Grass Land Renovation
Time is Here

If you are planning to renovate some grass lands, November is the best time to start. Here is the process: Grass the fields that you plan to renovate now while the grass is tasty. Keep livestock confined to a small area so they can eat down the top growth, thus making tillage easier. A good rule of thumb for those heavy growth fields is to put five to ten cows per acre on them. This number of cows will graze heavy growth fairly clean in a week or ten days.

Here are the major steps in renovating a grass field. Pull a soil sample and have it tested. Put on needed lime, phosphate and potash. Do not use nitrogen when you renovate old grass fields. Nitrogen will cause fast recovery of the grass and give extra competition to the young legume plant in early spring.

Disturb 40 to 60 percent of the grass for sowing clovers, 80 to 100 percent for alfalfa. This tillage opens the sod so that legumes will have a better chance to germinate and live. A disk, field cultivator or field tiller will do a good job.

So adapted legumes at the rate recommended for seeding alone. Use certified seed if possible. At the time of seeding be sure that you treat the legume seeds with the right nitrogen-fixing bacteria. Just before seeding, smooth the ground down. This should be done in mid-February to mid-March. Cover the seed with culspacker or brush. Red Clover, 4-6 pound per acre, and White or Ladino, 1-2 pounds per acre, work best together. This mixture seems to be the first choice of most Kentucky farmers. Listed below are recommended legumes and seeding rates, in pounds per acre, for renovating:

- (1) White clover, 1 1/2 - 2 lb.
- (2) Red clover, 7 - 9 lb.
- (3) Annual lespedeza, 20 - 30 lb.
- (4) Alfalfa, 12 - 15 lb.
- (5) White clover and red clover, 1 - 2 lb., 8 - 10 lb.
- (6) Alfalfa and Ladino white clover 1/2 - 1 lb.

The biggest threat to renovating is when late seedlings are made and weeds come in. So the earlier you lime, fertilize and heavy disk, the better chance you have to get clover in your grass fields. Buy your legume seed now for February-March seedings.

Stay out of the renovated fields until the grass covers the ground. Graze it or mow it so that the legume seedlings can receive daylight. Don't let the grass make seed the first year.

Graze or mow when the seed head comes out. Favor the legume, not the grass. Start pasturing heavy at 6-10 inches of legume height. Move livestock to another field when they have grazed down to 4 inches and let it recover. Mowing should follow grazing to even up the stand and get rid of weeds and cover-mature forage. Livestock have refused.

The successful maintenance of high yielding legumes is dependent on annual top dressing. Top dress with 2-3 tons lime every 5-6 years if needed. Have a soil test made to be sure if and when you need it. Top dress established pastures each year with 300 pounds per acre of 0-20-20 fertilizer or the equivalent on land that tested low in phosphate and potash at seeding time. Better still top dress according to frequent soil test.

When renovation is done as recommended including seeding early, you can expect an increase of about 50% in production the first year. Not only will production be up but the feed quality will be also. Next year you can look for still another big jump in production. The second year is better than the first year.

So if you have a grass field that hasn't been producing suitable feed for a few years, why not give renovation a try? You'll like it.

Homemaker's Help

By: Faith Plummer
Co. Extension Agt.

Food prices seem to be going up - up - up. Even though the average family spends a smaller percentage of their income for food today than in the past, those rising prices at the grocery still upset the budget-minded homemaker. With higher food prices and the extra sales tax, smart food shopping is more important than ever for Kentucky families. The smart shopper considers good family nutrition first. She never stretches the food dollar so much that she neglects the foods needed for good health. However, she also knows that she doesn't need to spend a lot of money to have a well-fed family - nutritious foods can be bought in many cost ranges.

The smart shopper plans menus in advance, leaving some decisions to be made at the store. She follows the basic four food groups (milk and dairy products - meats and proteins - breads and cereals - fruits and vegetables) as the plan meals, often using the least expensive foods in each group. She reads the food ads for ideas and takes advantage of "specials."

The smart shopper makes her grocery list after carefully planning her meals. Then she follows the list when she reaches the store, avoiding impulse-buying except when she sees an unexpected "special" that fits in with her menu plans. She reads labels carefully and with understanding, using label information to help her make choices. She looks for grades and inspection stamps as guides to quality. Then she selects the size, grade and amount which her family needs and which she can store correctly. The smart shopper maybe sometimes buy convenience foods, even though they cost a little more. She considers the extra cost in relation to how much time she has for preparing the food and, also, how well her family likes it.

