VOLED CENTERS APPROVED BY BOARD

A priority list for building eight new vocational centers has been approved by the State Board of Education.

Actual funding for the new schools will not be approved until the board holds its June meeting.

Local school districts will be expected to pay about half the cost of each center.

Also the state is seeking a $1.3 million grant from the Economic Development Administration for four of the projects. If applications for such grants are disapproved the Department of Education will pay that amount from its trust and agency account.

Given top priority on the list of centers was Newport High School which will require $500,000 in state money.

Others on the list in descending order, and the total cost of each facility, were Boone County, $700,000; Marshall County, $450,000; Mayfield, $740,000; Fulton County, $580,000; and Barren County, $700,000.

Also on the list were Letcher County and Somerset for which funds were not listed.

Prior to putting Somerset on the list, the board approved the sale of the existing vocational building to the Somerset school board. Money from that sale will be used as the state's share for building the new structure.

a new lease on life

An accident left James Caldwell totally blind and paraplegic at 25... yet today he is a computer programmer and successful inventor. Among his inventions is a wheelchair that moves with a shrug of his shoulders.

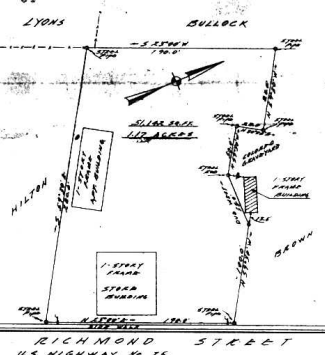

Monthly social security disability benefits and training at his State vocational rehabilitation center helped Jim get his new lease on life. Like Jim, over 21,000 other disabled workers have been rehabilitated in the past 5 years.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION

1.17 ACRES OF COMMERCIAL PROPERTY

Located on U.S. 25, Richmond Street in Mt. Vernon, Ky.
Look for sign at the property.

This sale is to settle the estate of the late Mr. Ernest and Mr. S.E. Bullock.

As you can see from the above plat the property has a 190 ft. road frontage along U.S. 25 and a depth of 280 ft. Improvements consist of a frame store building which is presently rented as the Attic. Also included is an apartment building which has two apartments, and both are now rented.

This property is superbly located near a cluster of motels, a residential area, only two blocks from Main St. and two miles from I-75. With the scarcity of good commercial property in Mt. Vernon, it is truly a once in a lifetime opportunity when property of this calibre is offered for sale. The property is ideal for most any type business such as a supermarket, restaurant, motel, small shopping center, or any other business which would require plenty of parking space. This lot is level and would require very little excavation. Due to its strategic location and large size, the property holds excellent potential for commercial development.

You And The Draft

Many young men who come to our office seeking a solution to their "draft" problem are either apprehensive, angry or afraid. Through counseling we try to alleviate the apprehension, anger and fearfulness.

Irv (Irv) was one of our most recent callers with a problem. His situation literally ran the gamut of the main Selective Service classifications.

We would like to relate his problem as it is one of the most unusual that we have been exposed to since being associated with the administration of the "draft" in Kentucky.

With parental consent Irv enlisted in a reserve component at the age of 17 1/2. He dropped out of high school before graduation and had been unable to get a job that paid a decent wage. Immediately upon enlistment, he requested his six months of active duty training (ACDUTRA).

While on ACDUTRA Irv attained the age of 18 and for a few months attended the prescribed drills. Irv subsequently moved to another town to accept employment as a machinist. Because of change in residence his participation in prescribed drills became unsatisfactory and he was discharged. During this period of time he became a father.

Irv still failed to comply with the Selective Service law with respect to registration, which was not brought out in conversation with us. Finally he did report to a local board and was registered in March 1971.

He was born on Feb. 25, 1950, and his random sequence number (RSN) from the lottery of Dec. 1, 1969, was 179. Since Irv had not fulfilled his military contract he was not eligible for either a IV-A classification (veteran) or a I-D classification (Reserve). Likewise, the President's Executive Order of April 23, 1970, preclude him from being considered for either an occupational or dependency deferment. The local board had no other alternative than to consider him for Class I-A.

