

Night Hours Eliminated At Area SS Office

Monday evening hours are being eliminated at the Somerset Social Security Office effective November 17. After that date, according to James Mustian, manager, the office will observe regular working hours of 8:45 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Although the office will no longer be open to the public after 5:00 p.m., extra service will still be available to those persons unable to visit the office during regular hours. If someone finds it difficult to visit the office before 5:00 p.m., Mustian said, a telephone call is all that is necessary to arrange a special interviewing appointment. The Social Security Office is located in the Trade-wind Shopping Center on south highway 27. The telephone number is 678-8168.

Social Security News

"Students, that Christmas part-time job may do more than help pay your tuition or pay for new clothes. For one thing, it will buy you valuable social security protection for yourself and for your family." James Mustian, social security manager in Somerset said in a statement released today. "Social Security is a lot more than retirement and Medicare."

"Young people can get valuable survival and disability protection with as little as a year and a half of work under social security," said Mustian. "Thanks to the work they do part-time and on vacations, many high school and college students are already insured for both kinds of young people's protection even before they begin their regular working careers." Mustian gave three basic suggestions to young workers who want to get the most protection from their social security.

Make sure your employer has correctly recorded your social security number. Without proper reporting a worker may not get credit for all his earnings.

If part of your wages is received in tips, it is also important that you keep a record of the amounts received and report them to your employer. If you earn tips amounting to $20 or more a month, you will receive social security credit for them and must pay a social security contribution for the tips just as for other wages.

Check with social security every 3 years or so to make sure your earnings have been correctly reported. This is especially important if you change jobs frequently. A pre-addressed post card form available at district offices can be used to request a statement of the earnings credited to your social security record.

FAIRVIEW.

81 persons attended Sunday School at Fairview Sunday and a large crowd was present for church services. Thank God for everyone of them: It's such a joy to be able to go to church. If you haven't been attending church for some time, please start. I'm sure you will receive a great blessing from being there. God is so good to us. We need to sit down one in a while and meditate upon the love and mercies of God, and count our blessings, and I'm sure we would find them as many. You know it's the little things in life that count, like affection, a smile, a pat on the shoulder or a kind word. We should look for the good qualities in people. There's nobody all bad, nor is there anyone perfect. We all have our faults. We also have our problems, heartaches and disappointments. We all don't have the same ones, but we each have some kind. Therefore, we are taught to pray for each other. We all need the prayers of one another.

Those from Fairview attending the Sunday School conference at the Broadhead Baptist Church Sunday afternoon were Rev. Ray Dow, Buddy Gabbard, Cliff Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Chasteen. We certainly enjoyed the evening. Mr. and Mrs. William Barrett and Tommy of Somerset

Millipedes Don't Bite, Sting or Eat—But They Give Homeowners the Shivers

Millipedes are back again — meaning no harm, looking for warm quarters, and not even anything to eat. They won't bite or sting, eat dapperies or chew on furniture.

But they give homeowners the shivers.

That's because they are crawling creatures, with a look about them that instantly turns man into their sworn enemy. They have been around a long while.

Control: Spray a band of Sevin insecticide 10 feet wide around the house. Start at the foundation and work outward. Spray grass areas around steps, porches, carports, garages, driveways, etc. Use two cups (in five gallons of water) of 50 percent wettable powder Sevin.

Millipedes live in grassy areas close to houses and garages. Every year, in fall and spring, they migrate to buildings for some reason. We know that they are attracted to them. They start about an inch long, pish-black in color, and have cylindrical bodies. Their bodies are composed of segments, and each segment has two legs. That's why they are called millipedes. They look like they have a thousand legs.

About their only disadvantage is (1) they look terrible and (2) they come in houses, etc., in quantity. Warm weather spells send them in. Cold snaps stop the migration. Then, another warm spell, and they're at it again. But once inside they won't bite or sting, or chew on furniture or fabrics. They just want to be left alone. When touched, they curl up into a ball.

UK Ag College Schedules Farm Tax Workshop

The Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture will sponsor a series of tax school workshops for practitioners, consultants, and others who prepare tax returns for farmers. Classes will be conducted during November and December.

Representatives of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, the State Department of Revenue, and the Social Security Administration will provide the instruction.

Schools have been scheduled at the following locations: November 17-18, Holiday Inn, Somerset; November 20-21, Community College, Elizabethtown; December 10-11, Holiday Inn, Owensboro; December 16-17, Farm Bureau Building Hopkinsville; December 18-19, Courthouse, Paducah.

