'Pretty Boy' was found abandoned by his mother at the Cumberland State Park. Mrs. Miller became the doctor's foster mother. 'Pretty Boy' was too big for his living room now though, and Mrs. Miller turned him over to the Fish and Wildlife Game Farm at Frankfort. (Ronnie Manns Photo)

Notice

The Mt. Vernon Flower Shop and the Sparks Flower Shop have found it necessary to take firmer measures in their collection policies. In the past, we have depended on the customer's good faith to come in and pay their accounts. Many have not done this and it is hard to pay our bills when others do not pay us.

Effective December 1, 1970 our new policies will be as follows: The first statement is sent, an additional charge of 50¢ per statement will be added to your account, if account is not paid within thirty days.

A list of ninety-day-old accounts will be furnished to each florist and we will only accept your order when the old account is paid, regardless of which florist it is owed to.

We are truly sorry to take measures such as these but those who owe delinquent accounts have forced us to it.

ENGLISH DAISIES BLOOM EARLY

A favorite of gardeners for hundreds of years has been the English Daisy. This flower blooms early in the Spring and continues to produce glorious flowers in profusion. In fact, these daisies will bloom even longer in moderate to cool climates.

Common colors in English Daisies include white, yellow, blue, pink, and blood red. These flowers are terrific when grown in great masses of color. Of course, they are often planted to form garden borders, and they are just as purposeful well. There are large and small varieties in the English Daisy, but the larger bloom seems to be the most popular.

Eloise, our florist, will accept any occasion. Trust us to fill your florist orders with care. Only arrangements which are "just right" are allowed to leave our shop, and as close as your telephone.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By: BILLY DOWELL

The biggest swindle the world has ever seen is taking place in front of your eyes every day of every week. It is a national disgrace!

When a person loses money in a swindle, the loser learns a lesson. The loser at least has a second chance to make sure he is not swindled again. But suppose you don't have a second chance? Suppose you are swindled out of your right to live? Sounds like a strange swindle? Not at all....

Every day, human beings are swindled out of a right to live. An asphatic bubble shrugs its shoulders, even while officials predict with mathematical accuracy the number of unsuspecting victims who will be swindled. The swindled victims wind up, as mere statistics to be compared with still later statistics as the count in traffic fatalities continues.

Isn't it about time each one of us asked ourselves these three simple questions? Do I want to be swindled out of my right to live? What can I do to avoid it? What can I do to make sure I don't swindle someone else out of a right to live? These are simple questions. There are sensible answers. Putting the answers to work is the only way to diminish the disgrace.

Food Stamps Now Delivered To Door

Food stamps by mail will be available next month to those Kentuckians now having difficulty getting to issuance offices.

Commissioner of Economic Security Merritt S. Dettz Jr. said today that a new procedure process effective Nov. 1 will allow participants to receive their coupons at home if they desire.

"This innovation will provide greater service to those families who, for one reason or another, have trouble procuring their food stamps each month," Dettz explained.

"Mail issuance will be of particular benefit to the aged or infirm and those with transportation and child care problems," he added.

"Kentucky now has 80,000 families participating in the food stamp program, administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security and the U.S. Department of Agriculture."

Dettz said the mail issuance plan has been under consideration for more than a year. "We have been testing it in Clay County since June and we are sufficiently satisfied with the results to implement it on a statewide basis."

Dettz said mail issuance will not eliminate the issuance offices in 70 counties now participating in the program.

"Clients merely have the choice now of receiving their stamps at home or going to the distribution centers," he said.

Dettz pointed out mail issuance would hopefully cut down on the long lines at the issuance offices, relieving pressure on both clients and staff, particularly at the first of each month when distribution is at its peak.

Dettz explained the mechanics of the mail process: "Each month the client simply sends us a postal money order or any form of guaranteed payment and receives his food stamps through the mail."

He said a letter of explanation will be included in next month's mail-out to participants as well as a form to be filled in requesting the service.

Dettz said the mail service will not require any additional staff.

BEMENT SPEAKS ON DRUG ABUSE

"No school—large or small, urban or rural—is completely immune to the horrors of drug abuse," J. T. Bement, School Boards Association Executive Director, said today.

Bement warned Central Kentucky school officials meeting at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond on Oct. 28.

"The only completely effective antidote to illegal drug use is prevention," Bement said, and he urged local school boards to join with other community groups in establishing or expanding drug abuse education programs.

Bement spoke before more than 100 school board members and administrators from the 22 school districts in the Central Kentucky Region of the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA).