When she gets home from the store, the smart food shopper stores her purchases promptly and correctly. Then, she uses them wisely, avoiding food waste, for her family's good health and enjoyment.

Eighteen German travel agents touring Central Kentucky Tuesday, added to evidence of the growing interest in Kentucky as a tourist state. Public Information Commissioner W. James Host said it was the fourth such group from Europe to visit Kentucky during the last year.

PROMOTED - Matt Royce Sargent, left, and Bruce Sargent, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Sargent of Bridge Ridge, were both recently promoted in the U.S. Army. Matt was promoted to Sergeant and is now stationed in Korea. Bruce, who is married to the former Shirley Adams, is stationed in Vietnam and was recently promoted to Sp4.

CORRECTIONS OKAYED - Correction of deficiencies found in Kentucky's master plan for vocational education have been approved by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the state is now eligible for its two percent share of a $131.5 million allocation pending in Congress.

Dr. Carl Laram, director of the State Bureau of Vocational Education, said the federal funds would help support regular vocational education programs, such as agriculture and home economics, as well as new programs for the disadvantaged, handicapped and students in post-secondary programs.

Kentucky's wildlife will have a moratorium of its own, with the exception of deer, geese and raccoon, during the first 19 days of November. During this time there is an answer for the hunter who thinks he's too busy to take time out to go hunting. No doubt in many cases his plain about the press of business is justified and actually to go hunting would be a burden. For this fellow there is relief in Kentucky. If he misses the joys of hunting quail and ducks and pheasants because of the time element he may be able to hunt an hour or two on one of the 11 hunting preserves which have been licensed by the Department of Fish and Wildlife and fit very snugly into the plans of the busy professional man. The fellow who is too busy to hunt is also too busy to train his hunting dogs, and he simply can't have time to dress the game he may kill. Here again is where the hunting preserves come to his rescue. They offer hunting dogs and will see that the harvested game is dressed for the hunter who desires and needs such tailor-made treatment.

And so a doctor, or an engineer, lawyer or any individual who is too busy to take off a half day or more, may at a fairly nominal fee, hunt one on one of these pre-stocked hunting preserves for a couple of hours, or so and still keep up with his business. All he needs do is to visit this area, (it would be a good idea to make reservations) and he will be taken on a quickie hunting trip. He may hunt bobwhite quail, or mallard ducks, or pheasants or chukar part-ridges and whatever he hunts he will most likely find in a few minutes. The preserves that have been stocked by at least some of the preserves and are guaranteed to be on hand. The hunter may not have a dog. No problem. The preserve can furnish this, too, and when he has finished hunting, the hunter may have his game dressed while he changes into his business suit. So in a couple of hours, he will get that old feeling of hunting, of shooting at live game and of harvesting it. He may be gone for only three or four hours and still have an enjoyable hunt. The preserves are ideal for this type of hunter. To be sure there is a fee but it is usually nominal - if fact, dirt cheap for an afternoon of hunting.

Some hunters are so pleased with the facilities of the preserves that even though they may have to search out the game in the fields, they prefer the convenience of the preserves and visit them often. There's another advantage to these hunting preserves. It's legal to shoot game before and after the statewide season. Owners of the preserves abide by regulations as outlined by the Department. Since they offer only permitted game, they are permitted to open their seasons on October 1 and close on April 15. These are the dates for this season.

And so, the conventional hunter has an opportunity to get his shooting eye straightened out before the regular wild game seasons open and to continue his shooting after the regular seasons have closed. He may use his own dogs, if he wishes. It is got a requisite that he hire the dogs of the preserve. He is assured of adequate game. New game releases are made from time to time and if he is hampered in his walking, he can be shuttled to the hunting area in a vehicle, walk very little to flush the game and ride back to headquarters. Many persons are enjoying shooting preserves which fill a niche in Kentucky's well rounded hunting picture. Preserves which have been licensed by the Department area: Woodford County Preserve, Rt. 4 Versailles; Royal Acres Preserve, Rt. 1, Bloomfield; Preston Highway Preserve, 6304 Mt. Washington Rd., Louisville; Clay City Shooting Preserve, Clay City; McClellan's Shooting Preserve, Rt. 1, Central City; Barkley Lake Preserve, Eddyville; Watson's Shooting Preserve, Dixon; Pembroke Shooting Preserve, Rt. 2, Pembroke and Barren River Preserve, Rt. 3, Smiths Grove. Two private preserves, for members only, are Tradewater Shooting Preserve, with headquarters at Newburg, Ind., and Stonehaven Rt. 1, Lancaster. CARD OF THANKS We, Lloyd and Nancy Pickle and family, wish to express our deepest heartfelt thanks to our many friends, neighbors, and relatives, during the recent terrible loss of our darling little son and brother, Lloyd Bailey. Words cannot express our deep gratitude to each of you. There may be many we cannot thank personally for the gifts of food, money, and flowers, so may God bless each and everyone of you. Special thanks to Bro. Ray Dean and the Rominger Funeral Home. The Family of Lloyd Bailey Pickle

