Hunting & Fishing

Some things just seem to set off a chain reaction.

We're talking about the deer population and the great increase in the number of bow and arrow participants in Kentucky's archery deer hunt.

Time was, back in the 40's, when there were scarcely enough deer to dent the census totals. Then the sportsman backed the Department of Fish and Wildlife in stocking suitable areas with deer and with strict protection for the deer stock.

Through this cooperative understanding, Fish and Wildlife has been able to bring back the deer populations to upwards of 60,000 and to permit the hunting of these animals in every county in Kentucky.

To harvest the surplus production of principally, the white-tailed deer, seasons have been opened to bow and arrow hunters throughout the months October and December in every county. Gun hunters also have their season, a five-day period beginning this year Nov. 13 and extending through Nov. 19.

The bow and arrow hunters may harvest either sex deer, but gun hunters, who harvest the greatest number of surplus deer, may take only bucks with forked antler or antlers except for a three-county area, Barren, Hart and Edmonson, where either sex deer are legal. Of course, only one deer may be taken per season by a hunter either in the gun or bow and arrow season.

This great increase in the number of deer harvestable has brought on with a rush an ancient hunting sport which deer hunters in 1970. The total hunters, gun and archery, were no more than 1,700 bow and arrow deer hunters in 1970. The best year for the archery hunt-the contests concerned accuracy with the arrows at a given distance. Then in 1957, a deer hunting season was proclaimed for 26 counties and right away the interest of the archery clubs picked up. They began to expand, and attract new members on a statewide basis.

The growth has been continuous and the participants have been more active as greater areas of the state have been opened to deer hunting. This deer hunting phase has undoubtedly been the greatest incentive to those who fancy the bow and arrow. Archery participants last year were roughly one-fourth the total number who hunted deer in this state.

According to figures tabulated by the Game Management division of the department there were 11,700 bow and arrow deer hunters in 1970. The total hunters, gun and archery, was 45,700, with 7859 successful. Of this number the bow and arrow men and women brought home 677 deer. The best year for the archery hunters was in 1968 when 930 deer were taken by 7900 hunters.

Last year was the biggest from the standpoint of hunter participation, but this apparently will not hold for long. County clerks are now selling deer hunting permits rapidly in preparation for the upcoming season, and this year's number may exceed all records. And still, with this careful planning for the harvest of surplus deer, the population continues to inch forward and eventually will reach the carrying capacity for Kentucky habitat.

Deer tags, which must be held by all deer hunters, cost $10.50 and are valid for the bow and arrow and gun hunter, resident or non-resident. And so, with the increasing deer herd came a sportsman reaction -- hunting with bows and arrows.

BRIDGES THE GAP

By Cheryl Witt
County Extension Agent in Home Economics and 4-H

October 3 through October 9 is National 4-H "4-H Bridges the Gap" theme. This year's theme, "4-H Bridges the Gap," has a special meaning for the four million boys and girls enrolled in the 4-H program. Of these four million, over 400 are boys and girls in Rockcastle County. They are your sons or daughters, neighbors, friends, club members or customers. These youth are learning to bridge many gaps as they strive to make a better world for tomorrow. As they attempt to find their own special place in our world, they are confronted with many gaps of uncertainty.

Many people feel that the young people today are "dropping out" of society and wonder "what is the world coming to?" The youth today have a much more complex world to conquer as they grow into adulthood than did their parents and grandparents. Today's youth are more concerned with their environment and the world around them than have past generations been. They attempt to find gaps about their future, their goals, dreams, opportunities and apprehensions... about misunderstanding between people with different views and backgrounds, people of different religious convictions and political viewpoints, different educational and experience levels.

Young people, through 4-H, are learning to bridge some of these gaps by creating unity through cooperation. They also learn that some gaps are cultural and they should use them to their advantage. Through 4-H participants can reach others, understand and accept others, appreciate others, and learn from them. Thus, they can become stronger, more confident citizens, having gained strength and knowledge to bridge the gaps without conflict and dissension.

Right now 4-H clubs are being organized in the schools in the county with the cooperation of Mr. Tom Payne at Roundstone School, Mr. Biggs Towery at Brohead School, and Mr. Buford Parkerson at the Livingston School. Some of the organized 4-H clubs in the county are the Hullybilly Wildcatters under the leadership of Mrs. Bernice Waddie, in the Blue Springs-Sand Springs Community, the Loyal Clovers under the leadership of Mrs. Edith Lamb in the Conroy Community, and the Mt. Vernon Teed 4-H Club whose leader is Mrs. Ruby Stewart. There is also a special interest club, the Rockcastle County 4-H Horse and Pony Club under the guidance of Mr. Jack Owens and Mr. Paul Gentry.

The 4-H members in Rockcastle County are active, learning to bridge the gaps in:

- Environment by fighting air and water pollution, learning about land reclamation, and understanding soil, water and plant relationships to man.
- Health by promoting good health habits and health education.
- Community betterment by building more pleasant, safe surroundings, and group activities in community organizations.

- Careers by gaining knowledge of future careers through the numerous 4-H projects offered.

- Management by learning management techniques in the home and in project work.

- Self improvement by gaining and understanding of themselves through working with others and by developing confidence in their abilities by participation in 4-H activities.