Classes will begin at 9:00 a.m. and continue to 4:00 p.m.

Emphasis will be placed on the preparation of farm returns; however, some general information relative to tax problems will also be discussed.

Areas of instruction will cover tax law, reporting tax returns; farm business problems; changes and differences in filing Kentucky income tax returns; reporting income for Social Security purposes; records required for proper tax reporting, and general discussion on various tax problems.

No tuition fees are charged for the tax workshop.

Persons desiring to attend school contact: Stephen Q. Allen, Extension Specialist in Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Experiment Station, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky.

Fertilizer-Insecticide Mixtures for Tobacco

In May of this year, manufacturers of fertilizer-insecticide mixtures were advised that such mixtures would not be accepted in 1970 for use on tobacco.

This action was taken because: (1) The chlorinated hydrocarbon insecticides are not recommended for use as a soil treatment in tobacco production. (2) Mixtures (fertilizer-insecticide) were being used when a soil insecticide was not needed. The practice may result in excessive residues. (3) The materials were being applied as fertilizer with little or no regard for the proper use of the insecticide. Diazinon, Di-syston and Moacap are recommended for use in controlling soil insects, but not for mixing with fertilizers.

The Kentucky Economic Poisons Law requires that all insecticides be registered before they are sold in this state. Fertilizer-insecticide mixtures under this law, and before they can be sold, they must be registered as pesticides.

For complete recommendations of insecticides to use on tobacco, ask your County Extension Agent for a copy of the University of Kentucky Extension Service leaflet, Misc. 270F. Distributors of pesticides should caution all purchasers to read every label and follow the directions carefully.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN KENTUCKY

In 1968 conservation officers reached a new high in arrests for fish and game law violations. During that 12 month period, 5,210 persons were cited for violations as pertain to the conservation of game and fish. This year the total will, in all probability, be higher. So far, month by month, the arrest totals have exceeded the corresponding month of the year before and unless the number apprehended in November and December falls far below the totals of last year, there'll be a new arrest record by the end of 1969.

Last year the average arrested per county was slightly over 43 for the year. Of course, that is merely an average and to be sure some counties had far fewer than that number while others went far above the mark. This indicates one thing — in some counties the thinking is that to violate is all right, while in others the general theme is to abide by the law and perpetuate the game supply. The above statement cannot be applied unequivocally. It may be that a reason for more violations in a given area is that there is more game in that section; or it may be that in an area where there are relatively no violations reported, the officer is unable, for some reason, to apprehend the violator. It is most difficult to understand why some law violators, are on the increase. Some officers say it's because there is more game to hunt; others believe it is because of the general attitude of the people toward lawlessness in all phases, and thirdly, they believe more people are hungry and are unable to pay the high prices that meat costs across the grocery counter.

Game belongs to everyone but it must be taken in numbers and in a manner as described by fish and wild life agencies which are, after all, guardians of the game. Game laws are made not to penalize individuals but to protect them so that game may be available in years to come. Were there no laws protecting game, it's a pretty sure thing that it soon would be eliminated and anyone who violates a law designed to protect game and the sportsman as well is actually violating against himself and against future generations. He is taking game that does not belong to him, and therefore, is relegated to the status of a thief. He is diminishing a game that should be protected, not for protection sake as such, but for perpetuation purposes.

Bag and possession limits are served at after much study by fish and game biologists. They are literally with the birds and animals and fishes and do know more about the population and population trends than any other persons or groups. Each year long study dictates the length of the seasons, the number of animals that may be harvested per day and the conditions under which those animals are to be taken. This is done with an evaluation of the effects of a hunting season on future populations of the species involved.

Most people can remember the deer population of Kentucky was practically nil. There is now a good herd, but it must be protected else it will disappear even as it has done before. This year biologists are of the opinion that the herd is in shape. They are of the opinion that in many areas more deer may be carried on given tracts of land. For that reason they have decreed a bucks only season which is designed to allow hunters to harvest a good number of deer but still will not eliminate the does which are the basis, of course, for the production of deer for the future. So when a hunter kills a doe this hunting season, he has affected the future production of deer in this state. If there is widespread harvesting of does, then the herd in the future must suffer. The legal hunters are expected to take only so many deer and leave a brood stock for next year. If night hunters steal deer by spotlighting, they can upset the future of the deer herd.

