Anti-Ward Democrats Form Organization

A "Taxpayers for Nunn" organization has been formed from Democratic ranks and Laban P. Jackson of Shelbyville says, "I guess I'm sort of the unofficial head of it."

An announcement about the new organization is expected this week from the headquarters of Louis B. Nunn Republican nominee for governor.

Jackson was conservation commissioner under former Governor A.B. Chandler, who has refused to endorse Democratic nominee Henry Ward. He also was a leader in Chandler's campaign for office.

This year, he was in the forefront of efforts to unite anti-administration elements against Ward before the spring Democratic primary.

As it turned out, Chandler and Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, another administration foe both ran against Ward.

Jackson declined to estimate total membership of "Taxpayers for Nunn" or identify any other members.

Harvest Festival Cancelled

There will be no harvest festival at Renfro Valley this year, according to John Bair, owner and operator of Renfro Valley Enterprises.

The festival, which had been in existence for the last nine or ten years, was one of the last places which county residents had to take; their hobbies and projects for exhibiting and competition.

The surprising announcement came after the Rockcastle County Livestock Improvement Association, voted not to sponsor the prize money for this year. According to Wallace Proctor, director of the organization "the committee decided that not enough interest" was being shown among farmers and businessmen to sponsor the festival this year."

Mr. Lair told the Signal that individuals had said that next year they would help to raise the prize money and that he hoped to be able to revive it.

The festival included classes for tobacco, corn, hay, live stock, dairy cattle, a small horse show, needlework, baking, and art.

Rockcastle Needs A County High School

There is an issue of vital importance which needs the attention of every civic minded county resident. It is an issue which concerns each of us, especially parents. There is no middle-of-the-road way in this case. One way or another, we should have, a firm idea one way or the other. It is an issue which should be brought before the voters NOW!

This issue is, of course, a consolidated high school for the students of Rockcastle County. This institution has been needed for a long time, too long. Conditions are overcrowded in our schools, our students are poor, our facilities few. Our sports program is lagging but more important our educational program is lagging. Regardless of the quality of our present administrative and teaching staff, they cannot operate at their best without greatly improved facilities.

We are pointing a finger or attacking no one. With the facilities available, there has been a great deal accomplished, but there could be so much more accomplished with a consolidated high school. There would be more operating expense, we admit but, there would be also economy because of being able to operate more efficiently.

This school is feasible with a minimum of additional revenue needed. The minimal revenue is feasible especially at the present time. There is a county hospital tax to be taken of county taxpayer next year. There was a city fire truck tax taken off of residents of Mt. Vernon this year. These taxes, we may be sure, did not prove an unbearable burden for citizens of Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle County and the additional tax needed would entail that much more expense spread county-wide.

One accepted supposition among several Rockcastle citizens is that bond issue would not pass a vote of the people. This may be true, but there is always a chance and "nothing ventured, nothing gained." It may not pass, but it could be attempted. The facts on bond issues can be gathered and presented to the voters by both sides, should there be a negative side. After, all bond issues have been passed to build a county hospital and a county courthouse. These facilities were needed improvements but no more needed than a county high school. We do not have all the necessary facts and figures at our disposal. But, the additional expense would be one of the best investments ever made in our educational program and our children's future. It may be said about some things "what was good enough for me is good enough for my children," but with stiffer competition for jobs and college entrance, this simile can no longer apply in this matter. This fulfilled a need, why not consider a much greater need county-wide.

Our sports program, which is no doubt the best that can be managed under the present set up with present facilities, would be greatly improved. Understand, by no means are we suggesting that sports should be of primary importance in our school program but we do suggest and maintain that they do play a very important role in this program and should have a chance to be developed to their fullest.

There is another argument for a county high school, perhaps the most important of all. It would be an added incentive for industry to locate in our county. School facilities play an ever increasing role in the location selection of industry and with many counties with better facilities, fighting for these industries one of our best selling points is lost.

This all that is being stated here, and the many advantages of a consolidated high school be considered and that (2) the voters of the county have a chance to decide if they want this facility at the cost of a little more tax.

There is no problem that cannot be ironed out if we want to badly enough.

The United States by the prestige of our educational facilities.

The Case For Economy

When the Great Society was first inaugurated, the theme song of the Congress might well have been "we're in the mood to spend simply because you — ask us." It would take its tune, of course, from the old hit song, "I'm in the mood for love."

Congress, in those days was very much in the mood to love everything about the Great Society — and to do everything its leader asked.

Today, things are different indeed. Members of Congress — Democrats and Republicans alike — have decided that "spending" isn't the answer to all our problems, that it hasn't produced the results that were promised and that something drastic must be done about our growing national debt situation.

