

Barley Is Included In Feed Grain Program

Pointing out that 1972 crop barley is now being seeded in Rockcastle County, local farm program official Harold Ballinger, reminded growers that barley is included in the 1972 Feed Grain Program. It was not included in the 1971 program.

Eligible growers who plan to participate in the 1972 Feed Grain Program should take note that an acreage set-aside will be required of between 20 and 35 percent of a farm's barley base as well as of the corn and grain sorghum base. The exact percentage will not be known until the 1972 Feed Grain Program announcement is made by the U.S. Department of Agriculture within the next few weeks.

Inclusion of barley in the 1972 program means that the set-aside payments will be made, as they are made for corn and grain sorghum set-aside acreage. No announcement has yet been made of the payment rate, Mr. Ballinger said. The payment rate will be in an equitable ratio with the set aside payment rates for corn and grain sorghum.

The reminder that barley will be included in the 1972 Feed Grain Program is also important because of the substitution provision, he said. Substitution permits a program participant to choose a crop best suited to his farm and market operations and still earn payments and history credit for the crop historically grown on the farm.

Provided set-aside acreage and other program requirements are met, this would mean farmers with wheat allotments may earn wheat program set-aside payments and retain wheat history and allotment credit by growing soybeans instead of wheat. Likewise soybeans may be substituted for barley and other feed grains to maintain history and bases.

A corn producer may switch to grain sorghum. A wheat-and-barley farm may go 100 percent to barley. Or, Mr. Ballinger said, any other combinations of the permissible crops may be substituted, as the producer chooses. He will earn set-aside payments on his farm's allotment and base crops.

Barley growers who were not in the program in 1971 were also reminded that a set-aside requirement does not mean acreage limitation on any crop.

To illustrate, Mr. Ballinger said, "Suppose a grower has a 500-acre farm with a 100-acre barley base. If he participates in the feed grain program, he will set aside acreage representative of his cropland in the required amount and maintain it in conserving use. If the farm has a conserving base, that acreage will also be kept in conserving use. On the rest of the farm, the grower may plant as much barley, or any other crop, except quarts, or as he chooses. He is not limited by his barley base, which is used only to figure his set-aside acreage and set-aside payment."

Full details of the 1972 feed grain set-aside program are expected to be received in the Rockcastle County ASCS office in the near future, said Mr. Ballinger, County Executive Director. "Farmers will be told as soon as possible of all the details," he said.

to the soil annually at the rate of 5 pounds of actual material per 1,000 square feet. Five pounds of actual nitrogen is equivalent to 15 pounds of 33.5 percent actual ammonium nitrate fertilizer. This much nitrogen applied at one time will burn the grass beneath lawntress--so make two or three applications. A slow-release urea formaldehyde fertilizer might also be used as a nitrogen source.

Although recent research in two different states, has shown no significant plant responses to surface or drilled-hole applications of phosphorus or potassium, applying elements to newly graded subsoil type home lawns is still considered beneficial. A 10-6-4, or similar analysis fertilizer, can supply the correct ratio. If the area to be fertilized is 500 square feet, 25 pounds of 10-6-4 surface-applied fertilizer would assist in the new rhizomes and developing plants, thickens up the turf, and also gives the turf a chance to compete with weeds, Durham concludes.

Fall fertilization of lawns is a good time to apply fertilizer to shade trees. Contrary to popular belief, roots do grow during much of the winter when soil is not frozen. As they grow, fertilizer is consumed for use when the tree leaf is in the spring. Fertilizer speeds growth and increases leaf size and twig development. Perhaps its effect on the tree's overall height is its most important contribution. Slow-growing tree species may be stimulated to mature a twice the rate of an unmanured tree. Rapid growth may be the answer for the man with a limited budget who can only afford to buy a small tree.

Homeowners who fertilize new trees should wait until the 7 are at least one year old. Over-fertilizing a recently planted tree can severely damage feeder roots and may actually kill it.

Before applying fertilizer to older trees, decide it is really needed. Measure the rate of annual growth by placing a measuring tape at the tip and measuring back to the bud scale scars. They are conspicuous concentric markings left by last winter's bud protecting scales. Growth rate will vary with tree species, soil type, and environmental conditions. Generally, terminal growth on most trees should be 9 to 12 inches or more a year. Trees approaching mature size grow only 6 to 9 inches a year. If annual growth is less, fertilization may be warranted.

Another criterion is the tree's vigor during the past summer. If the tree had light green leaves or if it was damaged, fertilizer helps stimulate new vigor.

