Autumn "Nip" can bring recluse spider's bite

Fall weather and cooler temperatures herald the annual migration from sunny lawns to warm fireplaces. Many unsuspecting home-makers are unaware that an uninvited "guest" — perhaps several, has already established a quiet abode in some area of your property.

Your silent visitor — the often deadly brown recluse spider!

While no fatal bite has been reported in Kentucky, the reserved creature can deliver a lethal injection of venom more potent than the feared black widow spider.

During the summer months it can remain in the home, take refuge under a rock, the dry bark of a tree, or in the loft of a feed mill. But with the advent of fall the adventurous spider searches for winter quarters; usually the home, where it favors an area of serenity and subdued light.

Although the recluse is often found in basements or cellars, it may likely appear on curtains and draperies, or concealed in the folds of clothing.

Several medical records indicate the spider might take refuge in a bed, hiding between sheets or blankets. This presents an extremely dangerous situation, while the recluse is not known to attack readily, it often bites without hesitation when a sleeper turns-over in bed and unsuspectingly presses his body against the creature.

The wary spider is capable of surviving temperatures ranging from 40 degrees F to 112 degrees F, and has a life expectancy of almost two years — an unusual longevity for most spiders. Female of the species can reproduce 158 young in 39 days.

The spider first came to the attention of Dr. R.A. Scheibner, Entomologist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, in 1965, when a specimen was sent to his laboratory from Carlisle, Ky. The following year another recluse was received for examination — again from Carlisle! Subsequent correspondence from Carlisle indicates the bite cases well before 1965, so the spider has been in Kentucky for some time.

Hundreds of spider species may be found in the Commonwealth, fortunately most are not only harmless but advantageous, since they feed on insects and other destructive pests.

Dr. Scheibner attributes the undetected presence of the recluse in Kentucky to general "acceptance" by the public meaning its medium size and ordinary appearance deceive the casual observer. The recluse is unlike the fierce-looking black widow, and the unwary might view the arthropod with a mixture of annoyance and repugnance, but scarcely terror.

Dr. Scheibner describes the brown recluse as shy and withdrawn. Adults average about 4/10 inch long, but they range in various sizes from 3/10 to 1/2 inch, legs excluded. Usually they are rich brown in color but they may also be light tan or cream. Because of many short hairs on their body, they appear to have the texture of suede. The section of the body that bears the legs is lighter in color than the abdomen, and has a dark fiddle-shaped design on it. Because of this pattern, the spider is sometimes called the "brown fiddler" although the "fiddle" is often difficult to distinguish in some specimens.

The creature resembles several species of common house spiders and is often confused with the wolf spider, a comparatively harmless predator that some scientists consider as excellent "pets."

The confusion in identity of the two spiders has resulted in tragedy. The wolf spider, however, is capable of biting, and its venom may cause reactions in some sensitive people.

Origin of the recluse remains uncertain, but scientists agree that its native habitat is probably Mexican in origin. It was not until the 1950's, as a result of bites in several western states, that the brown recluse was recognized by medical authorities as extremely toxic. U.S. Public Health Service officials have "tracked" the spiders geographic movements from Texas to the southeastern and central United States.

The brown recluse appears quite selective in the choice of a habitat. Scientists are puzzled with reports of the spiders appearance in some regions of the United States; but "apparent absence" in communities of the same area.

The spider appears partial to the western district of Kentucky. Although a few physicians in eastern Kentucky have treated bite wounds symptomatic of the recluse, research scientists have been unsuccessful in their attempt to locate a specimen.

The bluegrass region is not considered a desirable environment for a bashful invader. Although some have been found, there is something about the area distasteful to the spider. Scientists at the University of Kentucky are attempting to determine cause of the deterrent affect.

Typical reaction following a bite by the brown recluse is destruction of the tissue surrounding the area of the wound. The victim may remain unaware of the attack for two or three hours, or a painful swelling may occur immediately. The appearance of a small blister usually follows, accompanied with fever and nausea. While death is rarely the end result, the victim might suffer intense pain for several days or even weeks. Permanent damage to the skin area often leaves a scar ranging from the size of a penny to a half-dollar; Physicians describe the physical appearance of the scar as closely resembling a bullet hole.

"The brown recluse can control the amount of venom injected into the victim," advised Dr. Scheibner. "And the physical condition of the recipient often determines the extent of danger resulting from the bite."