STRONG URBAN PULL

But even within the United States and among our own people, the brain drain has become quite a problem. Urbanization has proceeded at a very rapid pace and is still going on. The number of residents in our standard metropolitan statistical area by definition at least one of our cities of no less than 50,000 persons together with the surrounding area economically oriented to it — increased by 10.4% from April 1960 to July 1965.

From the farms and from the more isolated small towns, people have been moving in ever greater numbers to the larger urban and suburban areas. This migration has been most keenly felt in rural areas, where scarcity of teachers, managerial personnel, and medical talent has been especially pronounced.

FLIGHT FROM THE CORE CITIES

Almost simultaneous with the migration of people from farms to urban areas has been migration from the core cities to the surrounding areas. In the very vanguard of those who have forsaken the large cities for residence in the suburbs have been the more successful and talented who afford the greater freedom of choice than was available to their less fortunate neighbors.

Thus have the large core cities lost their greatest asset — persons of vision and ability, with an interest in city problems and a will to make personal contributions and the sacrifices necessary to implement solutions.

In other words, Congress has now come to the conclusion that a new set of lyrics to that old favorite might well be written which would go, "we're in the mood to cut."

What has brought this about, face? Why have the many Democrats at last joined the Republicans in "cutting" instead of "spending"? The immediate answer, of course, is President Johnson's proposed 10 percent tax increase.

The Administration insists that a tax increase is one of things that is necessary if inflation isn't going to run riot. But many legislators are convinced that a tax increase must be accompanied by a sizable spending cut if it is going to do any good for the economy. They are sure that a tax increase alone will not prevent prices from rising still further.

This change in mood is shown very clearly by a recent vote in the House Ways and Means Committee, when Democrats joined Republicans in sufficient strength to "table" the proposed 10 percent tax increase until the Administration has come up with some sizable and meaningful spending cuts. The vote showed beyond doubt the mood of Congress. It was 20 to 1 against the tax increase and only five against doing so.

Concerning the proposed 10 percent surcharge, I would like to quote from an editorial in The New York Times the other day. "Unfortunately," said The Times "The President's proposal for a 10 percent surcharge will do nothing now to halt the present surge of inflation — certainly it is too small to make a dent in a Federal Budget deficit estimated to run from 19 billion dollars to 29 billion dollars. A safer and surer way to guard against price rises is to reduce Federal spending." Unquote.

A soil insecticide is recommended if a new bed site is to be used for the 1968 crop, particularly if sod must be broken on the new site.

Use granules or emulsifiable concentrate sprays on the site, and then disk it into the top three to five inches of soil.

Don't apply soil insecticides if an old bed site is to be used and this site was treated with a soil insecticide in the last one or two years. Soil insecticides stay a long while in the earth. If the site has not had an application in the last two or three years, it may need a new one.

STORING IRISH POTATOES

Successful storage of potatoes depends upon how they were cured after digging and the conditions for storage.

Potatoes should be cured before storing. The curing or wound-healing period immediately follows the harvesting. A suberized layer of cells is formed over bruised and cut surfaces to prevent the entrance of rot organisms. Rapid healing is accomplished by placing the tubers at temperatures above 45 degrees F and maintaining a relative humidity of at least 90 percent. The humidity can be raised and maintained by wetting down the floor, but the tubers should not be in contact with the water. The curing period should last from 10 to 21 days.

If potatoes are stored at temperatures of 50 degrees F, they will begin to sprout after 12 to 15 weeks. There are, it is essential that temperatures be dropped to 40 degrees F, where they may be stored for 40 weeks without sprouting. However, the high relative humidity (90 percent) should be maintained during the storage period.

For those who do not have controlled storage conditions, sprout inhibitors may be used. The most practical inhibitor for those who want to store small amounts of potatoes is maleic hydrazide. This, however, must be applied while the plants are still green and growing. Other materials are available for treating after digging, but only a few of these are available for treating small amounts of tubers. Chloro-IPC (spout inhibitor form) is available only in certain areas of the United States and is used primarily in large commercial storages. The smallest available container of this material is the one-gallon size, which is used at a 1 percent concentration. One gallon of this material will treat approximately 7,400 (100lb) bags of potatoes. Since the cost per gallon is relatively high, the small grower cannot afford this material. However, other materials available are not as effective as Chloro-IPC, and some have not been cleared by the Food and Drug Administration for use.

Therefore, the small grower needs to cure the tubers properly and store them in the coolest temperature possible (38-40 degrees F) with a slight relative humidity (90 percent) to prevent rotting and sprouting.

DAIRY SITUATION
U.S. milk production was 10.3 billion pounds in July, 0.4 percent below that of a year earlier, as the decline in cow numbers more than offset the gain in output, per cow.

The record high average 1967 milk prices, the prospect of lower grain and concentrate prices this fall, the proximity milk-feed price ratios to last year's record level and the very good pasture conditions have all favored the 1967 milk production. However, the August through December production is likely to be below that of a year earlier, owing to laborers leaving the farms, low quality hay, and high beef cattle and cow prices.