The national 4-H program is supported by approximately $72,000,000 annually from federal, state, and local governments. But it still needs support from private sources to keep it operating. The 4-H program is co-ordinated through the Cooperative Extension Service who is committed to serving young people of all economic, social and racial backgrounds - both rural and urban. But it is the local leaders, parents, and community who make 4-H the dynamic youth education program it is and it can be.

Anyone who likes young persons, who feels a responsibility for the future of their community and their nation is encouraged to become involved in the 4-H program. A group of concerned citizens and leaders in the county form a body called a 4-H council. They work together and with the communities within the county to plan 4-H activities. The 4-H program in the county. Concerned persons who enjoy working with youth can act as 4-H club leaders. Leaders are also needed to help within the schools for special events and projects. 4-H needs you -- now!

If you are interested in joining a 4-H Club contact the club leader or the County Extension Office, if you are interested in forming a 4-H club in your community, the county home agent will be happy to help you. If you are willing to lend support through involvement as a leader or to act on the 4-H council, drop in the County Extension Office or call 256-2402. The youth of Rockcastle County need you. Remember that 4-H works with the most important crop in the county - the young people.

Some of the activities which county 4-H members participate in can be seen in the above photos. The top photo is of the Specialty Act which took second place in the 4-H Talent Show held at Roundstone School last November. The act was from the Livingston Fourth Grade 4-H Club and making up the act were, left: Georgetta McCowan, Barbara Sowder, Leata Waddie and Sandra Sturgill. In March of this year, nine 4-H members and two leaders journeyed to Bell County to take part in the annual Area 4-H Talk Meet. Those participating in the meet are shown in the middle photo. They are, from left: Mrs. Carla Hale, Marcia Lamb, Charlotte Beasley, Nora Winstead, Ricky Thomas, Carolyn Lamb, Jennifer Ponder, Sheila Wilson, Bradie Durham, Jeffrey Saylor and Mrs. Edith Lamb, Rockcastle County was also well represented at the Area Demonstration Day held April 24 at Jackson County High School. In the bottom photo are, front row, from left: Eugene Howard, Joy Norton, Debbie Lavigne, Priscilla Naber, Carolyn Lamb, Marcia Lamb and Debbie Sheehan. Back row, from left: Jeffrey Saylor, Kimberly Anglin and Albert York.

WHITE HALL—A LOOK AT KENTUCKY'S PAST

(Photos by Public Information)

Some 2000 Kentuckians recently gathered at White Hall in Madison County to look into Kentucky's past and pay tribute to Cassius Marcellus Clay, the famed 19th-century Kentucky abolitionist and statesman. The 42-room mansion, dedicated by Governor and Mrs. Louie B. Nunn, is Kentucky's newest state shrine. Standing empty for years, the mansion was purchased in 1968 by the state and restored through the efforts of Mrs. Nunn and the Kentucky Department of Parks.

Located off I-75, White Hall is now open to the public.

CONGRESSMAN TIM LEE Carter Comments

Rep. Tim Lee Carter said today that he is encouraged that the Congress is now considering legislation that would provide funds for a massive all-out attack on cancer.

A SALUTE TO THE 4-H CLUB

We're proud of the achievements of today's 4-H Club members. It's good to know that they are the farmers, homemakers, and craftsmen of tomorrow. Congratulations, 4-H'ers!

most dread diseases known to mankind.

Congressman Carter stated that the Subcommittee on Public Health and Environment on which he serves, is deeply involved in what has become a national emergency.

"The only reason many more cancer cures are not being achieved right now is simply that a greater effort has not been made. We have many new tools and much new knowledge. We could progress more rapidly if the appropriate numbers of people, facilities and resources were applied to the task of the conquest of cancer," Dr. Carter said.

"The problem we face today with our present apparatus for cancer research recalls for me the situation we faced with our veterans hospitals following World War II -- when expert hospital care was so badly needed for those men who had so gallantly sacrificed themselves for our country. But, the sad fact was that the Veterans Administration and, in turn, the veterans hospitals were in a scandalous state of disrepair and disrepair.

"In an effort to remedy this situation, Dr. Paul Magnuson, an eminent physician from Chicago, was called in; and by gathering medical experts from throughout the country, the Veterans Administration was revitalized and rebuilt.

"Getting back to our problem of today -- the original chemotherapy program to develop a chemical weapon against leukemia took 20 years to achieve positive results. It should have been concluded in five or six. This holds true today for many weapons that are being developed; a greater effort would bring greater results much more quickly."

Congressman Carter continued by saying that, "it is as though, having massed forces for the invasion of Europe and the assault on Germany in 1944, we had suddenly postponed the landing in France, permitted large numbers of troops to drift away, and reduced the landing force so that a swift victory slipped from our grasp.

"This is why I am strongly supporting the proposal to establish a new National Cancer Authority to be devoted entirely to mobilizing the nation's resources and talents to conquer cancer at the earliest possible time.

"There is not, at the present time, a single coordinated national program. Despite the work of the National Cancer Institute, research has not been well coordinated and has not been given the necessary priorities and funding. The responsibility of the proposed new agency would be to accelerate the progress by mobilizing the total potential of this nation. It would support on a truly adequate scale all those institutions that are wholeheartedly committed to cancer research."