The soil in which the tree is planted will also determine its fertilizer requirement. Fertilization helps counteract such undesirable conditions as shallow topsoil, sandy soil, and sandy subsoil.

ash needed depends on the soil analysis of your lawn--both are important for good turf growth. Many good brands and formulations of fertilizer are on the market. Durham suggests using one you're familiar with and have confidence in.

VEE VACCINATION

The Department of Veterinary Science, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, reports the State-Federal Vaccination Program will begin phasing out distribution centers in parts of the state as of October 1. All distribution of the USDA vaccine is expected to end October 15. Jensen-Salabery has been asked to make their vaccine available to Kentucky veterinarians immediately. Several animals in the state will be missed on the present program, and many owners will want newly purchased or added animals vaccinated.

All animals vaccinated with the commercial vaccine must be reported to the state or federal office on the VEE certificates new being used. These certificates will be furnished by the State-Federal office, as health certificates for interstate or other movements cannot be approved without the certificates on file.

Horse owners in each county will be given the opportunity to have their horses vaccinated under the government program. New vaccine distribution stations may be opened in Eastern Kentucky to facilitate the program in that area. For the counties that do not have veterinary service in Eastern Kentucky, the program may be continued beyond October 15 to allow those to be fully covered under the federal vaccination program.

FERTILIZE LAWNS NOW

Your lawn will survive the winter better and be "ready to go" next spring if you fertilize it this fall, according to H. Lee Durham, county Extension agent for agriculture.

Fertilizing lawns in September is best but, if you didn't get the job done last month, early October fertilization is better than not "feeding your lawn" at all this fall.

For most lawns, 1 pound of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of turf is recommended, Durham says. The amount of phosphorus and pot-

ROCKCASTLE COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

The Rockcastle County High School is well over 80% complete and, as shown in the above architect's (Donald B. Shelton) concept of the finished look of the school, the building will be a tremendous addition to our community. The concept shows how, when the new school is completely finished, it will be connected to the Harry Sparks Vocational School (the vocational school is in the lower right hand corner of the picture) by canopied walkways. What is now the road going between the two schools will be made into a walkway and the area in between will be a courtyard. The school is built on different levels and the gymnasium, which will have a seating capacity of 2800, is the largest section of the building in the rear. The building is scheduled for completion by September of 1972.

Frankfort Watchline

The issues for the 1972 Legislature are forming beneath the deceptive surface of the race for governor.
Passing for issues in the face are things such as whether a severance tax—if enacted—should go partly back to the mineral-producing counties and who'd help consumers most.
Probably the real issue in the voters' minds is just who they can trust. Or, perhaps, who they can trust the least. But behind all the campaign talk some tough problems are stymieing.

Most hinge on money. And, without some promises bent all to hell if not broken, no candidate seems in position to deliver on all his spending pledges.
Beyond that, though, are questions of just how the consumer is to be protected if the state decides to go beyond lip-service. And how strip-mining be controlled—-an entirely separate question from a severance tax.
Then there's the question of how the educational dollars will be divided—-aside from how many dollars there are.
Vague talk of priorities and redirected emphasis won't get it done except in a campaign. When the bills go to the Legislature, things have to be spelled out.
In the meantime, we say again that if you understand what the candidates are saying you're not really listening.

have lost benefits because they failed to file on time.
You can file for disability benefits simply by phoning the Social Security office in Somerset. Their phone number is 678-8168.

This has been a campaign of ironies and contradictions.
Republican candidate Tom Emberton challenged Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford to a debate and GOP forced led the fight for maximum exposure. But Emberton missed chance after the chance to appear on the same platform as Ford.
Democrats tagged Gov. Louie Nunn as Emberton's "mentor" or "godfather"—then pointed to what they saw as mistakes Nunn never would have made.
Republicans pictured Ford as a ruthless, hard-driving politician who tried to show him as a ramby-pamby when it comes to a fight.
Democrats tried to paint Emberton as inexperienced and unqualified—-he said what we need is a break with the past.
All of which is mainly sound and angry, stirring stuff. The fact is that both Ford and Emberton are high type individuals who would do their best.
The question is, given the near-impossible situation the next four years will present, whose best would be best.

One twist is developing on the agreement to limit spending on campaign advertising. Emberton headquarters declines any role in it. But in some mountain counties radio time is being bought to replay some of the things former Gov. Bert Combs had to say about Ford in the primary.
This may count as part of Emberton's spending under the agreement—one of his aides acknowledges.
But since the anti-Ford statements are being timed to run just ahead of broadcast of Combs' endorsement of Ford at the recent Democratic fund-raiser, the Emberton aide adds:
"I think it's money well spent."