KSBA State President F.C. Bryan, a member of the Mt. Sterling school board, reviewed other challenges facing Kentucky's local boards of education—including teacher strikes, court cases, financial problems and student dissent—and outlined steps the statewide association is planning to assist local boards in those areas.

A panel composed of Regional Chairman Dr. J.E. Johnson, chairman of the Bourbon County Board of Education; Regional Secretary Milton Traylor, Superintendent of Bourbon County Schools; KSBA Director of Field Services J.T. Clifton; Executive Director Bement and President Bryan discussed the controversial subjects of public funds for nonpublic schools, accountability, performance contracting, and the voucher system.

The concept of accountability, the panel noted, illustrates the switch in emphasis from what should be accomplished FOR the public schools (higher salaries, smaller classes, better buildings, etc.) to what should be accomplished BY the schools—how well students are achieving.

The panel adopted a wait-and-see attitude toward performance contracting, an experimentation program. In which school boards contract with private educational firms to instruct students in one or more subjects, with the firms being paid on the basis of the pupils' progress. Pilot performance contracting programs are operating in a few school districts across the state, but none have been started in Kentucky.

The panel unanimously condemned both state appropriations to nonpublic schools and the controversial "voucher system," under which parents would receive vouchers worth a certain amount of money from public funds. The parents could then choose any school—public or private—to send their children to, and that school would cash the vouchers to obtain operating funds.

Because of the problems the voucher system would present in planning, staffing, administering and financing public schools, one panel member predicted "it could cause the destruction of our public school system as we know it today."

KSBA Director of Field Services J.T. Clifton reviewed the state association's legislative program, noting that most of the problems facing local school boards could be solved only through the enactment of appropriate state legislation.

Bourbon County's Dr. J.E. Johnson was unanimously re-elected chairman of KSBA's Central Kentucky Region for 1971-72. Dr. Johnson, a physician with International Business machines in Lexington, will retain his post on the state association's board of directors.

Frankfort attorney Herbert D. Liebman, chairman of the Franklin County Board of Education, was elected vice chairman of the region, and Bourbon County Supt. Milton

by perlina m. anderkin

It wasn't bad enough that yesterday was Election Day and my choice of candidates were defeated, as they always seem to be, but to wake up this morning to a snow covering the ground really took the cake, after all this is only November 4. There's no use fussing about it but this is a particularly depressing time of year when you stop to realize that there will probably be at least five hard months of winter before we can look forward to things budding out...

Don't you get just a little tired of the way the television networks handle the election coverage lately? I do, nothing irritates me more than to see a state with one percent of the vote counted and hear the confident voice of a newscaster informing me that the computer has already projected the winner. I mean, really, it takes all the fun out of an election, particularly if your candidate is the one the stupid computer has projected will lose. On well, I suppose it's too much to ask that, in our mechanized and computerized world of today, someone not come up with a machine capable of reading the minds of 99% of the voters in any given state...

But, no more election talk, I don't know about you but I for one am heartily tired of the word, instead, let's talk about how quickly time passes as I, for one, am more aware of every day. You know, I have gone along for years, since getting out of school, considering myself one of the younger generation. Marriage and children had little effect on this line of thinking since I did not, in my rush at life, stop to consider the implications of being married for ten years. However, it was forcefully brought home to me recently when I, modestly of course, mentioned to a friend that in my thirteen years of owning a driver's license I had never gotten any points for traffic violations. Then it struck me, Thirteen years! Why that's some, wars are fought, civilizations are toppled, people grow old and die

In the foreground is Mrs. Dolores Phelps, an employee of the bank.

Burdette-Burdine Win School Board Election

Dr. Rudolph Burdette, local veterinarian, and Billy Burdine of Livingston won election Tuesday to the Rockcastle County Board of Education. Wayne Van Hook, running against Dr. Burdette as an opposition candidate to the present administration, pointed out frequently during his campaign that politics should be taken out of the school system. However, he was handed a stunning defeat when the school administration and both county political machines combined to elect Dr. Burdette.

Murphy Martin, Jr., who lost four years ago by only 15 votes to Mrs. Vashli Mullins, the administration candidate, also fell to these organizations in his bid to win the seat vacated by Mrs. Mullins.

In the final tally, Burdette received 569 votes to Van Hook's 336 and Burdine defeated Martin 469 to 281.

Other than the school board elections, which covered six precincts, Tuesday was rather a humdrum day for most voters. In the other eight precincts in the county, voters could only choose between incumbent Representative Tim Lee Carter and his opponent Lee Carter and his opponent Lee Carter.