Law violators are designed to do no one much good. To be sure, a violator may take more than his share this year, but next year he as well as the legal hunter will suffer from a decrease in the species affected. Hunting in this modern day is not designed to put meat on the table as it was in pioneer days. It is meant today for a most pleasing pastime for a great number of outdoorsmen and the person who treats it otherwise is helping to destroy the future of his sport. It's so easy to have an enjoyable day in the field, harvesting the limit of a particular species. To take more than that limit is being unfair to yourself and to those who are to follow you.

"CVDD BOARD"

Opportunity (OEO). CVDD Director, Gailiff Craig said the application listed two main purposes for the program. To strengthen the Kentucky Welfare Mountain Rights organization and to assist county community action councils and start new ones in counties like Rockcastle where none exist.

Glen Combs of Clay County, the only board member opposing the rejection, asked immediately after the vote if the only reason the board turned down the program was because it was "controversial" around the state.

Directors voiced several objections to the program. They contended the $12,000 budgeted for a director who would have only part-time duties was excessive.

Others maintained the board should not approve a program that is not consistent with the boundaries of the district. Some voiced outright opposition to the AV Program.

CVDD President Chester H. Wolfe, of Middleboro, said the AV's could submit another application with more details. Combs and another director complained the board voted down the program without knowing enough about it.

Other directors said representatives of the organization should have been there to answer questions. Craig, however, admitted the AV's were not informed the CVDD meeting was moved up a day.

Every day, says the March of Dimes, 700 babies are born with defects in the United States.

Rockcastle County High School is represented in this formation of high school bands performing in the recent Band Day concert at Eastern Kentucky University. Following a parade through downtown Richmond, the more than 50 bands played in Eastern's new stadium at the halftime of the Eastern-Tennessee Tech football game. Almost 5,000 high school musicians, band leaders, counselors and chaperones came to Eastern for the University's ninth annual Band Day.

Population Of Rabbits In Summer Was Higher

If summer observations may be taken as a criteria then there will be more rabbits available when the season opens on November 20. Checks made by farmers, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources field men and by about 1,000 mail carriers indicate that there were, during the late summer months, more rabbits than had been observed in past years. If they make it to the opening of the season, then this should be one of the better rabbit hunting years. However, for some reason, earlier indications of rabbit populations have not been 100 per cent correct in indicating the availability during the hunting season. The reason for this is not known but scarcity of food may have been a big factor. The bluegrass section, which several years ago was a hotbed for rabbit production, may be back to normal this year. Indications are that one of the shapeliest increases in young rabbits occurs in this central Kentucky area. Biologists have said that where there is food and cover suitable for rabbits the cottontail populations will continue about static regardless of hunting pressure. Apparently, food and cover were plentiful in the bluegrass section during the past summer. The rabbit is the second most hunted animal in Kentucky, ranking just back of the squirrel. It is relatively easy to harvest, although a fast running cottontail is by no means an easy target. The early winter months, which are supposed to be the better-marksmen, often are unable to hit rabbits. But rabbit hunting has been made easier in the past several years with the increased use of the beagle hound. This amicable little dog has a way of trailing the rabbit, moving it along at a slow gait, until it is forced back to the vicinity of the hunter, who is stationed where the rabbit was originally jumped. When the rabbit returns it is comparatively simple to harvest him in this manner. The bag and possession limits are unchanged from last year, with six permitted per day or 12 after two or more days of hunting. Of course, a hunter is required to have a hunting license unless he is a resident hunting on his own land or unless he is a resident tenant living on the land on which he is hunting. "CAPITOL DIGEST" (Cont. From Pg. 6) spoke, Governor Nunn left for a brief, out-of-the-state rest at an undisclosed place. In announcing this, the governor's office said he had just ended "an unusually rigorous eight-week period" during which he made more than 50 speeches in some 25 counties and averaged 16 hours daily in official activities.

UNITY LEADER
At the request of entertainment star Bob Hope, who headed the movement, Governor Nunn served as a co-chairman of the Week of National Unity Committee. Hope, in urging Nunn to become a co-chairman, said the committee was asking "the millions of Americans of all ages, who make up the silent majority" to participate in activities across the country Nov. 9-16.

Fire completely destroyed a barn in Brodhead, belonging to C. B. Russell, shortly after midnight Monday night. The fire was discovered about 12:15 a.m. by Billy Bussell, who's home the barn is located near. According to Mr. Bussell, the barn was already enveloped in flames when discovered.

