Improvement Program Is Successful

A statewide food service improvement effort by the State Department of Health's Division of Environmental Services is apparently achieving much success. Survey results obtained in many counties, including Rockcastle County, since Sept. 1, 1970, indicate the local health departments are showing improvement in enforcing the State Food Service Code. According to Herman Moore, Sanitarian, Rockcastle County Health Department, the code regulates all food service establishments in Kentucky in order to protect the public health. "Food service establishments include restaurants, coffee-shops, cafeterias, cocktail lounges and any other places in which food or drink is prepared and/or served to the public.

Under the improvement program designed to continuously upgrade food service sanitation, restaurants and other food service establishments in each county are routinely inspected by the county sanitarian and at least once every two years are randomly inspected by one of five state food survey officers certified by the US Food and Drug Administration. These survey officers also evaluate the record keeping system of each county health department. "Each establishment was scored on the basis of an inspection report, which examines some 118 items ranging from food supplies to food equipment and utensils to sanitary facilities," Mr. Moore stated. "Scores are based on demerit points with scores of 0 to 20 considered excellent unless there is a six-point demerit such as improperly cooked food, unsanitized milk, improper sanitary facilities, etc. A score of 10 to 30 is acceptable and 31 to 40 marginal but a demerit score above 40 is unacceptable." Sixteen demerit problems must be corrected within 10 days while other problems must be corrected within 30 days or by the next routine inspection, depending upon the total number of demerits found during the inspection. If violations are not corrected or if an owner refuses to allow an inspection, he faces legal action including permit suspension.

According to Mr. Moore the average demerit score on the food service facilities in Rockcastle County which were surveyed in October 1970 was 28.

"Based on this survey, the health department has made considerable progress in upgrading food service sanitation," says Ewell P. Conyers, DVM, acting director of the Division of Environmental Services' Food Program, Clarkford.

Prior to July 1, 1969, when the State Food Service Code was enacted, no statewide code existed, although some local health departments set their own sanitation standards for food service establishments. Unofficial surveys conducted by the division after the code was enacted found a statewide average demerit score of 48. Following these unofficial surveys, conferences were held with local health department employes, school cafeteria workers and managers and operators of restaurants.

"These conferences were part of an educational program to explain the new code's requirements and to assist county health departments in setting proper inspection procedures and in standardizing their records," Dr. Conyers said.

"Although the State Department of Health plays a vital role in food service sanitation, an effective inspection program depends on the efforts of each local health department. The progress achieved could not have been possible without the excellent cooperation given to the State Department of Health by the local health department sanitarians, the Kentucky Restaurant Association, and especially the individual restaurant owners and managers in Rockcastle County," said Dr. Conyers.

It's easy to forget that emergencies do happen. And when there is a crisis, you'll need a new egg to fall back on.

The Payroll Savings Plan is one of the easiest ways to make sure you've something saved for when you need money fast. When you participate in the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside from each paycheck and invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. It's an effortless way to build up a reserve.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% for Bonds made during the first year. That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Let's hope there are no troubled waters in your future. But remember, emergencies don't always happen to the other guys.

Bonds are sold in $25, $50, $100, or $500, or multiples thereof. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. They may be delivered by mail. For more information, contact your nearest U.S. Savings Bonds Office.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

The U.S. Government does not pay for the transportation of the Bonds presented at the time of the Arthritis Month. The Department of the Treasury reserves the right to amend this program without notice.

Local Teachers Will Get Raise

The president's "wage-price" freeze invoked in August has created quite a bit of concern by the nation's teachers over whether they would receive scheduled pay raises this year.