Small children, with their instinctive curiosity, are especially vulnerable to the spider's attack. Dr. Scheibner urges parents to inspect the basements, attics, garages, and main living quarters of the home to determine if the recluse is present. Farmers should give guarded attention to feed storage areas, as it ranks high on the spider's choice of a haunt. Another favorite hiding place is the shoe; and although a well-placed foot on the creature will usually cause its demise, it often retaliates with a severe bite through the process of reflex action.

"When the brown recluse is found, immediate control measures should be taken," advises Dr. Scheibner. "Failure to act promptly allows the spider to reproduce, and increases the problem of eradication," according to the U. of K. expert.

Forestry News

Each farmer in your county is interested in deriving the maximum benefit from every acre. Many of these landowners are increasing their land values and incomes by planting tree seedlings.

The phenomenal increase in tree planting during the past decade is traced mainly to a growing awareness among individual landowners of the need for and desirability of establishing forest plantations. Motives for planting are varied, but the principal ones are to restore idle land to productivity, to control erosion, to establish windbreaks, and to develop areas for recreation and wildlife habitats.

It is not the purpose here to advocate tree planting on land that will yield a greater monetary return from grazing, farming, or other enterprises. But a landowner may wish to plant trees on parts of his farm that are inaccessible to farm equipment and where the ordinary farm management practices are not feasible; or he may wish to allocate part of his land to growing forest products needed on his farm, such as fence-posts and barn poles not otherwise readily available. On other parts of the farm, erosion may be serious that tree planting for erosion control will be desirable. To encourage reforestation of approximately 1,500,000 acres of eroded, idle and sub-marginal land in Kentucky, the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Forestry operates nurseries from which tree seedlings are supplied at a low cost to farmers and timberland owners in the state. Tree seedlings are also available for the planting of farm windbreaks and the improvement of existing woodlands.

Your local Kentucky Division of Forestry Personnel can supply you with information concerning the kinds of seedlings that are available and the costs of these seedlings. They can also take tree orders for seedlings for the fall planting in November.

Conservation funds are available to help pay some of the costs of reforestation. You can find out about these payments for tree seedlings, site preparation, for planting, and planting costs at your local office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

DDVP (vapona), 0.5 percent lindane, or 2 to 3 percent malathion, are effective for small areas. For larger areas use a residual spray with water solutions of emulsifiable concentrates of DDT, chlordane, or dieldrin. Dilute the DDT to 5 percent; chlordane to 1 percent. Spray the basement floor, ceilings, walls, and the interior of garages, sheds and barns at least once a year. One gallon of spray solution covers about 1,000 square feet of surface.

Dr. Scheibner cautions the inquisitive against the practice of handling a "dead." The crafty hunter will often feign death as a means of eluding his pursuer. Antagonized by the spray mixture and sensing the crisis at hand, the recluse becomes a dangerous adversary. Handling the spider too soon after spraying can invite disaster.

LET'S QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—I am a veteran of the Vietnam conflict with two years service and did not complete high school before entering the service. Would I be able to finish high school at government expense?

A—Yes. In fact, there is a special program set up for Vietnam veterans who have not completed high school. The financial assistance you receive to get a high school diploma will not use up the entitlement you have earned for education beyond high school.

Q—If the wife of a totally disabled veteran wants to

PARKERSON AT AFB IN THAILAND

Technical Sergeant Jack D. Parkerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sief Parkerson of Route 1, Brodhead, in on duty at Udon Royal Thai AFB, Thailand. Sgt. Parkerson, a security police supervisor, is serving with the 432nd Security Police Squadron, a unit of the Pacific Air Force. Before his arrival in Thailand, he was assigned at Chanute AFB, Ill.

The sergeant is a 1953 graduate of Brodhead High School. His wife is the former Gleana M. Cloud.

EGAN GRADUATES

Second Lieutenant John H. Egan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Egan of Stone, has graduated at Tyndall AFB, Fla., from the training course for U.S. Air Force weapons mechanics.

Lieutenant Egan was trained in aircraft operation and maintenance of ground search and light aircraft.

The lieutenant, a 1963 graduate of Mt. Vernon High School, attended Eastern Kentucky University and Cumberland College in Williamsburg. He received his B.S. degree in Botany from Utah State University and was commissioned there in 1969 through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Program.