Had Irv registered on time and with a RSN of 179 from the 1969 drawing his year of prime vulnerability would have ended on Dec. 31, 1970, because RSN 179 had not been reached by his local board. As the registration was accomplished in 1971, Irv is in the prime selection group and he will have to wait until the end of the year to know whether his RSN will be reached.

This is the information we gave Irv and we sincerely hope that through verbal and written dialogue we have alleviated his apprehension and assured him he is being treated with fairness and equity.

Q. I need your advice. At the end of my junior year this spring, I will have 90 hours, which is senior standing at Murray State University. However, 90 hours is not 3/4 of the 128 which is required to graduate. Will I be considered out of normal progression and "lose" my II-S classification? I could go to summer school and get the necessary hours to make 3/4, but I need to work this summer. Any advice will be appreciated.

A. The current Selective Service law and implementing regulations require a student to progress from one school year of study to another within 12 calendar months. This permits the student to continue his training through summer term if it is needed to advance to the next year of study.

In a course of study, which is four years in duration, the student should complete approximately 25 percent of the required credit hours each school year. State supported colleges and universities require the completion of 30, 60 and 90 credit hours as a minimum to achieve sophomore, junior and senior status. A student may advance to the fourth year of study with 90 credit hours and not be able to complete 128 credit hours which is normally required for graduation.

Should a registrant not graduate within the four-year period and be reclassified as available for military service, the regulations provide for the granting of a statutory deferment one time only provided he is a full time, satisfactory student at the time he is ordered for induction. In many instances this permits the registrant to complete his prescribed course of academic instruction.

STATE TO STUDY INSURANCE RATES

The state Insurance Department has called a hearing for May 10 on whether it should decrease rates for burglary and robbery insurance in Kentucky.

Insurance Commissioner Robert Preston said he is calling the hearings because all firms writing such policies in Kentucky have been making unusually high profits for the last two years.

Preston said either the firms apparently have not been writing the coverage they should—taking only good risks or their rates are too high. Premiums paid for all such policies in 1970 totaled $1.6 million, while losses incurred that year came to just $28,600 for a ratio of losses to collections of 39.5 per cent Preston said.

He said a ratio of 60 to 65 per cent would be more reasonable since expenses normally come to 30 to 35 per cent of the amount of premiums earned.

Rate increases were granted last year for all burglary and robbery insurance policies written in Kentucky, Preston said, on the assumption that any area of the state could get such coverage.

But he said he has received reports that no liquor store in the state can get that type of coverage now and neither can any drugstore in a high crime area.

The purpose of the hearing will be to determine if all or part of the increases referred to by Preston should be rescinded.

Fourteen From Here Receive EKU Degrees

A total of 1,414 candidates, 14 from Rockcastle County, received degrees Sunday, May 9 at Eastern Kentucky University's 64th spring commencement.

Dr. Robert R. Martin, EKU president, conferred the degrees during the program in Alumni Coliseum that climaxed the commencement week end.

The University conferred an honorary doctor of letters degree upon the commencement speaker, the Right Reverend William R. Moody, retired bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Lexington, The University also conferred an honorary doctor of laws degree upon Clarence H. Gifford, a real estate executive of Katonah, N.Y., and recipient of the EKU "Outstanding Alumnus Award" in 1959.

The week end commencement activities included the Senior Luncheon, Friday, Alumni Day, Saturday, and the baccalaureate Sunday morning, with a sermon by Dr. Dale Moody, professor of Christian theology at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

This spring's class brought the total number of degrees conferred by EKU to 21,756, more than half of which, 13,641, have been awarded since 1950.

Students from Rockcastle County receiving degrees were: College of Education—Kathryn Joyce Payne, Brodhead, Bachelor of Science; College of Business—Roy Dale Winstead, Mt. Vernon, Bachelor

An Editorial

It is a shame that a road, as heavily traveled as the road around Lake Linville, should be the inconvenience to travelers that it is.

We decided to take a picnic Sunday and go to the area near the dock for lunch. In case you haven't been there, this is an excellent location for a picnic area. The space is adequate with a field for children to play in nearby; Restro Creek runs right by the area and of course provides a great deal of amusement for children of all ages and shade trees are abundant.

In the hour-and-a-half we were there, families with license plates from Ohio, Indiana, several from out of the county and from Rockcastle made use of the facilities. The only fault that could be found with it was that the grass needed mowing but the City has done well to provide the spot for now and no doubt plan several refinements at a later date.