FIVE COUNTIES ADDED TO HEALTH PROJECT

The Appalachian Regional Commission, at the request of Gov. Louie B. Nunn, has added Wolf, Lee, Owensley, Jackson and Rockcastle counties to the Southeastern Kentucky Health Demonstration Project to make its boundaries coincide with area development district boundaries established by the governor.

Directors of the Kentucky River and Cumberland area development districts, in which the five counties are located, said the commission's action "will facilitate efficient area planning in these districts."

Do You Remember?

How many recall what was happening in Rockcastle County 28 years ago in September of 1941? Clarence Howard of Brodhead brought us an old copy of the Signal which contained several items of interest, among them the County financial statement, which we thought might be of interest to our readers, particularly those who were around and reading the Signal then.

Of course, the United States had not entered World War II at that time, but there were many other interesting items in the paper such as "Lions-Petansians Enjoy Fish Fry," which told of a joint fish fry held at Salt Petre Cave by the two clubs; The article went on to name the president of the Lions Club, Dr. R. C. Shelby, W. B. Maggard, president of the Petansians, and J. C. Perone district governor of Lions from Lexington. John Lair and Dr. Walker Owens with two guides took the guests on a tour of Salt Petre Cave.

"Eastern Star Installs Officers." The Eastern Star Chapter installed officers for the year on September 13 with Mrs. Charles Mounts presiding. Installed in officers were Mrs. R. G. Webb, Mrs. Henry Cox, Mrs. W. N. Riggs, Dr. R. G. Webb, Mrs. Charles Mounts, Sam Stallworth, Miss Ruby Black, Mrs. C. F. Mullins, Mrs. Ben Bray, Mrs. Walter Nisley, Mrs. Calum Webb, Mrs. Ida Ball, Miss Beulah Black, Mrs. Lee Black, Miss Bernice Black and C. F. Mullins.

Department Store Advertising

Curlew men's suits for $28.50; the Bank of Mt. Vernon's ad advised its customers to "Look Ahead to 1942" with a warning of "more taxes and higher taxes for everyone," (sound familiar?); the Gray Theatre in Brodhead featured such hits as "Charles' Aunt," "Caught in the Draft" (with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour), "Prairie Pioneers," and "Wild Geese Calling," with Joan Bennett, Henry Fonda, and Warren William.

1941 was a historical year in the United States, mainly because of the bombing of Pearl Harbor in December of 1941 which served to catapult the U.S. into World War II.

However, looking back, life was relatively simpler then. Our moral code was no doubt a little stronger, there was not the mass problem we have now with drugs, students fortunate to be in college seemed to be able to find better things to do with their time (study perhaps) than to riot against campus buildings and stage Comratioriums. Maybe families were a little closer then, at least it seems so now, and religion may have been a more personal revelation.

I use the "maybes" and "perhaps" quite freely you will notice, for having only been born in 1941 I am really not an authority on the 40's. It is just a feeling I have rekindled in childhood when, although we lived in a community where negroes lived fear and distrust in leaving our home for any length of time without looking over their shoulders.

At the Vernon Theater in Mt. Vernon, the movies showing were "Pingside Masses" with Ann Sathern and George Murphy; "Scattered Puffs the Strings," with Guy Kibbee; "The Big Store," with the Marx Bros. and Tony Martin, and "Billy The Kid In Texas," with Bob Steele.

A feature article by Dr. R. G. Webb (coming twenty some years early) contains a warning on using tobacco. Dr. Webb looked on it as "poison we have learned to love." And in the advertisements we find McBece and Adams

Capitol Digest

Edited By: Thornton McConnell

The $25 million statewide, state building program revealed by Gov. Louie B. Nunn at a press conference here is a pay-as-you-go program, the first of its kind designed for such a purpose in Kentucky since 1956.

The massive construction effort, the Governor said, will provide 17 new institutions in and facilities within the next two years - before he has his term as governor ends - "to meet the expanding needs of a growing Commonwealth."

