TWO LIVESTOCK FIELD DAYS SET BY U.K. DURING JULY

Governor Louis B. Nunn is principal speaker at the University of Kentucky's two annual livestock field days in July. He will be at the Coldstream Farm off the Newtown Pike in Lexington, Wednesday, July 10, and the Princeton Experiment Station farm, Caldwell county, Friday, July 12.

His talk is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. local time at each location.

Tours of research facilities will be on the morning program at each spot. At Lexington, there will be three swine, two sheep, one horse and two beef cattle research stops. At Princeton there will be stops for beef, sheep and swine. Lunch will be available at each location.

PROGRAMMED DAIRY-HERD HEALTH TOPIC OF JULY 2 DAIRY DAY AT UK

Dr. David A. Morow, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. researcher, will discuss "Programmed Dairy Herd Health" at the annual University of Kentucky dairy field day, Tuesday, July 2 at Coldstream Dairy Center here.

The program also includes tours of research projects and dairy exhibits. The session opens at 9 a.m. The center is north of Lexington off the Georgetown pike.

Attendees will see research projects on guided tours on breeding problems, abnormal milk production, cow production, flavor control, forage quality and others. Exhibits will be set up on income production, using urea in feed and tuberculosis control.

Dr. Morow will talk about 1:15 p.m. Lunch will be available on the grounds.

CATTAL CONTROL NEEDED TO KEEP PONDS USE-FUL

Cattails, a tall-growing plant that "looks pretty" in a farm pond, actually is one of the biggest pest nuisances of a farmer.

Uncontrolled cattail growth eventually can choke out a fine pond and make the pond nearly unusable.

Here's how to control them, according to James Heron, UK Experiment Station weed control specialist.

1. Pull them out by the roots when they first appear in a farm pond. If allowed to stay these plants will develop extensive root systems and be harder to eradicate.

2. Use chemical killers if desired. One is Dalapon, a wettable powder, used at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds of Dalapon in 100 gallons of water for large areas, or approximately 8 table-spoonful in one gallon for small areas. Spray on the plants, wetting the foliage thoroughly as the material kills by absorption through the leaves and stems down to the roots.

Amino triazole is similar to Dalapon. Use about 4 table-spoonful in a gallon of water for small areas. 5 to 7 pounds in 100 gallons of water for large areas.

Be sure to wet the foliage thoroughly. Extension Leaflet 229, "Control of Cattails in Ponds," lists needed directions for control. It is available at area agents' offices.

CALCIUM DEFICIENCY IN TOBACCO SOMETIMES GENETIC FACTOR, UK SAYS

Calcium deficiency in some tobacco varieties may be a genetic factor in that variety rather than lack of the needed element in the ground. Dr. Richie Lowe, U.K. Ag. Experiment Station agronomist, recently reported on research in this matter. His findings will help plant breeders develop varieties where this will not be a problem.

Burley 21, a widely used variety in Kentucky, was the most susceptible to a wilt-like disease. Analysis of plants showed a high level of oxalic acid.

Dr. Lowe said. This acid "ties up" the calcium in the ground, Dr. Lowe says. KY 12 was low in the condition, so low that the "deficiency" was negligible. KY 10, ranged between KY 12 and Burley 21 in susceptibility, he noted.

The condition is easily noted in the field when it occurs. Symptoms usually are distorted upper leaves with brown tips or leaf areas.

In Burley 21 variety, Dr. Lowe estimates the weight loss can run from 10 to 15 percent of the crop in the "bad" years. These are seasons when rainfall is low and temperatures are high.

The tests were run in special growth chambers at the National Tobacco Research Laboratory here. Varieties were subjected to various temperatures. At 70 and 76 degrees F., calcium deficiency was no problem. At 79 degrees F., some varieties showed slight calcium deficiency trouble. At 82 and 86 degrees F., the condition was "severe" in susceptible varieties such as Burley 21, and one experimental line.

KY 156 a burley variety standby for many years but now in favor with state growers, showed no response at any test temperature, high or low. KY 12, at the very highest temperatures in the growth chambers, showed only light to medium susceptibility.

