No-Tillage Cropping Gains In Popularity

Some Kentucky crop land may never see a plow again, according to S.H. Phillips, grain specialist with the University of Kentucky Co-operative Extension Service. No-tillage row crop production—a method of planting crops in sod or other crop residues—is becoming an accepted practice in Kentucky. Before 1966, Kentucky had only 1 acre in no-tillage production. About that time, UK College of Agriculture Extension personnel and scientists released cropping recommendations, and in 1968 nearly 100,000 acres were reported in no-tillage row crop production.

"Several advantages of the method," Phillips said, "are responsible for the tremendous use of this cropping system: 1. reduced erosion risks, thus allowing steeper land to be used for row crops; 2. production costs may be reduced; 3. planting can be done under wet conditions; 4. with good management, yields are equal to or greater than conventional planting; 5. the physical condition of the soil can be maintained better; and 6. reduced yields from late planting are less likely than with the conventional method." Another advantage may be that pesticide residues are reduced with no-tillage production, Phillips said. "However, it's too soon to really evaluate this aspect of the method," he added.

The UK Agronomy department recommends the following no-tillage production methods:

Sod killing: Complete killing of the sod to reduce competition for moisture and plant nutrients. Three or four weeks before planting, apply Aatrex (2½ to 5 pounds of 80W material per acre in at least 25 gallons of water.) The lower rate will control bluegrass. The higher rate will control fescue, orchardgrass, timothy, and small grains.

Parquat may be applied at the rate of 10 to 20 pounds of parquat per acre with 2½ pounds of Aatrex plus a non-ionic surfactant at the rate of 8 ounces per 100 gallons of water. If less water is used, reduce the amount of surfactant proportionately.

Fertilization: Base fertilizer rates on soil tests and cropping history. Increase nitrogen by 20 to 30 percent over amounts used in conventional planting. Place fertilizer in bands near the seed, or if large applications are used, put the material to the side and below the seed.

Planting Equipment: Modified conventional planters and commercial no-tillage planters successful. Any planting arrangement that places the seed in firm contact with the soil at the proper depth (1 to 1½ inches) is satisfactory.

Insect Control: Insect damage in no-tillage corn can be a serious problem. The worst damage was reported in old bluegrass fields. Disinfectants may be applied in a 4 to 7 inch band over the row or worked into the soil at planting. Di-Syston or Thimet may also be used but should not come in contact with seed. Sevin or parathion will control armyworms. Aldrin (20 percent granules at 15 pounds per acre may be used in the fall on field intended for no-tillage production.) DO NOT use DDT on corn to be used as silage. Additional information on no-tillage may be obtained at your local county extension office. Your local Extension agent also give you a copy of UK College of Agriculture leaflet 310-A, "No-tillage Systems for Grain Production."

Not Enough Caution Used With Insecticides also give you a copy of University of Kentucky growers are not taking the proper precautions when applying insecticides, according to Dr. R.A. Scheibner, entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Several new chemicals, added this year to the tobacco insect recommendations, are highly toxic to humans and must be used with extreme care, Dr. Scheibner stressed.

Di-Syston and Mo-Cap, two new insecticides recommended this year to replace the chlorinated hydrocarbons, are as hazardous or more so than parathion or endrin. The farmer must take the same precautions when working with any of these insecticides, Dr. Scheibner added.

Dr. Scheibner suggests that the following procedures be followed: (1) Wear natural rubber gloves, respirator, goggles, and a protective suit when mixing, handling, or applying insecticides. (2) Bathe immediately after applying the pesticides, and have the protective suit laundered before it is used again. (3) If you spill pesticides on your skin or clothing, remove the clothing and bathe immediately. DO NOT wait to finish the job.

If poisoning symptoms occur, see your doctor immediately. DO NOT wait to finish the job. If you spill pesticides on your skin or clothing, remove the clothing and bathe immediately. DO NOT wait to finish the job.

The earliest signs of poisoning from No-Cap, Di-Syston, parathion and related chemicals are headache, fatigue, dizziness, and sweating. These symptoms are sometimes confused with the effects caused by high temperature and humidity that may occur while applying pesticides. Often a person gets blurred vision, nausea, and feels chest constrictions before he realizes he has had an overdose of pesticide.

