Re-Elect Billy Dowell

Coroner Of Rockcastle Co

"A Man of Ability"

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you, the citizens of Rockcastle County, the duties of my office.

The Coroner investigates all sudden deaths (murder, suicide, accidents, etc.) and deaths occurring without the attendance of a physician or less 36 hours before death. The coroner has the power to summons a jury to determine why, and by what means, a person met his death. The coroner also has the power to arrest a person or persons guilty of homicide, manslaughter, or willful murder in the absence of legal officials and if he deems it necessary.

I have kept a permanent record of all fatalities, unusual deaths, and deaths where there was foul play. These records are available upon request by proper authorities. I have fulfilled all my obligations as coroner, and with my past experience I feel I am more and better qualified than someone who has had no experience.

When re-elected, I will continue to perform and fulfill the duties of this important office.

THANK YOU BILLY DOWELL

FIGHT MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS THE GREAT CRIPELLER OF YOUNG ADULTS

How long does it take you to shop for an elegant spring suit? Or a summer set? Think you could buy all these things in about seven seconds—even if it were just for fun? Probably not, but your daughter is going to have a chance to be a real fashion cut up. In a brand new game by Milton Bradley called "Cut Up", girls compete to clothe their fashion models. Here's how the game works. Girls have just a limited number of seconds to cut up play money. When they have enough, they get to purchase fashion outfits from the special boutique. It takes fast scissor work by the girls, because if one player doesn't finish before the bell goes off, another gets to take over. Of course the bigger the denominations the player can clip, the faster she can dress her model—and the first one who can match a complete outfit wins. The game's not only great for helping little girls coordinate fashions, but they can now go "shopping" all day long. "Cut Up" is a real "fashion-able" find.

Grow your own vitamins this year. You and your family can get vitamins A and C from your home garden instead of buying them at the drug store. Tomatoes are the richest vegetable source of vitamin A. You can grow them at home, and can plenty for your family's year-round use. The dark-green and deep yellow vegetables are good sources of vitamin A, these too, can come from your home garden. Such vegetables as carrots, mustard and turnip greens, leaf and Bibb lettuce, spinach, kale, cabbage, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, and the many varieties of squash add vitamin A as well as color and variety to meals.

The time is almost here to start this year's garden-plan before you plant. Before planting time, decide what you want to grow, how much your family will need of each vegetable-both for serving fresh and for preserving, and when you'll need to plant in order to have fresh vegetables as long as possible. Plan both for variety and for good nutrition. I suggest that you set these goals for your home garden this year. First, try to produce at least half of all the vegetables your family needs. Remember, that each member of the family should eat four servings of vegetables or fruits each day. And plan to preserve as much as possible for fall and winter meals. Second, try two or three vegetables you haven't eaten before. Of course, you'll want to plan your garden to include the vegetables your family likes. But you can increase the variety in your menus by growing a few new vegetables each year so your family can learn to enjoy them. Third, stagger plantings to extend harvest time throughout the growing season. Planting at different times not only gives you fresh vegetables for a longer period but also extends the time when you can freeze and can-no homemaker wants to do all her canning and freezing in one or two days. Fourth, follow the recommendations for planting, cultivating and controlling insects to have the best results with your garden. These recommendations are available at the Rock-castle County Extension Office. And, fifth, use the best methods and follow instructions carefully when you freeze and can. For example, use the water bath method when canning tomatoes to save the most of the vitamins. Content; tomatoes canned by the open-kettle method lose much of their vitamin C. Information on home canning and freezing also is available at the Extension office.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

By: J. Robert Miller
Comm. of Agriculture
Really, it's hard to put in this space . . . all the information, guidelines, and fresh ideas . . . our delegation of seven from your Kentucky Department of Agriculture "learned" last week . . . at the three-day annual National Farm Marketing Workshop in Asheville, North Carolina. We attempted to learn as much as we could . . . in sharing ideas and developments in marketing . . . with top specialists in the field. They came not only from the Southeastern states . . . but also from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, and from many other states . . . including California, and Wisconsin . . . and from the academic world. We joined with representatives of the sponsoring National Association of State Departments of Agriculture . . . of the National Association of Marketing Officials . . . and of the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U.S. D.A.

including Richard L. Long, Assistant U.S. Secretary of Agriculture . . . emphasized that we are on the threshold of a whole new marketing situation-that the U.S.D.A. is firmly convinced of this. And we will see more bargaining power in various phases of marketing . . . we will see more contractual arrangements BEFORE the market stage-all of these and many more-inachieving better marketing efficiency . . . and realizing more of our potentials.

