

CARTER RELEASES RESULTS OF 1968 QUESTIONNAIRE

By: Cong. Tim Lee Carter
This week, Congressman Tim Lee Carter, (R., Ky.), announced the results of his Fourth Annual Questionnaire. Approximately 100,000 copies were mailed to all 24 counties of his District, the Fifth District of Kentucky.

From the thousands completed and returned to his office, Rep. Carter said this year's Questionnaire reveals that 33.7% of the people of his District favor complete withdrawal of U.S. Forces from Vietnam. 79% disapprove of the conduct of the war in Vietnam, while 54.8% favor escalation of ground and air attacks to win the war. 72.1% favor returning to state and local governments a percentage of tax money collected by the Federal Government, 60.8% oppose the ban of all mail order sales of firearms, while 34% favored the ban. My mail has been running twenty to one against registration of firearms. 90.6% favor collection of World War I debts. 72.5% opposed the Administration's 10% surtax proposal. 55.1% favors the Senator Perry Housing Plan to promote home ownership among the low income families. 51.7% opposed the Poverty Program.

The war in Vietnam presents one of the greatest problems which has ever confronted the American people. For seven years, we have been struggling along in a country 11,000 miles from our shores. The war has cost us the lives of over 25,000 of our young men and more than $60 billion in our wealth. As most of my constituents know, I have visited Vietnam on two occasions and spent considerable time studying our involvement in that conflict. It is my frank opinion that we were militarily wrong in becoming involved in the war. Rep. Carter said he appreciated very much the thousands of responses received on his Fourth Annual Questionnaire. Every one was carefully tabulated and the percentage figured by an independent agency. He considers the return of the questionnaire a means of active participation in our Legislative process, and expressed appreciation for the interest the people of his District have shown by informing him of their opinions on these important issues. They will all receive most careful consideration, the Congressman said.

Kentucky encompasses 40,395 square miles, ranking 37th among the states in area.

KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE NEWS

This is the season for displaying of Kentucky's best crops, livestock and handicrafts as county fairs are underway throughout the state. Several counties have already held their annual fair, but the next two months will offer a heavy schedule of these colorful events.

Kentucky is among a number of states which offers financial aid to county fairs. The Kentucky Department of Agriculture is making $72,500 available to local fairs this year. There are 64 fairs which have qualified for the funds provided through the aid to county fairs program, with 31 of these being eligible to receive the amount of $1,500.

The Department provides the month on a matching basis. In addition to matching the state aid, the local fairs must meet specific standards. One of the major requirements is that the money be used for approved classes.

Steady growth has been realized in both the number of approved classes being held at county fairs and the number of entries exhibited. Local fair committees are to be commended for the excellent progress they have made in the upgrading of fairs in recent years.

Kentucky has long been noted for outstanding county fairs. Some of America's earliest fairs and exhibitions were held in Kentucky. These fairs and exhibitions were initiated as educational and promotional events for crops and livestock. County fairs being held today, even though much larger than the events staged years ago, still have the purpose of education and promotion.

County fairs are the showcase for crops, livestock and handicrafts produced in the local or adjoining area. While exhibitors can win premiums and ribbons, they can also learn by seeing their products evaluated in competition with those produced by others. Non-exhibitors can learn about their community by viewing classes and displays at county fairs.

We of the Department of Agriculture not only seek to support county fairs through financial aid, but we also wish to encourage our youths and adults to participate as exhibitors and spectators.

Many long hours of hard work go into the planning and staging of a good county fair. This hard work on the part of several individuals should be rewarded through the support and attendance of local citizens. We of the Department of Agriculture certainly urge all Kentuckians to attend at least one good county fair this summer. By doing they can participate in another interesting and colorful Kentucky tradition.

Two-Week Extension Given On Fifteen Percent Increase

A two week extension has been granted to Rockcastle County by the State Department of Revenue on accepting the fifteen percent assessment asked for, on rural and non-farm rural property, by the state. Attorney John Allen, one of the local people who attended the public hearing held Tuesday at Frankfort on the proposed increase, requested that the county be granted this time in order that they might be furnished a copy of the sales which the State used in determining that the increase was necessary. The county was well represented at the hearing with about thirteen present and all against the proposed increase. Tax Commissioner, Robert Cromer, told the state officials that the county did not need a fifteen percent increase on farm and non-farm residential property since at least eighty percent of the rural property was assessed at its true value and that it was unfair to additionally tax this group in order that the twenty percent which is now low be brought in line. He also told them that any tax increase should be made by the Tax Commissioner when the property was assessed by the owner. Bill Cass, another member of the Rockcastle group at the hearing, told the Revenue Department men that he felt that farm property in the county was assessed now so high that the farmers found it difficult to pay their taxes and that an additional increase would be unfair to them. The state said that no interstate sales had been used in their study of the prices paid for farm land in the county and that a list would be furnished the county this Friday listing all of the sales used. The county will verify the sales and the amount paid. The county's tax rate has not been approved by the State Dept. of Finance as yet and is not expected to be until this situation is cleared up. However, if the increase should be put on the tax rate, submitted to the state by Fiscal Court, will no doubt be lowered a little causing property owners within the city limits to get a reduction on this year's tax bill.