Symptoms of severe poisoning—abdominal cramps, excessive sweating, and muscle twitching. In the most severe cases a person may lapse into a coma and have convulsions, and may die soon after. Atriphosmethyl (Guthion) also belongs to this group of insecticides and is nearly as poisonous as Di-Syston, Mo-Cap, and parathion. The same precautions should be used with all of these materials.

Check with your local county Extension office for a copy of University of Kentucky College of Agriculture booklet, "Protect Yourself When Using Insecticides," Misc. 335.

Boxelder Bugs Boxelder bugs are about ½ inch long, oblong-shaped, and mostly black with reddish markings. They feed mostly on boxelders but they also survive on ash, maple, and fruit trees. They are not important as pests of humans. It is when they invade homes in large numbers where they may stain walls and fabrics with feces that they are a problem. They produce a foul odor when crushed. You can control them by cutting down host trees, screening them out of homes, or vacuuming them up as they accumulate around doors and windows. If these methods are not practical or desirable, spray boxelder trunks and other areas where they gather with a 2% chlordane spray. Prepare the spray by mixing 11 tablespoons of 45% EC per gallon of water, or 7 level cups of 40% WP per gallon.

VETERANS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q— I have just been discharged from military service after two years active duty and want to enter college. How do I get permission from VA to enter as a G.I. student?

A— Write, call or visit your nearest Veterans Administration office and request an application form. Complete this form and return it to the VA which will then provide you with a Certificate of Eligibility that will permit you to enter school under the G.I. Bill, provided the school and courses are approved for this program.

Q— Recently I applied for an increase in my service-connected disability rating from the Veterans Administration. When I was discharged from service two years ago and originally rated service-disabled by VA I did not apply for the National Service Life Insurance available to veterans with service-connected disabilities. Will an increased rating entitle me to apply for this NSLI coverage?

A— An increased rating for a service-connected disability originally rated more than a year ago will not entitle you to apply for NSLI coverage. However, you could become entitled if service-connection is allowed by VA for the first time for a different disability. You would then have a year from the rating of the different disability to apply for this special NSLI policy.

THE SEARCH FOR THE GIRL WITH THE BLUE EYES by Edger Coyce. This is the strangest story of his career. It is that of a bright attractive young Canadian woman who lives today in Vancouver, a British Columbia—but who remembers a previous life on a Central Ontario farm a century ago. Her amazing tale, and Stearn's unprecedented journey in search of the facts in the case, form the most fascinating exploration of reincarnation since "The Search for Bridey Murphy."

2, 349 Participated In February In Food Stamp Program Here

U.S. Department of Agriculture food programs aided 202,403 needy persons in Kentucky during February, 8,312 persons more than the number that received food assistance in January. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service said that 126,678 persons in 52 counties took part in its food stamp program and received $953,174 in bonus coupons.

C&M's family food distribution program aided 75,725 persons in 66 counties. The foods distributed had an estimated retail value of $833,000 and included dried products, canned and dried fruits and vegetables, canned meat or poultry, grain and cereal products, as well as other items such as peanut butter and scrambled egg mix.

February's increased participation is attributed to a seasonal slack in employment.

School registration for all children entering the first grade in September will be held on Tuesday, April 29, according to Charles Parsons, Superintendent.

All children, six years of age or before December 31, 1969, should be registered on this day.

Registration will be held at all the schools, including the rural schools, and parents are urged to take their child to the school which the child will attend next fall.

Information, necessary for enrollment in school, will be available at registration time. Hours for registering will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The gymnasium will be used for registration in three of the schools, Mt. Vernon, Livingston, and Roundstone. In the rural schools, the regular classrooms will be used and at Brodhead, registration will be in the lunchroom.

"It is very important that parents assume the responsibility of taking their preschool children to the schools for registration since it is very necessary that school officials have this information to properly organize and prepare for their enrollment this fall," Superintendent Parsons said.

At the last meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education, the board agreed to comply with the change in time. Prior to this, the board had sent out questionnaires to parents asking their preference as to whether they desired the school system to go to "fast" time or not and the results had always been overwhelmingly in favor of the board's complying.

Therefore, school will begin on Monday, April 28 on Eastern Daylight Savings Time.