NOVEMBER PLANTIFULS

Harvest time, holiday time, and a bountiful feast. All fill together. Fill the cornucopia with fruits and flowers of the season and spread the table with items from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Plantiful Foods List. USDA's Consumer and Marketing Services—the agency which conducts the Plantifuls Program lists 14 foods for November—and lists as features rice and turkey. Other plantifuls will include potatoes, onions, fresh apples, canned applesauce, apple juice, fresh cranberries, cranberry sauce, fruit cocktail, walnuts, dry split peas, pork and broiler-ryers.

The November plantifuls could be the basis for your holiday dinner. Why not follow the four-food groups and plan your menu: Apple juice or fruit cocktail, Waldorf salad, roast turkey, baked rice, creamed potatoes with onions and fresh cranberries. An apple sauce cake for dessert, or why not have apple pie?

NEW BEEF CARCASS DATA SERVICE AVAILABLE
The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service has launched a new program which should enable beef cattle producers to increase the quality and quantity of their product.

The new service, called the "Beef Carcass Data Service," provides carcass data to those who may not own the carcass, but were financially interested in the live animal at some point during its development.

Under the new service, livestock owners can purchase a specially-designed USDA ear tag from either breed associations, farmer's organizations, State Department of Agriculture or directly from the Livestock Division, Consumer and Marketing Service of the USDA. The tags, costing 30 cents each, will be sold only in blocks of 20, but they can be used at different times. The livestock owner may want to identify just a few animals in different lots or at different times over a period of several months. Meanwhile, the USDA will maintain a file of the ear tag numbers and the name and address of the tag's purchaser.

The tag will be attached to the animal's ear and, in most cases, the young calves tagged will not be slaughtered for several months. So owners who tag their animals, then sell them to be finished out, should not expect data for the animals until they have reached normal slaughter age. When the tagged animal is slaughtered, the USDA meat inspector will remove the tag.

from the ear and attach it to the carcass. He will also notify the USDA meat grader, who then records data for the chilled carcass. This information is then forwarded to the USDA office of records, and then on to the ear tag owner.

The farmer who bought the tag in the first place will receive specific information on the quality and yield development of the carcass. The information provided on the data sheet will include conformation, maturity, marbling, quality grade, fat thickness to the nearest tenth of an inch, square inches of ribeye, percent of pelvic, kidney and heart fat, and the yield grade to the nearest tenth.

According to Dr. Nelson Gay, beef specialist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, the new service should help Kentucky's beef cattle industry.

"In the past, some feeder calf producers haven't cared how their calves look in the feed lot, nor what their ultimate usefulness as a consumer product might have been and this has gotten the industry into trouble."

"The new service will allow us to measure important traits and eventually to increase quantity and improve the quality of our product," Dr. Gay explained.

He added that if the birthdates of the calves were recorded, producers could "do lifetime studies of the product."

"The new service will allow producers to compare their, on a basis that has not been readily available in the past. And in the long run, if Kentucky farmers use this service, they will improve their product."

The USDA emphasizes the purchase of ear tags does not guarantee that they will be received on each animal tagged. The tags could be lost at some point during the animal's life span. However, no charge is placed for the service unless data is returned to the farmer.

WED PUBLICATION AVAILABLE
A new University of Kentucky College of Agriculture publication entitled "Weeds of the Southern United States," should be instrumental in helping farmers and homeowners alike to identify weeds in their fields and lawns. The full color, 44-page magazine contains pictures and a description of the growing habits of plants found in the Southern United States. Copies of the magazine, costing 50 cents apiece, may be ordered by writing The Bulletin Room, Agricultural Station, Building, University of Kentucky Lexington, Ky. 40466.

CONSERVATION COUNCIL URGES STRIP-MINE CURBS
An increase in strip-mine fees to help to eliminate irresponsible operators was recommended by the Kentucky Conservation Council, meeting at Corbin.
The council, representing 19 state conservation organizations and about 50 individuals, also advised that the State Strip-Mine and Reclamation Division be given some revenue from the general fund to reduce its dependence on coal operators' permit fees.

LEGISLATORS STUDY PORNOGRAPHY ACT
Possibilities for legislation to regulate pornography and some phases of consumer credit are being studied by an Assembly Interim Labor and Industry Subcommittee.

One subject under scrutiny is a store that sells defective merchandise, then goes out of business after transferring customers' payment contracts to a small-loan company.

POLLUTION OFFICIAL BECOMES DEPUTY HEALTH COMMISSIONER
Ralph Pickard, director of the Division of Environmental Health since 1959, has been promoted to deputy State health commissioner.