In addition to the trends we heard, the new ideas introduced and discussed . . . a major benefit of our delegation's participation was learning to know people first-hand-people whom we formerly knew only as letter writers or telephone callers-people who deal with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and so on. This is bound to help us in bringing about a better market situation . . . in getting the buyer to the market, for example . . . as well as the seller.

Additionally, we plan-as another direct result of this Workshop-to expand our information and promotion services. Ever since this administration started, we have sought ways and means to get more information to you farm folks-in market news . . . in coordination of programs . . . and in every thing and anything associated with agriculture. Now we know more specific ways and means to do just that. . . . Delegation to delegation with me were . . . M. E. Palmore, Jr., deputy commissioner in charge of regulations and services . . . Robert Hager, supervisor of the Federal-State matching program in marketing . . . and specialists Charley Stinson, tobacco . . . Wallace Campbell, dairy . . . Tommy Noe, livestock . . . and Kenneth Ashby, marketing.

I was highly pleased with the knowledge these Department staffers displayed in the Workshop sessions and in the reception they received. The Workshop theme was "Developing Programs to Achieve Maximum Strength in Marketing." It was my pleasure to serve . . . as chairman of the general session on "Marketing Structure Today and Tomorrow."

This 'n That

By ALSTIN NICHOLS
Few people realize that the history of alcoholic beverages goes back to before the stone age, when fermented honey was the first drink of its kind or that bourbon, a truly American drink, has an interesting history of its own that leads itself to "straight" talk. Unknown until 1789, when Kentucky clergyman Elijah Craig produced it for the first time, bourbon took its name from the county where it was made. At the time, almost every farm of any size had its own distillery, and there were as many as 2,000 in Kentucky alone. In nearby Virginia, one gentleman who had his own bourbon distillery was none other than George Washington, the Father of our country. As the new whiskey gained popularity, it achieved national status, and precise standards for its composition were established. In any great bourbon, time is the partner. Wild Turkey for example. This 101 proof bourbon is carefully matured for eight years in perfect, new, specially charred barrels made of the finest white oak. The barrels alone cost nearly $30 each, and car is used only once. The history of the wild turkey is so thoroughly American that Benjamin Franklin once urged its adoption as a national symbol. And the story of bourbon is as American as apple pie or Wild Turkey!

Pasture for Hogs
Calvin Risner, Area Extension Specialist in Animal Science says: "There are several advantages in using forage crops liberally for pork production."

1. A high quality pasture has some factor or factors needed for satisfactory reproductive performance.

2. Green forages are a storehouse of certain vitamins and minerals that grazing swine can store as a reserve for use when rations are borderline or inadequate.

3. Pasture provides an opportunity for adequate exercise for the breeding stock.

4. Pastures related to provide clean ground, reduce hazards of parasites and filth born infections. Pastures have their greatest value for swine when grazed by the breeding stock.

1. They reduce feed costs. Bred sows on good legume pasture are normally fed 2 pounds less grain and 1/2 pound less protein supplement per head per day.

2. Bred sows fed on pasture larvae larger and stronger litter.

3. Good pastures increase milk production.

Regulations on Hogs
Sh. L.G. Northington, State Veterinarian, says "We are experiencing considerable confusion concerning the health requirements for horses entering sales and shows. This issue needs clarifying and it is hoped that this memo will do so. Due to the economic importance of the horse industry to Kentucky and the danger of having an outbreak of disease in these horses, we are forced into a position of requiring supervision of all sales and shows."