As we said, the picnic area was fine, now let's talk about what we had to put up with to get there. If you recall Sunday was a beautiful day. The sun was shining, it wasn't too hot, the mosquitoes aren't good and awake yet and the ground was dry after the recent heavy rains. It was so nice and dry in fact that dust from the road going to the area almost choked us before we arrived and made us doubt the wisdom of enduring it until we got there.

We realize that funds for blacktopping by the state are limited; but, we do think that, if there is a priority on the roads in the county, then this road should be high, if not on top, of the list.

The inconvenience to residents along this heavily traveled road is terrible and in our opinion, quite unnecessary. If the state were unable to "find" funds for blacktopping the road, then at the very least they could finance a little oil to keep the dust somewhat in abeyance. It has always amazed us that on some roads in the county, not traveled nearly as heavily as this road, the blacktop is a foot thick.

State Representative Harold DeMarcus has often demonstrated his ability to get things done in Rockcastle County and he just might prove an avenue to the improvement of this road. If everyone who has had occasion to travel the road, whether they be local people or out-of-staters, would just drop Rep. DeMarcus a line telling him of their interest in seeing this road improved to where it is not a health and safety hazard to travel it in summer months, it might help.

A physician with a master's degree in environmental health has been appointed by Governor Nunn to the state Health Department to study the effects of water, air and food pollution on the human body.

Dr. Brad Block, a native of Louisville, will be medical consultant for environmental health, probably the first such qualified person to be employed by any state.

The appointment is another step in Governor Nunn's reorganization of the Health Department, putting greater emphasis on environmental issues.

Block will begin work on May 17, and will work closely with Ralph C. Pickard, deputy health commissioner, for environment, and with Dr. William P. McElwain, health commissioner.

"As I understand," Block said, "my work will consist largely of studying the effects of pollutants on the human body."

"Kentucky already has the know-how in the pollution field as far as engineering and technical knowledge is concerned. My job will be to help determine how much pollution control must be exercised to make the environment safe," he said.

Block graduated from the University of Louisville School of Medicine in 1956, and was awarded a scholarship by the Atomic Energy Commission to study industrial and environmental health at the University of Cincinnati.

He has been serving as medical director for Union Carbide Technical Center in Charleston, W. Va.

U.S. TAKES FIRST STEP TO AID TORNADO VICTIMS

Preliminary meetings between federal and state officials and local groups from eight tornado-damaged Kentucky counties have been held to outline proper procedures for obtaining federal aid for those affected by the April 21 storms.

The meetings were held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, May 12-14, in three South Central Kentucky county seats after President Nixon declared eight counties disaster areas.

The counties involved are Russell, Ashland, Green, Butler, Warren, Muhlenberg, Pulaski and Ohio.

Governor Nunn, in announcing the Presidential action last week, said the counties will qualify for full federal relief and recovery assistance which will be coordinated through the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP).

Estimates of damage from the three tornadoes, which killed nine persons and injured over 100, are still not complete but are expected to mount into the millions.

Assistance will be provided under the Disaster Relief Act of 1970 which allows expanded federal relief programs for disaster victims.

The counties involved are expected to receive assistance from OEP in obtaining temporary housing while their own homes are rebuilt.

Federal funds may also be obtained for removal of wreckage and debris from public and private lands or streams.

GOVERNOR PROPOSES IMPROVEMENTS

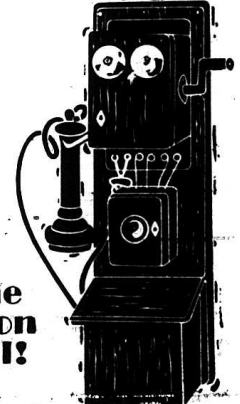

Governor Nunn met recently with the State Personnel Board and outlined several recommendations for the improvement of the state's personnel system.

Stressing to the five-man board that continuing efforts are needed to attract and hold good employees, the governor recommended that employee vacation scheduled be based on length of service.

State employees, no matter what their length of service, now get one annual leave day monthly or 12 days a year. Under Governor Nunn's proposal this would apply until five years on the job. From then until 10 years, the vacation period would be 15 days. From 10 to 15 years it would reach 18 and after that to a limit of 21 days annually.