For example, if last year's tax rate of 58.9¢ were used this year and you had a piece of property outside of the city limits, assessed at $6,000, then your assessment would be raised to $6,900 and the tax rate would probably be lowered just a little causing your tax to increase in proportion. This would not amount to a great deal more for small rural property owners but if you happened to have property in the county originally assessed at $20,000 then the increase becomes something to be reckoned with. According to Mr. Cromer, if the assessment does have to be increased the tax bills should still go out as originally scheduled the last of September. Attending the hearing from Rockcastle Tuesday were: Robert Cromer, Wayne Van Hook, James Lambert, Harold DeMarcus, Tip Reppert, Clyde Barnett, Clifford Bales, C.W. (Wally) Phelps, Hubert Thacker, Clyde Linville, Johnny Allen, Murphy Whitehead, and Bill Cass.

WEATHER Partly cloudy and warmer through Friday with little chance of rain. High Thursday and Friday in 80's.

SALES CLINIC BANQUET—About thirty businessmen, their wives, and employees were present Monday night at a Sales Clinic Banquet, sponsored jointly by the Mt. Vernon Signal and Roy Barnett of Barnett and Assn., McMinnville, Tenn. Following the dinner, Mr. Barnett conducted a Sales Clinic for the merchants. (See "Values Galore" page in this week's issue.)

BERMUDA VACATION—Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Hamm left Monday, June 24, from Louisville by jet to New York and then on to Bermuda to enjoy a vacation which they went through outstanding sales in 1967 from the Sinclair Oil Company. During the five days spent on the island, the Hamm's enjoyed an ocean cruise.

BRILLIANT FUTURE FOR MOBILE HOMES
 Mobile homes have reached an impressive position in the nation's economy during recent years. And there is every reason to expect great new gains ahead. Almost every possible combination of factors will serve to make mobile homes, of all types, more popular than ever in the immediate as well as the longer-term future.

LOW-INCOME HOUSING THE KEY
 Housing costs all up and down the scale have been skyrocketing, so that renting, building, or buying a home is more expensive than ever. Mortgage rates while they have had their transitional ups and downs — have long been on the rise, and no early reversal of this tendency is in sight. Prices of materials and labor have levered construction outlays to all-time heights. So, many families — especially the young just starting out — are reluctant to strap themselves with a long-term mortgage at these greatly inflated levels. In short, there are growing (and rapidly) numbers of people who are loath to pour their money down the drain by either renting an adequate apartment at an exaggerated cost or tying themselves down with a mortgage for 20, 25, or even 30 years. It is this set of circumstances that has helped to boom the market for mobile homes, as well as for parks where such residences may be hitched up for whatever length of time business change or personal whim may dictate.

MOBILE-UNIT OUTPUT CAPPING PREDICTIONS
 In recent months, production of mobile homes has been surpassing earlier predictions made by insiders in the field — and by a rather surprising margin. In fact, for the first four 1968 months, 90,940 mobile homes were shipped out by manufacturers, compared with only 64,420 for the same span in 1967. This was an advance of 41% whereas, the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association had been expecting what they considered an optimistic increase of 20% for the year. The fact that some half of the mobile home sales go to the younger generation is a reflection of the flexibility and general mobility of today's youth. Great numbers of young couples are not inclined to attach themselves socially and culturally to one spot, as did so many of their parents. Now is a time of industrial expansion into outlying areas, into new parts of the country, and the young workers—and even many of those within the middle-age brackets — are often willing and eager to let their ambitions lead them into fresh localities. Then, too, the immense upswing in totals of retirees means still another addition to those interested in the freedom of motion so prevalent today.

MOBILE-HOME PARKS SPREADING FAST
 Recent surveys show that the number of parks for mobile homes is rising rapidly. It is interesting to note, too, that in general they are becoming steadily larger and more luxurious. Even so, a house on wheels still offers one of the most dependable forms of low-cost living now available, and more and more people are becoming aware of this. At present, the median cost of rental for a mobile home appears to range between $30 and $40 monthly. In many instances this includes electricity, water, and other essential sanitary facilities. There are steadily more sites ranging above the $60-a-month mark, and a number (mostly in California) are charging upwards of $100. Park owners setting up new locations are averaging 77 sites, indicating a continuing growth in the size of such establishments. Many of the prime locations (again mostly in California, but with quickening expansion in Florida too) are meeting the competition in the upper brackets field by providing more sumptuous facilities such as swimming pools, club houses, restaurants, sports areas, and health spas. Vacancies are, on the whole, relatively sparse, and the following states, in the order named, are the most rapid current builders of new mobile-home areas to meet rising demand: California, Florida, Texas, Michigan, Arizona, Indiana, New York, Ohio, and Oregon.

