Area Agent's Notes

Outlook and Potential for Horticultural Crops
Farming is the largest single occupation in the Wilderness Trail Area (Bell, Clay, Knox, Madison, Jackson, Lincoln, Rockcastle, and Whitley). Yet only 45,441 of the farms in this area can be classified as commercial farms earning more than $5,000 gross annual income. It has been estimated that over one-half of the farmers in the Wilderness Trail Area are underemployed. It is recognized that agricultural potential is limited. However, it is believed that special projects in horticulture, such as the production of bell peppers, cucumber, snap beans, tomatoes, strawberries, etc., will not only supplement the income of the people in this area, but would also help meet the needs of food production in an exploding world population.

The opportunity exists in 1969 to greatly increase the total acreage of cucumbers and bell peppers in the Wilderness Trail Area. Hirsch, Brothers and Company, Inc., Louisville, Kentucky would like to have an additional 600 acres of cucumbers grown under contract in the Wilderness Trail in 1969. The 1969 price will be $8.50 a hundred weight for number one cucumbers. The price scales down for numbers 2, 3, 4 and 5's. Prices should average about $2 per bushel.

The variety grown this year will be SMR-58. This is a hybrid variety and will take the place of MR-17. The SMR-58 variety will give appreciably higher production in the first few harvest and in the long run is expected to give higher yields for fewer harvests. According to William K. Bullen, local station manager, the cucumber grading station will be located this season at Reno Valley. Contracts are now available through Mr. Bullen or at the county agents office in the courthouse in Mt. Vernon.
Moody Dunbar, Inc., Limestone, Tennessee is interested in buying 1200 acres of bell peppers under contract in Kentucky in 1969. Pickup stations will be located at Mt. Vernon and London.
Peppers will be bought by grade at $65 per ton for red ripe and an opportunity will be given growers to market some green peppers at the end of the season. According to Robert Hubbard, local station manager, the station for Rockcastle will be located the same place as last year-on top of the hill just south of Mt. Vernon.
Contractors are available through Mr. Hubbard and at the county agents office.

Care of House Plants in Winter
House plants suffer more during the winter than any other time of the year. The relative humidity is low, the temperature may be lower than usual and the amount of light is low, all of which affect the growth of the plants. Several techniques can be used to correct these problems and enable the plant to grow better. The indoor heating of cold winter air causes the relative humidity to be very low, compared to other times of the year. Low humidity will cause the plant and soil to lose water rapidly, and may cause wilting. On some plants this may cause a loss of leaves, which results in the reduced vigor of the plant. A humidifier that can be attached to the furnace can be used to maintain a higher humidity. Also, a small sprayer can be used to spray water on the leaves several times a day. This will maintain a high humidity in the immediate vicinity of the leaves. The pot can also be set in a tray containing a shallow layer of gravel, peat moss, or other substance which is covered with water all the time; this also will increase the relative humidity around the plants. The pot should sit on the gravel or peat moss, not in the water.

The plants should be given as much sunlight as possible. The plants grown in low sunlight exhibit weak leggy growth. Usually the south window will provide the most sunlight if it is not shaded by trees. During the day the plants should be set as close to the window as possible. However, at night the temperature near the window may be quite low and may be damaging. Also, since the furnace is running for a great amount of the time, the plants should be kept away from radiators and registers to avoid rapid drying.

Keep Accurate Farm Records For 1969 Agriculture Census
Good farm records, which are always important to the farmer, will have an added importance in 1969, says S.Q. Allen, Agricultural Economist with the University of HEART SUNDAY HIGH POINT OF HEART MONTH—February is proclaimed Heart Fund Month by Gov. Louie B. Nunn in the presence of Robert A. Thornbury, left, executive director of the Kentucky Heart Association, and J. O. Matlock, chairman of the association board. Thornbury told the Governor 30,000 women will take part in a statewide door-to-door canvass this year on February 23, which has been set aside as Heart Sunday. The Kentucky association raised a record total of $315,000 last year when set aside as Heart Sunday. The Kentucky Association raised a record total of $315,000 last year in all phases of solicitation.

Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service. Accurate records of farm operations, kept by the farmers themselves, will be necessary if the 1969 Census of Agriculture is to obtain a clear picture of national farming trends.
The 1969 census, in contrast to the previous farm census, conducted every five years, will be taken by mail, Allen notes. Questionnaires will be mailed in January 1970 and must be filled out and mailed back. A response is required by law. You can fill out the questionnaire you receive much quicker and more accurately if you keep careful records in 1969.

"Of course, good farm records for this year will be valuable to you for other reasons," Allen emphasizes. "Records are not only important for tax purposes but they also help you make farm management plans for the future. They help determine how successful the year's operations have been and serve as a diagnostic tool to locate any ills of your farm business."
He pointed out that the Kentucky Farm Record Book, available through your county Extension Service, will be useful in keeping 1969 records.