Rep. Carter said, "I realize that arguments have been raised against such a new cancer agency because it is felt by some that it will somehow separate cancer-research scientists from other researchers. This must not happen. Our advances in technology have made possible broader and swifter communication between scientists than we ever dreamed. By means of closed-circuit television, computers and the like, we are developing coordinated records of research projects that are going throughout this country and the world.

"I am firmly convinced that a new national agency would greatly increase the opportunities for communication among cancer centers, cancer scientists, and all those in other fields of scientific and medical endeavor."

Congressman Carter said further that, "This great effort, it is pointed out, can not be too great in terms of American natural resources and the economic losses now attributed to cancer. The current cost of cancer is estimated to be as high as $15 billion a year. Consider what it could mean to overburdened hospitals and health-care facilities to be relieved of the tremendous burden of treating and caring for cancer patients. Consider also the hundreds of thousands of lives that will be lost just this year. Fifty million people now alive are destined to develop cancer unless we put a stop to it. Consider the pain, suffering, and disruption of happy family life.

"I believe that in terms of basic economics the battle is well worth the cost, in terms of morality and human decency, no cost is too great. It is for these most compelling reasons that I have firmly committed myself to make the control of this dread disease a national goal."

YOU & THE DRAFT
 Among other provisions, legislation now pending in Congress authorizes the President to grant deferments to students preparing for the ministry under the direction of recognized churches or religious organizations. The law would apply to those who are satisfactorily pursuing full-time courses of instruction in recognized theological or divinity schools.

In addition, a student who is satisfactorily pursuing full-time courses of instruction leading to his entrance into recognized theological schools in which he has been pre-enrolled may also receive a ministerial deferment.

The student preparing for the ministry is still required to register within five days after reaching his 18th birthday. If he receives a deferment he remains liable for training and service until he reaches age 35.

The pending legislation does not change the authority of the President to grant exemptions from military service for those registrants who are pursuing vocations as regular ministers of religion or duly ordained ministers of religion. These registrants also are required to register at the appropriate time.

Under the present law the President is authorized to grant exemptions to the stu-

It Cost Money Not To Lime

Recently a prominent agricultural experiment station published some figures that opened our eyes.

Based on 26 years of experimental results, it was stated that a 160-acre farm, which used lime and clover had an average annual income of $950 more than the same farm would have made without lime and clover.

At least Thanksgiving isn't too far off and Mrs. Martha Atkins of Mt. Vernon will have plenty of pumpkins for the traditional pie. Mrs. Atkins' niece, Mrs. Simmie Grubb of Clarkrange, Tennessee is shown in the above photo with a pumpkin which she and her husband (formerly of Pine Hill) grew as one of twenty off of two seeds. The one shown in the photo weighed seventy pounds and measured fifty-eight inches around. The Grubbs donated the pumpkin to Mrs. Atkins and Mrs. Atkins was wondering how many quarts she could get from canning the one pumpkin. Also in the photo is Dwayne Miller, a grandson of Mrs. Atkins.

News About Kentucky

An estimated 2,000 persons thronged at White Hall, home of Cassius Marcellus Clay, as Gov. and Mrs. Louie B. Nunn formally opened the state's newest shrine to the public.

In dedicating the 42-room mansion, Governor Nunn said, "In human relations, in warfare, and in politics, Cassius Marcellus Clay personified in his time the foresight, courage and tenacity that we need in our time to alter and shape history."

Calling Clay "a man not for a day but for all time," the governor said, "As we dedicate his beloved White Hall as a state shrine, let us also rededicate ourselves to those things which characterized the good acts of its master: an abiding commitment to our convictions; willingness to take a position; and readiness, if necessary, to weather popular opinion to defend it."

He told the audience that "as an editor, orator, emancipator, ambassador and respected advisor to Abraham Lincoln, Clay made personal sacrifices of such magnitude that the course of human events was forever altered. "With his abolitionist newspaper, The True American, he was one of the earliest fighters for freedom of the press," he said.

Governor Nunn pointed out that it was Clay's influence at the convention of 1860 which helped Abraham Lincoln win his party's nomination for President. He also noted that the views Clay and Lincoln shared on the evils of human bondage shaped the Emancipation Proclamation.

The dedication climaxed a two-year restoration effort spearheaded by Mrs. Nunn.

Appearing as the guest of honor, she thanked those involved in the restoration and those who had donated or sold back to the state original White Hill furnishings.

She gave special recognition to the Madison County Garden Club, whose initial work had helped result in the state's purchase of the 19th century home, and to Floyd Neenan, master carpenter and supervisor of the structural restoration.

The older portion of the house, Clermont, was constructed in 1798-99 by Green Clay, Cassius' father.

The newer portion was built in 1861 under the supervision of Clay's wife, Mary Jane Warfield, to Clay's specifications while Clay was serving as Minister to Russia.

Clay died at White Hall in July 1852, and records show his personal belongings were sold on the premises for $3,324.00 the following October. Later that month the estate was sold to a grandson, Warfield Bennett, for $29,225.

Although White Hall remained in the family, it became the victim of age, weather and vandals. Graffiti covered the walls, the woodwork was whitened, the hardwood banisters were used as firewood and every trace of marble from the entry disappeared. Finally a wall buckled and the floor of Clay's bedroom fell into the parlor below. A thicket of weeds grew up surrounding the house.