"Our research showed up pretty conclusively that calcium deficiency in Burley 21 and perhaps some other varieties, is a genetic factor and does not come from a lack of calcium in the ground. With our information, we hope the breeders can develop new varieties that will not have this genetic factor."

CONTROL BAGWORMS NOW FOR RESULTS

Those spindle-shaped bugs hanging from evergreens or deciduous trees and shrubs in your lawn mean the bagworm is causing trouble. These bugs contain small caterpillars with big appetites. The bagworm can do serious damage to the plants on which they feed. Evergreens, in particular, may be killed by bagworm infestations.

Two control methods are recommended. The best one is to pick the bags from the tree or shrub in the fall or winter and burn them. This prevents the caterpillar from hatching and feeding on the plants, as bagworms overwinter as eggs in the old bags.

The second method involves using a spray when the eggs hatch and caterpillars are seen. Mix two table-spoonfuls of Sevin, 50 percent wettable powder, or one table-spoonful of Malathion 57% or 50% liquid emulsion concentrate in each gallon of water. Spray the plants thoroughly. Also 2% E C Diazinon, 5 table-spoonfuls to one gallon water. As soon as the caterpillar hatches, it starts building its bag around where it goes sticking its head out to enlarge the bag as it grows.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of Nancy Gibbons who passed away on March 19, 1961. The world may change from year to year Our lives' from day to day, in love or memory of you Dear, shall never fade away.

We always sit and think of you and of the way you died. And that you never got to say good-bye before you closed your eyes. The blow was hard the shock severe. You never thought that death was so near.

And only those who have lost can tell the pain of parting without farewell. Always true, unselfish and kind.

So few in this world her equal you'll find. A beautiful life that came to an end. She died as she lived. Everybody's friend.

Another daughter, Doris, won this title in 1966 and is now a junior at Berea College.

First runner-up in the dairy princess contest was Miss Ruth Ann Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Brown and Joyce Barnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Barnett, was second runner-up.

The floats were superb this year with several more than usual entered and a lot of time and effort obviously expended on them. The Brindle Ridge 4-H Club won top honors in this division followed by Armour Milk Company and a new entry the Broodhead Brownies won third prize.

In the Large Horse Class, Ronnie Nicely, won first, followed by Emory Martin, second, William Taylor, third, and Floyd McClure, fourth. Lisa Lewis was first winner in the Pony Class followed by Wendell Martin, second, James Northern, third, and Roger Dale Johnson, fourth.

Dexter Alcorn took home the registered Holstein calf which is given away by the Bank of Mt. Vernon each year in a drawing.

The Shiners were a welcome addition to the parade and their efforts on behalf of the community were greatly appreciated. Besides their marching brass band, with fifty-three members, the Marching Patrol and Jockey Patrol, were also on hand and put on quite an exhibition for the crowd estimated between 3,000 and 3,500.

All in all, it was judged by everyone present to be the most successful dairy day of the eight that has been held and a fitting tribute to Rockcastle's dairy farmers and their families.

City Receives Bids For Water System

The response to the City of Mt. Vernon's call for bids for construction of the town's new water system, was very good. Several bids were received for all three contracts with only the bids for pipe-line construction being out-of-line with the engineer's estimated cost.

Contracts were not let on any of the bids since the City has 90 days in which to do so after bids are submitted. During this time, of course, the contractors cannot raise their original bid. Below is a listing of the bids submitted on each contract and the amount bid:

Contract No. 1 - Plant Construction: Hinkle Construction Corp. $380,110; Coleman Tractor Co. $411,952; Nash and Stewart $360,820; Clark, Wood, and Asso. $429,800; Engineer's Estimate $360,000.

Contract No. 2 - Pipe Line Construction: Fred W. Leath $647,608; W.H. McLaughlin $694,977.50; C.F.W. Const. Co. $702,148.85; Y. and S. Const. Co. $707,689.95; Engineer's Estimate $440,267.40.