The 1969 Census of Agriculture will be the basis for most of the information about farming in the United States and in every county in the United States. However, an accurate agricultural census must start with the millions of sets of accurate farm records. Statistics will be published and grouped according to characteristics of farms and income ranges, types of farms, cattle and calves by size of herd, sheep and pigs per farm, sheep and lambs by size of ewe flock, and chickens over three months old by size of flock. Information will be collected on the total number of farms, acres in farm, average value of land and buildings per farm, crop land harvested, land irrigated, acreage devoted to major crops, and the number of major kinds of livestock on farms, Allen says.

The information for each farm will be entirely confidential. Questions to be asked in the census will include inquiries about amounts spent for feed, fertilizer, pesticides, lime, gasoline, livestock, and poultry. For the first time, the census will seek to determine the ages of certain types of farm equipment and estimated value of machinery and equipment on hand.
Other items to be covered are the age of farm operators, value of all farm products sold, days of off-farm work by farm operators, income from recreational use of farms, and the number of some types of farming equipment.

Statistics will be published by states and counties and grouped according to characteristics of farms and income ranges, types of farms, cattle and calves by size of herd, pigs per farm, sheep and lambs by size of ewe flock, and chickens over three months old by size of flock. Information will be collected on the total number of farms, acres in farm, average value of land and buildings per farm, crop land harvested, land irrigated, acreage devoted to major crops, and the number of major kinds of livestock on farms, Allen says.

will be the same as in the two previous censuses. Pieces of fewer than 10 acres will be counted only if sales of agricultural products would normally amount to at least $250. Those of 10 acres or more will be counted only if sales would normally be at least $50. In urging that farmers keep accurate records for 1969, Allen points out that good records this year will not only serve as a guide for managing your farm business, but will also help the 1969 Census.

FARM BUREAU WEEK PROCLAIMED IN FEB.

County Judge Wayne Van Hook and Mayor Clyde Linville have (have) issued an official proclamation declaring the week of February 24 as "Farm Bureau Appreciation Week" in Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle County.

The proclamation, which is similar to one issued earlier by Governor Louie B. Nunn, notes that 1969 is the 50th anniversary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, with which Rockcastle County Farm Bureau is affiliated. The local Farm Bureau is one of 11 county Farm Bureaus in Kentucky (only five counties do not have a local organization) which work together for the advancement of agriculture and for programs and projects which benefit all citizens of the state.

Locally, more than 909 families joined Farm Bureau in 1968 to develop and implement programs for the economic, social and educational improvement of Kentucky's farm people. The 1968 Farm Bureau membership was an all-time high in our county and statewide a record 92,316 families joined the farm organization.

The proclamation issued here emphasizes that agriculture is an essential part of our economy, and notes (Cont. To 8)

JC's Get Permission To Set Up Caboose

Ray Martin, president of the Rockcastle County Jaycees, met with the Mt. Vernon City Council last Thursday night to ask for permission for the Jaycees to set an L & N Caboose on the City Municipal Parking Lot.

Mr. Martin told the council that the club would remodel the caboose inside and paint it red on the outside. The caboose is to be used for the club's meetings and also may be used by any other club or organization for meetings.

Two of the council members, Ed Winstead and Bob Jasper, expressed opposition to the idea. Mr. Winstead stated that he felt the caboose would detract from the appearance of the town and both he and Mr. Jasper subsequently voted no on Councilman Wayne Stewart's motion to grant permission. Mr. Stewart then withdrew his motion with the stipulation that the business men and individuals who donated funds to blacktop the parking lot be contacted and their permission given and that the Jaycees setup the caboose under the rules and regulations set out by Carl Collins, City Attorney. The motion carried by a vote of 4 to 2.

McQuire were before the council to ask to be allowed to open a pool room in the City of Mt. Vernon. They told the council that at this time, they did not have a site picked out for the pool room but wanted to find out if they would be required to pay the $500 fee required for establishing a business of this type, under an old city ordinance.

Councilman Carl Kelly made a motion to set the rates reasonable and if (Cont. To 8) someone wanted to pay, let them open. McKinley Perciful expressed opposition to the motion but it passed with five councilmen voting for it.

W.W. Kindrick, who almost two years ago purchased the city's franchise for constructing natural gas lines through Mt. Vernon, had an application before the council asking for an extension on the franchise, which is due to expire in July of this year.

The council decided to hold off on granting the extension and to ask Mr. Kindrick, sometime before the July 1, 1969, to let them that there was progress being made on the natural gas system.

The Heart Diseases Are Seen As a Foremost Local Problem

This is the first of a series of three articles presented by the local Heart Association to inform readers of this newspaper about progress in the fight against heart and circulatory diseases.

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels far from being a remote and distant abstraction constitute what must be considered essentially a local problem.

Physicians, nurses and members of bereaved families can testify that this is true. So can newsmen, who write the obituaries so often containing the words "heart disease," "heart attack" and "stroke."

