Surely, our children are important enough to us to see that their school has our interest and support. There are so many useful and worthwhile purposes which could be accomplished by many but which are impossible for a few.

There is not much further to say on this subject except if we have our children's best interest in mind, and it goes without saying that we do, we will begin to actively support this very worthwhile organization and see to it that it achieves its proper status in our educational program for our children.

The next meeting of the PTA is up to us. At the last meeting, which was held September 11, it was decided to continue with the organization only if the necessary support and encouragement was found. It's up to us.

PARSONS REPORT

State Governments Need Modernizing

MODERNIZING STATE GOVERNMENTS

OVERSHADOWED BY WASHINGTON

Mounting social unrest in our cities admittedly stems from various causes. But a growing number of public officials, educators, sociologists, and businessmen feel that the cities are stymied in their efforts to improve conditions — by outdated state constitutions and laws.

Our founding fathers established a federal system comprising (1) a strong central government with specific powers limited by the Constitution and (2) effective state governments to act as a checkrein on this central authority. Their concept of the proper division of power is spelled out in Article X of the Bill of Rights: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

For the first 125 years of our history as a nation, this division of power was adhered to. But beginning early in the present century the federal government has been growing stronger and more authoritarian, casting an ever-lengthening shadow over the states. Climbing fiscal costs for education, public welfare, and other services — now threatening to expand beyond the ability of the states to pay — are causing real concern. At last, the urgency of the need to strengthen our system by modernizing state governments is being widely recognized.

WEAK EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

In the vanguard of organizations actively plumping for reforms in state government structures is the Committee For Economic Development. The committee asserts that sweeping revisions of state constitutions are necessary to bring these in line with modern conditions. CED also recommends annual sessions for all state legislatures and substantially higher salaries for members. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States is another advocate of state government reform and is trying to enlist broad public support for such a program. Some Chamber officials believe the states could more effectively administer their services if county government functions were to be expanded and updated.

CED, the Chamber, and other groups have made several further recommendations — with basic agreement on one point: That governors of states should be given more authority and responsibility and be provided with adequate staffs and budgets to permit the proper exercise of such authority and responsibility.

THE MASSACHUSETTS EXPERIMENT

Considerable interest is now being focused on Massachusetts, one of the original 13 states — which is about to move toward the first major reorganization of state government since colonial days. Last month, the federal government approved a $772,000 comprehensive study to determine how best to update the Bay State's executive department.

Uncle Sam, through the Department of Housing and Urban Development, will contribute about $480,000 toward the project and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will pay the remainder. Savings of up to $50 million annually are estimated once the reorganization is accomplished.

Washington Report

By: Cong. Tim Lee Curtis

"To raise taxes or not to raise taxes" is today's multi-billion dollar question. The President has called for higher taxes — necessary, he says, to send additional boots to Vietnam.

But, is a tax increase really necessary? The country is slowly being taxed to death. A tax in increase could wipe out salary increases of most wage earners and social security benefit increases for others. Many members of Congress believe reduced Federal spending could reduce the necessity for a tax increase. I share this view.

I am convinced that for much of our Government's spending is simply non-essential at this time. For instance, foreign aid which has consistently opposed could be reduced substantially, or, perhaps, cut out. We cannot indefinitely tax the meat since colonial days. Last month, the federal government approved a $772,000 comprehensive study to determine how best to update the Bay State's executive department.

PROJECT FOR FOUNDATIONS

In due course, Washington will probably finance, through grants or otherwise, projects to streamline government operations of other states. As the need for such updating becomes more urgent, the way may be opened for businessmen to sponsor, finance or at least participate in such reorganization projects.

Often our large foundations are criticized for making so many and such large grants for projects in foreign lands. It seems to me that the bettering of our whole federal system through the reorganizing of state governments would be a domestic work of a scope and importance worthy of the attention of some of these foundations.

American people to help support the rest of the world. There are other areas where Federal spending could be reduced or cut out, areas which hardly seem necessary at this time when the American taxpayer is already overburdened by costs of the war in Southeast Asia.

Just this year the Government awarded a grant of almost $9,000 to a professor to study comic strips; another $5,000 to complete an experimental analysis of a violin varnish known to have improved violin tone prior to 1737, and $10,000 was awarded to study a collection of texts on medieval canon law. In terms of Federal spending, these amounts are small. But, every wasted taxpayer dollar counts.

At this point, I don't believe the Johnson Administration had made a case for its tax increase proposal. Certainly, I am opposed to any tax increase I, for one, believe the Administration should supply the Congress, with up-to-date data so that we may judge whether the original Fiscal 1968 Budget estimates and the recent mid-summer revisions are as useless for responsible decision making as were the 1966-67 estimates, which were off by billions of dollars. If it is to discharge its solemn obligation to the American people, Congress can settle for nothing less.

FIRE! and how to cope with it!