BOOZE, BOOZE, EVERYWHERE AND NOT A DROP TO DRINK-- could well have been the lament of some of our citizens Wednesday as they watched Sheriff Reppert and his deputies dispose of a large quantity of whiskey, homebrew, and beer which they had accumulated over a period of time from law-breaking people. Shown pouring the alcohol out are, from left: Deputy Frank DeBorde, Sheriff Tip Reppert, and Deputy Billy Kirby.

Homemaker's Help

BY: FAITH NIDAY
Area Agent in Youth

What is an adolescent? Have you given some thought to this question? Or do you put all teenagers into the same category? Do you pull out the small percentage of teenagers who become problems to society and tag all others with that label?

An adolescent is neither a child nor an adult. Yesterday he was a child. Tomorrow he will be an adult. Today is an adult in the making. You could say this about adolescence—it is a time of growing up, a launching period from childhood to adulthood.

In his early adolescence, the teenager goes through a stage of development in which he needs to grow in independence. He wants to stand on his own feet, to feel grown up. In this quest for independence, the adolescent may have many doubts, misgivings, and worries. So he identifies himself with other teenagers. They are a comfort to him. They feel the same way he does. They understand him because they have similar challenges. Since youth is impatient, a teenager may think you don't recognize that he is growing up. He may feel you don't trust him, that you don't believe in him. He needs your confidence, your faith, and your understanding.

Chances are the teenager may do many things you won't understand...and at times this may trouble you. But it is during this period that the adolescent needs understanding guidance.

On April 22, 23, and 24 all Juniors and Seniors at Mt. Vernon School will be involved in a family life workshop on Teenagers and Their Problems. On the evening of April 22 at 7:30 p.m., the state extension family life specialist, Mrs. Mary Browder, will be in Mt. Vernon for a special interest program on Understanding Teenagers. This program will be at the library.

We hope that many of you parents of teenagers will be interested in attending this program. It's important that every adult be interested in and think constructively about today's teenager. With wise and understanding guidance, a teenager can grow into an emotionally mature adult who can clearly and realistically handle his own problems. And when the time is right, he will be ready to take his place in the adult world.

Winners Named in Essay Contest

The Mt. Vernon Woman's Club recently sponsored an essay contest in the consolidated schools of the county. The title of the essay was "Why I Love My Country."

Winners in the contest, which received good response, were: High School Division-Carolyn Reppert, Mt. Vernon School, first place; Betty McAllister, Mt. Vernon School, second place, Elementary Division-Larry LaFavers, Brodhead School, first place and Pamela Cummins, Mt. Vernon School, second place.

First place winners were awarded $5 each and $3 was awarded to each of the second place winners.

*Reprinted below is Miss Reppert's winning essay:

As I think of the many aspects of our American way of life, I can but breathe a prayer that I do live in this great country, the United States. One of the greatest gifts we Americans have is freedom. There are so many nations which covet this priceless privilege which we so often take for granted. We do this without being aware that we are very fortunate in being able to vote, or to express our opinions, or to worship God as we desire.

Freedom is but a seven letter word but the meaning it contains far exceeds the word itself. Everyone continuously talks about freedom, but do we really know what freedom really means? If you heard someone remark, "I'll send my children to school if I want, it's a free country," or "I'll do as I please, this is a free country," is this your idea of freedom? I love my United States because we Americans share in the joys that freedom really means. Yes, we have the freedom to vote for our country's leaders. This in itself is a matter of great importance which concerns every citizen, and is his duty to perform. One of the loved things of our nation is its leader or president. Our president is not dominated by a few wealthy citizens. He is not possessed with threatening thoughts of what will happen to if he does not do as someone says. He is not a puppet, he has a mind of his own. He makes tremendous decisions which will affect our nation and others as well. He assumes such great responsibility upon his shoulders. He must do his job well, in order to maintain the most loved gift of our United States, freedom.

One of the beautiful parts of living in these United States is that anyone whether rich or poor, black or white, red or yellow, educated or illiterate, can rise above his mode of living. He does not have a reason to remain living in the slum areas or ghettos. Money is no longer a problem, there are loans, scholarships and all sources of monetary means by which one may receive assistance. He becomes aware of the many opportunities our country has to offer to its young people. He can set a very high goal and in our country he can do more than dream, he can attain this goal.