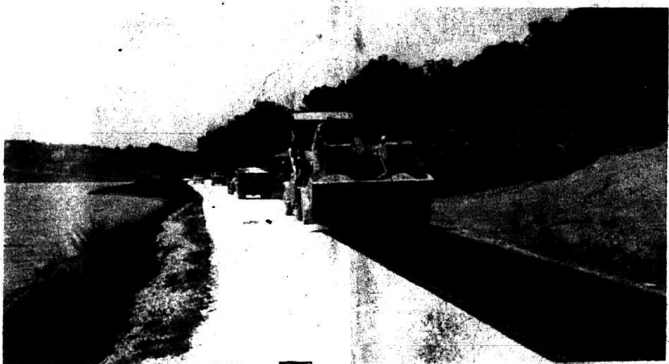

Rockcastle County Schools Superintendent Charles B. Parsons Tuesday issued the following statement concerning pay raises already set up for Rockcastle teachers. "Since the Rockcastle County Board of Education had issued teacher contracts and adopted salary schedules prior to August 15, 1971, it now appears that teachers will receive the $100 annual increment built into the foundation program by the 1970 Legislature," Supr. Parsons said.

By Patricia M. Anderson

I am realizing more all the time the many advantages derived from living in a small community such as ours. Oh, there are economic disadvantages for those who would prefer to live here but are unable to because of the scarcity of jobs and there are a few times that I have wished for a larger area with more recreational activity offered but I have only to read about the problems encountered by those living in large cities to see again begin to count my blessings. I suppose what got me to thinking just recently about this was the busing which is going on across the nation to achieve racial balance in schools. Of course, we have "buses" all in this area and I for one am thankful. While I do appreciate (sometimes) the thinking behind busing, I don't think I could be wholly in sympathy with the program if I feel that my children were going to be bused 10, 15 and sometimes 20 miles away to help achieve a racial balance. As you can hear me say "big cities are nice to visit but I wouldn't want to live there," you can believe I say it with all sincerity.

Well, Monday, September 6 is the laboring man's holiday once again and I for one appreciate it. I would appreciate it more however if I could find the wise guy who decided that since the working people should have a day off that school children should also be out that day. If anyone ever wants to begin a drive for a 12-month school program, let me know and I'll be more than glad to help out.

3,508 Counties Receive Food Stamps

During July, 3,508 low-income persons in Rockcastle County received food stamps valued at $84,374, Commissioner of the Department of Economic Security Merritt S. Deitz, Jr., announced today. This record compares to 3,400 low-income persons who received food stamps worth $85,108 during July, 1970.

During June of this year, 3,346 persons in Rockcastle received food stamps at a cost of $86,604.

In Kentucky, the Food Stamp Program is administered jointly by the Department of Economic Security's Bureau of Public Assistance and the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Commissioner Deitz pointed out that the Program safeguards the health of the nation's low-income families through better nutrition. "Families in the program exchange an amount of their own money, usually spent for food, to purchase food coupons. In addition, families receive bonus coupons to boost their buying power," he explained.

Host Brings Campaign To Rockcastle County

Jim Host carried his campaign for Lt. Governor to the people of Rockcastle County on Wednesday when the Emberton-Host Kentucky CARE-o-van stopped here.

Host, who is the running mate of gubernatorial nominee Tom Emberton, stressed their platform of "more jobs and lower taxes" and predicted that the people of Kentucky will endorse their proposals by electing the Emberton-Host ticket in November.

Host was accompanied here by Ed Schoering, candidate for Attorney General; Dick Vermillion, candidate for State Treasurer.

Host said he and Emberton were finding widespread support as they traveled across Kentucky and noted, "The people here have had enough of the critics and those that would lead them to believe that Kentucky is a state on the way down, rather than a state on the way up. The people are proud of Kentucky and they have confidence in its future. Our opponents apparently don't have that confidence in the people because they say Kentucky can't have more jobs and lower taxes. The critics are wrong and the people will tell them so on November 2."

The CARE-o-van, now in its third week, will visit every Kentucky county by mid-September and cover 4200 miles. Tom Emberton is leading a similar tour of the state.

Host reiterated the Emberton-Host commitment to "remove the 5 per cent sales tax from groceries" and added "the voters of Kentucky have had enough of the politics of pressure, purge and personal attack. Tom Emberton and I are waging a campaign of programs for people ... all the people."