He will continue to serve as executive director of the Water Pollution Control Commission and executive secretary of the Air Pollution Control Commission.

NUNN, RIVER ENGINEERS TO CONFER ON BARGING
Governor Nunn will confer soon with representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers regarding a coal company's application to barge fuel along a 65-mile stretch of Lake Cumberland for delivery to a rural electric power plant at Burnside.

Governor Nunn made it plain he wants to make sure that the barging would not cause the lake water to deteriorate, impair fishing or endanger sportsmen of other recreation seekers.

EDUCATION COMMISSION REVERSES BONDING POLICY
The Kentucky Commission on Higher Education decided to give increased emphasis to seeking federal funds for con-

TOM DUNCAN'S

Frankfort Watchline

Frankfort—Now comes the big one.
Because, despite all the lip service, Kentucky politicians care more about the governor's race and those going with it than any other elections except their own.

And off-year congressional races take third table.
But the governor's race—or races—take off now.
On the Republican side, few doubts are left that former Public Service Commissioner Thomas Emberton has Gov. Louie Nunn's nod.

But former Parks Commissioner Robert Gable is not only ready to take him on—he's doing it on the basis that he wouldn't run if he weren't convinced he could structure at schools where more than 15 per cent of the students come from families with a combined gross yearly income under $5000.

More attention also will be given to building fund applications from schools where more than 15 per cent of the students receive federal financial assistance.

HEARING TO BE GIVEN DEFICIENT INSURANCE FIRM
The State Insurance Department plans to hold a hearing, probably Dec. 1, on the refusal of the Nationwide Mutual Insurance Co. of Columbus, Ohio, to obey a verbal order to continue to sell new auto insurance policies in Kentucky.

September, a number of companies announced a similar decision, but all gave in when the Insurance Department insisted that they must sell car policies to all eligible applicants so long as the companies are licensed to do business in Kentucky.

That in itself presents some interesting possibilities.
Neither Emberton nor Gable is exactly a household name. And the few real Republican candidates we've seen hardly offer any clear pattern of results.
Any way you cut it, it must boil down to an administration and anti-administration fight. Neither man may choose that path but that's the way it will lead.

With that battle looming, Democrats could find themselves in the unusual position of really cleaning up behind the GOP elephants.

Not that Democrats are any more united than usual—but the "outs" always present a more solid front than the "ins." The Democratic primary seems destined to one of the bitter ones brought on by the breaking of old ties.
But the followers of former Gov. Bert Conner and Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford know that either offer a better chance to elbow back up to the table than does another GOP administration.

Republicans are expected to divide according to who is at the table—Emberton—and who isn't—Gable's. Aside from some personal preferences and honest principles that will be it.

And in Kentucky that's the way we decide the big one.

There's nothing like a good unbiased investigation to clear things up.
And surely the committee the National Education Association is sending in to see whether Kentucky's schools are listed is unbiased. It even has one school board member in addition to teachers and administrators.

Of course it's logical that school people should judge the quality of education. But wouldn't that seem to make a tax man the one to judge the revenue base—and perhaps even a plain old working stiff the one to judge the public's plight?
But just because school people are the only ones to judge education we couldn't expect the rule to be applied elsewhere.

And it surely couldn't imply any pre-judging when NEA director from Pennsylvania visited Owensboro recently and said the committee would investigate "the high of Kentucky education."

Gov. Nunn's position on coal-barging on Lake Cumberland seems to be misread in some circles.

The governor is asking the Corps of Engineers to hold up granting a permit UNTIL he's convinced the barges won't pollute the water or do real harm to recreation.
The convincing will be up to the coal operator—but the governor will hear him out.

You And The Draft

This week our mail included a letter from a college student inquiring whether he could change from a university to a trade school and remain eligible for a draft deferment.

At the beginning of the fall term the student's university submitted a Student Certificate showing he was satisfactorily pursuing a full time course of instruction. Based on that certification, the local board continued the student deferment. During an intramural basketball game, he sustained a leg injury which hospitalized him for several weeks. Following his release from the hospital, a faculty advisor recommended that, since his grades had dropped and because of his prolonged absence from classes, he consider withdrawing from the university and reapplying for admission at the beginning of the next semester.

He wrote that during his period of hospitalization he had given some serious thought to becoming a television technician instead of a physical education instructor. He had made some inquiries and had been informed that a new class at an electronic institute would begin in January. Before making a final decision he wanted to know if such a change would affect his deferment status.