His wife, Jeanette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons, Route 1, Mt. Vernon.

take advantage of the new educational opportunity, must she go to school full time? She often has children, as well as her husband, to care for.

A—Part-time training is authorized for widows and wives of disabled veterans with 95 percent of the monthly allowance for three-fourths time and $60 for half-time training.

Q—What is the time limit of the guaranteed home loan a veteran may obtain from a lending institution, and what is the maximum time allowed to repay such a loan?

A—The VA has no limit on the amount borrowed, but has a limitation on the amount of the guaranty to the lender. The guaranty may not be more than 60 percent of the loan and in no event exceed $12,500. These loan mortgages may run up to 30 years.

All about Flowers
By Ruth Fain

HOLLYHOCK IN THE GARDEN
Hollyhock is a perennial plant that is preferred by home gardeners. Hollyhock is especially desirable for use in ornamental gardens in the Southern United States because it is better suited to warmer climates. In fact, this plant thrives in hot, dry climates. The Hollyhock flowers are large and very beautiful. Varying shades of white, yellow and red are the predominant colors of the Hollyhock. The Hollyhock often attains heights of eight feet or more.
We choose only the loveliest, and most colorful flowers for our customers. Every floral arrangement we prepare has our special attention. Telephone us when you need flowers. We deliver locally or wire to distant cities.

Gov. Nunn Speaks To 1200 At Republican Rally & Fish Fry

It was a warm, balmy evening, the general atmosphere was one of confidence, and it was a typical old-fashioned Republican Rally last Friday night when over 1200 persons gathered at Renfro Valley to eat fish, discuss the upcoming General Election, and hear Governor Louie B. Nunn speak on behalf of Rep. Harold DeMarcus, candidate for reelection to the state legislator, and James Thompson, Republican candidate for State Auditor.

Several state officials were on hand for the event, including Dick Vermillion, Clerk of the Court of Appeals who spoke briefly to the crowd. Thompson also spoke and took a couple of "political pokes" at both Attorney General John Breckinridge and Lieutenant Governor Thompson charged that despite his office turning up repeated evidence of "conflicts of interest" in the Breathitt County School system, Breckinridge has refused to take action in the matter. Calling Ford a "Cricketer" who has been running around the state criticizing the present administration without offering any constructive suggestions for solving the problems of the state. He also told the crowd that in two years, Governor Nunn's administration has raised the state's status in education and other areas. Mr. Thompson, who was appointed to the State Auditor's post on the death of Clyde Connelly, faces Mary Louise Frost, Democrat, and Hazel Lottister, American Party, in the General Election.

Rep. DeMarcus then introduced Governor Nunn calling him, "One of the greatest Republicans of them all." DeMarcus stated that when Nunn took office, the state was facing bankruptcy with all the state's service programs in danger of cuts or elimination altogether. He said concerning Nunn that "the measure of a man's greatness is doing what has to be done when he doesn't want to do it." Nunn told the crowd that the state's financial records were not available to him prior to the election and therefore he was not able to accurately assess the state's financial position until seven days before he took office when a $24,000,000 cut in expenditures was announced by the then Governor Ned Breathitt. Nunn said that when he took office he found that the deficit was not $24,000,000 but $36,000,000 and that the state owed the gram $20,000,000. Nunn said additional revenue was needed to make up this deficit and keep the public service programs functioning. He pointed out that in the last two years, Rockcastle County has received $2,130,000 from the state for education which is an increase of $385,000 over the two years prior to that, a $52,000 increase in vocational school funds, $88,000 more spent this year to take care of the aged, blind, and crippled, and an increase in the funds used to build rural roads.

He reminded the people that he needed Rep. DeMarcus and James Thompson to keep Kentucky moving forward and asked their support for them.

Governor Nunn has stated his support for the proposed amendment to the Kentucky constitution which would allow taxation of farm land in urban areas on the basis of its farming value rather than its potential value as an industrial, commercial, or housing site.

This amendment, along with another one calling for annual meetings of the Legislature instead of meetings every two years as now provided, will be on the ballot this fall. Nunn is expected to announce soon his position on the second amendment.

MISS MARY WILLIAMS DIES IN COVINGTON

Miss Mary Kathy Williams, 58, of Covington, and formerly of Rockcastle County, died October 12 at the St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington after an illness of two months.