In the United States, the individual is regarded very highly. Perhaps it is the high moral character of an American within him or perhaps we try to improve ourselves because we are Americans. Honesty is a great virtue in any person and I have found that honesty is most prevalent in our country. Dishonesty may be regarded as something clever or a trick to laugh at in some countries, but this is not true in our United States. We Americans love honesty, sincerity, and truth. We find no amusement in ill dealings with anyone.

Perhaps most citizens of a nation have walked through green grass and heard it crushing beneath their feet. Perhaps everyone has experienced the feeling of looking across the horizon and being in awe of the vastness of the earth and the minuteness, the tinyness of our very being. Perhaps everyone has seen a very small rippling stream making its way slowly to a creek and then to a river. Perhaps everyone has compared a very lowly small pine to a towering, sturdy oak tree. Perhaps everyone has followed a narrow, winding road just to find that it leads to nowhere. Perhaps, but can every person remark that they have experienced these natural things and felt a peace in their hearts, a security in their minds and a feeling of patriotic love for their country as I do?

Even though great accomplishments have been made in furthering our scientific technology through extensive study, we have not forgotten our humility. This was proven greater as a result of the Apollo Eight flight to the moon. When the astronauts read the Creation from the book of Genesis, millions of miles away from the earth soaring through space, it greatly renewed my hope in our great nation and its people.

I love my United States for the ideas, the ideals, the beliefs of our people. I love my United States because it protects the liberty of the individual. Our people have had the courage to do what others deemed the impossible tasks. They have built high skyscrapers, they made advancements in every field of study, they have produced freedom. Who are they? Those Americans brave enough to believe that when a plan or idea is formed that it can be carried out successfully.

The United States has produced great writers such as Mark Twain. One of my favorite American writers is Carl Sandburg and his poem, "I Hear America Singing." I love to acknowledge the fact that my country has produced such great men. We were the first to produce the destructive atomic energy, the miraculous Salk vaccine, and the unforgettable taste of a hot dog. Music and architecture in different and new forms have woven their culture into our American lives.

To me, the great beloved part of my United States is that dreams never die, they become reality. Hope is ever present, and faith is built on many things. A dream comes true in our country of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

ON LEAVE— Aubrey Joe Taylor, Third Class Gunners Mate, is home on leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor of Quail. Taylor recently completed a year's tour of duty in Da Nang, Vietnam. great land of blessings, we have the freedom to discuss our government policies without fear of being persecuted. We are free to express our opinions in such forms as editorials, speeches, or mere conversation.

Our form of government is a method by which our freedoms are thoroughly exercised. We have state legislatures, senators, Congressmen, Representatives making up the many bodies of our government, with the exception of many more. These law making bodies aid our President in his innumerable decisions concerning our United States and its people.

I love my country because it symbolizes freedom and equality for all. This does mean everyone within the boundaries of the Redwood Forest to the Gulf Stream Waters.

THANKS A MILLION

It being an almost physical impossibility to thank each one in person, I will resort to the news media to express my appreciation to each and every one who were so thoughtful to send me cards and letters during my confinement in the hospital and offer my release.

It is a wonderful feeling, and I would say half the battle, to know one has so many friends in the "old home town."

I am improving, thanks to the good doctors at Henry Ford Hospital, and if all goes well, I expect to be home around May 1.

Thanks again from Lillian and myself and may the Good Lord bless you all.

Have you been thinking about a rock garden, but have not started it simply because you do not have rocks readily available? The answer to this one is simple - volcanic rock can be purchased, reasonably, at retail outlets which deal in garden products.

Volcanic rocks have several points in their favor. First of all, these stones are readily available. Since these rocks come in various shapes and can easily be broken into whatever sizes desired, they are perhaps most important, is the fact that volcanic rocks are very light. Large rocks can easily be moved by one individual. Rock gardens are lovely - begin yours today.

Flowers bring joy and happiness. Send a potted flower or an arrangement to a friend today. You can be assured that we have the longest and freshest flowers available. Remember someone today with flowers. We deliver locally or wire to a distant city.