Our regulations are basically as follows: (1) All out of state horses must have a health certificate issued by a veterinarian within the past ten days with a temperature recording on each animal. (2) All sales or show management will have a veterinarian in attendance to visually examine the animals, no health certificates will be required on Kentucky horses. (3) If no veterinarian is to be in attendance, then all horses must be accompanied by a health certificate. The health certificates for Kentucky horses are good for (any) 30 days. No temperature recording is required on these. (4) The attending veterinarian may examine and issue health certificates on out of state horses that do not have them, otherwise, they will not be allowed to unload. The veterinarians fee on these animals is to be paid by the owner.

If you need further clarification of these regulations contact either Dr. W.E. Wise, Department of Veterinary Science, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky Telephone 606, 258-9000. Ext. 2692 or Dr. L.G. Northington, State Veterinarian, Frankfort, Kentucky, Telephone 502, 564-3956.

COUNTRYHAM CONTEST DECLARED DRAW

The Country ham contest, staged in the U.S. Senate Dining Room on April 23, 1969, has been declared a "draw." All entries were judged excellent in taste and quality.

The announcement was made in Washington today by U.S. Senator William B. Saxbe (R. Ohio). Saxbe served as official spokesman for members of the Senate, who were treated to the country ham fare during luncheon. The Senators served as judges for the event.

On March 7, 1969, when Kentucky's Freshman Senator, Marlow W. Cook (R), challenged Senators Harry F. Byrd, Jr. (D. Va.) and Howard H. Baker (R. Tenn.) to a country ham cook-off, using products from the respective states. A late entry to the contest was Senator Herman E. Talmadge (D. Ga.).

Hams were prepared by the Senate Chef, using methods suggested by the competing Senators. One Kentucky entry was prepared in Louisville and was flown table-ready to Washington. Other Kentucky products were prepared according to instructions by Mrs. Marlow W. Cook.

Bagworms pass the winter in the egg stage inside the bag that had contained the females. In late May or early June the eggs hatch and the naked larvae crawl from the bag in search of food. By using silk and bits of leaves, bark, or twigs, they soon build a small bag around their hindpart. As the larvae grow, they add onto the bag making it large enough to allow the larvae to withdraw into the bag when disturbed. By early September the bags reach their maximum size of 1 1/2 to 2 inches. At this time the larvae permanently suspend their bags from twigs with bands of silk. The larvae then transform into pupae, or the resting stage.

If only a few bagworms are present and within reach, the best and cheapest method of control is to handpick the bags and destroy them. This can be done whenever they are noticed. When the bags are very high or very numerous, several insecticides are effective for controlling bagworms. The best control results are obtained when the bags are treated with insecticides recommended include: Carbaryl (Sevin), 50% wettable powder; Diazinon, 50% wettable powder; Toxaphene 60-65% emulsifiable concentrate; Chlordane, 40% wettable powder.

MOUNTAIN LAUREL FESTIVAL SET FOR MAY 24 AT PINEVILLE

Youth, beauty, and blooms of mountain laurel will be mirrored in the pool at beautiful Laurel Cove, near Pineville, Ky., on May 24. On that day, Kentucky college co-eds will compete for the title of 1969 Mountain Laurel Queen.

The Festival begins the morning of May 23, but its official opening is that evening when an entertainment program will include the presentation of the Laurel candidates at Laurel Cove. It is to be followed by a reception in the Bert T. Combs Forestry Building. A Mountain Laurel Princess will be chosen the next day from a levy of high school beauties. The Princess Ball is to be held that night at 8 o'clock in the Pineville High School gymnasium.

The first Mountain Laurel Festival was held in 1931. Historian and genealogist Anne Walker Burns suggested a celebration in honor of Dr. Thomas Walker, pioneer explorer and surveyor, who came through Cumberland Gap in 1750 with a group of companions, the first white men to venture into the Kentucky mountains. The festival in his honor has since emerged into a yearly celebration of the blooming of the mountain laurel.

DUE TO A LACK OF INTEREST TOMORROW HAS BEEN CANCELLED

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? But what if everybody in this country were to throw their hands up in despair and say they don't give a hoot...

Indeed, there would be no... But fortunately, Americans have a way of solving their problems.

And that's just what's going to happen in these troubled times. Simply because it's always been an American tradition.

Now, how can you, as one little life citizen in this big, wide country of ours, be of any help?