She was the daughter of Mrs. Lou Rader Williams of Orlando and the late Wilburn Williams, member of the Baptist Church.

Besides her mother, she is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Sally Brown and Mrs. Fannie Jordan, both of Hamilton, Ohio; Mrs. Georgia Halcomb of Cincinnati, Ohio and Mrs. Hattie Chestnut of Orlando, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Sparks Funeral Home Chapel with Bro. Lester Arnold officiating. Burial was in the Flat Rock Cemetery.

FRED CROMER, JR. DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Fred L. Cromer, Jr., a supervisor for the William Minnielli Construction Co., Fairfield, Ohio died Friday in Bethesda Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Cromer, a resident of Springdale, Ohio, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elma Archer Cromer; three sons, Gary, Robert, and Kevin; two daughters, Karen and Mrs. Judy Childress; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Cromer, Sr.; two sisters, Mrs. Ruby Bray and Mrs. Jean Wright; and three grandchildren. He was also the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Kincer of Mt. Vernon.

Services were held Tuesday at the Schmidt-Thonau Funeral Home in Sharonville. Burial was in Arlington Memorial Gardens in Mt. Healthy, Ohio.

"Boy Scout Camporee"

Mt. Vernon Boy Scout Troop 156 was awarded a blue ribbon at the Blue Grass Council Chuck-Wagon Camporee this week and at Renfro Valley. Troop 156 was the host troop for the camporee. The patrol leader and scoutmaster, Charles Alfred Mullins, were given special camporee neckerchiefs for the hard work that they did to make the camporee a success. The Mt. Vernon Troop's campsite is shown in the above photo.

OVER 1100 SCOUTS and adult leaders from 55 troops and 3 explorer posts attended the camporee, representing 25 counties in Central Kentucky. There were approximately 1500 scouts, leaders, and parents attending the campfire program Saturday evening. A musical program was provided by the Renfro Valley Barn Dance Staff in the horse show stands and arena. (photos courtesy Wade Roy)

Mrs. Graves Named

To WH Conference Panel

Mrs. Zi Graves of Bloss has been asked to serve as a panel member for the forthcoming White House Conference on Food, Nutrition, and Health in the United States.

Mrs. Graves will serve on the panel as a board member at large of the Council of the Southern Mountains.

In announcing the White House Conference, President Nixon remarked: "That hunger and malnutrition should persist in a land such as ours is embarrassing and intolerable...something very like the honor of American democracy is at issue."

The Conference, which will be held in Washington on December 2, 3, and 4, will advise the President and the American people on how best to fulfill our commitment, "to put an end to hunger in America... for all time." To this end, it will be called upon to formulate both a general National nutrition policy and specific proposals for immediate action by all levels and branches of Government, and by agricultural producers, the food industry, the press, labor, health professionals and educators, and voluntary groups.

The Conference will bring together more than 2,500 educators, scientists, medical and health professionals, representatives of agriculture and the food

PENNYRILE DEDICATED

One of the high points of the Chamber of Commerce Tour was dedication Thursday of the Pennyrile Parkway at its intersection with the Western Kentucky Parkway and US 41. The Pennyrile was completed Aug. 4 and open to traffic Aug. 27.

SAYS 'NO'

Commissioner Eugene Goss, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1971, said in Frankfort that "I would not run under any circumstances." Nor would he run, he said, for lieutenant governor.

Goss's comments came less than a week after Governor Nunn said at an Owensboro news conference he "wouldn't be disappointed" if U.S. Senator John Sherman Cooper made the race.

NEED TO KNOW

The State Council on Public Health Education, in the midst of considerable confusion over a "closer affiliation" directive by the 1968 Legislature, urged the Universities of Kentucky and of Louisville to "step up to plate" for their future relationship by Nov. 7.

The Council emphasized the urgency of its request by saying it needed to know what the two institutions have in mind before it makes its 1970-72 budgetary recommendations for the state's universities and colleges to the State Finance Department the following week.

The Council's action followed a report by its staff opposing merger of the universities. The report recommended the U of L be phased into the state system as an autonomous institution. This would take six years.

KIT FREE

The Department of Natural Resources, Division of Forestry is offering free to teachers of grades one through four in Kentucky a "Forest Fire Prevention and Conservation Kit" featuring Smokey Bear to be used in elementary prevention. Further information may be obtained from the department at Frankfort.

