

Starts Cattle Business

W. E. "Rip" VanWinkle, native and former resident of Rockcastle County, recently got into the pure bred cattle business in a big way in Alachua County, Florida.

Mr. Van Winkle began by purchasing 123 acres of choice farmland in Alachua, then deciding that this wasn't enough, acquired 400 more choice acres and meanwhile started stocking these acres with 20 pure bred heifers of the Charolais breed, a breed developed in France. Purchase price for these twenty head was $5,000 each or $100,00.

Tommy Kendrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kendrick of Mt. Vernon, is executive vice president of Van Winkle enterprise, an enterprise which includes besides the 523 acres previously mentioned, 740 acres bought with a partner.

Van Winkle, who likes to boast of his birthplace,

Possum Kingdom, and who came to Gainseville via Cocoa 11 years ago, completed his purchase of the $100,000 worth of Charolais heifers last week. He had previously made a $5,000 down payment on the heifers and delivered a check for the balance -- $95,000 -- to Marshall Bailey, co-owner of Mar-K Ranch near High Springs, Fla.

LEGISLATIVE BUDGET

The Legislature gave final approval and sent to the Governor on March 12 the first independent Legislative budget within memory. It calls for an appropriation of $3 million to finance the Legislature, its staff and committees for two years.

Heretofore, the appropriation for the Legislature has been presented by the Governor as a part of the overall State budget.

Fellow Republicans of Rockcastle County

On Saturday, March 23 we will meet at the courthouse to elect our committeemen and committeewomen then our County Chairman.

There seems to be quite a bit of opposition concerning some committee members and the re-election of our present County chairman, Clyde Barnett.

I wonder if this is because there is a Republican in Frankfort. In the past, while Mr. Barnett was serving under a Democratic administration, there didn't seem to be many people wanting the job.

Mr. Barnett has done a fine job, freely given his time, money, and service. I think it would be a disgrace to our Republican Party in Rockcastle County not to let him have the pleasure of serving one term under the Republican administration.

He has my support, thanks, and all the help I can give him.

THANKS FOR A GOOD SEASON

A COMMENT FROM THE COACH:

"I would like to take this opportunity to compliment the thank the boys on my team for the thrilling season they gave the Brodhead fans and me. When the season started, Brodhead was rated sixth in a seven team district. Many people thought this would be a losing year. When time to play rolled around, this team showed early they were dedicated to winning. This team played their hearts out even when they were hopelessly beaten. In my ten years of coaching, I have never coached a team with more desire than these boys had. Because of the hard work and winning ways of this team, there is a desire in our school to play ball that has never been here before. Boys, I hope the harsh words, hard practices, and sweat faces you have made have been worth it. The greatest compliment I can pay you, is to say, "You won with humility and lost like gentlemen."

To our fans, the team and I would like to say thanks and we hope you enjoyed the season."

MANAGEMENT FOR LAWN AND TURF PURPOSES

Kentucky bluegrass should be seeded on well-prepared, firm seedbed, at the rate of 1-1/2 pounds per 1,000 sq. ft. and covered lightly. It may be seeded in early fall or spring. If seeded in spring, the pre-emergent herbicide, siduron (Tupersan), can be used to prevent competition from warm seasonal annual grasses that may become competitive with the young bluegrass seedlings, and thus, prevent stand establishment. After planting, good stands best obtained if the seed bed can be kept moist until the seedlings are well established.

Prior to seeding, the soil should be limed and fertilized according to soil tests to correct deficiencies in regard to pH, phosphorus and potassium. Elemental nitrogen should be applied at the rate of one pound per 1,000 sq. ft. either before or at the time of seeding in the form of a complete fertilizer, or alone if phosphorus and potassium are not required. Once the stand is established nitrogen fertilizer should be applied at the rate of 1 pound per 1,000 sq. ft. during the spring, summer, and fall to keep the grass in a vigorous growing condition. Phosphorus and potassium should be applied as a maintenance fertilizer approximately once each year at the rate of 1 pound of P-205 and K-207 per 1,000 sq. ft.