Contract No. 3 - Elevated Tank: W.E. Caldwell $32,772; Glove Ind. Contractors $28,168; Chicago Bridge and Iron $42,420; Universal Tank and Iron $28,859; Pittsburg-Des Moines $39,678; Engineer's Estimate $28,000.

The average on the pipe-line bids and various other things will necessitate the City increasing their original grant and loan of $1,184,000 of around $1,500,000. Mayor Linville is scheduled to go to Huntington, West Virginia Friday to confer with officials of the Economic Development Association about the additional funds needed. According to Mayor Linville since the original estimates made by the engineers on the water system the cost of labor and materials has skyrocketed and the land cost more than originally anticipated thus causing

Group Asks For Use Of School Property

Miss Pat Haviland and Beth Arnold met with the Rockcastle County Board of Education last Thursday night to request the use of the school building and playground at Johnetta and Red Hill. Miss Haviland told the board that the school property would be used for recreation for children in these areas such as sports, arts, crafts, films, etc. The recreation program is under the sponsorship of the Catholic Church and the necessary sports equipment and other material would be furnished by this group. Miss Haviland also told the board that about thirty volunteers were available to supervise the children and that a survey in these areas had been made and approximately 72 children had definitely said they would take part in the program. Mrs. Miracle said she would have to write the Department of Education at Elmer Bryant, both of whom are members of the Presbyterian Church, the D.A.R. and the P.E.O. ## City Will Chain Entrance To Lake

The Mt. Vernon City Council decided at its regular meeting last Thursday night to chain the entrance way to the City Water Lake on Old Broodhead Road at 10 p.m. each night. The action was necessary because of persons who park at the lake and damage city property there. Several window lights have been broken out and beer cans, garbage and other items are thrown away there so the City Council decided to ask the Mt. Vernon City policemen to lock the gate each night at 10 p.m. This will still permit persons who wish to fish on the lake to do so. The Council also granted permission to persons having hay in the Renfro Lake area to cut their own hay. ADULT CLASSES Adult classes will begin at Broodhead High School July 1 for anyone interested in grade or high school equivalency. Contact Verda Scott, Route 3, Crab Orchard 758-2285.

TRUTH-IN-LENDING buys. No longer will it be President Johnson has signed the Consumer Credit Protection Act, a measure designed to give buyers the right to get the full details of the annual charges they pay for loans and credit purchases.

FULL DISCLOSURE REQUIRED Except in the case of installment purchases costing $25 or less for $25 to $75 if finance charges are below $5, or more than $75 if such charges are not above $7.50, the law requires finance companies, banks, other lenders, and retailers to make full disclosure of the credit charges in writing. Beginning July 1, 1969, "credit" customers and borrowers must be informed of these charges in terms of annual percentage rates on declining balance of their obligations, and of the dollars-and-cents cost of financing loans and purchases. The housewife who buys a department store on her revolving charge account must be told in writing how much she will pay of anything on credit, thereby hurting the legitimate and reputable business.

PROBABLE IMPACT ON LENDERS

Most lenders will find compliance with the truth-in-lending provisions annoying and time-consuming. But the new rules are sensible in the main, and lenders who extend credit, as well as other lenders who do not find it too hard to live with them and still prosper, are only the shoddy operators who have reason to fear. Lenders will be screening credit applications more closely, and after midyear 1970, some may find it necessary to refuse applicants because of the punishment provisions.

Retailing and money-lending are highly competitive fields. Both make extensive use of advertising in seeking customers. The new law requires that such advertising be much more explicit as to interest, and other changes than is now the case. Gimmecks will be dodging, with money costs likely to continue high well into the future, it will be interesting to see what advertising pitches will be used once the law goes into effect.

WILL CONSUMERS BORROW LESS?

Opposition to the law stemmed largely from concern that full disclosure of charges for credit and loans would cripple credit sales, upon which so many businesses heavily depend. It was feared that once consumers became aware of the true total cost of borrowing they would have second thoughts. But no such cutback occurred in Massachusetts—first state to pass a truth-in-lending law. We see no reason to believe that the national experience will be much different from that observed in the Bay State. Ours is now a decidedly credit-oriented society. Consumers are well trained in the art of "borrowing from tomorrow." Each year more and more Americans are attaining security of income; and this security promises to encourage a still broader use of credit as buying decisions "become" more widely determined by expectations of future income than by limitations of current income.