All contents of the approximately, 60 x 40 foot, barn were lost despite the efforts of the Brodhead Volunteer Fire Department who fought the blaze until Tuesday morning.

Lost in the fire were a mare, five head of cattle, a tractor outfit, a 1964 Ford pickup truck loaded with about 1000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Henry Crawford, and 17 acre of tobacco hanging in the

CVDD Board Rejects

AV's Application

The Cumberland Valley Development District Board of Directors at their last meeting turned down a controversial Appalachian Volunteer Program for seven counties in the district (including Rockcastle County).

The board also, in anticipation of next month's annual meeting, tightened board control by passing several amendments to the by-laws.

The rejection of the application by the Appalachian Volunteers, Inc. for an AV program in seven of the eight counties in the district and Madison County came on a voice vote.

All federal community action programs must be approved by the CVDD directors before state and federal approval is given.

Red Devils Open Season Nov. 21

The Mt. Vernon Red Devils open their 1969-70 basketball season Saturday night, November 21 at Mt. Vernon when they meet a strong Oneida team of the Ninth District.

Coach Jack Lawwell said, "The Red Devils have been working hard to get ready for their opening game but the going has been tough due to injuries to two starters." David McCauley, a junior who was to be a starter, has had knee surgery and will not be ready for action until December. Stanley Burton, another slated starter, is suffering from an ankle injury received in football and is on the doubtful list for Saturday night's game.

The Devils have only one returning letterman, Dale Coffey. The other four members of last year's team, all who graduated, were all-district players. However Coach Lawwell will be helped by the fact that his starting five will be juniors. They are, Rudy Burdette, George Powell, Wesley Williams, all forwards, Tommy Coffey and Jeffrey Kendrick, centers, and Dale Coffey, James Mullins, and Stanley Burton, at guards.

BY: Pefino M. Anderkin
I Hate Winter! There are no "and, ifs, or buts," about it, I simply, literally hate the coldness, bleakness, and inconvenience which a capricious Nature can heap upon a few months. And, you can't believe how much of a relief it is to have a newspaper column in which to pour out your feelings about the weather. It doesn't change it at all, but it does help your mental attitude a little to be able to put your feelings down on paper.
Now, there is another side to Winter which I cannot ignore; because, it isn't the easiest thing in the world to go through about four months with only one idea about the weather. There are the warm toasty evenings with your hoesheoes on and your family there with you sipping hot chocolate with marshmallows in it that do help to compensate a little for the horrible thoughts you have when you must brave the elements; there is the pleasure of watching your children enjoy the sleigh riding and snow ball fights that are an inevitable part of childhood, and there is the special gladness you feel when you can safely start your countdown toward Spring.

I have been accused of getting my ill-temper, conceited winter, from age. Maybe, just maybe. But, I really can't recall even as a child especially liking winter and all of its little side effects. Oh, the snow-covers weren't bad especially if you could induce someone else (usually your mother or father) to fix them for you and the sleigh riding wasn't too much of a burden if you happened to be raised in a family with a lot of older brothers and sisters to pull you around so that you did not have to overly exert yourself. But to like winter just because, there are no reasons, and a liking which I never expect to achieve or to attempt to achieve.

All-right, so why don't I go to Florida, or other sunny spots South? I would, bid I do love Spring, Summer, and Fall and cannot imagine a climate where there

An Editorial

Did you realize that there has been, over the last five years, $251,000,000 poured into Kentucky by the Federal Government's Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO)? Rockcastle County has only benefited under this program, as far as we can find out, by its now defunct Head Start program.

Isn't this just a little bit ridiculous? This $251,000,000 was not even spread out over the entire 120 counties in Kentucky but over only a little over half of the counties. And, the results from this "windfall" is so minute that the State OEO office has to send a representative around to the counties asking county officials and leaders what benefit the county has received from this program.

Can you imagine what could have been accomplished if the money could have been spent as far as building an industrial park and obtaining a steady payroll for the poor? I constantly am being told that "education" of the poor must take place that their "mental attitudes" concerning poverty must be changed before industry can be introduced into an area. As far as I can see, nothing would "educate" them quicker or change their "mental attitudes" more permanently than being given the chance of earning a living wage in their home county and being given the hope that their children might find life a little easier and more secure than they did.