He failed to include his date of birth and random sequence number, which are most important in making a reply to an inquiry of this type. We called in his file for review. He was born on September 8, 1947, and had a random sequence number of 184. If he decided to withdraw from the university, he would no longer be eligible for a classification of 1-C. Unless he is eligible for a lower classification he would be reclassified 1-A.

At this time it does not appear that random sequence number 184 will be reached by his local board by the end of the current calendar year. If the random sequence number is not reached by December 31, 1970, he will go into a lower priority group and under such circumstances he could make a judgment as to whether he wanted to reapply for admission to the university or enroll in the trade school.

Q. Recently the draft board sent me a new classification card. It showed that my 1-B Classification had been continued. Since I did not request a continuation of my student deferment, can I be reclassified from 1-B?

A. No, unless you provide proof that you are no longer entitled to a student deferment.

you cannot be reclassified. It is assumed that you originally requested a student deferment and in accordance with this request your university has provided your local board with a certification that you are satisfactorily pursuing a full time course of instruction. If the university continues to furnish your local board with a certification of this type, the local board under existing regulations has no alternative but to consider you for a student deferment until you complete the requirements of the baccalaureate degree, as long as you satisfactorily pursue a full time course of instruction, or attain your 24th birthday, whichever occurs first.

Q. I read in our newspaper that registrants who will be in an extended priority group will be notified by their local board of this extension. I anticipate that I will be in this group. When can I expect to receive a letter?

A. We anticipate that as soon after the last call of the year is issued by the local board, which is normally in late November, the local board will begin to notify their registrants in the extended priority group.

Q. Will a registrant be able to appeal from his priority group?

A. No. The Selective Service Regulations do not provide for an appeal from the priority group. The only appeal a registrant can make is from a classification and this must be made on a timely basis.

New bonus interest rate on U.S. Savings Bonds

Now all U. S. Savings Bonds pay 5% interest, PLUS a 1/4% bonus when held to maturity. This overall 5 1/4% interest payment means that now you get a little bit more money for your money.

Technically, here's how the bonus works:

1. The bonus interest rate applies to all new Bonds purchased since June 1, 1970, raising their rate from 5% to 5 1/4% when held to maturity. Series E Bonds, whose maturity remains at 5 years 10 months, with a first-year rate of 4%, will have the 1/4% increase added as a bonus at maturity.
2. There is no reason to cash in Bonds you now hold. Yields on outstanding Bonds, prior to maturity, will be increased by 1/4% for semiannual interest periods beginning on or after June 1, 1970. For E Bonds, the increase will be payable at maturity; for H Bonds, through larger semiannual interest checks for their last 5 years.
3. For Bonds now in their extension period, yields will be increased by approximately 1/4% to next maturity, whenever redeemed.
4. Finally, all Bonds maturing on or after June 1, 1970 while the bonus is in effect, will receive a 5 1/4% yield until next maturity.

Now, more than ever, it's to your advantage to buy U. S. Savings Bonds and hold them to maturity or beyond.

Sign up for Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you bank.

BAND STUDENTS BEGIN PANTY HOSE SALE
Band students began taking orders Tuesday for the panty hose sale project.

In case you missed the previous article about this band project, the band is selling the hose in an effort to raise about $7,000 for new uniforms. Band members will be taking orders for the panty hose, which will be available in four popular shades at $1.40 per pair.
Several band mothers met last week to discuss the project and to see first-hand the quality of the hose. The mothers were reportedly well pleased with the quality of the hose at such a low price and are hopeful that many customers would buy several pairs, since this is something women want to buy frequently and wear.

The hose are a "one size fits all" type, however there are limitations to the size person they will fit. Sizes and sizes are 41" - 58", 90 to 150 lbs.

The two photos above give you some idea of what goes on at a college social fraternity's annual pie throw. The victim, shown in the top photo in on the receiving end is Sharon Spark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Spark of Mt. Vernon, a sophomore business major at Murray State University. The perpetrator of the "fun and games" is Four Newsmen, a senior history major from New York City. The bottom photo is the aftermath of the contest. Miss Spark's is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority.

The Berean Study School Class of the First Christian Church met at the home of Mrs. Jack St. Clair on Tuesday night, November 3 for their regular monthly meeting. A devotional and Thanksgiving was given by Mrs. Ann Bray Farris and a prayer by Mrs. Earl Hammons, teacher of the class.
Many plans were made to help in the church's activities, such as youth, Christmas, music, decorations and assistance to the poor.
A bountiful buffet dinner was served and a delightful social hour was enjoyed.