This recommendation is in line with the leave policies (Cont. To 3)

Checking how your county went in Combs' previous races against the prospects this time could prove interesting.

In 1955 he lost to former Gov. A.B. Chandler by 1800 votes. In 1959 he defeated then Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield by 33,000.

And changes in five counties made more than half the difference.

The second time his margin increased by 18,000 in Jefferson and 3,600 in Pike. And the net gain in counties Combs lost the first time but carried the second included 8,000 in Kenton and 2,400 each in Campbell and Warren.

The factors involved are different in each county, of course. But your own may be as good a benchmark as you can find.

Calling any move by Combs a tactical error is questionable in view of his record. But his tagging Legislative Research Commission Director James Fleming as a backer of Ford could be one.

Not that anyone expected Fleming to be whooping it up for Combs. He left the LRC when Combs was governor before. But Fleming is popular with legislators—and with Waterfield, who had been sitting this primary out but now may speak out to friends who ask.

Emberton people have an answer to the Combs crew's "pretty face" watch joke. They say the Combs watch is great but "it takes $10,000 to get the hands to move."

DOLLAR CRISIS

Throughout the years following World War II, the United States dollar maintained a steady position of strength with respect to other nations' currencies.

More recently, however, this relative strength has receded, culminating in an international monetary crisis during the past two weeks.

Kentucky's Fifth District Representative, Tim Lee Carter, reported that on Thursday, May 6th, five major European central banks—those of West Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Austria—withdrew their support of the dollar and closed down their foreign-exchange markets.

This was done to halt a flood of dollars into their financial centers.

By Monday, May 10, West Germany had decided to allow the mark to float within a limited range in relation to the dollar.

Congressman Carter explained that this action means U.S. dollars would not be exchanged at a fixed rate for European currencies, as has been true in the past.

Dollars would instead be exchanged at rates established through the functioning of the financial markets.

In other words, if more dollars were available, each dollar would be exchanged for less in other currencies; if less dollars were available each dollar would be exchanged for greater amounts of foreign currency.

At present there is an overabundance of dollars. It is expected that European nations will allow their currencies to float in this manner for some time before a new exchange rate is established.

Representative Carter believes that "one of the basic reasons for the dollar crisis was the raising and subsequent lowering of interest rates here in the United States. Personally, I am opposed to any interest rate higher than 6%," he stated. "If the interest rates had been kept at 6% then this problem would not be so severe."

The Congressman pointed out that the monetary crisis is also due in part to the tremendous outlay of funds in keeping U.S. troops in Europe. "It is a fact that our spending $14 billion to keep 325,000 soldiers in Europe has adversely affected our balance of payments. We have had troops in Germany for 26 years. It is time to remove these troops. After 26 years, with the most stable economy in the world, Germany should be able to defend itself. Our men should not be used to protect a prosperous Germany."

"These conclusions have been reached after a long, calm and cool evaluation of the situation."

Older People's Income— 34% from Social Security

Social security payments account for the largest single share—about 34 percent—of total income of people 65 or older and their wives or husbands, according to social security officials here. Social Security Administration studies of the Nation's 20 million older people indicate that their annual income is about $58 billion, with social security benefits accounting for $20 billion, a spokesman said. "Studies show that social security is an economic base for retired workers and their dependents," the official said. "The monthly benefit checks are a partial replacement of pre-retirement earnings."

About 29 percent of the income of older people comes from earnings, according to the study. Income from assets accounts for 15 percent. Other sources are: public pensions other than social security, 7 percent; private group pensions, 5 percent; public welfare, 4 percent; veterans' benefits, 3 percent; contributions from friends or relatives not in the older household, 1 percent; other sources, 3 percent. According to the study, about 21 percent of older people receive income from wages and salaries; 6 percent from self-employment; 6 percent from Government-employee pensions; 12 percent from private group pensions; 4 percent from railroad retirement pensions; 10 percent from veterans' benefits; 3 percent from personal contributions; 2 percent from private individual annuities; 1 percent from unemployment insurance; 12 percent from welfare.