I am not suggesting that I have any bright, quick answers to the problems of the poor. I have no college degree that majors in sociology or psychology as do those who are steering the poverty programs. But, I do feel that there must eventually be an end to the "planning," and a beginning of "action." Talk is cheap (even mine, darn it), but if you provide jobs for the poor no one can convince me that the vast majority would not be willing to care for their own needs in preference to waiting in line for welfare checks, or aid to dependent children checks, or the various and sundry other government handouts now being distributed.

Besides, forgetting the poor, how many middle-income people has Rockcastle County lost over the last 10, 15, or 20 years? In Ohio, Indiana, Lexington, Michigan, there are jobs and a decent life for their families is available. If you don't know, check your 1950 census figures against the 1960 figure. Or, you could just drop by our office and see the hundreds of papers we mail out each week to natives who have been forced to leave home because all the welfare money was to earn their and their families own way in life.

Maybe it's the Federal Government who needs to be educated instead of the poor. Several years ago, a few months after the birth of my first child, I picked up a brochure from the State Welfare Office in Lexington (where I had gone to apply for a job) which was directed to mothers receiving checks for Aid to Dependent Children. It contained a statement to the effect that the mothers were urged not to try to work and earn their living but to stay at home and provide a "homelike atmosphere" for their children. This is fine and good, but which is more important that a child be provided with a "homelike atmosphere" (an up where which is not, by the way, dependent upon whether a mother works or not) with welfare checks or that they grow up with pride in their home and their family because they have made their own way in life on their own mettle and not on the "dole."

There is an oft-used argument against mothers with dependent children working and that is $9.00M by the time they pay a babysitter qualified to care for their children they cannot make enough to adequately support them. Would the idea of a government subsidized day nursery be too far out of line as an answer to this problem? We are not advocating a vast cut-off of funds to welfare recipients but there has to be a line drawn at some point and what better point than when the government has $251,000,000 to throw away fighting poverty in Kentucky.

What has happened to the old independence that used to be a man's lifeline to dignity, self-respect, and manhood. Has it been so corroded by government welfare that it is now easier to let the government take care of you than to fight your way through life on your own? Are you not, more each day, heading toward a socialist government with our guaranteed income proposals for the poor and our government hand-outs for mothers who don't mind raising their welfare checks by adding another dependent child to the rolls every so often?

But, where do you draw the line. No one wants to see a child hungry or in need of decent clothing and shelter. No one wants to see an old person without proper food or medicines. No one wants a crippled or retarded person deprived of the necessities of life. But there has to be a line drawn. Poverty breeds poverty and no one is more aware of it than the person raised in poverty. At least they are aware of it until it either becomes a way of life with them or they manage to find a little backbone of their own and break the cycle.

We don't profess to know the answers, any more than the experts in the poverty program seem to. But there has to be a better way or we fear a day when instead of America being a "melting pot" for all nations and cultures it will only be a place with a common "pot" that everyone draws equally from regardless of their ambition, intelligence, or independence.

is little or no change. And, I must admit, the thoughts of a sunny warm Christmas do not exactly fill me with Christmas spirit. Besides, I also face up to the fact that in a perpetually sunny climate, there would be less reason to grieve for four long months about the weather to anyone I can buttonhole long enough to expound on the subject.

I really must quit, it's almost time to go home. You know it takes a while to put on my extra sweater, the heavy, uncomfortable winter coat, my overboes, gloves, and wool scarf.

The March of Dimes estimates that 15 million Americans of all ages have birth defects that affect their daily lives.

Some cars today are so designed that you can hardly tell which is the front and which is the back. There was an early edition of the Oldsmobile, popular back in 1902, that was fashioned in such a manner that at a glance one could hardly determine in which direction it was going, because of the seating of its passengers. It was known as the French "dos-a-dos," which meant back-to-back. The passengers actually sat back-to-back, and those in the rear seat saw mostly where they had been more so than where they were going.

You will prefer the modern mobile home, without a glance backward, after you have seen the many models on display at JASPER & JASPER MOBILE HOMES, INC. Stop in and let us show you the advantages of mobile home living.

Prayer Week Breakfast Held At White House

On the first day of National Prayer Week, which was held late in October, a group of about thirty Congressmen and I were invited to the White House for a Prayer Breakfast.

President Nixon presided. Congressman Del Clawson of California gave the invocation. Senator Bennett of Utah, read Scripture. The Reverend Billy Graham spoke.

The topic of Rev. Graham's talk was "The Four Crises of Our Country." The first crisis occurred during the winter at Valley Forge.