The quality of milk used for manufacture in the second quarter of 1967 was up 5 percent from that of a year earlier, despite no gain in milk production. This is a result of a decline in fluid whole milk and cream sales and a slight gain in farm marketings of milk.

U.S. exports of dairy products in the year ending June 30 were down 29 percent from a year earlier. This was caused mostly by the smaller supplies of dairy products for export.

Prospects for 1967-68 are for increased exports, but little or no foreign commercial demand for U.S. butter or other high milk-fat products. Dairy imports for January to July were up 41 percent from that of a year earlier. New import quotas established June 30 will cut imports sharply in the second half of 1967.

Milk cows on U.S. farms in June number 13.6 million head, 3.9 percent below the 14.1 million of a year earlier. Milk cows on Kentucky farms in June 1967 numbered 377,000 head, compared with 397,000 head, in 1966. Kentucky has 601,000 dairy cows on its farms in 1950, showing almost a 40 percent decrease in cow numbers in the last 17 years.

Milk prices for 1967 likely will average the highest for any year on record. Prospective lower feed prices indicate that the milk-feed price ratio for this fall and winter will be near last year's record levels.

LAWN CARE TIPS

Fertilize your lawn in October. In the Blue Grass and outer Blue Grass regions, apply 1 to 1½ pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet. Three to five pounds of ammonium nitrate or urea-form will supply this amount of nitrogen. A mixture of 10 to 15 pounds of 10-10-10 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet will supply the needed nitrogen phosphorus and potassium. An early December application of ½ total pound of actual nitrogen (1½ to 3 pounds of ammonium nitrate or urea-form) per 1,000 square feet may be beneficial if heavy fall rains and warm weather occurs. Fall fertilization of grass, shrubs and trees will aid overwintering greatly. Wait to fertilize roses until a hard freeze has hidden the wood.

SOIL INSECTICIDES IN PLANT BEDS MAY SAVE FARMER WORK NEXT SPRING

A soil insecticide applied to the tobacco plant bed site this fall may save you work next spring, says Ira Massie, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service specialist. After you've plowed the bed site, treat it with a recommended insecticide. Then will winter over at times and in favorable locations. Plant hardy spring-flowering bulbs. Consult U. of K. Coop. Ext. Serv. Leaf. 238 "Spring Flowering Bulbs." Finish fall lawn seeding. How late you can successfully seed will depend on how late it stays warm. Do your fall landscape planting. Fall is usually the best planting time in Kentucky, except for some hard-to-transplant plants such as the flowering dogwood.

Control many of the broad-leaved weeds in your lawn from now to early November. Follow the directions of U.K. Coop. Ext. Serv. Circ. 577, "Lawn Weed Control," and Misc. 222-A, "1967 Weed Control Recommendations for Established Bluegrass Turf." Check area extension offices in the county if you need help.

GOP Unites For Victory

Sen. Thurston Morton, Judge Nunn and Jefferson County Judge Marlow Cook discuss victory plans at GOP Rally.

CONVENTION CENTER, Louisville, Jefferson County GOP Rally—Jefferson County, State and National Republican leaders closed ranks behind the Judge Nunn team as more than 2000 supporters roared approval at a Convention Center rally September 21. Jefferson County Judge Marlow W. Cook left no doubt where he stands—100 percent behind Judge Louie Nunn's Team. In a fiery speech Cook scored the "Friends of Marlow Cook for Ward Committee" as a Ward campaign ruse designed to destroy the Jefferson County Republican organization. Cook quoted from a deposition taken from "Friends" chairman Walter Wagner, Jr., establishing that the bogus committee's letters were actual creations of the Ward camp. Said Cook, "If Ward can do this sort of thing, how can he have the integrity to be the governor of this commonwealth or any other state? Ask your friends if they want a governor who would conduct himself in this manner." Cook also posed the question whether this attempt by Ward to destroy an individual and a political organization sounded like a man confident of winning or a politician fearful of having lost the backing of more than a million Democratic voters in Kentucky. Cook said that our new governor will be a Republican elected at the ballot box and not the result of political pick-and-choose by a group that disregards the people and runs Kentucky government for its own benefit. U.S. Sen. Thurston B. Morton said that he had no doubt that this would be a Republican year in Kentucky, but added, "Let's elect this (Judge Nunn) ticket with an overwhelming majority." Morton added, "All of us know full well that Kentuckians want a change in the state and in the White House." U.S. Representative Snyder echoed Morton's conviction. Said Snyder, whose district extends from Jefferson County to Covington, "I've been running up and down the river, and I can report the Republicans are going to carry this election all up and down the river." Lieutenant Governor nominee Thomas Ratliff predicted that his district, the 7th, would return even a bigger Republican majority than Louisville. Added Ratliff, "Even the First District—the so-called Democratic Rock of Gibraltar — is going Republican this year."