In 1968 the State purchased 13 acres of the estate for $16,375. Clay's great-granddaughter and great-grandson, Miss Esther S. Bennett of Richmond and her brother, Warfield, donated the house and the outbuildings.

Some Clay bets and other donated or lent original family pieces purchased at 1903 sale. Other items and furniture of the period had to be purchased.

Mrs. Nunn commented at the dedication that a cannon, which Clay installed in a small room on the top level of the house to use as a warning to his enemies, a sword and a bowie knife still are missing.

Among the original furnishings which may be seen at the mansion are the four-poster bed in which Clay was born and died, his desk, guns and paintings that were his.

The two cast-iron lions which great visitors at the entrance of White Hall are believed to be the ones which originally stood there.

The pending legislation authorizes the President to grant deferments, and not exemption, from military service for the student preparing for the ministry.

For those registrants whose files are properly documented, the local boards will consider for classification of IV-D. Currently there are 1,111 registrants in Kentucky enjoying such classification.

The new legislation continues the historic concept of authorizing the President to grant either an exemption or deferment for those registrants who are active in the christian ministry depending upon the degree of their training and professionalism.

Mt. Vernon Contestants For Carnival Told

The Mt. Vernon Graded and High School will hold its annual Halloween Carnival on Friday night, October 29.

The students in each class select their representative; however, an individual is permitted to win the Prince and Princess only once in grade school. The same is true for the King and Queen in high school.

Each candidate may start his or her drive for victory no earlier than October 18th, as it is the request of the school personnel that these contests last for only two weeks.

The classes have selected the following people to represent them.

Prince and Princess candidates are:

first grade, Bobby Bailey and Jeletta Burdette; second grade, Jack Douglas Lewis and Deborah Reynolds; third grade, Bobby Cummins and Kelli Cummins; fourth grade, Jeffrey Burdette and Rebecca Tolle; fifth grade, Richard Adair and Linda Jackson; sixth grade, Larry Harmon and Julie Lewis; seventh grade, Ellis Kirby and Serena Stewart; eighth grade, Jerry Penzol and Denise Daitley.

King and Queen candidates are:

ninth grade, Kenny Stearns and Brenda Baker; tenth grade, Ricky Kirby and Debbie Soward; eleventh grade, John Hunt and Joy Parsons and twelfth grade, Lyndon Smith and Lisa Belle Lyndon.

Pictured above is the 87-units of The Kentucky Motel now under construction on U.S. 25 just north of the Burr Interchange of L75. The motel to be built by Beben Hammonds says that when the motel is completed it will comprise sixty units including a laundromat, private dwelling and a pool in front.

Sand Springs Area Hit By Flash Flood

Residents of the Sand Springs Community were busy drying things out Sunday and Monday after 2.66 inches of rain fell late Saturday night and Sunday morning causing the normally placid Sand Springs Creek to leave its banks and rage unchecked through the lowlands and hollows.

Perhaps the hardest hit was Freddie Renner whose home is situated right at the junction of Marler Branch and Sand Springs Creek. Mr. Renner said he and his family woke up about 2 a.m. Sunday morning to find two feet of water in their house. After the water had receded, Mr. Renner said, three inches of mud was left behind on all the floors. Several pieces of furniture in the Renner home and a carpet had been purchased only the week before. Needless to say, damage was heavy. The family was lucky in a way though since, according to Renner, the only thing that kept his late model car from being carried away by the water, as happened to two or three, was the fact that the car washed up against a small bush in his yard.

Directly across from the Renner home, on the other side of Marler Branch, Carter Renner had finished cutting a little over half of his tobacco crop and left the stalks out in the field to wilt a few days. During the height of the flash flood, all of the cut tobacco was swept off the field, into the creek and deposited in various spots around the neighborhood.

At least two cars, one belonging to Shirley McClure and the other to Buell Marler, were swept away. Mr. Marler's late model Mustang looked like it had been wrecked up in a collision after it was retrieved.

The water also leveled corn which was still standing in the fields and washed out Sand Springs Road in several places.

Virgil Hawks, also of Sand Springs, will remember the flood for some time to come. Mr. Hawks reportedly had recently purchased a coon hound for $100. The dog was chained to his dog house and when the waters came the house was washed off and the dog with it. There was no way to reach the house and Mr. Hawks had

New Motel Now Under Construction

Twenty-seven units of the Kentucky Motel will be ready for occupancy about Christmas, according to Reuben Hammonds, owner. The motel is located about 500 yards south of the Burr interchange of Interstate-75 next to Mr. Hammonds grocery store.

The motel will be colonial style on the outside with Spanish Colonial furnishings inside according to Mr. Hammonds, there will be a pool ready by next Spring.

Besides the initial twenty-seven units, there will also be a laundromat and a private dwelling. Upon completion, the motel will comprise ninety units and will employ approximately fifteen people.

Mr. Hammonds also plans to lease a site to someone for a restaurant.

World Conference Scheduled For October 10 thru 17

A Baptist World Missions Conference will be held at the Rockcastle and Tates Creek Associations beginning October 10 and continuing through October 17.