The Continental Army, commanded by General George Washington, was without sufficient funds, food, and clothing. Thousands were sick. Many died. Bloodstained footprints were left in the snow by the poorly shod soldiers.

Washington met with his officers and men in prayer. The influence of the prayer strengthened the spirit of the men; they became infinitely stronger in their determination to win freedom from Great Britain;

The second crisis occurred when the Constitutional Convention seemed deadlocked. Benjamin Franklin asked for prayer. The Constitution was promptly approved and submitted to the states for ratification.

The third crisis occurred during the Civil War when it seemed our country would be torn asunder. President Lincoln called for prayers by all citizens and soon the Union was preserved.

Billy Graham says now our country is faced by its fourth great crisis and he asked all of us to humbly pray for unity of purpose and for peace.

It behooves all of us to pray earnestly that all of us be unified by the spirit of the Supreme Power, and that peace be brought again to the world.

Congressman Corrier is shown here conferring with President Nixon on one of his two visits to the White House during October. On this occasion Congressman Corrier was brought in to discuss Vietnam, inflation, military spending, and various other problems which affect our country today.

Consumer Comments

The impressive looking document with a fancy border reads "25 Year Guarantee." A lady in southern Kentucky bought a sewing machine because she thought that if the machine was guaranteed for this length of time it must be a good product.

Although the guarantee appeared very important, closer inspection revealed that it was guaranteed by the dealer and the manufacturer of the machine would not be responsible. Furthermore, it covered only parts and not service. The difficulty with this type of guarantee is obvious: Unless the dealer is reputable and well established in the community he might not be around 25 years from now to honor the guarantee. Therefore, although the document looks impressive it may not in practice be worth the paper it is written on.

When you purchase an item that has a guarantee or warranty, read it carefully before you make the purchase. If the salesman has told you something that does not appear in the guarantee, ask that it be included before you make the purchase. A wise purchaser is a cautious purchaser.

Citizens having a complaint involving a consumer matter are invited to contact my assistant, Robert V. Bullock, Director, Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, Frankfort, 40601, or phone 564-3235, Area Code 502.

CHECK SIGHT

AS WELL AS SIGHTS, HUNTERS ARE ADVISED

How many hunting accidents will there be in our state this year? How many fatalities? The Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness reminds us once again that deficient eyesight plays a leading role in many hunting accidents.

"The expression 'accidents will happen' is a fatalistic cliché with which we're all familiar," says Mr. Peyton Hoge, III, the Society's president. "But the fact is that many accidents are preventable — with the simplest precautions."

"The hunter who checks out his rifle with loving care must be convinced that a vision test before taking to the woods is just as important. Not only for his own safety, but that of his fellow hunters and others who may be in the hunting area."

In a recent check of the deer season accidents reports from one state popular with local and out-of-state hunters, the Society found that about half of that state's 63 accidents (7 fatalities) were caused by some "mistake" on the part of the hunter concerning his target.

The Kentucky Society urges a vision test requirement for all hunters to get their licenses. In the meantime, until such a test is required, the Society advises all hunters to voluntarily have their eyes checked before they go hunting this year.

"Astigmatism, reduced field of vision, farsightedness, nearsightedness and color blindness are all defects which may adversely affect a hunter's target perception," says Hoge.

An excellent safety program for prospective hunters is the Hunter Safety Program, conducted by the National Rifle Association in cooperation with state conservation or natural resources departments. The Association reports that: "Hunting deaths in states which have conducted hunter safety training courses have dropped between 50 and 70 percent." It is estimated that over half the states participate in the program.

Mr. Hoge adds two other eye safety precautions for hunters: "Hunters who wear glasses are urged to get impact-resistant safety lenses, available in any prescription from their eye specialist. And remember that sunglasses can cause loss of visibility and increase the difficulty in distinguishing between colors. Sunglasses should always be removed before driving home at dusk."

168,000 Widows Due For Bigger Checks

Bigger checks for approximately 168,000 widows are due in January. Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, announced today.

Signed by the President on October 27, 1969, a new law (PL 91-96) authorizes "increases" for most widows of servicemen and veterans who are eligible for dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC).

The new legislation does not affect payments to survivors receiving compensation under laws that preceded the DIC program. New DIC rates provide $167 monthly for the widow of the lowest ranking enlisted man compared to a minimum of $134 at present. Similar increases are provided for eligible widows of other enlisted men and officers.

Effective December 1, the increase will show up first in checks received in January. This increase is automatic and no application is needed.