CRISIS IN OUR CITIES AND LAWLESSNESS IN AMERICA

By: Tim Lee Corrie

Not long ago, Americans took pride in their great cities, especially in their magnificent Capital City of Washington. With their children, they flocked to see it by the millions. The Capitol, the White House, the Lincoln Memorial and other great shrines. But no anymore. A tragic change has swept over the country. People are beginning to shun these National Capital, their great cities and to move away from them, because they are considered unsafe, great sections of them have been looted and burned. Even the bus drivers of the City of Washington went on strike, because it is no longer safe to drive a bus and more than 20 of them had been held up and robbed—even one killed in a robbery.

Things have become so bad here that some Congressmen have warned their constituents not to come to Washington, because it isn't safe. Washington's tourist trade is grinding to a halt. What has happened to law and order in the Nation's Capital and across the country? We must begin to meet the crisis with which our great Nation is faced today.

state of affairs? So far, only promises and commissions to consider and study the problems. Basically, I believe the fault lies in an inherent weakness in the structure of the so-called "Great Society." Let's look at the crime situation in this country. Since 1960, the total volume of major crimes, has risen 88%. Last year alone, there were 8 1/2 million serious crimes and they cost Americans over $600 million dollars. These may be the statistics of a "Great Society" but they are the statistics of lawless and chaotic conditions that are a disgrace to America.

It's impossible to cure these despoiled hills overnight. But we must begin. I suggest two types of Programs - an immediate one and a long range one. For the immediate one, we must cease making fantastic promises that we cannot possibly fulfill by pouring our money in vain attempts to buy Utopia, since the Federal Government can't do everything, and we must have a program of decisive action to stop the present lawlessness and disorder. For the long range one, we must improve educational opportunities and provide more job-training. We must encourage - and help private programs that are constructive, and bring private enterprise strongly into the urban picture. Above all, we must strengthen our State and local governments to deal with State and local programs. This cannot be done overnight, BUT WE MUST BEGIN TO meet the crisis with which our great Nation is faced today.

The world's largest ferro-alloys furnace is at Calvert City.

Special guests attending were Mrs. Paul Gentry and Mrs. and Mrs. D.C. Sherman and son, Eddie, from Somerset, Kentucky. After having a wonderful dinner, the business meeting was held. Mr. W.E. Proctor was re-elected president of the council and Jewell Hansel the newly elected secretary. Many important topics were discussed. Among these were the discussion for the plans for the annual meeting to be held at the Brodhead Fairgrounds, July 25, brought before the council, by William I. Norton. Also brought before the council was the Farmers and Businessmen tour which is scheduled for July 15-16-17 reported by H. Lee Durham. Another important discussion and need to recognize the young people in F.F.A. and 4-H Clubs was contemplated by the members of the council. One of the plans on this matter was to establish a class in the near future to enable these young people to acquire a more complete knowledge on farming and other establishments. (Cont. To Page 5)

Social Security News

Disability is a social and economic problem of major dimensions. In 1966 it affected one-sixth of the nation's working age population, Lawrence D. Haber writes in the May issue of the Social Security Bulletin, an official publication of the Social Security Administration.

His article, "Disability, Work, and Income Maintenance: Prevalence of Disability, 1966" presents first findings from the nationwide 1966 Social Security Survey of Disabled Adults which included all non-institutionalized disabled persons aged 18-64. The field work was carried out for the Social Security Administration by the Bureau of the Census.

Disability was found to limit some 18.2 million adults in their ability to work, of whom 17.8 million had been disabled longer than 6 months.