And "by limiting construction to what we are able to afford," he pointed out, "we can respond to the needs of the people without mortgaging their future."

As outlined by the Governor, the program provides: "Painfully overdue" facilities for the mentally retarded, four new institutions for children assigned to the Child Welfare Department, three schools for vocational and special education, separate facilities for the blind and the deaf.

Also, a major rehabilitation center for the handicapped, three additions to the state's burgeoning parks system, two new State Police barracks at opposite ends of the Commonwealth, and a diagnostic laboratory for animal diseases.

TRI-STATE EFFORT

Moves to promote tourism along the circuitous Lincoln Heritage Trail where Abraham Lincoln spent most of his life were made by Governors Nunn of Kentucky, Edgar D. Whitcomb of Indiana, and Richard Ogilvie of Illinois at Somo Claus, Indiana.

The three Republican governors announced they will ask the federal government to build a Lincoln Heritage Trail Parkway from Lincoln's birthplace near Hodgenville, Ky., through Lincoln's "City, Ind., to Springfield, Ill.

It also was agreed the three states will supply $10,000 annually each in matching funds for communities along the trail to promote tourism and that six information centers, two in each state, will be built.

FACT REACHED

An agreement has been reached between Kentucky and Ohio whereby the Old C&O Bridge across the Ohio River linking Covington, Ky., with Cincinnati will be replaced by a two-lane superstructure costing $7.1 million.

Work will begin next spring, said the announcement made at a news conference at the Greater Cincinnati Airport at Florence, Ky., by U.S. Transportation Secretary John Volpe and Governors Nunn of Kentucky and James Rhodes of Ohio.

The new superstructure will be placed on the existing piers of the old highway bridge which was closed nearly a year ago because of its hazardous condition. The federal government will pay 50 percent of the cost with Ohio and Kentucky splitting the remainder on a 45-55 percent basis.

The Governor has urged state agency heads to give as many of their employees as possible time off to attend.

TO WASHINGTON

Carrying his fight against the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) programs in Kentucky to Washington, Governor Nunn held a news conference jointly with Rep. William J. Scherle, R-Iowa, and said:

In Knox County, "we had 3,100 persons on public assistance rolls. Then OEO came in and $10 million later we had 6,500 persons on the rolls. We can't afford antipovetry programs like that."

Scherle is seeking to have the Labor Education and Labor Committee, of which he is a member, reopen hearings into the poverty program to give Kentucky's governor and other state officials a chance to testify.

RIGHT-OF-WAY

Governor Nunn personally began the purchase of right-of-way for the Owensboro-Chick for 3.23 acres of land along the Poplar Log Road 11 miles southeast of Owensboro.

In a brief ceremony at the Daviess County Airport, the Governor presented Carson Shain of Daviess County with a check for $100,000 for the purchase of the land along the Poplar Log Road 11 miles southeast of Owensboro.

At a previous meeting in his office, the Governor presented a check to Mr. and Mrs. John L. Morgan for the first parcel of right-of-way for the latter parkway, 9.7 acres on KY 80 at Slick Rock east of Glasgow.

JOB TOTAL 3,000

Governor Nunn and Alfred R. Tandy, chairman of the Board of Tandy Industries Inc., Tulsa, Okla., jointly announced today will build a $10 million plus plant employing 3,000 jobs.

150 persons in Letcher County to manufacture structural components for prefabricated houses.

The announcement prompted State Commerce Commissioner Paul W. Grubbs to say "this marks the 27th new industry to locate in Eastern Kentucky since Governor Nunn took office and makes a total of more than 3,000 new jobs for the area."

Library Notes

New books received here from the Department of Libraries.

ARTHUR, by John Graham. Arthur should have stuck to working on his Ph.D., but Arthur never seemed to know when he was well off, so he decided to take on the role of detective. Suspense at its best!

AS FAR AS YESTERDAY, by Edward Wagenknecht. A famous writer and critic gently records random experiences of a Chicago childhood and memories of great comic strips, favorite books, theater and art personalities and illustrators.

THE BLACKMAILERS, by Henry Cecil. The blackmailers in this fine mystery are a new and clever breed.

BOMB CULTURE, by Jeff Nuttall. An explosive examination of the past Gypsy generation and a future worth having.

BOWMANVILLE BREAK, by Sidney Shelley. Based on an actual incident that occurred in a Canadian prisoner-of-war camp, "Bowmanville Break" is for those who enjoy high-tension adventure and suspense.