REV. MIDDLETON AT SAND SPRINGS

Reverend Harry Edwin Middleton, Jr. of Waynesville, North Carolina, will preach at the Sand Springs Baptist Church Saturday night, October 25 at 7 p.m. and Sunday morning, October 26.

er knowledge of the fish they seek than do the others. They're real die-in-the-wool fishermen who know when, where and how to catch fish.

As an example. Many fishermen are putting away their fishing tackle about now and won't take it out again until vacation time next year. Members of the "Upper Ten," however, are currently taking advantage of cool weather and falling water temperatures and are harvesting bass, large ones in limit numbers, with regularity from Kentucky's lakes.

For the serious angler, fall is the ideal fishing period. The lakes devoid of pleasure boaters and skiers are the most part, and the weather is comfortable and generally stable, and more important, the fish have perked up and are feeding for long periods of time in shallow waters. They're feeding more regularly, too, and may be more easily caught during these feeding cycles.

Each fisherman seems to have a favorite spot and a favorite lure (and is very mysterious about both) but there are several fall fishing facts that are just that—facts—and knowing about them will benefit any fisherman. Among them:

During fall, black bass will be found up and strike an artificial lure if it is presented to him in the right manner in the right place. First of all, try fishing the fallen tree tops—places where trees have fallen into the water and furnish a resting site for bass as they lie in wait for a passing morsel. Try a surface lure and cast it into the notch of limbs, close to shore, and work the lure back slowly. Try various retrieving techniques—slow then fast—then slow. If this fails to get a rise, then go deeper.

When casting any of the deep running lures, those with large lips and built-in action, cast over the outside edge of limbs lying beneath the water. Make the lure dance up and down over the limbs in an erratic fashion.

Either of the above techniques can be deadly if the bass have moved into the tree lips. If they're not there, then head for submerged stump beds. Frequently these can be found by spotting a few stickups above the water.

Again, start with the surface lure. Let it rest, then splash and gurgle about, imitating an injured minnow. If this doesn't work then try bottom-bouncing with deep running, built-in action lures. Let them run over and around the stumps, stirring up a little which sometimes excites the bass into a frenzy.

Another often successful method is to cast around points and drop-offs, as well as around the areas mentioned above, with dollies or artificial worms.

For most part, anglers agree that such lures are more effective when fished slowly. Allow them to crawl and crawl around and over limbs, stumps, rocks or other bass hiding places. Shallow running lures also have a place in fall fishing. One of the best ways to fool a big bass is to make him think such a lure is a big, fat minnow that can't quite get away. Let the lure roll about as you retrieve it slowly, pumping the rod up and down or sideways. Once again, choose an area that is over cover—try shallow stump beds, outcroppings of rock and shallows with deep drop-offs. The rougher the terrain the better.

If you want to be really a successful fisherman and join that 10 percent who catch 90 percent of the fish, then you have to work at it and you won't find a better time to start than right now!

Social Security

One of the biggest misconceptions among young workers today is believing that Social Security is for older persons only. Younger visitors to our office talk about "when I'm old enough for Social Security," and we frequently hear of someone being of "Social Security age."

Actually, Social Security knows no particular age grouping. Right here in Rockcastle County some 573 persons under age 60 are receiving benefits each month. These include not only dependents of older workers, but also young disabled workers and their families and widows and children of deceased workers.

Unlike retirement which can be planned, death and disability usually hit a family when it can least afford the loss of income. Thus, protection from these programs is of utmost importance to the young worker. Protection is provided when the worker and his family need it most.

Because of recent amendments to the Social Security law, today's young worker gains protection for disability and survivors insurance with as little as 1½ years work. This insurance could mean as much as $100,000 in benefits to him and his family. Additional information about the protection offered a young worker can be obtained by contacting the Social Security office and asking for a booklet called "Social Security Information for Young Families."

Household Accidents Taking Toll

Curiosity is killing the kids around the house these days and doctors fear that the death rate will go even higher.

Accidents are now the greatest single cause of death and crippling among American children, reports the U.S. Public Health Service. "Home Sweet Home" is one of the chief trouble spots for the kids.

The daily press publishes grim reports such as: An 18-month-old Elizabeth town girl who grabbed some used razor blades from the garbage can under the sink and chewed them. She severed tendons in the hand and only after a lengthy stay was she able to return home.