ATTENTION FARMERS

If you don't lime it, why plant it

Why Soils Need Lime

Only a few crops grow well on acid soils because they require calcium and magnesium which are replaced by applications of agricultural limestone. This material not only corrects the soil acidity, but also supplies the plants with the needed calcium and frequently magnesium.

Soil pH, which is a measure of the acidity or alkalinity of the soil, affects the availability of all elements which influence crop production. An application of liming material to an acid soil increases the availability of plant nutrients which are important to crop production. Among these are nitrogen, phosphorus and others. Liming reduces luxury uptake of potassium by the plants and reduces the availability of aluminum and iron manganese which are harmful to plants if they are present in sufficient quantities in the soil. Liming also helps increase the number and activity of beneficial soil bacteria. It helps improve the physical condition of the soil by supplying the calcium needed by leguminous crops to increase their growth. It increases root development and permeability of the soil.

Lime is the most economical factor involved in crop production on most soils in the humid areas, as they are acid in varying degrees. The application of needed fertilizers is also one of the most economical factors in crop production. The wise use of water - both rainfall and irrigation - is still another factor limiting crop production. However, the one which is most frequently by-passed is the application of agricultural limestone and this is the first step in a second fertility program on most soils in the humid area. Failure to apply this material limits crop production and wastes fertilizer dollars as well as the producer's capital investment and his labor in crop production. To get a better picture of soil needs, a soil test made by an accredited laboratory is recommended.

Tom Duncan's Frankfort Watchline

Maybe they're running in two different races.
That's the feeling you get after talking to backers of Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford and Republican Tom Emertson about the impact of Ford's challenge to take the sales tax off groceries right now.
Each side seems to think-- or tries to give the impression-- it gained ground in the exchange over Ford's call for a special legislative session. If Emertson is sincere in his sales tax promise.
Emertson backers are taking the move as an endorsement of his exemption pledge. And Gov. Louie Nunn heaped scorn on the idea of a special session.
But his saying that Ford made a political blunder doesn't make it so. It could have been--but it probably wasn't.
Ford, at least, has gained some sort of handle on the issue Emertson seemed to be getting some momentum on.
How well it's neutralized-- or turned around--depends on the handling each camp manages.
But Ford undoubtedly blunted one seldom mentioned threat.
Just suppose that Gov. Nunn, in response to repeated charges that Republicans weren't sincere in tax-exemption promises, had called a special session in late September or early October to get the job done.
It's anniversary time, time for reneuing that group life insurance policy for state employees--without competitive bids.
The business, of course, will go again to the Western Pioneer Life Insurance Co., headed by Gov. Nunn's political friend Roger Moore.
But Finance Commissioner Albert Christen insists the $800,000 or so a year premium hasn't provided any real gratuity.
He says Western Pioneer made less than 6 percent on the deal the past year. Not that it doesn't want the business again.

Cong. Tim Lee Carter Comments

President Nixon recently announced the implementation of a bold new economic policy designed to curb inflation, ease unemployment, and protect the dollar from the attack of international money speculators.
"In order to effect the desired changes in our economy," explained Kentucky's Fifth District Congressman, Tim Lee Carter, "the President has proposed a variety of measures. First, he ordered a freeze on all wages, prices, rents and salaries for 90 days. The wage-price freeze will be followed by a transition period, in order to avoid inflation when the restrictions are lifted."
President Nixon also ordered a 5% cut in federal employment between now and next summer. Representative Carter stated that "this move will be carried out largely by attrition, that is, chiefly through resignation, retirement, or death. It is hoped that the measures will offset the loss of revenue from the tax cuts which the President has also proposed."
A third area affected by President Nixon's sweeping changes is that of taxes. "The temporary surcharge of about 10% on all imports has been imposed. Finally, President Nixon directed the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend temporarily the convertibility of the dollar. "The effect of this action will be to stabilize the dollar and to strengthen the trading position of the United States in foreign markets," remarked Representative Carter.