St. James Court in Louisville contains some of the most magnificent mansions from the city's past. Many are restored to their former splendor and the street now hosts an annual art show which draws art buffs from several states.

The Wilderness Road Village of the Arts, Danville, publishes its own daily newspaper, titled, "The Village Mirror," representing the first newspaper published in the City. It contains news dating from 1792 as well as present day village and theatre happenings.

Area Agent's Notes

BY: H. LEE DURHAM

NATIONAL TOBACCO LAB. U.K. STAFF TACKLE TOBACCO PROBLEMS IN DETAIL

The feeding is that tobacco may be a health hazard, then everything possible to know about this popular-but-criticized plant should be known. So, the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station agronomy department members within the National Tobacco Research Laboratory are going after the knowledge in a detailed manner.

They not only are studying the plant itself, and how it is grown and cured, but how it acts when broken down into component parts. These parts include even the smoke created when tobacco is set on fire—commonly called smoking.

Dr. John Green, agronomy scientist, is coordinator of service laboratories for the many-faceted research program. "We are really getting underway now; we have our research lines set up on what we want to do. One thing is to organize (or perfect existing systems) so we can find out virtually everything about the plant we might need."

The work can be likened to a highly advanced automobile research plant. These cars are torn apart and each part and function subjected to the closest scrutiny. Such work is necessary, to use an example, because engine power must be understood to perfect a good ignition system, and wheel structure must be thoroughly understood to develop top brakes and the best possible tires.

The U.K.—research will do similar work with the tobacco plant and its parts. Generally, the research scheme is set up in two areas of endeavor. The plant scientists are studying the plant itself. The medical scientists are studying the effects of tobacco on laboratory animals.

In addition to the research work, Dr. Green's group is setting itself up to: (1) service the researchers by relieving them of certain routine work, such as analysis, and, (2) develop where possible, new laboratory techniques, instruments and equipment.

To illustrate: One plant science group studies nitrogen composition of tobacco plants. Dr. Green's group does routine and time-consuming analysis work, breaking down the samples to show total nitrogen content.

Plant physiologists and biochemists are working on steroids, phenols and amines; again, Dr. Green's group will do routine analysis work for them. New methods will be sought in these areas as part of the research.

The same function exists for other plant sciences, such as in genetics work (plant breeding) and plant chemistry, where chemical and other changes during curing are studied.

"You can see where our service function is helpful. We have one analysis job which requires nearly a whole day for one sample. We can relieve the researcher, of this task, and free him for additional, more important work."

Then, he points out, the second function comes in. Though research and development work, it is hoped new techniques, instruments and equipment can be developed.

Such projects (now is the early thinking stage) is a different way of trapping tobacco smoke for study.

A second group will handle smoke condensates. The components of the smoke (fractionates) will be separated and studied. If a scientist wants to study other blends of cigarettes, for instance, this group will blend and "manufacture" cigarettes for the workers.

One of the interesting pieces of equipment in this work is a "smoking machine." This device smokes 30 cigarettes at a time in a controlled method, trapping the smoke for further studies.

A third group is the "animal bioassay" section. It will study and report on what happens to lab animals treated or exposed in various ways to the components of tobacco and tobacco smoke.

There is a fourth group which is virtually a separate category in that it works with both plant and human sciences. This is called the "smoke chemist's" group.

"These people are concerned with effect of additives on tobacco and are looking into the 'pyrolysis' (burning action) of tobacco, and studying nitrosamines."

The service laboratories are also available to the medical researchers. Researchers there are looking into animal metabolism (life functions and operating systems), doing tissues culture, and work in biochemistry, pathology (diseases), genetics and physiology.

Results so far in plant science research are slow. That's because this kind of research requires careful slow work, "in fact, as Dr. Green puts it, it takes almost as long to get ready to go to work as it does to do the work."

But the end result may be that scientists will need just about all they need to know about the tobacco plant. Then, they can go ahead with other research to modify the plant to produce a more economically usable product.

USE DIAZINON FOR COCKROACH CONTROL

No one likes cockroaches, yet many of us have them in their homes. Finding cockroaches in your home is no disgrace, for these pesky bugs appear even in the cleanest homes. But start control measures immediately when cockroaches appear. Although it will take some effort, you can get rid of them.