Twelve home, foreign and state missionaries will be present for the conference and the first gathering will be at the Broadhead Baptist Church on Sunday, October 13 and will be followed by meetings at Freedom, Mt. Pleasant, Mt. Zion, Mt. Vernon, Northside, Poplar Grove and Springs, Watts Chapel, Liberty Ave., Middletown and the last meeting under the direction of the Rockcastle Baptist Association will be held October 18 at First Baptist.

Then on October 14, the Tates Creek Association will begin meeting at the Clarksville Baptist.

In conjunction with the conference, the First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon will begin revival services Sunday, October 10. Missionary speaker at the Sunday morning service will be Rev. C. T. Stevens, Missionary to Indonesia and at the Sunday evening service, Miss Ethel Harmon, Missionary to Nigeria will speak.

On Monday night, October 11 at 7:30 p.m., Rev. Gilbert Oakeley, a Home Missionary in Cloria, Home Mexico, will speak. Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m., Rev. Michael Odlyzko, Home Missionary in Buffalo, N.Y., will be the speaker. The last missionary speaker of the revival will be Rev. Eugene F. Quinn, State Missionary from Middletown, who will speak at 7:30 p.m.

Revival speaker will be A.B. Colvin, who will hold services on October 14, 15 and 16 at 7:30 p.m., each evening and at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on October 17.

The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Committees Set Up For New County High School

When school started this fall members of the Junior classes in the three high schools were confronted with the decision of "Do we want a classing from the local schools or the Rockcastle County High School where they will be Seniors next year?"

The consensus of the students was a ring symbolizing the new school. This decision brought up the question of new school colors, mascot and school shield (coat of arms).

A principals' meeting was called at the Office of the Superintendent and it was decided to organize student committees and let them make the decisions.

Each school has selected a representative from its 9, 10, and 11th grade classes plus one student at large from each school.

These twelve students met with the Superintendent and Principals on September 14, to organize and establish responsibilities. Outside, experienced consultants were invited to attend.

Even though students will make the decisions a principal was assigned to each committee to serve as an advisor.

The following committees and their members were established:

A. Color Committee - Alberta Hasty, Grade 11, Brodhead; Glen Hammond, Grade 10, Livingston; Lori Stewart, Mt. Vernon, Grade 9, and Darrell Proctor, Grade 11, Brodhead.

B. Mascot Committee - Larry Ray Travis, Grade 11, Mt. Vernon; Clinton Winstead, Grade 10, Brodhead; Bucky Arvin, Grade 9, Livingston; and Zella Rader, Grade 11, Livingston.

C. School Shield Committee - Bonnie Hellard, Grade 11, Livingston; Elizabeth Allen, Grade 10, Mt. Vernon; Jennifer Poynter, Grade 9, Brodhead; and Tommy Stewart Grade 11, Mt. Vernon.

Superintendent Parsons told the students that their fellow classmates had placed great confidence in them by selecting them as representatives. Also, that they would be making decisions that will affect students and the school system for the next fifty years. Mr. Parsons expressed confidence in the students and told them that their decisions would be final.

He cautioned the committee members that their decision would eventually affect such things as band uniforms, basketball and football uniforms, classings, yearbooks and possibly some door in the new school.

After school colors, mascot and shield are chosen a standard classing for the new high school will be developed. Since it will take four to six months to develop the ring design, members of the Junior classes cannot expect delivery before near the end of this current school year.

Members of the present Senior classes were exempt from the committees since they will not attend the new school.

Emberton At Renoir This Friday Night

There will be big dogs in Renoir Valley this Friday night as Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Emberton will be there for a Republican Rally.

Mr. Emberton, along with Congressman Tim Lee Carter and State Senator Norman Farris, will be at Renoir from about 4:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. and local Republican leaders are planning on a huge crowd being present to hear and meet Mr. Emberton.

There will be free hot dogs, potato chips and drinks served to the public and free entertainment will also be on the program.

School Project Meeting Set For October 6

The Kentucky Infant and Preschool Project will have a Rockcastle County Task Force Meeting October 6, 1971, at 7 p.m. at the Rockcastle County Board of Education.

The meeting is open to the public and anyone interested in the program is invited to attend.

Paul Osborne and Dr. W.R. Bringham, from the Kentucky Human Resources Coordinating Commission will be present to explain the status of the KIPP Program and answer any questions regarding the program.

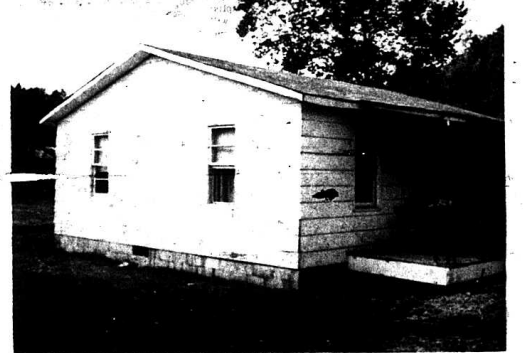

Mrs. Carrie Owens Dies September 29

Mrs. Carrie Owens, 80, (widow of Tilden Owens), died Wednesday afternoon at the Rockcastle County Baptist Hospital.

The body was taken to the Dowell-Martin Funeral Home where arrangements are incomplete.