Well, take a minute and think about a U.S. Savings Bond.

That's right, a U.S. Savings Bond. No, it isn't an immediate remedy for all our ills. But it helps.

If everybody were to buy just one $25.00 U.S. Savings Bond (cost $18.75), your country would be stronger economically to wipe out some of those scars we've been sporting.

Of course, everybody would be helping themselves, too. If you were to sign up on a Bond purchase plan where you work or bank, you'd have quite a nice nest egg for yourself one of these days.

You'd have a lot more dollars in the kitty for things like college educations, that new home, or a secure retirement.

So think about U.S. Savings Bonds today. And then go out and buy one tomorrow.

If you're a sophisticated New Yorker, you take a rather ho-hum attitude. After all, it is a public sidewalk. The young man, all wrapped up in this potentially explosive situation, was on the avenue promoting Milton Bradley's exciting new game, "Dynamite Shack," introduced at the 68th American Toy Fair.

Meatless Meals Revolve Around MacaroniOs

Going round in circles concealing minus menu meat? You'll find this circular route fun after adding revolutionary macaroniOs with these sauce to your pasta plates. MacaroniOs, round pasta macaroni noodles, are non-skiddable, unappalable enriched pasta "Os" that put the goodness inside your kids and not down their fronts. Include your husband among macaroniOs fans also, for the rich Cheddar cheese sauce seasons every bite with macaroniOs. To prepare for lunch simply scoop the two sizes of "Os" from the can and heat stirring gently once or twice. You won't need an odometer to tell you these "Os" are getting you far. Great as a side-dish to dad's favorite fish dish too. Adapt your favorite hot dishes to macaroniOs flavor or try this enticing tuna combo. A can of rich macaroniOs with cheese sauce creates a delectable base for fish. Added zest comes from mustard and sour cream with crisp notes of celery and toasted almonds. Other pantry items like canned asparagus spears and apricots spiced with cinnamon round out your meal.

Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? But what if everybody in this country were to throw their hands up in despair and say they don't give a hoot.

Indeed, there would be no tomorrow.

But fortunately, Americans have a way of solving their problems.

And that's just what's going to happen in these troubled times. Simply because it's always been an American tradition.

Now, how can you as one little ole citizen in this big, wide country of ours be of any help?

Well, think about U.S. Savings Bonds.

The automobile pioneers who struggled through hardships to bring their ideas to realities... whose workshops were cold and damp garages and cellars... who knew heartbreaking failures as well as overwhelming success, have been the inspiration for the generations which have followed, that a mere idea... can be made a reality... by hard work, perseverance and common sense, can change and enrich a nation.

When you have the inspiration to buy a new home, look into the features, advantages and values you will get, in a new mobile home. These ultra-modern homes are available in a wide variety of styles and models, at JASPER & JASPER MOBILE HOMES, INC., to suit your family needs and your pocketbook. Fourteen-hundred pounds of piano and crate travel 20,000 nautical miles, round trip, to ensure a concert pianist the finest instrument during his Japanese tour. Unlike a violinist, a pianist cannot transport his instrument under his arm when he's on tour. How, then, can he be sure that he'll have the piano of his choice when he gets where he's going? Pianist Alexis Weissenberg found a way by selecting one from the Steinway piano bank for his first concert in Japan. The piano will travel 20,000 nautical miles from New York City to Tokyo and return. He chose to go to this trouble and expense because he wanted the same piano he played so brilliantly during his concerts last winter with the New York Philharmonic. It is not at all unusual to have a Steinway piano shipped halfway around the world. A few years back, the great Artur Schnabel had his piano flown from New York to Buenos Aires for a concert, and Van Cliburn has been known to do it from time to time when he wants a special piano for a special performance. Where do these pianos come from? They belong to the Steinway "piano bank," headquartered in New York, which provides concert piano service all over the world.

COMMUNICATION IN THE ANIMAL WORLD, by William Evens. From the tiny ant to the large gorilla, animals of all sizes and types use their own unique languages in food gathering, defense, courtship, mating and caring for their young.

A CONSTITUTIONAL FAITH, by Hugo Black. With vigor and clarity, Justice Black makes explicit beliefs of the courts, the Congress, and the Constitution.