"It is my feeling that the actions taken by President Nixon will be extremely beneficial to our economy," affirmed the Fifth District Congressman. "In fact, I advised that this be done nearly two years ago. I believe that we must work together to revitalize our economy."

Capitol Digest

Gov. Louie B. Nunn announced that, beginning August 1, all horses in Kentucky will be vaccinated against sleeping sickness and lifted on embargo on horses entering the state. The embargo had been in effect since Aug. 9 to prevent the spread of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) into Kentucky. The disease has killed hundreds of horses in several southern and western states this summer. All equine animals, including horses, ponies and mules, will be included in the vaccination program. The cost of the program, expected to reach between $1 and $1.5 million, will be borne by the federal government.

Governor Nunn said the vaccination will not be compulsory as long as the horse industry cooperates with the program. State Veterinarian L.G. Northstade said the state would set up from one to six vaccination points in each county, depending on the size of the horse population. Governor Nunn said his lifting of the embargo is a result of verification that the VEE vaccine is safe and no longer experimental. Under the new edict all horses from states where VEE is not known will be allowed to enter Kentucky and horses from states where the disease is known to exist will be allowed to enter only if they have been vaccinated.

HEALTH CHIEF ASSESSES KY LAKE MERCURY
State Health Commissioner Dr. William McElwain has issued a statement urging fishermen not to regularly eat fish taken from Kentucky Lake. Recent examinations of fish taken from the lake show a mercury content well above the safe level announced by the federal government.

However, Dr. McElwain said he did not "see any cause for alarm" in the mercury contamination in the lake at this time. He stressed the lack on lake fish applies mainly to families who "eat fish 52 weeks out of the year."

However he did say pregnant women should not eat fish from the lake at all.

TEAM TOURS MICHIGAN

All persons having claims against said estate should present them verified, according to law, to the said George Blair, Boone, Kentucky, or to William D. Gregory, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, attorney for said estate, no later than November 25, 1971.

NOTICE
Notice is hereby given that Virginia Owens-Saylor, Brothead, Kentucky, has been appointed executrix of the estate of John L. Saylor, deceased. All persons having claims against said estate should present them verified, according to law to the said Virginia Owens Saylor, Brothead, Kentucky, or to James W. Lembert, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, attorney for said estate no later than December 2, 1971.

trial developers visited industrial prospects in the Great Lakes area recently, testing the reaction to President Nixon's "new economic program." The group made stops at Dearborn and Detroit, Mich. State Commerce Commissioner William W. Grubes said the prospects were divided into two classes, "those that we are currently working with and feel that the time is right for a decision on plant expansions, and new prospects where we have had no contact in the past."

"The results of the mission," Grubes said, "should help guide us in subsequent visits by economic-environmental team scheduled through December."

The Commerce Department's programs, including industrial development, are designed to contact American industry, encourage them to invest in Kentucky and create more jobs.

STATE WILL TRAIN PROVIDERS
The state departments of Health and Public Safety are launching a series of advanced courses in emergency medical care in 15 Kentucky cities. The program, funded with a federal grant from the Comprehensive Medical Emergency Service Project in the U.S. Department of Transportation, will run for the next seven months.

Plans for the program were developed by a special project planning staff with the help of the state's 16 Comprehensive Health Planning Councils. Some 2000 ambulance drivers have been invited to participate in the program, along with firemen, policemen, nurses, rescue squad members and others involved in emergency public care.

The courses will cover all aspects of emergency medical care and transportation of the sick and injured. Some 25 lessons are involved, with 7 1/2 hours of classroom training plus 10 hours of in-hospital observation. Classes will be limited to 40 students each and there is no tuition fee.

Kentucky and Connecticut are the first states to implement such a program.

WELFARE AN URBAN PROBLEM
Economic Security Commissioner Merritt S. Deitz Jr. says welfare in Kentucky and across the nation has become "essentially an urban problem."