Widows with minor children will get an extra $20 per month per child under the legislation. With few exceptions, they get nothing extra now. Forms for making application for children's allowances will be mailed to all widows automatically. Johnson said, DIC payments have been tied to military pay through a complex formula. In raising DIC rates, Congress discarded the complex formula and provided a table of payments based on pay grade.

DIC recipients who are patients in nursing homes, or who are helpless or blind to the point that they need regular aid and attendance of another person, may receive an extra $50 per

Kentucky's First Thanksgiving-1844

"The cry of want has not been heard in our happy Commonwealth since the first Thanksgiving in Kentucky's 15th Governor Robert Perkins Letcher.

This was part of Kentucky's first proclamation which established September 26, 1844, as a day of prayer, praise and thanksgiving.

The Commonwealth of Kentucky was 52 years old and this was one of Letcher's last official acts before he left office. Letcher, who was involved in the political campaign of his friend Henry Clay, who was seeking a third attempt at the presidency.

Earlier in our history, President George Washington issued the first national Proclamation for Thanksgiving. He set aside Thursday, November 26, 1789 as a day the newly-formed republic would give thanks for the country's new Constitution.

It was not until after Abraham Lincoln took the oath of office it became an annual holiday. Lincoln's proclamation of October 3, 1863 was issued at the Civil War.

Kentucky's official proclamation was 19 years prior to the national holiday established by President Lincoln. The proclamation issued in Frankfort on August 26, 1844 read as follows:

"In obedience to a proper and becoming sense of gratitude due from a favored people to the Almighty Ruler of the Universe, I do hereby designate and appoint Thursday, the 26th day of September next, which I exhort the people of this Commonwealth to set apart, observe, and keep holy as a day of Prayer, Praise and Thanksgiving to the great Dispenser of all good, for the rich and abundant blessings of the past and present year, which we as a people have received so graciously permitted to enjoy.

"This proclamation is dictated by high considerations of public duty, and is believed to be in accordance with the wishes of a large portion of the community. I therefore feel assured it will meet with universal acquiescence.

"As a people we have every reason to be thankful to the Great Author of all good for the continued smiles of his Providence, which we daily and hourly receive.

"We have been exempt from those ravages of malignant disease which often frightfully afflict a people. "War has been kept from our borders, and peace has reigned throughout our land.

"The cry of want has not been heard in our happy country. "The reasons have been propitious and the harvest abundant.

"Our religious and political privileges have been enjoyed unimpaired. "The blessings which have been bestowed upon us by the kindness of a Merciful Providence to which we are indebted, we should unitedly raise our hearts and voice in humble but earnest adoration to the Great Dispenser of all blessings, thereby presenting to the world the sublime moral spectacle of a entire population of a great Christian state abstaining from all secular employments on the same day, and devoting themselves wholly to the service of Thanksgiving, rejoicing at the same time that 'righteousness exalteth a nation.'

Letcher was born in Virginia, emigrated to Kentucky in 1800, living in Garrard and Mercer counties. He served as Governor from 1840 to 1844. Letcher County entered the Commonwealth during his term of office and consequently was named after him.

In 1849 President Zachary Taylor appointed Letcher minister to Mexico, an appointment he served until 1852.

Letcher died at the age of 73 in 1861 and is buried overlooking the Kentucky River in the Frankfort Cemetery.

SCENE OF BEAUTY—One of the few pleasant side effects of a snow such as we had last Friday morning is the beautiful scenes to be found in the county. This photo, made along Renfro Creek, was one that we found particularly appealing early Friday morning. The school system was forced to close schools on Friday because of the weather. However, Wednesday's snow wasn't so bad as late Wednesday afternoon only a light skiff remained of the snow which fell Tuesday night. Forecasts of things to come? Maybe, but by November 18 there have already been two snows you can't just not call that might happen this winter.

month's plentiful foods. "Turkey Tetrazzini" is a tasty way to use the leftovers from your Thanksgiving turkey or from the turkey you serve at other meals.