The grass should be mowed once each week during the growing season. It develops best when clipped to a height of 2 1/2 to 3 inches during the spring and summer and to a height of approximately 2 inches during the fall season. Insects and weeds may become a problem in Kentucky bluegrass sods. Recommendations for the control of weeds may be obtained from U. of Ky. Cooperative Extension Service, Misc. 322-A "Weed Control." Recommendations for Established Bluegrass Turf." Instructions for insect control may be found in U. of Ky. Coop. Ext. Serv. Misc. 358, "White Grubs and Their Control," and in Misc. 363, "Soil Weevils and Their Control."

GOOD SEED DOES NOT COST IT PAYS

Good quality seed only cost one and one-half to two percent of the total production cost of most crops. Just look how you, as a farmer, can buy the highest priced seed and save money.

PLS is a quick and easy way to determine the value of the seed offered for sale. PLS means Pure Live Seed. PLUS means the percentage of purity by the percentage of germination and divide by one hundred. This gives you the percentage of the total contents of the bag that is good seed which will germinate and grow.

How to use the analysis of some samples of Ky 311a1 fescue picked up in the University of Kentucky Drill Box Survey in the fall of 1967.

Sample one has a Purity of 99.58%, Germination, 97.00%; Inert Matter, .39% Weed Seed, none; and Crop Seed, .03%. This is extra good and clean.

Sample two has a Purity of 97.43%, Germination, 18%, Inert Matter, 84%, Weed Seed, none; and Crop Seed, 1.08%. The crop seed in this sample are orchardgrass, bluegrass, and timothy. The weed seed in this sample are chest, curled dock, sedge, papilion, meadow, and three sorerol per ounce.

Now let's see what the seed cost in each that would germinate and grow. By using the formula above we see that the cost of the good seed per pound in Sample one was eighteen and one-half cents. The cost of the good seed in Sample two was fifty-seven cents per pound.

When seed is purchased from a good neighborhood seed dealer, it is tagged showing the information on the analysis tag that it has been tested for germination, cleaned and treated, if treatment is recommended for the particular crop. Seed treatment is not recommended for all fescue.

The buyer can easily and quickly, as shown here, calculate the value and learn if he is getting a bargain or if he is buying a cheap seed at a high price.

Untagged and untested, he may be paying an exorbitant price for any seed that germinated and besides he is buying a lot of noxious weeds and crops other than the one he intended to buy.

This sample two, for instance, would not even be a bargain as it is tagged because it might serve as a source of complete contamination and crop failure to produce.

Plant certified seed whenever it is available. In this class is the best assurance of getting what you want in crop production.

MAIZE DWARF MOSAIC (MDM) SERIOUS IN STATE CORN FIELDS NOW

The most serious disease even encountered on corn in Kentucky, maize dwarf mosaic (MDM) is spreading in the state.

It first was discovered here in 1962. It now covers a wide area of the state, says S.H. Phillips, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service agronomist.

to overwinter in Johnsongrass or other perennial plants.

Resistant varieties seem to be the best way to combat the disease. Kentucky's breeding program already has been recognized as one of the top two or three such programs in the U.S.

It is widely distributed in Kentucky, but four areas are particularly serious. They are: 1. The Kentucky River area and its tributaries particularly around Frankfort (Franklin county); 2. The Ohio River area north of Henderson to the West Virginia line;

3. Warren, Monroe and Cumberland counties (southern Kentucky); and 4. Eastern Kentucky in Clay and Laurel county areas.

The disease occurs most frequently in fields where Johnsongrass is abundant. For this reason, elimination of Johnsongrass and annual corn fields is desirable.

"Such elimination is especially desirable around sweet corn, since highly resistant varieties in this type corn have not been found. The disease is particularly severe in sweet corn. Several lines of field corn appear to be resistant to the disease and work is underway to develop satisfactory resistant varieties. The University of Kentucky program for this is considered superior, and is one of two or three such breeding programs to date national recognition."

The disease will not be transmitted by seed corn or grain movement. Mr. Phillips says.