The survey classified the disabled into three categories. It identified the severely disabled as "unable to work altogether or unable to work regularly." A second category was the occupationally disabled, "able to work regularly, but unable" to do the same work as before the onset of disability, or unable to work full-time. Finally, there were those with "secondary work limitations" able to work full-time, regularly, and at the same occupations but with limitations in the kind or amount of work they could perform in their jobs.

The article documents substantial losses of earnings and family income because of disability. It points out that public programs designed to offset the wage losses of disability paid out more than $8 billion in cash benefits and assistance to the disabled and their dependents in 1966. But these programs "are intended primarily to provide support" for the severely disabled rather than for disabled persons with work capacity.

"More than half of the severely disabled received no income from public income-maintenance programs"

"Severely disabled men benefited from disability income-support programs to a greater extent than women. Three-fifths of the severely disabled men received income from one or more of the public programs, compared with less than two fifths of the women."
Haber points out that "the number of severely disabled not employed on a full-time basis who had accepted reduced benefits for early retirement or were not receiving any public income-maintenance benefits suggests that there are inadequacies in the present support and wage-replacement systems for the severely disabled. These may reflect the nonmedical requirements, and the evaluation of the labor market, or they may reflect discrepancies between the respondents' perception of capacity limitations and program criteria for capacity limitations.

More than 13 million severely disabled men received no wage-replacement benefits, or had reduced benefits, or public assistance only. Less than one-third of these men were currently employed, and only 1 in 20 was employed full time."

Any dairy farmer will tell you. The dairy cow is quite a "machine" for converting feed into nature's most perfect foods - milk and milk products. But that's only the beginning. Dairy farmers of this area know efficient operation of a dairy farm depends on good management, sound judgment, modern methods. Modern farm machinery and equipment are part of that successful operation. We congratulate our dairy farmers on a job well done in producing high quality milk and invite them to consult with us about equipment that will help them to produce milk, more profitably.

Scenes From The 1968 Rockcastle County Dairy Day Parade

LEADING THE PARADE—Things got off to a merry start with Harris Burton carrying the flag in Saturday's parade, followed by the City of Mt. Vernon's fire truck sounding its siren. The Shriners were a welcome addition to the parade which was assuredly one of the biggest seen in Mt. Vernon.

Don Wilson, former University of Kentucky Band Director, leads the Oleika Temple Shrine Band through downtown Mt. Vernon Saturday afternoon. The brass band paid their own expenses to come and join in the parade and it was well worth the crowd's attendance to see this fine group perform.

FLOAT WINNER—The Brindle Ridge 4-H Club took first place honors in the float division in Saturday's Dairy Day Parade. The theme of the float was "Milk - A World-Wide Favorite." The children on the float were attired in costumes representing countries of the world. Queen of the float was Linda Holland. Others on the float were Vicki Burdette, Jessie Holland, Janice Burdette, Susan Seyler, Jamie Burdette, Nancy Coffey, Doug Adams, Debbie Adams, Marcia Lamb, Carolyn Lamb, and Dwyann Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Cameron are leaders of the club.

MOTOR PATROL—The Motor Patrol from the Lexington Oleika Shrine Club was one of the features of the Dairy Day parade. The Shriners were here with their Marching Band and Jockey Patrol and enthusiastically received by the crowd.

Always a welcome addition to any parade, the horseback riders were out in full force for Saturday's Dairy Day. In the Large Horse Class, Ronnie Nicely won first and in the Pony Class, Lisa Lewis was the first place winner.

BRODHEAD GIRL SCOUTS—Third place winner in the float division was the Brodhead Brownie Troop 217. Also in the parade were the Junior Troop 348 and Cadet Troop 226. Two of the leaders in the recently organized scout troops are Mrs. Dale Broy and Mrs. Billy Riddle also shown in the above picture.

MT. VERNON BOY SCOUTS—The Mt. Vernon Boy Scouts were also active in Saturday's parade with a float entered and the troops marching, including the local Cub Scout Troop. Charles Alfred Mullins, Scoutmaster and Dr. Jack D. Henderson, Cub Scoutmaster, are shown with the boys.

Entertaining the crowd before the parade got underway were these two youngsters with their accordions on stop.