Brodhead School observed Constitution Week September 17 through 23 and Albert Albright's two American Government classes prepared a most decorative and informative display dealing with the Constitution. The government classes also participated in an essay contest sponsored by the local chapter of the DAR. Winners of that contest, shown in the above photo with Mr. Albright are, from left: Mr. Albright; Brian Hoskins, first place; Billy Soward, second place and Eddie Hamm, third place.

It's hard to believe that a calm, placid little creek could leave its bank and wreck such havoc as the Sand Springs Creek did Saturday night and early Sunday morning. But that is exactly what happened when over 2.5 inches of rain were dumped on Rockcastle County in a matter of about eight hours. Carter Renner, whose tobacco field is shown in the top photo is a believer. Mr. Renner had cut a good portion of his tobacco, as can be seen from the picture, and left it out in the field to get tobacco sticks. But when the creek left its banks, it took the tobacco with it and a good portion of it was deposited on a baymow sitting in the back of the home of Freddie Renner. The next photo down shows the Renner home with the high water mark clearly visible on the side of the house. In the bottom photo, a late model Mustang belonging to Buell Marler is shown after it was retrieved from the water. The car was carried off by the floor and heavily damaged. The Marler home and the home of Fred Doan were both flooded, also.

Henry Hines of Barnett's Subdivision will long remember the heavy rain that fell last Saturday night.

It seems Mr. Hines got up very early Sunday morning but decided to go to work a little early. Well, as he got to the end of the road leading onto the Old Brodhead Road, he hit pretty deep water, so deep in fact that when the water got as far up as his headlights, Mr. Hines decided it was time he and his car parted company. Needless to say it was a mess to clean up the inside of the car and the engine. Reminds me of an incident which occurred to me years ago when I was commuting between Versailles and Lexington. I was coming home from work during a heavy rain storm and came upon a section of the road where water always stood even in heavy dew. Of course, I knew about this section and had already figured out that if I gunned my engine when I got in the water that it would get me through without drowning out. Well, suffice it to say, it was a hectic few minutes or so thereafter for me while I sat on that heavily traveled road waiting for the engine to get dry enough to get me on home. My husband thought it was dumb too.....

I saw in the paper recently where Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Emberton is advocating free textbooks for high school students. Well, it's probably a good idea but I wonder how long it will be before we will all do our little jobs under government control and they will take care of all our needs completely. You know, We are anxious to meet you and will appreciate your help in reaching those who can benefit from this program.

NEW ARRIVAL
 A son, Vernon Lee Thomas, born September 19 to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thomas of Mt. Vernon.

Tom Duncan

Frankfort Watchline

This is the time the finger-nail chawers are sent to their rooms.
 Candidates and those guiding their campaigns are so bent on creating an air of confidence that no signs of worry are allowed.

So you have to sift through every statement--on how fast Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Emberton is gaining strength or how Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford has unified the Democrats as never before.

As in the primary, the best clue may be what's happening in your own county--not second-hand reports from afar.

 Both sides talk of surveys. But wait until you actually see one. And then find out how it was taken.

A Republican spokesman said a poll showed "Ember-ton ahead." When pressed, he revealed that to say it showed him near enough to Ford that the statistical leeway could put him even.

Ford people say they should have a survey completed soon. And they say an early one showed him so far ahead that it was kept secret to keep workers from becoming over-confident and relaxing.

But try to get a real look at any of it.
 You'll do better polling the people in your area and making comparisons with the vote in the last governor's race.

Republicans say it was only routine to send letters to GOP paragon officers across the state.

But the tone was interesting. The letters said, in part: "Tom Emberton needs your help!"
 "Only a few days remain to complete the purging of unqualified voters."

 "It is imperative that you make every effort in these last few days..."
 "Every unqualified Democrat you purge is one less potential vote for Wendell Ford. Please, please go over the rolls one more time."

Ember-ton headquarters denied any knowledge of the letter.

But a query to the Republican State Central Committee, which sent it, drew referral to a committee official who just happened to be at Emberton headquarters--one floor below.

The death of Sixth District Congressman John W. White could heighten tensions, especially among Democrats.

Party leaders picking a candidate may think as much of keeping down factional strife as choosing the strongest candidate.

And always in the background is the certainty that the district must be redrawn drastically in the 1972 Legislature.

ATTENTION SPORTSMEN AND GUN LOVERS
 For all the hunters and sportsmen of the area they will once again be seeing one of the top gun shows in the Midwest at the Annual Daniel Boone Forest Gun Show which will be held in Somerset this weekend at the National Guard Armory.

The event will be held this Saturday and Sunday, October 2 and 3, at the National Guard Armory in Somerset located on Grande Avenue. Some 125 exhibitors from eight states are expected to display over $1 million worth of guns, pocket knives and other hunting items at the two-day event.

Each year the Somerset Kiwanis Club holds the annual event, and this will be their Seventh Annual Daniel Boone Forest and Gun Show. The purpose of the show is to give sportsmen in this area an opportunity to see many of the guns of previous years that are becoming collectors' items. At the same time, the proceeds from the admission charges are used by the Kiwanians in their efforts to help the underprivileged children throughout the year.

Approximately 1,000 persons viewed the million dollar collection of articles last year, and an even bigger crowd is expected to be on hand this year for the two-day "gun and knife" show.