Symptoms: First, yellow streaks in the leaf which run parallel to the veins. There also can be a milder notching of the leaves. Later, the leaves develop a striking red color, particularly younger ones.

Plants infected early will stunt badly and will grow to only a third or half of normal size. Ears usually will not develop to normal size, and are poorly filled.

The symptoms are very like those of corn stunt, and the two diseases are often confused. However, corn stunt is not known to occur in Kentucky.

Sweet sorghum and grain sorghum plantings also can be hit by MDM disease, Mr. Phillips says.

NEWBLOAT PREVENTIVE AVAILABLE NOW IN PREMIX FORM

A new compound to prevent or control bloat in cattle is available in a medicated, premix form.

Dr. Roy C. Gray, Jr. and Dr. Bernard Jones, beef cattle specialists with the U.K. Cooperative Extension Service, said the compound is known as polaxalone. It formerly was available only in a feed top-dressing form, or in molasses - salt block form.

The new premix is made to be mixed with cattle supplements, concentrates or complete feeds as cubes, pellets, crumbles or meal. It can be made by feed manufacturers who have approval of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to use it, the specialist pointed out.

Test cattle that ate the required amount of the preventive in either form were free of bloat as long as 12 hours, from one feeding to the next, the specialists report.

The compound is marketed under the trade name of "Bloat Guard." It prevents information of bloat-causing regurgitation when animals are feeding on lush legume pasture or green chop. The food "contains" trapped digestive gases.

Bloat is a major killer of beef and dairy animals. U.S. losses run to $20 million annually from this condition.

the boy's later misconduct in running through the aisle. However, the court held him liable in spite of this intervening cause.

Reason: he should have foreseen, when he left the rake there, that boys—especially small ones—will be boys.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Cause and Effect

Was Mrs. O'Leary, whose cow kicked over the lantern, legally liable for burning down the whole city of Chicago? After all, if she had not left that lantern in the barn, the fire never would have gotten started in the first place. Obviously, in following the chain of cause and effect, it is only fair to cut off responsibility at some point. Even if you do something wrong, the law won't blame you for every single consequence, from here to eternity.

But where is the cutoff point? That is a crucial issue in a great many of the personal injury suits so common in our courtrooms today.

at all if no causal connection can be shown. Suppose you are driving with an expired driver's license, and a pedestrian steps in front of your car—too suddenly for you to stop. True, you did wrong by driving with an expired license. But that would not make you liable for hitting the pedestrian, since there was no causal connection between the two events.

Even assuming a causal connection, you are still not liable if your action was not the "proximate" cause of the final harm.

What is a proximate cause? Of course it is identical. But what the law looks for most often is foreseeability. That is, you are usually not held liable if harm was not reasonably foreseeable as a result of your action.

On the other hand, if harm was indeed foreseeable, you may be responsible even if the exact form of the harm was not. Pulling away someone's chair, making a minor bump likely, could lead to liability for a major injury as well.

What if there is an "intervening" cause—some misconduct by a third party, following your own misconduct, and leading to the accident? Does that intervening cause let you "off the hook"?

Often it does. Let us say you might still be liable if that intervening cause was something you could fairly have expected.

For example: a hardware dealer left a rake, standing upright, in a busy aisle. A small boy, running by, stepped on the teeth of the rake, snapping the handle against a woman's head.

When she sued the hardware man for damages, he argued that his original error was nullified by

JOB RIGHTS OF RETURNING VETERANS

When a worker has been away in military service for several years, it is easy for an employer to forget his legal responsibility to that veteran if he wants his job back when he returns. But the draft laws spells out, and the Supreme Court has brought down some decisions on special cases that are worth reviewing now that veterans are returning in substantial numbers.

RIGHTS UNDER THE DRAFT LAW

First and foremost, the draft law specifies that young men discharged from the service must be treated exactly as though they had been on a furlough or leave of absence. Upon request, they must be given back their old jobs with no loss of seniority. Any fringe provisions must be theirs on the same basis that applies to employees granted leaves of absence by their company. In other words, such young men must not be deprived of any benefits accruing to their jobs while they were absent serving their country. Personnel executives in companies both large and small should be well versed in the legalities and ethics of treating returning veterans who want their jobs back. Misunderstanding of the intent of the draft law and ignorance of subsequent court findings can cause embarrassment all around, plus possible tensions that may seriously damage labor relations as a whole. For unionized concerns, it is advisable for personnel officials to confer with labor representatives on such issues, especially if there are any uncertainties. Otherwise, the unions may later question management's actions.