Bagworms and Their Control

Bagworms are perhaps the principal pest of evergreen trees in most of Kentucky. If there are enough bagworms, they will strip this shrub of its foliage and cause it to die. Other plants they live on are maple, rose box elder, willow, and many other flowering shrubs, but rarely are any of these affected as badly as evergreens are. Orchards are seldom bothered because sprays used to control other pests will also control bagworms.

Bagworms are the larval or caterpillar stage of a moth that is rarely seen outside the bag. In fact, only the males develop into typical moths that are capable of flight. The adult female is grub-like and remains inside the bag except when she drops from the bag a few moments before she dies.

Bagworms pass the winter in the egg stage inside the bag that had contained the females. In late May or early June the eggs hatch and the naked larvae crawl from the bag in search of food. By using silk and bits of leaves, bark, or twigs, they soon build a small bag around their hind-part. As the larvae grow, they add onto the big making it large enough to allow the larvae to withdraw into the bag when disturbed. By early September the bags reach their maximum size of 1 1/2 to 2 inches. At this time the larvae permanently suspend their bags from twigs with bands of silk. The larvae then transform into pupae, or the resting stage.

If only a few bagworms are present and within reach, the best and cheapest method of control is to handpick the bags and destroy them. This can be done whenever they are noticed. When the bags are too high or very numerous, several insecticides are effective for controlling bagworms. Insecticides recommended are as follows: Carbaryl (Sevin), Dieldrin, Toxaphene and Chlordane.

Ticks often plague pets and other livestock during warm weather. When these troublesome pests appear around your home or farm, send them to Dr. Fred Knapp in the Entomology Department, University of Kentucky.

Knapp, who is associate professor of entomology at UK, is testing new chemicals for tick control and needs many ticks for the tests. Any kind of live tick can be used in the tests. He is especially interested in receiving those that are engorged with blood.

Adult ticks are flat and brown, have eight legs and are about 3/16 inch in length, Knapp points out. When the female is engorged with blood, it swells to about 1/2 inch long and becomes slate-gray in color.

He gives these directions for collecting the ticks. They can be picked off gently from farm animals, pets or other mammals, or from fowl. You can handle them with tweezers or even with your fingers, since they will not bite.

Adult ticks are like to have the ticks sent to him while they are still alive. They can be mailed in a clean, dry prescription-type bottle with a closely-fitting cover or in an aspirin box. Include information about where and when each tick specimen was collected and on what animal it was found.

He urges Kentuckians to help the UK Entomology Department learn more about tick control by sending ticks to Dr. Knapp, Entomology Department, Experiment Station Bldg., University of Kentucky, Lexington, Kentucky 40506.

Tips On Managing Early-Summer Pastures

From the early May to late June, most farmers have more lush pastures than the cattle need. From July through September, we often run short of grazing - if not in volume, in feed quality. You can ease this situation on your farm by confining your cattle to an area they can graze down in a week to 10 days. In many instances, this maneuver will call for temporary fencing. Many farmers are using the surplus ungrazed area for high-quality hay and silage. These cuttings are made in the early-bloom legume stages and before the grass seed heads are formed. The majority of this feed is held for use in the wintering period due to the mid-summer drought in many parts, a large quantity was fed last summer.

Mowing is just as important early in the season as late. Mowing will get rid of tall, mature plants that have been reduced by livestock as well as destroy weeds. A good guide is to mow following each grazing-off.

If you haven't depressed fertilized your pastures yet, it can be done after mowing or grazing. A current soil test is your best guide. If your stand is more than 25 percent legume, you won't need nitrogen - just phosphate and potash. If the legume stand is less than 25 percent better include nitrogen also.

Salute to Agriculture

The recent salute to agriculture day in Washington, D.C., was one of the biggest and most successful efforts our Nation has seen to call attention in a positive way to the problems and accomplishments of American agriculture. Mr. Mullins, Chairman of the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said this week.

President Nixon launched the salute with a Nationwide radio address calling on all Americans to join him in a bi-partisan tribute to the farmers of this country.

"I have high hopes for the new farm programs which are in effect this year," the President told the Nation. "They remove some of the old restraints in a way which gives every farmer a chance to make more of his own decisions about the kind of achievement. But in that same period agriculture has increased its productivity per man-hour by 300 percent - twice as much.