Doors open at 8 a.m. Saturday morning and will remain open until 8 Saturday night. The collection will be open to the public once again on Sunday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Weapons dating back to the early 1800's will be on display, and the public is invited to attend the showing of these weapons and help the local Kiwanians.

Capitol Digest

Gov. Louis B. Nunn has given his backing to a group of Kentucky small coal mine operators seeking changes in the federal Coal Mine Safety Act of 1969.

Opening a recent hearing on the law at Lexington's Phoenix Hotel the governor said the regulation has caused more harm than good in Kentucky and has become "an exercise in contradiction, confusion and futility."

The controversial law hits hardest at small miners who often cannot afford the expensive safety equipment it requires.

Governor Nunn said the law's biggest flaw is its lack of distinction between gassy and non-gassy mines.

About 95 per cent of Kentucky's mines are non-gassy, but since the distinction between the two types has been dropped, the same safety equipment is required for both.

Those same operators are required to spend huge sums protecting workers from gas that does not exist.

"We do not say that changes be made at the expense of lives ... but neither shall we remain silent as unprofitable and illogical obstacles are placed before productivity," Governor Nunn said.

GRANT WILL ALLOW TREATMENT OF CHILDREN

Governor Nunn announced an $80,000 grant to the Bluegrass Regional Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board to activate a re-education program for emotionally disturbed children.

Some $50,000 of that amount will come from the state Department of Mental Health and the remaining $30,000 from the 1970 state bond issue.

Under the program about 64 children per year will be treated at the five-day-a-week center for an average of six months each.

The program will provide formal education geared to the individual students, around "TOM DUNCAN" (Cont. From 2) between the heavily over-populated Fourth and the people-friendly Fifth.

The Legislative Research Council-University praising the economic benefits of toll roads makes a pitch for the one proposed from Elizabethtown to the Lake Cumberland area.

But it didn't say flatly that the toll road system is "one of the wisest decisions ever made" by state government.

It said it may prove to be "if taken in conjunction with enlightened planning."

Those backing the Homestead Tax Amendment have put an interesting alliance ranging from conservative to liberal.

They feel their problem is inertia or indifference on the part of the public more than open opposition.

Mrs. A.B. Chandler came up with the political quote of the campaign when she asked the strain on her 73-year-old husband if he's elected governor.

She said: "I don't think the strain of being governor would hurt him as much as the strain of not being governor."

-the clock individual and group experience, personal training, and demonstration programs for public school teachers.

Governor Nunn said the program also will help students who do not directly attend the school.

"Hundreds of other children will be reached in preventive ways," the governor said.

"Troubled children will receive early diagnosis—but not at the expense of the work of the teams in the schools."

The program will be patterned after a demonstration project at Paducah College in Nashville, Tenn.

Governor Nunn said about 90 per cent of the children who were treated under the program were from non-gassy mines and received follow-up care did not need to return.

CHIEF JUSTICE RECOMMENDS COURTS

Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals, James B. Milliken, has recommended a constitutional amendment creating intermediate appellate courts to ease what he called a "critical workload situation."

Milliken said cases filed with the high court during 1970 increased 19 per cent over 1969.

The court has had the same basic makeup—seven elected judges and four appointed commissioners for the past 25 or 30 years.

"We just cannot handle the volume with the facilities available," Milliken said.

"It has become imperative that the bar and the public realize how critical the situation has become."

Milliken said only structural changes in the judicial article of the state constitution can solve the problem.

"It helps the intermediate appellate courts, like adjacent states have, are essential," he said.

Creation of such courts would require an amendment to the state constitution which would have to be passed by the 1972 General Assembly and approved by the voters in the fall of 1973.

FEDERAL $3 MILLION MEANS 600 JOBS

The U.S. Department of Labor has allocated some $3 million to Kentucky cities and counties to create government jobs for the unemployed.

At about $5000 a job, that will give work to about 600 unemployed Kentuckians.

Mills said one part of a $1 billion appropriation made for the current fiscal year under the new Public Service Employment Act.

The Kentucky funds will be used to aid the jobless in nine high-unemployment neighborhoods in urban areas and in 40 rural counties, many in Eastern Kentucky.

All jobs to be created will be in city and county government.

Louisville, Kenton County and Lexington will receive the largest grants in that order.

The more than $2 million balance of the allocation will be distributed among 40 counties in amounts ranging from $25,100 to $143,400.

LRC TELLS CITIES DON'T SHIFT PROBLEMS TO LEGISLATURE

The director of the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) said Kentucky cities too often have asked the General Assembly to solve local problems and can no longer do so.

James T. Fleming made the comment while addressing the 42nd annual conference of the Kentucky Municipal League in Louisville.

"All too often, local governments, particularly cities, have brought their problems to the legislature and demanded that they be told what to do," Fleming said.

"The result has been that our cities are caught up in a maze of complicated, and sometimes contradictory legislative strictures."

Fleming said state legislators are tired of settling local quarrels and the legislature "cannot go on enacting local ordinances, even if desired by city officials who would shift responsibility."

He predicted the 1972 General Assembly will be "decisive" in determining the future relationship between state and local government.

STATE CHARGES INSUREP WITH LEGAL CUTBACK

The state Insurance Department has charged the Home Insurance Co. of New York, one of the state's largest property insurers, with cutting back its homeowners' coverage for more profitable rates.