SPECIFICS OF SENIORITY GUARANTEES

The High Court has made it clear that seniority must in no way be lost or lessened when a man is away in the service. Upon his return, a veteran must be treated precisely as though his employment had been continuous during his absence. Any changes affecting his position while he was in the service must apply to the job when he reclaims it. In at least one instance, even the elimination of their jobs through a labor-management agreement while the men were on duty did not release the employer from responsibility. The Supreme Court found that their stint for their country was to be counted as working time in determining severance pay based on length of job tenure.

Recently a returning veteran claimed a paid vacation that he had nearly accrued when he went into the military. The employer gave him back his position without controversy but insisted that the employee would have to start anew in the building up qualifications for holiday and vacation pay. Interest in the case was stirred when a federal appellate court recently divided in its decision backed the employer in his stand. The High Bench, however, reversed the appellate decision by such a position to an earlier precedent which had supported the stand of the workers.

SOLVING HYPOTHETICAL PROBLEMS

It is not always a simple question of giving back to the veteran the job and rating he had when he left for his military term. Consideration must sometimes be given to an upgrading in his position that would doubtless have occurred had he remained on his company's staff without interruption. In one recent instance, a draftsman resuming his job after his service duty claimed that restitution of his former rating was not enough. He argued that a union agreement required virtually automatic promotion as long as there was an opening on a higher level. Had he been there on the spot, he persisted, his qualification for achieving a more satisfactory rating. Here again, the court went along with the veterans pressing for somewhat hypothetical advances. For management to be mindful of the best interests of returning veterans is to avoid charges of callousness, or at least carelessness. Even though it may create temporary difficulties in evening out rating differences between workers upgraded during the absence of service men and the returnees themselves, careful meshing of the strands of differences will prove to be very much worthwhile.

Washington Report

By: Cong. Tim Lee Carter

The latest report issued by the Labor Department shows that the living costs were 3 1/2 percent higher in January than a year ago. In other words, it takes $11.86 to buy what $10 bought 10 years ago. It's the same old story—more inflation, higher prices. The report also showed that wholesale prices in January—a sign that higher retail prices are in the offing.

I don't have to tell you how frustrating inflation and higher prices are to all Americans. While inflation hurts all Americans, it is particularly cruel to our senior citizens and others living on fixed incomes. Based on the 1939 dollar, which is often used for comparison purposes, today's dollar will buy only 42 cents worth of what it would less than 30 years ago. Unfortunately, there's no end in sight to this decline. At the present rate, the purchasing power of the dollar will be worth a nickel by 1982.

What can be done about this? A key step in checking inflation's growth is to exercise restraint in Government spending. Huge spending results in huge deficits which contribute to the inflationary spiral.

Not long ago, the Congress received next Fiscal Year's Budget from the President. Instead of putting a damper on non-essential Federal spending, the new Budget is a blockbuster—the largest in history—the first $200 billion dollar Budget we've ever had. Moreover, just as it has been each year since 1960, the new Budget calls for another deficit, upwards of 20 billion dollars. Many Members of Congress have expressed grave reservations about such massive spending while the war rages in Vietnam and inflation stalks the grocery counter here at home. Since the President refuses to cut spending, it is my hope the Congress will.

VETERAN'S QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. -- My employer is going to pay for my tuition in school. Am I still eligible for benefits under the G.I. Bill?

A. -- Yes, provided, you are otherwise eligible. However, educational allowance is not payable if the veteran is enrolled in a course paid for by the United States under the provisions of any other law which the allowance would constitute a duplication of benefits from the Federal Treasury.

Q. -- A statement in my service medical report says I have a stomach hernia that I received while in service. Although I was discharged from the Army about five years ago, is it to late for me to file for compensation from the VA?