In a luncheon address to the Citizens Committee of the Health and Welfare Council of Louisville and Jefferson County, Deitz pointed out that 50 per cent of the growth in the program for aid to families with dependent children is in Jefferson County.

"If you include Northern Kentucky and Lexington along with Louisville, then you can account for 80 per cent of the growth in the program," he said.

"We must deal with our problems in the estate, or better yet, at the local level, where they first appear," he added.

"We must attempt to free ourselves and our community of the atmosphere of advocacy and even hostility, which only inhibits true progress in the field of community development."

He proposed that Kentucky state government and the Health and Welfare Council begin serious discussions on the delivery of Title IV-A services in Jefferson County by the helping agencies represented on the council.

Under Title IV-A of the Social Security Act, it is possible for a private agency, by contracting with the Department of Economic Security, to administer three matching federal dollars for every publicly donated dollar used for these services.

Training—The state departments of Health and Public Safety are launching a series of advanced courses in emergency medical care in 15 Kentucky cities. Some 2000 ambulance drivers, along with firemen, policemen and nurses, have been invited to participate in the program.

Mrs. Homer Pierce Sulfridge

Hilton - Sulfridge

The Holy Sanctuary Church Barea provided the setting for a wedding when Miss Joyce Louise Hilton, daughter of Mr. J. J. Mrs. James G. Hilton, Aute 2, became the bride of Homer Pierce Sulfridge, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sulfridge of Pineville.

Nuptial vows were spoken Saturday, August 14 with Rev. Billy D. Bolan serving as officiating clergyman.

Mrs. Sulfridge is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Brock and Mrs. Eligh H. Hilton, all of Route 3, Crab Orchard.

Baskets of white mums and gladioli interspersed with greenery were flanked by graduated wrought iron standards holding cathedral tapers to form a background for the bride. She was wearing a multi-colored gown depicting the same colors.

Bob Adkins of Norwood, Ohio performed the duties of best man for the bridegroom. Ushers were Doug Carmack, Richard Kriege and L.G. Martin, all of Norwood, Ohio. Junior usher was Doug Ledford of Crab Orchard.

A reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the church. The three tiered wedding cake was accented with pink sugar roses and topped with lace wedding bells. Misses Sue Hilton and Marcia Martin assisted with serving while Mrs. Roite Ricketts presided at the guest register.

Mr. and Mrs. Sulfridge departed on a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mexico with the bride, choosing a white knit dress with a white carnation corsage.

They will make their home in Norwood, Ohio.

GREATEST GATHERING IN ROCKCASTLE COUNTY

Bob Bray of Route 1 in the Ottawa section of the county saw the pictures in last week's Signal concerning Southern Corn Blight being in the county again this year and decided to clue farmers in on the success he has had with the type of corn he planted. Mr. Bray, shown in the above photo, planted Argentina film corn the DeKalb F380 variety with 100% normal cytoplasm. The grains on this corn are harder than the dent variety of corn which is most commonly planted in this county.

County Agent's Notes

By H. Lee Durham

Start New Alfalfa and Pasture Seedings Now

Start your next year's forage crop now with (1) well-prepared seedbed, limed and fertilized to soil test requirements and (2) an early seeding. For alfalfa, the pH (lime test) should be 5.8 or above. If the pH is below 5.8, better check with me before making a seeding. Too, an alfalfa seeding should be made not later than mid-September.

Pasture seedings, especially grass alone where legumes can be seeded next spring, can be made later. The first of October is OK if a seeding of small grain is made with it. Some of the most widely used mixtures are shown below.

Permanent or Rotation Pasture Mixtures - (Pounds Per acre) (1) Kentucky bluegrass, 8 to 12; White clover, 1/2 to 1; Red Clover, 4 to 8; (2) Tall fescue, 8 to 8; (3) Orchardgrass, 6 to 8; (4) Smooth brome grass, 12 to 15; Plus 1/2 to 2 pounds Ladino and 4 to 6 pounds red clover.