Insurance Commissioner Robert Preston ordered an Oct. 20 hearing for the company to show cause why its license should not be revoked or suspended or the company fined.

Preston said the company is refusing to write new homeowners' insurance policies in Kentucky and refusing to renew such policies even though applicants are similar in risks to other policyholders.

He further charged the refusals are based on the applicant's race, the location of the property or on which of the firm's agents is handling business.

The company was described as continuing property and fire coverage for large commercial businesses but cutting out many small property owners.

Preston said the firm is abandoning small property business and keeping larger, more profitable contracts.

"If all companies did this," he said, "small property owners would be unable to get any insurance outside of the Fair (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) plan."

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Coldiron

Hunt - Coldiron

Miss Lynette Hunt became the bride of Roger W. Coldiron Monday evening, September 13 at the First Baptist Church in Mt. Vernon. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Hunt of Mareburg and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Coldiron of Mt. Vernon.

The candle-light double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ray Cummins. The church was decorated with an arch of greenery with baskets of yellow gladiolus and two seven-branched candelabras on each side.

A selection of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ray Cummins, organist, and Mrs. Lee Dunbar, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of angelika lace, styled with a fitted bodice and a-line skirt. Chantilly lace was used on the bodice, edging neckline and elbow-length sleeves. Appliques were repeated on the skirt and the chapel-length train which was attached to a matching bow at the empire waist. Her elbow-length veil of illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses with a white royal orchid centering the bouquet.

Miss Judy Bowling served as maid of honor. She was attired in a floor-length gown of yellow crepe with empire waist trimmed in white lace, and short puffed sleeves. Her handpiece was a matching yellow ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Stephen Owens and Mrs. Gary R. Cromer, sisters of the bride. Mrs. Owens' lavender and Mrs. Cromer's mint green gowns were identical to that of the maid of honor and they were matching hair ribbons.

All three attendants carried long stemmed yellow roses. Billy Dowell served as best man. Ushers were Jackie Strickland and Freddie Evans. Miss Vicki Riddle kept the guest book.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church basement. The bride's table was decorated with a white lace cloth centered by a three tiered wedding cake. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Floyd Stokes, Mrs. Jackie Strickland and Mrs. Larry Daugherty.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. Coldiron returned to San Diego, California where he is stationed with the U.S. Navy while Mrs. Coldiron is presently making her home in Mt. Vernon.

County Agent's Notes

By: H. Lee Durham
Too Late To Treat For Bagworms

The spindle-shaped bags now contain the pupa or "resting" stage of the worm. The use of chemicals now would be a waste of money, since the pupa is not susceptible to the action of the control chemicals. The pupa will soon transform to adults, mating will occur, females will lay eggs in the spindles--this is the overwintering stage. Next spring these eggs will hatch and small caterpillars will start feeding on foliage of the host plants.

It is possible to control the pest NOW by HAND-PICKING and BURNING BAGS. This is time consuming, however, and is usually practical only for small trees and low shrubs.

You see, it's a lot EASIER and more EFFICIENT in the long run to treat in early spring to kill the newly emerged worms. Materials such as Sevin or diazinon can be used for control by homeowners. County agricultural agents have information on formulations, rates, etc.

for the winter. Recent research suggests that for covering the tops you can use tar paper cylinders that will comfortably contain the tops. Make them 24-30 inches high. Place cylinders about the roses just as winter begins. Fill them with almost any airy material which can be kept dry - coarse sawdust, coarse ground corn cobs, or buckwheat hulls. Shredded styrofoam is even better. Cut the rose tops short enough that a black polyethylene plastic cap can be capped over the cylinder and fastened loosely in place. The plastic cap is to keep the material in the cylinder dry.

Cleaning up chickweed is often difficult in a rose bed. Usually 2,4-D plus 2,4,5-T can be used as soon as most of the rose leaves have dropped. CAUTION: Keep the material off the rose canes. This material can be used as long as the chickweed plants are very young. Nebaron can be used from rose leaf drop until the new shoots start in the spring or the chickweed begins to bloom, whichever comes first.

Clover Mites Are Unwelcome Guests

As nights start getting cooler some insects and their relatives start eyeing out cozy homes. Clover mites often migrate into our homes in substantial numbers. They usually are content to feed on grass, clover, and ivy where they cause little harm. Clover mites do not "bite" but annoy people because they are confused with chiggers. Why? Comparable size, and, when you try to brush them from surfaces, some are crushed and leave a persistent red stain.

The most effective way to prevent a problem inside the home is by treating a 10 foot band around the outside of the house with a 0.5% malathion spray. Also treat outside walls up to window level, and around doors, windows, and other entry points. Pyrethrin aerosols are effective for quick-knockdown inside the home.

Time To ...
Think about fall-setting landscape plants.

Lay in a supply of color film to take pictures of Kentucky's new fall color show.

Mark some of the best fall-colored plants for future references.

Study up on spring-flowering bulb varieties.

Don't delay the grass seeding for your new lawn beyond September if you can help it.

Don't overuse an old lawn without also curing the ills that caused your grass to be thin.

Remove and burn the tops of peonies soon to destroy the botrytis disease carry-over. *****