Carter Comments

Congressman Tim Lee Carter again expressed his interest this week in the educational future of the young people of Kentucky's Fifth District.
Representative Carter stated, "For many of our area's young people it's time to start thinking of college or some other form of continuing education for next year. It may seem that this school year has just begun and the next year is a long way off. But, now is the time to put in the extra hours of study, and plan for the various exams that are required to be accepted for advanced study, whether it's vocational school, college, or one of our nation's service academies."

The U.S. service academies—West Point, Annapolis, and the Air Force, Coast Guard, and Merchant Marine Academies, according to Congressman Carter, provide an outstanding education for a young man, far transcending what we commonly think of as a college education. Personal qualities of initiative, integrity, loyalty, and bravery are developed. The young men learn comradeship and brotherhood through the lives of learning, working, and living together.
Congressman Carter con-

It's just as good as cash—but it's safer and more convenient.

depending on which academy he has attended. After commissioning, the officer will serve in his branch of the military for a period of about 3 or 4 years."

The Fifth District Representative further explained that if the young officer wishes to stay in and make the service a career, there are ample opportunities to continue the educational process and earn advanced degrees. Most of higher ranking officers in the United States' military today hold either Master's or Doctorate degrees. "I believe," Congressman Carter stated, "that speaks very well not only for the basic education most of them received at their academy, but for the quality of leadership in our armed forces.

"If you are a young man who is interested in pursuing such a career, or if you know of such a young man, and you feel you are physically and academically qualified, please let me know as soon as possible. In your letter, please include the following information: the academy you are interested in, the year you wish to enter, your scholastic background, and your school and community activities. Also, you should contact your school's guidance counselor about arranging to take either the American College Test or the College Entrance Examination. If you are a senior, you should do this as soon as possible. If you are a junior or younger, I encourage you to study diligently to prepare for one of these tests."

"If your record has been a reasonably good one, and you score well on the test," commented the Fifth District Representative, "I will be pleased to nominate you to an academy. After your nomination, you will be screened by the academy, and, if you qualify, you will be offered an appointment.

It's a long hard pull and the time to start is now."

Congressman Carter also has informational material on financial assistance for education, if the Fifth District young people are interested.

GOVERNOR ANNOUNCES EXPANSION OF CENTRAL STATE

Governor Nunn announced Central State Hospital near Lakeland will be expanded to treat mentally ill criminal offenders.

The expansion will provide housing, diagnosis and treatment for up to 50 patients sent there by the courts or Kentucky's correctional institutions.

Governor Nunn said the expansion is part of an overall program to improve treatment for mentally ill criminals in Kentucky. The Kentucky Crime Commission is financing the program with a $416,229 grant.

The Department of Mental Health will operate the program with the assistance of the Department of Corrections.

Other facets of the program will include consultation, pre-trial screening and psychiatric services to the courts as well as a psychiatric unit at Eddyville State Penitentiary.

The Eddyville unit will provide services much like those available in a psychiatric hospital with quarters for 38 inmates.

CRIME COMMISSION APPROVES PACKAGE
The Kentucky Crime Commission has approved a 15-bill legislative package for submission to the 1972 General Assembly.

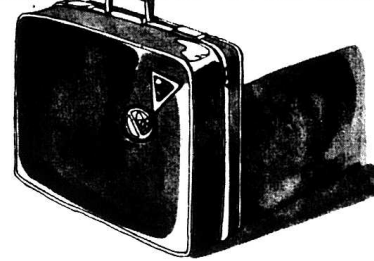

Heading the list of proposed legislation is a revision of Kentucky's criminal laws to update present laws which the commission calls "confusing, vague, out-of-date and unrelated to modern patterns of criminal behavior."

The revision would:

- * Group similar crimes into general related classes.
- * Assign penalties by felony and misdemeanor classifications instead of having separate ones for each crime.

Homemaker's Hints

County Extension Agent for Home Economics & 4-H By Cheryl Witt

KNOW YOUR SOAPS AND DETERGENTS

Having the right tools to do the job makes the job easier. If you know how the different types of soaps and detergents work, you know what to select for best results in your wash. Light duty soaps are for laundering fine fabrics and lightly soiled garments such as lingerie, stockings, blouses, and baby clothes. They're also safest for most eyes and are mild to the skin.

Heavy duty soaps are general-purpose products for the family wash and for heavily soiled rugs, grimey play clothes and the alkaline soaps. However, the alkaline soaps in these products may damage silk and wool.