A. -- No, it is not too late. There is no time limit as to when a veteran may file for compensation for a disease or injury which he believes was incurred while serving in the Armed Forces.

Q. -- My husband is a World War II veteran. We have been married a number of years. He still lists his mother who is well-to-do, as his sole beneficiary on his $10,000 G.I. insurance. Is there anything I can do about this? Can I get the VA to change it? I am unable to work any more.

A. -- No you can't. Only the insured can change the beneficiary. Legally, the Veterans Administration must pay the proceeds of G.I. insurance to the beneficiary named by the veteran.

Social Security News

Self-employed people should bring a copy of their 1967 Federal Income Tax Return and proof of their age when they get ready to file an application for Social Security benefits reports James Mastian Offices in charge of the Somerset Social Security office. Mastian stated that the reason for bringing the Federal Income Tax Return is that these earnings are not yet on the Social Security earnings record. With the tax return and evidence that it has been filed, the Social Security Administration can go ahead and give credit for the earnings before they are posted to the record. The tax return is needed in almost every case where self-employment earnings are involved. Proof of age should be a birth certificate, church or hospital record of birth or age that was recorded in the first few years of life. If these records are not available, other documents usually can be very easily obtained. Some of these records may be in a person's own home such as: life insurance policy, marriage record (that show your age) military records, family records and Family Bible. Other records such as school records, church records or employment records also can be used.

Mustian added that documents established early in life are preferable in establishing a person's date of birth for Social Security purposes. It is a good idea to inquire at the Social Security Office ahead of time if there are any questions about Social Security and how it will fit in with retirement plans. The Social Security Office is located in the Tradewind Shopping Center in Somerset.

STRETCH YOUR FOOD DOLLAR

By: BECKY SUSAN

One of the most convenient of dairy products—evaporated milk—is actually whole milk with over half the water removed.

It has been sealed in cans, sterilized and needs no refrigeration until after the can is opened. It's ideal for camping and other outdoor trips and is a convenient way to keep on the shelf at home.

Evaporated milk and other dairy products are in especially good supply this month, reminds the Consumer and Marketing Service, so it's a good time to use them often, in a variety of dishes.

Quick saucery is easy with evaporated milk. As it pours from the can, add cheese and heat for a cheese sauce for casseroles, vegetable dips, Alfredo sauce and heat for a smooth dessert sauce. Blend with fruit juice, such as orange or lemon for a creamy sauce and cold dressing.

Binding ingredients is easy with evaporated milk. It keeps meat loaves, fish patties and such foods moist and light during baking, yet firm enough for perfect slicing.

Crumb-coating food is easy with evaporated milk. It holds crumbs to foods beautifully. Just roll the food in the crumb or flour mixture, shake lightly, dip in evaporated milk, and roll in crumbs.

Old-fashioned recipes which call for sour milk are easy with evaporated milk. For one cup sour milk, combine 1/2 cup evaporated milk with 1/2 cup water and add 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice.

Serve a potato, potato, pommes terre, Kartoffel, potato or papa—and you'll be serving an all-American favorite—the potato.

Potatoes are a popular menu item all over the world, and a mainstay of many people's diets.

Now is the time to save potatoes often, and in a variety of recipes, suggests the Consumer and Marketing Service. Supplies are large and prices to southeastern consumers should be attractive.

Meat and potatoes is a popular team that's sure to please the pocketbook as well as the palate. One meat-potato idea is a pork and potato scallop. To make, blend cooked potatoes and an onion flavored white sauce in an oven-to-table casserole. Top with inch-thick pork chops. Cover and bake about 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

Remove the cover and continue baking until the chops brown. Garnish with sliced tomato and serve.

Home-makers looking for a change of menu may want to try tuna cutlets. Combine seasoned mashed potatoes, beaten eggs and tuna fish.

Shape into cutlets and roll in crushed corn flakes. Fry in shallow fat until crispy and golden brown.

A quickie menu idea is potato wishbone. Split frankfurters lengthwise and heap with seasoned mashed potatoes. Top with tangy cheese slices and heat in an oven until the cheese is melted. Serve immediately.