VANISHING PEOPLES OF THE EARTH, by National Geographic Society. In "Vanishing Peoples of the Earth" you dwell among tribes, clans and families as they strive to reconcile conflicts between the past and the present. A penetrating study of peoples faced with the need to adjust to a new kind of life.

CHAMPIONSHIP QUARTERBACK, by Tex Maule. The hero of The Rookie and The Quarterback is here found leading his team to the World Championship. Sports fans will enjoy this story of a team that goes all the way. Grades 7-10.

THE DIVERTING ADVENTURES OF TOM THUMB, by Barry Wilkinson. A new and humorous approach to an old nursery tale.

THE GYPSIES, WANDERERS IN TIME, by Katherine Esty. The term Gypsy brings to mind half formed images of an exotic existence of travel, music and romance as well as deceitful dealings with the non-Gypsy world. This volume is a carefully done work on Gypsies as they really are, from the dawn of their appearance to the present. Grades 7-9.

PORKY ON POPPUBTON, by William Pines Dubois. If you are thirteen and weigh 274 pounds, you may have a horrible time at school. However, hockey and a yearly classic between two top schools provides Porky with a chance to prove his worth. Grades 4-7.

PRELUDE, by Madeline L'Engle. Maturity often comes hard to teenagers and Katherine is no exception. Moreover, she is burdened by being an exceptionally creative girl who yearns to become a concert pianist. The realization of her ambitions is an integral part of this interesting novel. Grades 7-10.

THE HOUSE OF THE FOUR WINDS, by Colette Vivier. An apartment house in Paris during World War II is the home of a diverse group of dwellers. Michel and his family find themselves neighbors to collaborators, to Jews in hiding, and to members of the resistance. This is a story of Michel and other children like him, children who must face the realities of war. Grade 8-4-6.

KNIGHTS, BEASTS, AND WONDERS, by Margaret J. Miller. A collection of tales and legends handed down from the middle ages and retold for modern readers. Grades 4-6.

THE MAID OF ARTEMIS, by Olivia Coolidge. A girl in ancient Greece was no different from a girl in modern America in that she found the transition from child to young woman difficult. Ala found it hard to leave the last vestiges of childhood behind, but the future beckoned promisingly. Grades 5-7.

THE MANY WAYS OF SEEING, by Janet Goyford Moore. The various ways of viewing great paintings and other works of art are discussed in this volume which explains lucidly line, form, color, and texture. Grades 7-10.

MARCO AND THE SLEUTH HOUND, by John Foster. Marco and the Tiger is back as a detective in New Orleans. A spooky fort, Confederate gold, and criminal characters make for an exciting adventure tale. Grades 4-6.

THE MYSTERY TUNNEL, by Jean Bothwell. An intriguing addition to mystery collections. Two young people and a crow named Sassy search for the answer to several puzzling questions with rather surprising results. Grades 4-6.

THE MOONSHINE WAR, by Elmore Leonard. This light, humorous novel set during the days of Prohibition concerns a local war between the "revenuers," Louisville gangsters and Kentucky moonshiners.

THE NIGHT WE STOPPED THE TROLLEY, by Earl Miers. In a series of memorable vignettes—some funny, some bitter—the author reminisces about what was like to be young in America half a century ago.

ONLY IN ALASKA, by Roy Thomas. This book is Mrs. Thomas's highly personal and amusing account of her family's adventures and everyday life in the vast and unspoiled land that became their home.

ROCK FROM THE BEGINNING, by Nik Cohn. If you dig rock, this book is for you. If you don't but you'd like to know what's happening in the music field today, this is one to read.

THEY CALL ME MISTER 500, by Anthony Granatelli. Andy Granatelli has led the world in car and engine design to the point where those who know him think of him as the figure in automobile racing. His life story is an incredible saga.

7 CONQUESTS, by Paul Anderson. Seven tales of war and peace in the not-so-far-off world of the future.

THIS VERY TREE, by Joseph Cass. Only a poet could write about a small country college with the economy of words and the depth of feeling that the author displays in this short and moving novel.

"WILLALLLA" (Cont. From 3) day night. Mr. and Mrs. Haskel Gentry and Mrs. Maude Gentry of Ohio spent the week end visiting here.

IRELAND, by Terence White. An informal review of complex Irish history from pre-Christian Ireland to the present.

THE LONG-LEGGED HOUSE, by Wendell Berry. Interlocking themes of utmost concern to Americans today eloquent expression in this first work by a notable young Kentucky poet and novelist.