For Hay, Silage, or Rotation Pastures - (Pounds Per acre) (1) Alfalfa, 10 to 12; Orchardgrass, 4 to 6 or Clair timothy, 3 to 4; (2) Red clover, 6 to 10; Plus orchardgrass or timothy as above.

Fescue (4 to 6 pounds), bluegrass (3 to 6 pounds), or brome grass (10 to 12 pounds) can be substituted for orchardgrass or timothy.

Swine Producers Asked to Report Disease Outbreaks

Report any major outbreak of swine disease immediately to your local veterinarian, or to your state or federal Regulatory personnel. This advice to farmers comes from Dr. D.E. LaBore, specialist in veterinary medicine with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service.

The reason for this special appeal to swine producers is the recent outbreak of African swine fever (ASF) in Cuba. Although this dangerous swine disease has not been reported in the United States, every possible effort must be made to protect U.S. hogs from this disease, LaBore says.

ASF seems to affect only swine - other animals and people are not in danger from this disease. But ASF is a special threat because it kills most of the hogs that become infected and because this virus-caused disease spreads so rapidly and easily. The virus can be carried on clothing, footwear and equipments as well as by pork and pork products.

And, at present, there's no vaccine to prevent it and no way to treat it.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a strong campaign underway to keep ASF out of this country, LaBore notes. All people, products, luggage, and packages arriving from countries where ASF exists are being closely inspected. And no pork or pork products can be imported from Cuba, France, Italy, Portugal, Spain and all African countries.

"Kentucky swine seem to be in no danger from ASF at this time, and we want to make sure it stays that way," LaBore says. "Since ASF can be carried in so many ways and since the disease is hard to recognize just by looking at sick animals, any major outbreak of swine disease should be checked immediately by someone who can test for ASF."

"Reporting such an outbreak is in your own interest," LaBore reminds swine producers. "Most likely, the trouble will not be ASF but, if it should be, quick diagnosis could help protect the Kentucky swine industry."

Protect Leather Goods From Mildew Damage

Mildew is a maddening, nasty destructive fact of life for many Kentucky families in the good old summertime. Leather is especially susceptible to damage from this fungus growth. Many folks have this muggy-weather problem either in closets or under control with dehumidifiers, air conditioners, electric fans, and various chemicals that absorb moisture. But according to UK Extension Home Management Specialist Florence Parker, a lot of the rest of us wait to go into action until we find mildew damage.

Better check up on leather shoes, luggage, handbags and belts now, before it's too late, she cautions. If these items haven't been properly stored, it won't take mildew long to moulder away in the leather and completely ruin it.

If leather goods show signs of mildew or have a musty smell, wash them off with a cloth rung out in a mixture of 1 cup of alcohol or rubbing alcohol and 1 cup of water. Follow this with a thick suds of saddle soap, or use any soap containing a germicide or fungicide. Dry a room where the air is circulating freely, or out in the sun. Sunshine will kill mildew spores.

For future protection, polish the leather with a wax dressing, or with a paste floor wax. The film of wax protects leather from moisture, and mildew can't grow on the wax. You can freshen up the inside of shoes with a room deodorant spray that contains a germ killer.

Mildew growth on the cloth interior of shoes and handbags can be removed with a formaldehyde solution, obtainable from your druggist, says Mrs. Parker. Wearing rubber or plastic gloves to protect your hands, moisten a cloth ball with the solution and scrub the surface thoroughly. Then wrap shoes tightly in a plastic bag and allow the vapors to permeate for at least an hour. Before using the shoes or handbags, air them thoroughly out-of-doors, because formaldehyde vapors can be very irritating. Avoid inhaling them or getting the solution on your skin.

Another way to stop mold growth in leather goods is to scatter crystals of paradichlorobenzene in them, then place a plastic bag or other airtight container. The vapors will kill molds that have grown into the leather, but they'll give no protection against future contamination. As the vapors leak out, you'll need to add more crystals. Before using, air the leather goods thoroughly. Do not use paradichlorobenzene in luggage with plastic fittings.