New York (HK)—Conditioned reflexes can save your life. When fire breaks out in the home, residents should immediately stop thinking . . . and start acting out the following emergency procedures, which should be second nature to every member of the family:

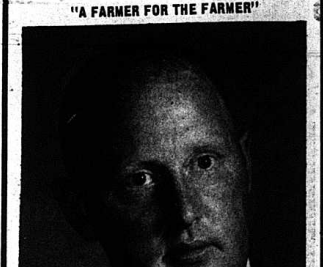

—At the first sign of flames or smoke, everyone should leave the premises immediately. Too often, people believe they have plenty of time to escape the fire when they are in the process of putting on their shoes, or when they are still in bed. Do not waste time. Leave the house as quickly as possible. Do not stop to retrieve anything. Do not stop to get your coat or hat. Do not stop to get your keys. Do not stop to get your glasses. Do not stop to get your shoes. Do not stop to get your shoes. Do not stop to get your shoes.

—Train the rest of the family to remain outside the home until the fire is doused. Leave the rescue work to trained firemen. —When you call the fire department, give all pertinent information clearly and succinctly. If you cannot report the fire by telephone, memorize the location of the nearest fire alarm box. —Be sure each bedroom has a convenient emergency escape route available in case of fire. Sleep with the bedroom doors closed at all times. If you smell smoke through the door, and the inside surface is warm to the touch, do not open the door.

Instead, try to escape immediately through an open window. —If you must escape through smoke-filled rooms, wear a wet handkerchief over your face to lessen the irritating effects of smoke. But do not expect this cloth to filter such noxious gases as carbon monoxide. . . . It won't. —To be sure that everyone knows what to do in case of fire, stage periodic fire drills, stressing the various escape routes which can be used from every room in the house. These drills will condition the fire reflexes of the family and enable them to act quickly, instead of thinking slowly, if an emergency arises. —The fact that over 900,000 fires break out every year should make it crystal clear to everyone that there is an ever-present danger to the home, said Fire Chief Harry E. Figgie, Jr. of the "Automatic" Sprinkler Company of America.

Several new books have been received by the Rockcastle County Library. They are: "THE RESTLESS LAND," by John H. Culp. The life of north west Texas in the 1870's as seen by a boy growing up on a ranch, going on a cattle drive, fighting off Indian raids, enjoying the social life of the settlement, riding off alone to rescue his childhood sweetheart, and a Comanche chief. An authentic picture of the time and the region.

Injury Led To Hospital Work

Mrs. Leila Mullins Fredrick of Latonia sent us a recent article from the Kentucky Post and Times Star concerning Bennett Hiatt, former assistant administrator of the Rockcastle County Baptist Hospital.

Hiatt is now administrator of the Pendleton County Hospital in Falmouth and we thought the article would be of interest to his many friends and relatives in Rockcastle. You might say Bennett Hiatt got into hospital work by accident. Now he is administrator of Pendleton County Hospital here.

It was an accidently torn kneecap that put then-year-old Ben Hiatt aboard a hospital bed a month after World War II ended in 1945. The native Kentuckian, now 51, had gone into blue jacket five months before.

"I went through boot camp at Great Lakes Naval Training Station and was getting acquainted with ordnance work when I did a silly thing, twisted my knee as I stepped off a curb," ruefully grinned Hiatt.

"I was already on orders

That specialty (his last 2 1/2 years as an ordnance civilian were spent inspecting new Jeeps) continued through wartime until he joined the Navy in April 1945 and tore his kneecap ligament.

Ben's first career hospital duties were at Rockcastle County Hospital, Mt. Vernon, where he swung to the paperwork administration side in 1957.

ENLISTS-- Anthony Burgess Abney, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellogah Abney of Route 3, Mt. Vernon, enlisted in the United States Army on August 18. After completion of 8 weeks of basic, Anthony will be trained in Career Group "Administration."

There he remained until February of this year, when he came to Pendleton County as assistant to Administrator C. T. Baker.

Baker resigned to teach school in August and Hiatt became acting administrator. This month the "acting" part of his title was dropped.

"The hospital had its first patient June 15," recalled the 5-foot-11, 178-pound administrator, donning his shell report.

"With all its equipment--this is a general hospital--this is probably worth about $550,000 now. Daugherty Lumber Co. in Falmouth was the prime contractor for $464,000.

"Each has an illness, not an injury. One injured man did just go home, a fellow about 27 or 28, who had been burned at Springfield, Ky., on his job for a contractor. "We have had, so far the average run of small hospital patients--pneumonia, flu and typical summertime illnesses. "Our staff has 24 "full time employees. "Also, 28 medical doctors are on our roster. "There are two resident physicians available full-time. Dr. William Townsend who lives in Ft. Wright but spends many hours in Falmouth as hospital chief of staff.

"And Dr. Robert L. McKinney a Falmouth resident. "Dr. Townsend is president of Pendleton County Medical Assn. and Dr. McKinney is vice-president. "Other doctors who sit in regularly at staff meetings include, Dr. C. A. Waldemeyer, county medical association secretary and Dr. Paul M. Williams, DMD. "Thus far we've managed to preserve a placid atmosphere for our patients. "I shouldn't say the staff is placid because we're in the middle of setting up an inventory system. "J. P. Field, a retired citizen is helping us on the two-week job. You might mention he's lending a hand without pay.