U.S. Rep. Cowger also voiced his unqualified support for Judge Nunn. Said Cowger, "I know we're going to win this year. I am going to vote for Louie Nunn, I'm going to work for Louie Nunn and I want them to print that (referring to the Louisville newspapers)." Louisville Mayor Kenneth Schmed said, "We in Louisville and Jefferson County know how to run. Just run tough and hard with us and we're going to win it all." Gubernatorial nominee Judge Louie B. Nunn said that he has found the people "sick of more take-out pay than there is take-home pay." He criticized Ward for saying that Kentucky's top need is more money and pointed out that white state population has grown only 4.8 percent in the last ten years, the number of state employees has increased by 47.9 percent. And Kentucky's financial position under Frankfort machine control has gone from a 30 million surplus just 20 years ago when the Republicans were last in office, to almost a billion indebtedness this year, he said.

How can you be a Republican and vote for Henry Ward?

After all, he's not the Republican nominee for governor. But there's a special situation this year.

This year Henry Ward is the only candidate with a record of accomplishment in the business of managing state government . . . as a highway builder, park builder, industry builder, hard-nosed administrator.

Republicans respect solid accomplishment just as much as Democrats do.

Furthermore, Henry Ward is the one who has a record for streamlining and economizing in state government. Who's against that? Certainly not Republicans.

So it isn't surprising, really, to hear so many good Republicans speaking up for Henry Ward.

And when the votes are counted, he'll be governor for all of us. Republicans. Democrats. Independents, too.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Pedestrian Territory

Peddaling his bicycle along the sidewalk, a delivery boy collided with a woman shopper as she stepped from a market. Painfully injured, the woman filed a damage suit against the boy's employer.

But in court, the company denied liability.

"It is true that our boy didn't see her," acknowledged the company. "But it is equally true that she didn't see him. Neither one was watching, so it is a standoff."

However, the court ordered the company to pay the woman's claim. The judge reasoned that, since sidewalks are "pedestrian territory," a bicycle rider had a greater duty than the woman to keep a lookout.

As a rule, the pedestrian on a sidewalk is an elderly privileged status. He is entitled to protection not only against the wayward bicyclist but also against the intruding motorist.

Consider this case:

A motorist, backing down his driveway, kept his head out the window. But he looked straight behind him, not to either side. Nor did he sound his horn. Sure enough, his car struck an elderly pedestrian, approaching unseen on the sidewalk.

Result: The motorist was held liable for the accident.

Everyone is proud of our FHA being an honor roll chapter for two years in a row, and they are hard at work to make it three years. To raise money for their projects, one of which is to send soap to Vietnam, cookbooks will be sold. Also some minor activities are planned to raise money such as each member of FHA has to pay two cents for each inch around her waist.

Food Cues

BY: BECKY SUSAN

Today, we are going to visit the kitchen. We have a few recipes we would like to share with you. Cool weather is a good time for a hot dish.

BROWN BEEF STEW

1 pound beef cut in 1-inch cubes, 2 tablespoons melted fat, 1/2 cup chopped onion, 3 cups boiling water, 3 teaspoons salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 1 small bay leaf, dash of thyme, 1/2 cup diced carrots, 1/2 cup diced potatoes, 8 to 10 small white onions, 1 cup boiling water, 1/2 cup cold water, 5 tablespoons flour.

Brown beef in fat in large saucepan. Add onion and cook until golden brown. Add 3 cups boiling water and seasonings, cover and simmer 1 1/2 to 2 hours, or until meat is nearly tender. Add vegetables and continue cooking 30 minutes longer, or until vegetables are done. Add 1 cup boiling water. Add cold water gradually.

RICED AND BEEF SOUP

3 tablespoons cooking fat, 2/3 cup uncooked white rice, 1 pound ground beef, 1 cup sliced onions, 8 cups water, 3 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 1 cup whole kernel yellow corn, 1/2 teaspoon hot sauce or hot pepper (optional).

Melt the fat in a 4-quart or larger soup kettle. Add the rice and ground beef. Cook stirring occasionally, until the beef and rice begin to brown. Add the onions and cook until they begin to turn yellow.

Add the water, salt, pepper, Cook, stirring occasionally, about one hour.

Stir in the hot sauce (optional) and corn. If uncooked corn is used, cook until the corn is tender. Add more water if thinner soup is desired. The soup may be cooked to flour, mixing until smooth. Add to simmering stew, stirring vigorously. Cook and stir until thickened. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Or for a special treat, add dumplings the last 10 minutes of cooking (uncovered), then cover pan lightly and cook 10 minutes longer without removing cover.