In this county, as elsewhere in the nation, the heart diseases and stroke exact a frightening toll. No one, no family is immune. Grandparents, fathers, mothers, young adults and children could be—and frequently are—among the victims.

Nationally, deaths from the heart and blood vessel diseases occur at a predictable pattern—one which varies but little from year to year.

With figures rounded, the breakdown within the cardiovascular spectrum is as follows: Of each 1000 deaths, about 559 are from coronary artery disease, chiefly heart attack; about 201 are from stroke; 67 from hypertension and hypertensive heart disease, 10 from congenital heart disease, 15 from rheumatic heart disease, and 148 from all other forms of heart disease.

In the nation there are 54 cardiovascular deaths for each 46 from all other diseases and causes.

A different picture emerges, however, when we consider the prevalence of cardiovascular disease. Nationally, of 200 million Americans, about 25 million (12 1/2 per cent) are living with some form of heart and blood vessel disease that may be diagnosed as such. And of them, nearly half (45 1/2 per cent) have hypertensive heart disease, and nearly a third (32.2 per cent) have high blood pressure without heart involvement.

All of this puts a high premium on the desirability of periodic medical check-ups, which enable your physician to begin immediate treatment of any disorder the examination may disclose, thus bringing to you the benefits of the great fund of new knowledge that has been accumulated over the past several years.

An excellent case-in-point is hypertension and hypertensive heart disease, which afflict about 75 of each 100 living Americans suffering from some form of cardiovascular disease. If high blood pressure is found, the chances are excellent that after appropriate diagnostic studies the physician can bring it under control by pre-scribing drugs.

Physicians also are in a better position than ever before to identify coronary-prone individuals. For the high-risk person, a program to reduce the risk of heart attack is vital; for all of us, it is highly desirable. The recommended steps may include maintenance of normal weight, avoidance of cigarettes, less saturated fat and fewer cholesterol-rich foods, meaningful physical activity, and, of course, control of any high blood pressure that might be found.

Regular physical check-ups also may disclose either inborn or acquired heart defects in children and young adults. If the young person has suffered rheumatic fever, the doctor can almost always guard against repeat attacks, thus lessening the chance of further heart damage. And if a child has an acutely sore throat, get him treated immediately with penicillin, and if so, the doctor can take prompt and effective steps to reduce the danger.

Another way to reduce the risk of heart disease is by generously supporting the 1969 Heart Fund Campaign, being conducted here and throughout America during February.

A TIME AND A PLACE, by William Humphrey. This book brings back to us, the realities, the dreams, the feelings of the now legendary 1930's in the American heartland. This book, for those in the second to the fourth grade, is delightfully pictorial in desert colors.

Homemaker's Help

Perennials are flowering or foliage plants whose roots live from year to year. Their tops may or may not die back in the winter. Perennials give color to the garden in a shady spot and in front of shrubs. They are colorful in spring and throughout the growing season.

Some perennials flower the first year. You can grow them as annuals and eliminate the problems of protecting them in the winter.

Usually perennials will not flower unless they develop to a certain size and are then exposed to low temperature for a number of weeks, then exposed to increasing day lengths and increasing temperatures. Their flowering time is the result of this sequence of day length and temperature. Although perennials require constant care, they do well in most parts of the United States. Among the most popular of the garden perennials are delphinium, alysium, hollyhock, columbine, candytuft, carnation, and primrose.

Garden annuals are easy to grow and they do well in all parts of the United States. Among the most popular of the garden annuals are zinnia, marigolds, petunias, and ageratum. Many other kinds are also available.

You can sow annual seeds directly in the beds where the plants are to bloom or you can start early plants indoors and set them out in beds after the weather warms.

"V-8" for Valentine's Day

February 14th... it's a magical day. Thoughts turn to cupids, hearts, and valentines. It's a wonderful day for a party, especially for the young.

Let your youngsters host their friends at a "be mine" get together.

No party is complete without refreshments. Make them "light and gay." Perfect for the occasion is our new "V-8" juice. This sparkling blend of eight garden vegetable juices is so nutritious, too. (It's a great way to get vegetables into children... they drink them!)

For this Valentine's Day party, give "V-8" added zip... heat with apple rings, cinnamon and cloves. Then serve hot or chilled as desired. Delicious go-zwiths with a festive air are Gundrop Popcorn Balls.

PARTY "V-8"
1. add 1/2 cup "V-8" Juice
2. apple rings
3. cinnamon sticks
4. whole cloves

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Simmer 5 minutes to blend flavors. Strain; serve hot or chilled, as desired. Makes 6 servings.

GUMDROP POPCORN BALLS
1. 2 quarts popcorn
2. 1 cup small gumdrops
3. 1 cup sugar
4. 1/2 cup light corn syrup
5. teaspoon salt

In large mixing bowl, combine popcorn and gumdrops. In saucepan, combine remaining ingredients. Bring to boil over medium heat and boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Slowly pour over popcorn, tossing gently. Stirred. With floured hands, quickly shape into 2-inch balls. Makes about 18 balls.