Salary Increase For Ky School Teachers

Kentucky's 29,000-plus public school teachers will receive an annual average salary of $6,285 for the 1967-68 fiscal year, an increase of $517 over that paid them last year. This was included in an estimated budget of $305.5 million which the State Board of Education approved Wednesday, March 13. The record budget is some $76 million more than was appropriated by the Legislature for the fiscal year, but the additional money came from increased efforts and federal aid, a State Department of Education official said.

The salary increases, however, fall short of the national average for all teachers by some $1,300 and for classroom teachers alone approximately $1,100, the official said.

The average salaries range from $5,231 the lowest at Augusta Independent.

District in Brecken County, to $7,909 at Post Thomas Independent District. Six other districts have salaries averaging over $7,000. They are Anchorage $7,943; Jefferson $7,405; Elizabethtown $7,069; Louisville $7,903; Lynch $7,073; and Beechwood $7,666.

In other action, the board approved construction, when funds are available, of three extension vocational schools and an addition to a State Area school. They will cost $1.9 million with Federal funds paying about two-thirds of the amount. The three centers will be at Middlesboro and Mohrton (also serving Metcalfe) and Casey counties. They will serve high schools with a total enrollment of 3,287 students.

Legislative Roundup

Eight Democrats joined B. Republican in giving final, bipartisan Senate approval to Gov. Louie B. Nunn's tax bill to finance his $2.47 billion budget for the next two fiscal years. The vote was 21 to 17.

Then, in action that took place just two days before final March 15 adjournment of the 1968 General Assembly, all 38 senators joined in giving unanimous approval to the budget bill for fiscal 1968-1970.

The tax measure calls for a 5 percent sales tax on all retail purchases starting April 1 and an increase in vehicle license fees from $5 to $12.50 starting next

Jan. 1. Kentucky's sales tax currently is 3 percent.

Before passing the administration measure, the eight Democrats and 13 Republicans beat back a Democratic majority substitute bill that included a 4 percent sales tax and tax refunds in lieu of a sales tax exemption on food and medicine.

The two measures—House Bill 399, tax; and House Bill 400, budget—previously had passed the House through a coalition of Democrats and Republicans.

For 1968-1970, the budget provides for a $262.2 million increase over General Fund appropriations for fiscal 1966-1968. Education would be the chief beneficiary with a total appropriation of $665,041,925, or 66.2 percent. Health and welfare would receive 18 percent, and other State services the remainder.

ADMINISTRATIVE REGULATIONS

The Senate, on the same day it approved the Governor's budget and tax plan, voted 29-5 to override his first veto. Nunn had vetoed Senate Bill 126 which would give the Legislature power to review all regulations issued by State administrative agencies.

Nunn said in his veto message that "the power to determine the legality of regulations should remain with the courts of our Commonwealth." The measure was sent from the Senate to the House, which originally passed it 76-0, where at least 51 votes were needed to complete overriding the veto.

This was a bill to legalize certain kinds of multi-coin pinball machines that were banned by the 1966 Legislature.

Another was Senate Resolution 21, to rescind Kentucky's call at the 1965 special session for a Federal Constitution convention in support of "the Diksen Amendment" to amend the constitution to nullify the U.S. Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" ruling.

Tow education measures also were pronounced dead. One of these HB 297, would have authorized merger of the Louisville and Jefferson County School systems under the so-called "umbrella plan." The other, backed by the Kentucky Education Association called for recognition of teachers in salary and other negotiations through their local school professional organizations.

House action also was swayed on an open-housing measure prohibiting racial, ethnic, or religious discrimination in the sale of property.

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Passed by the Senate by a vote of 14-0 and sent to the Governor, House Resolution 91 calls for the University of Louisville to become a part of the state system of higher education by July 1970.

The resolution, which has the effect of a law, stipulates that the U. of L., now municipally operated, shall be maintained as a state institution not later than mid-1970 and that it be treated as part of the State system by July 1969, for submission of budget requests and other purposes.