"I was particularly pleased to see the President discuss farm income and inflation," Mr. Mullins said. "The President pointed out that in a free society whoever produces more should be compensated for more. Then he observed that the income per capita of those who live on America's farms has gone up, but not in proportion to their increasing productivity, and not in relation to the increases received by their colleagues who work in American industry."

The President also said, "...inflation hits farmers in two ways. It drives up both the cost of farming and the cost of living. The rate of inflation in the first quarter of 1971 was the lowest in four years, only one-half of what it was in 1970. We are working very hard to ease this perennially troublesome cost-price squeeze."

And I agree with the President's statement that "in the final analysis the problems of American agriculture can best be solved by those who know farming best, the farm people themselves, with Government backup when necessary," Chairman Mullins said. "I guess that's why we both have high hopes for the new bi-partisan farm programs which are in effect this year."

Mr. Mullins spotlighted other major goals which can help farmers improve their income as stated in the President's address:

- Increase agricultural exports from the $7.4 billion this year to an annual $10 billion figure.
- Continue the battle against inflation.
- Increase the level of operating loans insured by the Farmers Home Administration.
- Support applied research for controlling agricultural pests.
- Increase grants for small watershed projects.
- Increase funding for technical assistance on conservation projects.
- Increase funds for insured loans for water and sewer systems in rural areas.
- Work with farm organizations and the Congress on such problems as farm labor, and farm bargaining legislation.

In a special tribute at the White House, Chairman Mullins said, the President climaxed a day of recognition by cabinet members and other high Government officials with a reception and dinner for several score outstanding farmers and farm leaders and their wives. On the White House lawn, farm machinery exhibits and purebred livestock were on display for the Washington public.

The President said, "Thanks to American agriculture for making us the best fed, the best clothed people in America, thanks to American agriculture for providing the basic industry that is essential for any nation to be strong."

Calling attention to the productivity of American agriculture, the President noted that in the last 20 years American industry has increased its productivity per man-hour by 150 percent, a great achievement. But in that same period agriculture has increased its productivity per man-hour by 300 percent - twice as much.

It's always a pleasure to go fishing in one of the big lakes. It's fun and the trip is exciting and the scenery beautiful, but still it is not necessary. If it's for catching fish, a farm pond will do very well.

Some of the finest fishing is, perhaps, within a few miles of the average home.

We're talking about farm pond fishing and specifically bluegill fishing at this immediate time. Just about now, through the remainder of May, the bluegill, that pesky little brawler that will give you more fight per ounce than any other type fish, is on the nest and when this condition exists it means trouble. It's trouble of the right kind, however.

Bluegill act just opposite from the black bass, for instance, when nesting. The black bass will hover around deposited eggs and will protect them but will almost never strike at a lure when on this guard duty.

The bluegill, on the other hand, is glibble to the proffered lure, most generally a wiggly garden worm, while protecting his nest.

It's not known whether the bluegill offers the best sport of the year for the fisherman. All he needs to do is drop the nest worm or garden worm over the bed and almost before the lure settles, it will be gobbled up by the bluegill who handles it roughly and furiously. This fish, often called bream, in Kentucky, also succumbs to the tempting artificial bug or fly when it is properly presented by the fly rod devotee.

Once a big bluegill has been caught from a farm pond it's a good idea, if the spawning season is on, to cast again and again over the very same area. Likely as not, each cast will be rewarded with a handsome bluegill that'll dart through the water like a drunkard motorcycle rider as it is being retrieved by the fisherman.

For the first few seconds after the strike, fishermen say, the bluegill gives more fight ounce for ounce than any other species. However, after this few seconds it's easily brought in, although it will come through the water in a gliding position, never in a straight line.

Bluegill fishing offers much sport throughout the year, not only in farm ponds but from the streams and major lakes as well. Nevertheless, farm pond fishing at spawning time attracts, perhaps, more fishermen than any other species, white bass and croppie runs notwithstanding.

It's a family affair in the ponds with mom and the kids enjoying the fishing sport, as much as pop will like his trip to the lake for the lunkers.

TO HOSTESS JUNE DAIRY FESTIVITIES

Ask her to explain one of the most complicated mechanical situations in the world, and she'll probably give you a modern dance impression of a cow. Mention the word health, and you're in for a winning lecture on real dairy products plus exercise.