Cockroaches not only destroy food and damage fabrics; they also can be dangerous; They carry filth on their legs and bodies and may spread disease by leaving germs on food.

Two kinds of roaches are commonly found in Kentucky homes—the German and the brown-banded. The German roach is light brown with two black stripes running lengthwise down the back of the head; this roach usually is 5/8 inch long. They are found mostly in kitchens, bathrooms, basements, etc. The brown-banded roach is also light brown and about 1/2 inch long, but without the 2 black stripes; they are found in all rooms of the home.

Good housekeeping has little to do with the appearance of cockroaches. Usually they are carried into homes on such items as potatoes, on beverage cartons, or on other similar items. They immediately "make themselves at home" and start to raise families. Roach eggs are laid in capsules containing 12 to 30 roaches. The German roach carries its capsule until a day or so before hatching. The brown-banded roach sticks its capsule behind pictures, in drawers, on the floor, etc.

For roach control, be sure to use a spray containing diazinon. German roaches have developed a resistance to chlordane which has often been used in anti-roach sprays. Diazinon kills both the German and the brown-banded varieties.

Spray around baseboards and sinks, behind the stove and refrigerator, and any other place you've seen roach pictures. Apply the chemical again in two weeks; then make another application two weeks after this. The repeated applications get rid of roaches hatched after the spray was first applied.

Labels not only tell what chemical the insecticide contains, but also give important instructions about use and dangers. Always read and follow directions on the insecticide package or can.

CRAY FISH ELIMINATION SYSTEM IS EXPLAINED

Here's how to get rid of crayfishes called crawdads in Kentucky when it becomes evident there are too many around:

Pour about 10 drops of carbon bisulphide liquid into crayfish hole; then seal the hole by pressing the heel over the opening, or plugging it with a piece of sod.

A good applicator is an oil can, the spot of which has been partially closed to make the carbon bisulphide come out in drops. A gallon of the mixture there by will be sufficient for about 5,000 crayfish holes.

Library Notes

By Mrs. Phillip Davis

A shipment of new books has been received from the Department of Libraries. Among them are:

CAPTIVE OF THE SHIMBAS, by Margaret Hayes. The inspiring story of one lone missionary nurse whose faith triumphed over incredible brutalities at the hands of the dead lion men of the Congo.

FLOWERS FOR YOUR CHURCH, by Adelaide Wilton. Here for the first time is guidance for those who arrange the flowers in modern as well as traditional church buildings, for committees decorating vestibules, meeting rooms, and tables for banquets, for those planning and maintaining "a church garden."

IRON MEN, by C.H. McKennon. A saga of the Deputy United States marshals who rode the Indian Territory.

ONE MORE RIVER TO CROSS by Will Henry. The story of an authentic American folk hero. It is an unforgettable portrait of a lone black man and his victory over the morality of the world around him.

POPE JOHN, by Meriel Trevor. The author renders fully both the visionary faith and the deeply felt commitment to social justice that made this extraordinary man one of the central figures of the modern age.

THE RAY HARM NATURE SKETCHBOOK, by Ray Harm. In this book, Ray Harm virtually evokes the sights and sounds of the forest as he takes the reader into the fascinating woodland realm of birds and animals.

SHADY GROVE, by Janice Holt Giles. The author, who knows Appalachia from the inside, shows it to us through this story of a people, who don't like to walk proud but will always stand by their own. Shady Grove is a novel that is in its way a social document, but one that makes us laugh at the same time touches the heart.

TO SEEK A NEWER WORLD, by Robert Kennedy. These essays by R.F. Kennedy, which grew out of speeches, travel and his experience as Attorney General and a United States Senator, pose a simple question for American in the 60's and 70's, "are we willing to dare?"

THE BEYOND, by Jean Sutton. A static future society fears and exiles telepaths. The discovery of a boy with psychokinetic power beyond telepathy brings the galactic federation to crisis point. Absorbing science fiction.

MAZEL AND SHIMAZEL, by Isaac Singer. A deal between Mazel, the spirit of good luck, and Shimazel, the spirit of bad luck, alters the fortunes of a peasant who seeks to marry the king's daughter.

THE MIGHTY BEARS, by Robert McClung. Bears, seen in many tasteful and appealing photographs here, are cute, irresistible, and definitely individual. How bears conduct their lives, and something about each type, form the substance of this lesson.

PATTERNS OF NATURE, by Jeffrey Baker. A sophisticated work of art which will stimulate sensitive, perceptive children who are stirred by nature.

TO MARKET, TO MARKET, by Peter Spier, illus. In a succession carefully selected nursery rhymes, the illustrator spins out a farmer's trip to a distant market.