The Senate passed and the Governor signed House Bill H9 which would eliminate three of the present 12 State holidays for State employees—Jan. 19, Robert E. Lee Day, June 3, Confederate Memorial Day, and Oct. 12, Columbus Day.

The bill also increases annual vacation leave for career employees.

TIME RUNS OUT

Lack of time for complete processing was responsible for the death of hundreds of bills in the House and the Senate at adjournment March 13. Any bill that had not cleared its house of origin by then and received at least one favorable reading in the other house was dead. Among these was HB 198.

AUTO INSPECTION

Still awaiting action in the House on the next to last day of the session was Senate Bill 252 which would provide replacement of Kentucky's compulsory annual auto inspection law with one that would require only that vehicles must pass a safety inspection within 12 months before changing owners.

KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE NEWS

J. Robert Miller
Commissioner

For a number of years, controversy has continued over the effectiveness of the need for a donated food program for the indigent. We have heard most of the arguments for and against the food distribution program with its advocates being matched in fervor by its critics.

It seems to me that we must keep foremost in our minds that the basic premise that it is the responsibility of the community not to let people go hungry in the midst of plenty. Of course, in the process of assisting the truly needy we are inadvertently giving assistance to those who appear to be capable of caring for their own needs. But we cannot escape from the primary responsibility to make assistance available to those who are unable to provide for themselves.

Tom Lewis, a director of our Commodity Distribution Division, says that we now have 60,000 people in 63 counties who are eligible to receive federally donated foods under the state-federal program. This does not represent all of the indigent people receiving aid in Kentucky. The influx of the food stamp plan seven years ago has gained wide acceptance in Kentucky and the number receiving aid through the Kentucky Department of Agriculture has been reduced substantially. Early in 1961 Lewis's division was allocating food to more than 300,000 people located in 100 counties.

I believe that the community has a great obligation in preventing "hunger within its boundaries—both socially and morally. Hunger, as a sign of disease and dulls the desire and capacity to become educated. Some educators have been most emphatic in their declarations that "you cannot teach a hungry child!"

Lewis points out that some local officials are reluctant to sponsor a commodity distribution program for various reasons. Sometimes they think that the county cannot bear the cost of a local program, but the average cost to the county is fifty cents per month per recipient. This goes for storage and personnel to carry the needy and make equitable distribution; the food is donated through the state Division of Commodity Distribution from USDA stocks acquired under the price support program. Lewis also thinks that lack of local participation is sometimes due to a certain callousness on the part of county officials. This is true, but it does exist, he said. In such instances the local authorities prefer to care for their needy through local resources and prevent the possible immigration of impoverished families who have a primary objective of receiving food recipients.

Experience has taught Lewis that local charities are usually adequate to fill all of the genuine needs and often the most needy are not cared for.

One of the most common gripes we hear about the program is: "if you give food to poor people, they won't work." The truth is that in most instances the head of the family is working; but not earning enough to cover the basic needs of the family. The records show, also, that over 85% of the recipients cannot work—too old, too young, too disabled, etc.

Another familiar gripe is: "they wouldn't need food if they got out and worked like the rest of us." In many areas, particularly in the remote rural areas, there just aren't enough jobs to go around. Still another complaint is: "give away foods here, local businessmen." The fact of the matter is that when families do not have to spend all of their money on staples they have extra money to go to the store and purchase meats, fresh milk, fresh fruits and vegetables.

The need for assistance still exists, regardless of the basic cause of such need. To neglect to fill such needs only perpetuates a serious economic and social problem for at least one more generation. If through our unwillingness, these basic needs are not met we can expect thousands of youngsters to grow into maturity in poor health and poorly educated because they lack the vitality to seek an education. It is in the interest of all of us that every means be brought to bear that these young people be given the capacity to be trained and educated so that they, too, may become self-sufficient.

4-H CLUB MEETS

The 1249 4-H Club held its monthly meeting Wednesday night, March 13 at the Sand Springs Community House.

PIE SUPPLY HELD WELL ATTENDED

A pie supper held Friday night by the 1249 4-H Club, was termed a very big success. In all, $95.00 was cleared on the project.