If you're in a geographic area that has only hard water, you may have special laundering problems. One type of water softening chemicals precipitate or settle the water-hardness minerals while another keeps the minerals in solution.

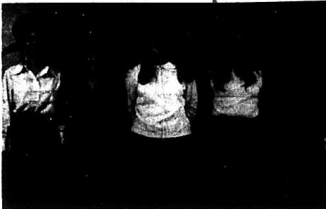

USDA suggests that you consider the kind of cloth and type of dye used on it before choosing a detergent. Alkali can damage wool and silk but light-duty products do a good job on slightly soiled wool and silk. Wool shrinkage, contrary to common thought, is caused by agitation in the washer, tumbling in the dryer or rubbing by hand—and by the type of detergent used. Cotton, linen and man-made fibers are not affected by the alkalinity of soaps and detergents.

Chlorine bleaches inactivate some brighteners in wash water. To avoid this, add the soap or detergent to the wash-water first, allow a few minutes for the brightener in the rinsing agent to be absorbed on the clothes, and then add the chlorine bleach. The newly revised Home and Garden Bulletin No. 139, titled "Soaps and Detergents for Home Laundering," answers most of the questions homemakers have about their wash problems. It's available for 10 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

ON WASH DAY — Use Hot, Hot, Water Don't sell those little viruses short! New studies sponsored by the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture have established that certain viruses do persist for significant periods of time on fabrics typical of those used in clothing and household textiles—both potential disseminators of disease. These viruses may also be readily transferred from one fabric to another. In order to take precautions, it is necessary to know about their survival and how they spread.

Home-style laundering on six fabrics previously contaminated with poliovirus was used in the research study by scientists at the Southern Research Institute sponsored by USDA. Poliovirus was used because it persists for significant periods of time on certain textiles. The research, two detergents showed little difference in virus-removing ability but the temperatures of the wash water did. Very little detectable virus remained after washing in hot water.

Even the sterile fabrics laundered with fabrics that contained virus were often contaminated during the laundering process. When hot water was used, however, the amount of virus detected on the originally sterile fabrics was very low. Water samples were checked near the end of the rinse cycle and analysis revealed no active virus when the fabrics were washed in hot water. When fabrics were washed in cold or warm water, the rinse water contained some virus, indicating that waste water from laundering can be a source of contamination.

It is wise to remember that it takes 3 to 5 minutes at 212 degrees F (boiling water) to kill Staphylococci, or 20 minutes at a water temperature of 140 degrees F.

Bacteria can also remain alive on the inner surface of the washing machine and be transferred from one load of clothes to another. Sanitize your washing machine occasionally by pouring a disinfectant into the empty machine, then complete a 15 minute cycle at the hot water setting. Also, wash the fibers in the lint trap.

So when laundering remember to:

1. Wash garments which are known to be infected by someone having a contagious or boils separately from the rest of the family wash.
2. Be cautious in use of public facilities such as laundromats by using hot water, bleach, or a disinfectant.
3. Disinfect washer and dryer periodically by using hot water and a disinfectant or chlorine bleach in a wash cycle or to wipe out the dryer drum.
4. Use hot water and the proper amount of detergent when possible.
5. Follow directions and measure carefully when using a disinfectant.
6. Wash infected clothing as soon as possible following exposure because the bacteria will multiply on clothing in the hamper.

FOOD CLIPS

Did you know that there are more than 400 varieties of natural cheeses?

Be sure to cover your butter or margarine when you put it in the refrigerator because both absorb odors.

Ice cream is easier to scoop or slice if it is at refrigerator temperature for a short time—about 10 minutes for a pint and 20 minutes for a half gallon.

Did you know that most light whipping cream has at least 30 percent milkfat? If you prefer heavy whipping cream you're thinking about 35 percent milkfat, according to USDA.

Small pieces of Cheddar cheese (under one pound and less than two inches thick) can be satisfactorily frozen and kept up to six months, according to marketing specialists at the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Do you know the difference between lowfat milk and skim milk? Lowfat milk has between 0.5 and 2 percent milkfat. Skim milk has less than 0.5 percent milkfat and at least 8 percent nonfat milk solids.

PLENTIFUL FOODS FOR OCTOBER

Falling leaves and sharp appetites join together when fall beckons.

From fresh apples, which will be the feature food of the month, to apple juice - a good after school drink - the October Plentiful Foods List of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture will include canned apple sauce, fresh pears, canned pears, potatoes, pork and eggs. The nation's apple crop is forecast at 147.1 million cartons and production will be heavy in the Eastern and Central States.