EARLY AMERICAN FURNITURE MAKERS, by Thomas Ormsbee. This account is concerned, not so much with types of our early furniture, as with the men and the times that produced them.

A FRINGE OF BLUE, by Jeice Loch. The fascinating and frank reminiscences of an extraordinary woman who has devoted her life to the service of others throughout the world.

GOD IN THE WHITE HOUSE, by Edmund Fuller and David Green. This account of the faiths of American Presidents is a thoroughly researched account of the religious background, the development of religious influence and the effect of the religious beliefs of each of the incumbents.

HALLOWED GROUND, by Monroe MacCloskey. General MacCloskey has detailed the history, policy and policy changes concerning our national cemeteries.

THE LOST QUEEN, by North Lofts. A delightful historical novel based on the life of George III's sister, Princess Caroline Matilda, whose marriage brought her a throne and whose secret love brought her disaster.

PAWDEE, by Irene Corey. A Memoir of Mrs. Corey's years with a grandfather of wonderful wisdom and wit, a rare human being who lives in these pages and brings with him a simpler, gentler and brighter world.

STARTING FROM SCRATCH, by Joanna Barnes. A sprightly informative book on interior decorating - full of common sense tips for every homeowner.

New books for children have just been received from the State Department of Libraries, Frankfort, Kentucky.

THE EXTRAORDINARY TUG-OF-WAR, by Letho Schatz. A colorful picture-book about a hare who outwits both Hippopotamus and Elephant, the biggest beasts of all.

GLORIOUS TRIUMPHS, by Vernon Pizer. The athletes who are written about in this book are linked by a common bond of achieving their triumphs in spite of adversity.

IF I HAD . . ., by Mercer Mayer. A small picture book for children filled with the wishful dreaming of a small boy.

THE LOYAL VIRGINIAN, by George Finkel. A thrilling historical novel that takes place in the year 1649 and concerns the ship, the Loyal Virginian, and its adventures after coming to Europe from the Virginia Colony. This book is written on the junior high level.

LUCY, by Catherine Storr. A funny and exciting story for children in grades 2 to 5. Lucy, the neighborhood tomboy, gets out to catch some thieves and finds that being as brave as a boy is not quite as easy as it seemed.

THE MYSTERY OF ISLAND KEEP, by Hilda Boden. A spine-tingling story, set against the lovely countryside of Scotland. Junior high school students will enjoy this mystery.

NORTH ATLANTIC JET FLIGHT, by Leonard A. Stevens. This is a behind-the-scenes account of a jet flight across the Atlantic Ocean from the eastern United States to central Europe. This is a book for upper elementary school students.

THE OVAL PLAYGROUND, by William Campbell Gault. An exciting story of dretrack auto racing for boys in junior or senior high school.

RUNAWAY RAFT, by Ruth Harnden. An exciting adventure story for upper elementary and junior high students, about Bart and the raft he builds on the river.

SAVE ALICE!, by Eva-Lis Wuorio. A mystery for students in grades 5-8. Alice is a caged cockatoo that turns a group of young people's European sight-seeing trip into a suspenseful, fright-filled, and humorous chase.

SPECTACLES, by Ellen Roskin. An imaginative, laughable picture book about a child who needs and gets glasses.

STOLEN BY THE INDIANS, by Dorothy Heisterstadt. This book for upper elementary grade students contains the true accounts of young people who were captured by the Indians and plunged suddenly into an alien life, sometimes kinder than the one they had left, sometimes cruel and hard.

THE THIRTEEN DAYS OF YULE, illustrated by Nonny Hogrogian. In this picture book for children in first to third grades, Nonny Hogrogian has restored life to this rich, merry, almost-forgotten Scottish lyric.

THE WICKED PIGEON LADIES IN THE GARDEN, by Mry Chase. A gothic contemporary gothic story for those in grades 3 to 5. It centers on nine-year-old Maureen Swanson, known by the neighborhood kids as "Old Stinky," who prefers to imagine herself as Maureen Messerman, owner of the now boarded-up, once grand, Old Messerman Place in town.