A three-year-old Bowling Green girl died at home when she fell under the wheels of her father's moving car. Authorities believe she knocked the parked car out of gear when it began rolling, she tried to get out, too late.

A two-year-old Henderson boy admired the coffee pot cord, sitting on the kitchen floor. He picked it up and bit through. The boy received severe burns of the lip and was burned badly from the waist down. A doctor exclaimed, "It's a wonder he wasn't killed."

Dr. O. D. Cantley chairs the Accident Prevention-Poison Control Committee of the Kentucky Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics, and he and his colleagues are alarmed about the growing injuries and deaths at home. "Imagine, if you can, that every day of the year a small child will be killed or injured in, of all places, his own home. This is actually taking place," Dr. Cantley says.

"The little ones are seeing the world of ours through wondrous and adventurous eyes. Each room of the house, each drawer and cabinet, each container and anything within reach must be checked out by them at least once."

"The child does not know from previous experience that a pan of boiling water can painfully sear him for the rest of his life. He does not know that a television set carries enough volts to kill when he reaches for tubes in the back of the set," he says.

Pediatricians throughout the state intend to launch a major campaign through radio, television, and the state's newspapers, to inform the public that death may lurk in every nook and cranny in the house, and sometimes right on the floor in the driveway, too.

Major enemies of children include plastic glass doors, steam vaporizers, aspirin, and other medicines taken, by mistake, floor furnaces, pots with scalding water, household cleaners, electrical outlets, lawn mowers, cleaning bags, and the family automobile with the key in ignition or the park brake off.

Physicians realize that some accidents are bound to happen no matter what safe-guards are taken. But many accidents are really preventable in are those cases where a little extra care can prevent an accident. You can buy plastic storm doors to replace the glass ones. A Glasgow couple lost a child after the child went through the glass door. A sliver of glass pierced her heart.

Electrical outlets around the house can be covered with plastic, thus eliminating the possibility of shock and burns.

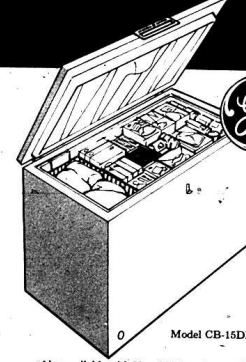

Steam vaporizers can be replaced by cool vaporizers. The newer cool vaporizers do a better job in clearing up congestion. They're much safer.

Much work has been done to warn the public about dry cleaning plastic bags but there's a new menace, plastic bags on new shoes for children. So that parents may be warned about danger spots around the house, the Accident Control Committee in cooperation with Kentucky newspapers, plans to publish a room-by-room checklist periodically. The checklists will be suitable for retention on the family bulletin board.

"LIBRARY NEWS"

ment is both unusual and entertaining. Grades, k-3.

THE FOX THAT WANTED NINE GOLDEN TAILS, by Mary Knight. A translation of an Oriental fable, this tale of a fox who outsmarted himself contains truth for both young and old. Grades 3-4.

GOODNIGHT ANDREW, GOODNIGHT CRAIG, by Marjorie Sarmat. Andrew and Craig find going to sleep a difficult task and their adventures will be of interest to all youngsters. Grades k-1.

GRANNY AND THE INDIANS, by Peggy Parish. The Indians are surprised to find that Granny does not fear them in the least and before long they find themselves wishing that she would leave them alone. Grades k-4.

THE GREAT BIG ENORMOUS TURNIP, by Alexei

Tolstoy. A farmer plants turnip seeds and hopes that it will grow big and strong. However, he is both astonished and plagued when his hope is fulfilled. Grades k-2.

GREGORY, THE NOISIEST AND STRONGEST BOY IN GRANGER'S GROVE, by Robert Bright. Gregory begs his grandmother to fix him some of her famous griddle cakes, but his attempts to help her are disastrous. Grades k-3.

HARQUIN, THE FOX WHO WENT DOWN TO THE VALLEY, by John Burningham. Harquin, disobeying his parents, leaves the safety of home and becomes the object of a full-dress fox hunt. The action of this volume and the brilliant illustrations serve to make this exciting entertainment for small readers. Grades k-3.

HARVEY'S HIDEOUT, by Russell Hoban. Harvey and Mildred Muskrat are brother and sister and they fuss all the time, saying cruel things and calling each other names. However, they find that arguing gets them nowhere and that they need each other after all. Grades k-2.