- Turkey Tetrazzini
- 2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- or 1/4 cup turkey fat
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup shredded cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 4 oz. can mushrooms, stems & pieces
- 7 oz. package spaghetti, cooked and drained

Melt butter in saucepan. Sauté onion in butter until tender and then blend in flour and salt. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, over low heat until thick and creamy. Add the pimiento, 1/2 cup of the cheese and the mushrooms and mushroom liquid to the cream sauce. Place a layer of spaghetti in a well-greased 2-quart casserole. Cover with a layer of turkey and a layer of sauce. Repeat layers, finishing with a layer of spaghetti. Sprinkle with the remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Cover and bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. (For a quicker recipe, substitute 1 can mushroom soup and 1/2 cup milk for the sauce (omit turkey and mushrooms from the sauce.) Add finely chopped onion and pimiento to the soup and follow the above directions for combining and baking.

Remember, too, that the turkey you buy already stuffed should never be thawed before it is cooked. The best way to judge cooking time is to use a meat thermometer. When cooking an unstuffed turkey, use the thermometer after the bird has thawed in the oven. In a whole turkey, put the thermometer in the thigh or breast.

Here's a suggestion for using turkey, one of this year's best buys.

teers that he and University of Louisville President Woodrow M. Strickler had been unable to reach agreement in several essential areas necessary to recommending a union to the 1970 General Assembly.

This prompted UK trustees to say UK would have no recommendation to make to the State Council of Public Higher Education, and educational observers to predict U of L will enter the state system as an independent university with its own governing board.

Capitol Digest

Edited By: Thomson McConnell

Gov. Louder's plans applying he would rather be federal judge than U.S. Senator.

That's the conclusion reporters drew after an informal news conference with him this week.

The governor said that at the moment he has "no plans and no expectations" of running for the Senate in 1972 after his term as governor expires in 1971.

Asked if he were interested in the judiciary, the governor answered: "I think any lawyer would be interested in a federal judgeship... I must say that I have the deepest concern for the judicial branch of government."

"I feel that here (the judiciary) is one of the most important and one of the most significant branches of government. Here is the place of last resort."

VETERANS ASSURED Governor Nunn is sending Christmas messages to Kentuckians serving in Vietnam that "the overwhelming majority of their fellow Americans stand by them in their quest for peace."

"He revealed this to a Veterans Day crowd of several hundred, mostly state employees, who assembled on the south side of the State Capitol to hear him and other speakers, including Maj. Roger H.C. Donlon, an Army Medal of Honor winner from Saugerties, N.Y.

Miniature flags were waved and signs carried by the crowd said such things as "Never A Day" and "Draft Card Burners, Sign Up and Serve."

Donlon declared American freedom was made possible through the sacrifice of 27 million armed-force veterans, one "million of whom gave their lives in battle."

MERGER UNLIKELY Plans for a merger now of the University of Kentucky and the University of Louisville apparently have gone awry.

UK President Otis A. Singletary reported to trustees in general, and the high price of meat.

High-price of meat. Conservation officers attribute a rise in game and fish law violations throughout Kentucky to a large supply of animals, a growing disregard for the law in general, and the high price of meat.

The State Fish and Wildlife Resources Department reported that while conservation officers made record number of 5,210 arrests last year, they expect the number to be greater for 1969.

Boys and girls at the village are trained under a $193,000 federal grant which expires Dec. 17. The usefulness of the bonding program is said to depend in large measure on renewal of the grant.

SCHOOL AND BUSINESS LEADERS of Louisville, and Jefferson County applied to State Board of Education for more funds for a greater vocational education program.

Henry V. Heuser of the Louisville Chamber of Commerce said that from 1965 to 1968 the city and county received only 34 per cent of the money spent by the state for vocational training, although they had 30 per cent of the jobs and 25 per cent of the population.

Louisville School Supt. Newman Walker attributed the high dropout rate of 2,000 students a year in the city system and 1,000 in the county system to the lack of relevant subjects for students not going to college. He maintained many could be kept in school by more opportunities for job training.

FOR TB HOSPITALS The Kentucky Thoracic Society, an organization of 109 physicians, recommended at a two-day meeting in Berea that the state's six tuberculosis hospitals be kept open. A spokesman said "we feel if the tuberculosis problem is tackled directly, there are enough TB cases in the state to fill these empty beds."

The society's reaction was to proposals in June that the state phase out its system of TB hospitals within two years. The report said the hospitals averaged only 55 per cent occupancy.

UP $5 MILLION With tobacco warehouses getting ready for busy sales which start Nov. 24, the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has estimated Kentucky and Indiana tobacco farmers will make about $5 million more this year than last because of a greater yielding crop.

Figures are based on whether the 1969 crop price averages as much as last year's record 74 cents a pound. Market experts are reported to believe it will bring at least that.