She is Miss Mary Lois Keplinger, Kentucky's 1971-72 State Dairy Princess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Keplinger, Elizabethtown. Miss Keplinger will be touring Kentucky next month celebrating June Dairy Month, a national observance of the dairy industry by dairy farmer members of the American Dairy Association.

Miss Keplinger majored in physical education at the University of Kentucky, and is a member of the Kentucky Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and has passed the national exam for rating as a national referee.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Cumberland Valley Comprehensive Health Planning Council is scheduled for June 3, 1971, at the Pineville Community Hospital, Pineville, Kentucky. At that time, the annual election will be conducted to fill positions of members whose terms have expired. The Health Planning Council, whose purpose is to plan for a comprehensive demonstration health care system on a regional basis, is composed of twenty-five providers and consumers of health care from Harlan, Bell, Whitley, Knox, Clay, Laurel, Jackson, and Rockcastle counties. Because of differences of appointment terms, vacancies will not exist in every county.

Any resident of the above counties interested in serving on the Council, please contact the Cumberland Valley Comprehensive Health Planning Council, Laurel County Courthouse, London, Kentucky 40301.

Postmaster: Smith said the Postal Service intends to make the transition to the new rates in an orderly fashion, with a minimum of inconvenience to the public.

Under the new rate increase, the price of first-class stamp will be eight cents. The air mail stamp goes to 11 cents. Thus, the price of the 10-cent and 10-cent air mail stamps will be discontinued.

In addition to eight- and eleven-cent stamps, many vending machines will dispense one-cent stamp.

In some areas, Postmaster Smith said, there will be no noticeable disruption in automated stamp dispensing services. At the main post office in Mt. Vernon the unit may be temporarily shut down while postal technicians make the necessary mechanical changes in the machines. Postmaster Smith said customers should go to window clerks for stamp purchases in those cases.

GOVERNOR NUNN TO HEAD MINING COMPACT

Governor Nunn has been named chairman of the interstate Mining Compact. The announcement was made at a meeting of representatives of 15 states' minerals and reclamation agencies in Raleigh, N.C.

The compact was formalized at the meeting for the purpose of promoting uniformity in mining regulations.

Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania have signed the compact, and the other states plan to join as soon as their legislatures approve.

Natural Resources Commissioner James Shropshire represented Kentucky at the North Carolina meeting.

By Billy Dowell

There is a story told from a children's hospital in South America where every afternoon a child's voice would ring out in concert. His songs could be heard throughout the corridors of the large hospital.

Weeks passed, his singing improved—months went by and the singing began to take on a professional quality that was rarely found. By the end of the year—all the people in the hospital found themselves waiting for the boy to sing at his usual hour.

Finally the boy left the hospital, and eventually returned to his home to strengthen his lungs. At first the child was merely following orders—then he began to feel his songs—the people who listened began to feel the magic of his voice. They loved him so that they later made him a national idol.

Our thought to remember: LOOK FOR THE BRIGHT SIDE—IT IS ALWAYS THERE!

Social Security is Now More Valuable to Youth

Social security has become increasingly more valuable to young people in the 35 years since the program was enacted.

Originally, the sole purpose of social security benefits was to provide a basic income for workers retiring at 65. But in 1939, before the first monthly benefits had been paid, Congress added benefits for dependents and survivors. Today, people below retirement age have a much greater stake in social security—both in terms of more protection in the event that they become disabled or die and in terms of the number who are actually drawing benefits.

About one out of every four people on the social security benefit rolls is under 60. Included are young widowed mothers and their children, disabled workers and their families, the disabled sons and daughters of retired or disabled workers or of workers who have died, and students 18 to 22 who are getting monthly benefits because a parent has died or retired, and young workers.

The value of social security disability protection is often overlooked by young people. A 1967 change in the law made it easier for young disabled people to qualify for payments. Now a worker who becomes disabled before age 24 may qualify for benefits for himself and for his wife and children if he has only 1 1/2 years of social security work credit in the previous 3 years. If his disability begins between 24 and 31, he is eligible if he has social security credit for only half the time between age 21 and the time his disability started.

As a result of all these changes, social security has become more important than ever—not just in terms of retirement and Medicare benefits, but as protection now for young workers and their families.