JOENAMATH, SUPERSTAR, by Robert B. Jackson. One of the most controversial sports figures today is Joe Namath of the New York Jets. This biography traces his life from teenage sports star to professional quarterback on the national championship team. Grades 6-9.

LOOK AT THE MOON, by May Gorelick. Does the moon shine the same everywhere? This volume takes a child on tour of the world to show that the moon shines in all places and in all types of situations. Grades k-3.

LOVABLE LYLE, by Bernard Weber. Lovable Lyle, the crocodile, is loved by everyone except Clover Sue. Huggle and her mother. In this new adventure, Lyle is forced to prove that he will make a good friend for Clover Sue. Grades k-3.

PADDY'S PREPOSTEROUS PROMISES, by Julia Bristol Biscoff. Paddy Doolittle, the hired man, persuades the Healey children to do many chores on their father's farm. However, his rewards for their work often cause more trouble than pleasure. Grades 4-6.

PETE'S PUDDLE, by Joanna Foster. Rain! Rain! Rain! The result is lots of beautiful splashy puddles, just right for Pete to play in and the best puddle of all is in his own back yard. Grades k-1.

THE PIXY AND LAZY HOUSEWIFE, by Mary Callow. Pixies, while they can be a blessing, can be a plague to lazy housewives. Old Bess, the worst of the lazy housewives, finds herself receiving her just reward at the hands of Willy Tatters, leader of the pixies. Grades k-3.

THE SEALS, by Eiles Dillon. The Irish war of independence is the background for this novel of a young man's maturing and an old man's continued value in his society. Grades 7-9.

THE SEARCH FOR DELICIOUS, by Natalie Bobbitt. A disagreement over which food should stand for Delicious in a new dictionary almost leads to a civil war in a small kingdom of long ago. Grades 5-6.

SUSIE AND LEYLA, by Rebecca H. Letimer. A meeting of cultures takes place when American Susie and Turkish Leyla become friends. A novel of present-day Turkey, this is an interesting story for young girls. Grades 3-4.

TEACHER'S PEST, by Norah Smoridge. Every class room has at least one "teacher's pest." This

Put KENTUCKY First

Re-elect

Wm. Harold DeMarcus

State Representative for
Lincoln and Rockcastle Counties

FIGHT CRIME & DISORDER: "Lawlessness, crimes in our streets and disrespect for legally constituted authority can not - and shall not - be tolerated in Kentucky. This issue is one of the most critical problems of our times. We must - and we shall - provide protection for every law-abiding citizen. We must - and we shall - give swift justice to all who place themselves outside the law."

BETTER EDUCATION: "Kentucky has entered a new and exciting era of greatness. We must prepare all our citizens to take advantage of these expanding opportunities by improving our educational system. We must also place new emphasis on vocational education to teach new skills so every Kentuckian can work to the limits of his abilities."

ECONOMY IN GOVERNMENT: "Inflation has been a serious problem to every family by eroding the purchasing power of our dollars. This is a national problem and can not be solved in Kentucky. But we can - and we must - put economy in Government. We must see that every dollar is wisely spent so every citizen gets full value for every tax dollar."

CARD OF THANKS.
We wish to thank our friends and relatives who were so kind and understanding during the death of our mother, Lula Cope. And a special thanks to Rev. Stokes for his kind words.
—The Cope Family

Please remember church and Sunday School. Count your blessings and you'll realize how much God means to you. We have so much to be thankful for. Please always remember our fighting men in Vietnam need our prayers. God bless you all.

A car without a windshield...ridiculous. But is it look very far back in the history of the automobile to find that windshields were not originally a standard item in the construction of a car. They were sold separately, as accessories.

One such windshield, known as the Mezger Automatic Windshield, was available in three types and ranged in price from $25.00 to $37.00. The advantages of this item was directed mostly to capturing the interest of women, but they saw the conveniences and comforts and became as interested in them as the women, and as progress has proven, the windshield is quite valuable.

Like the old-styled windshield for an automobile, the furnishings of a home are sold separately, that is except in the new modern mobile home, which comes completely equipped, and furnished. Furnished, not only with the essential living equipment, but with luxury items, built-in items, space saving devices to give you a complete modern home. At JASPER & JASPER MOBILE HOMES, INC., we have a complete display of these modern, completely furnished mobile homes. Come in and get your home of the future, today.