Molds that cause mildew are always present in the air, but they need dampness and warm temperatures to grow. During muggy weather, they flourish in houses that are closed or poorly ventilated. They feed on cotton, linen, rayon, silk, wool, leather, wood and paper. Many of the new man-made fibers are resistant to molders; are resistant to mildew.

If you have closets that can be tightly closed, it's a good idea to use moisture-absorbing chemicals such as silica gel, activated alumina, or calcium chloride. Check up on them often to see if they need to be dried out again or replaced. If you have louvered closed doors, try to keep the room and closet well ventilated with window fan or air conditioner. Garment bags will give only partial protection to clothes, because they are seldom airtight. And if your clothes were put in slightly damp, the plastic or waterproof nylon will help hold in the moisture. So it's a good idea to check your clothes in storage several times during the summer and early fall. They may need to have paradichlorobenzene crystals or moisture-absorbing chemicals added, need laundering, drycleaning or a good sunning in the open air.

Fungicide sprays are helpful in reducing mildew in closets, closed rooms and small areas. Just follow carefully the directions on the can.

Remember To Observe

Set-Aside Requirements

"Producers participating in the 1971 set-aside farm programs are reminded of the need for continuing observance of set-aside requirements," Mr. Shelle Mullins, Chairman of the Rockcastle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said today.

He pointed out that even though crop acreages have been certified and virtually all program participants have received their preliminary set-aside payments, the requirements relating to set-aside acreages must continue to be met through the remainder of the year.

The set-aside represents that acreage on a farm which must be devoted to conserving uses in addition to the conserving base if a producer is participating in any of the three voluntary programs -- feed grain, wheat, and cotton.

"Responsibility for making certain that the set-aside requirement is met falls primarily on the farm operator. However, each producer on the farm has certain responsibilities too, because of his vital interest in this matter. His benefits are reduced proportionately if total benefits for the farm are reduced because of failure to comply," the ASC Committee Chairman said.

Any producer who has a question about program compliance or wants to know more details about requirements should get in touch with the County ASC's Office, Mr. Mullins said.

Hunting & Fishing

Laws and regulations governing the fish and wildlife field were designed to protect and perpetuate fish and wildlife resources of the state while at the same time allowing the hunter and the fisherman, the photographer and the viewer the pleasures of their favorite pursuits.

No-one law, so far as we can determine, was made for the protection of an individual or groups of individuals. Rather they all were enacted so that animals and birds might be protected and along with them their counterpart, the species homo sapiens, many enjoy the great outdoors in its entirety.

Most hunters and fishermen, we believe, feel pretty much the same way about those entrusted with making the rules and regulations governing wildlife. That's why it is so difficult to understand why such a great number of persons are arrested each year for hunting or fishing without license or with an improper license.

For instance a surprising statistic was revealed in the July monthly report of the Law Enforcement Division of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. During that 31-day period a total of 592 persons were arrested. Of that number 494 were arrested on license charges—without licenses or with improper ones.

To us it is almost inconceivable that so many persons would risk being arrested. To prevent such a charge being filed against them a mere $5 would guarantee that they could fish or hunt for a full year without the embarrassment of an arrest or citation.

The July report prompted a check of the types of violations for the six-month period beginning December 1970. This report also was most surprising.

It showed that about 67 percent of the persons arrested in that period were cited on license charges. The exact figures revealed that 3728 had been arrested on all counts, and that 2500 of that number had been arrested for license irregularities.

During April the greatest number of arrests were made, with 1339 being cited into the courts. Of that number, 978 were cited on license charges.

A person who hunts or fishes without license or uses improper licenses is not only paying himself open a fine, but is also not paying his fair share of the cost of protecting and perpetuating the game and fish supply of the state.

Money from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses is funneled back into the game programs and the persons who are paid for their services. By not paying their share of the cost are renegeing on their neighbors.
