Plentiful foods featured during December can assure that this holiday budget. Some of the foods you'll find as good bargains are: fresh pears, split peas, turkeys, rice, cranberries, cranberry sauce and cranberry juice cocktail, pork, eggs, apples, apple sauce and apple juice, potatoes and potato products such as instant mashed potatoes and frozen french fries. Try to use these foods in planning your holiday meals and treats.

Give Yourself a Holiday - with Eggs
"Tis the season for lavish banquets, gift-giving, parties and old friends. And according to the U.S. Consumer and Marketing Service, "tis also the season for eggs.

Egg production during December is expected to total slightly above the high level of a year ago. So you'll find them in good supply for holiday meals - and probably featured at attractive prices.

Since eggs are so versatile, they probably have a standing place on your grocery list, anyway. But during the holiday season eggs can really be your best friend.

You can keep hard-cooked eggs on hand for a number of simple holiday dishes - egg salads, deviled eggs, egg dips and casseroles. Or scramble a batch for dinner when you're bent on all day shopping for gifts.

Remember that hard-cooked eggs can be refrigerated either in the shell or out. But if the shell is removed, the eggs should be protected in a film wrap.

Dehydration and darkening of the cooked egg white can be prevented by keeping the egg in a closed container covered with water. These eggs should not be kept more than seven to ten days under refrigeration.

For a simple but festive addition table, try Pickled Eggs 'N Beets. To carry out the colors of the season, serve them on a platter with crisp green lettuce with stuffed celery or some green olives. Keep a supply of Smoked Egg Dip on hand for when friends drop by. It's good served with crackers or chips. But try it with fresh vegetables too, like carrots, celery, squash or cauliflower. Chances are there will be some dieters in the crowd.

STUFFED EGGS Filled with crab meat and tangy sour cream is a good choice for the buffet table. Serve them alone, or mix them on a platter with your favorite deviled eggs.

PICKLED EGGS 'N BEETS 1 1/2 cups (1 lb.) pickled beets 6 hard-cooked eggs, shelled. Drain beets and reserve juice. Place hard-cooked eggs in beet juice. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning often to pickle evenly. To serve, drain off juice. Cut eggs in half lengthwise to serve. Makes 6 servings.

SMOKED EGG DIP 12 hard-cooked eggs, sliced or cubed 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine 1 1/2 tablespoons liquid smoke seasoning 1 tablespoon wine vinegar 2 teaspoons brown mustard 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce 4 drops Tabasco 1 teaspoon onion salt 1 teaspoon salt 1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Combine all ingredients. Beat until smoothly blended, add more seasoning. Have consistency soft enough to permit potato chips to be dipped into it easily. Refrigerate until ready to serve. About 30 minutes before serving, remove from refrigerator and heat or whip dip to fluff and soften it. Use in hot skillet bowl. (If you have a blender, use it to give the dip even better texture.)

STUFFED EGGS 12 hard-cooked eggs, sliced or cubed 8 oz. can crab meat flaked or canned tuna 1 cup flaked smoked celery 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper 1 tablespoon French salad dressing mix 1/3 cup dairy sour cream. Slice eggs in half lengthwise; remove yolks and mash. Combine yolks, crab meat, celery, green pepper, salad dressing mix and sour cream, blending well. Stir until well mixed. Refill egg whites. Chill until serving time.

CRANBERRY CREAM 2 cups (1 pint) cranberry juice cocktail, chilled 2 cups (1 pint) vanilla ice cream 2 cups cherry sauce, called "with fresh vegetables too, like Dash salt Combine ingredients and whirl in a blender at top speed for 30 seconds until smooth. Pour into tall glasses and serve at suggested garnish: sprinkle of nutmeg. Serves 6.

HOT BUTTERED CRANGOO 2 cups hot strong tea 4 cups (1 quart) cranberry juice cocktail 1/4 cup butter, melted 1/4 teaspoon rum flavoring Combine cranberry juice and tea; heat just to boiling point. Remove from heat and stir in rum flavoring and butter. Stir until butter melts. Pour grog into large mugs. Garnish with orangeslices. Serves 6.

Project "Help" Christmas In Appalachia

by Helen Price Starr

It doesn't take snow to make Christmas. The Saturday I stopped at the Jewel Thomas home in Campton, we were fresh one with a hint of rain mist.

But the moment I stepped inside the Thomas mobile home I was on a magic carpet ride into Christmas. Maybe the "magic carpet" cliché is not the proper term, for there was no room for a flying carpet—hardly space for a visitor among boxes of dolls and rows of dolls.

Had I been a child seeing with childish eyes the place could easily have been Santa's traditional toystop at the North Pole, for the atmosphere was one of cleaning, gluing, sewing, wiring together and otherwise mending dozens of dolls.

Then there were the additional steps to getting a doll ready for that wondrous time when it finally is nestled secure in a young girl's arms. Hair spray made the inside as misty as the weather outside. Dolls ready for wrapping stood in neat rows, still with bits of tape to hold bangs for lacquering. There they stood, ironed and polished armful of happiness.

Christmas for special individuals and groups has been an undertaking of Mrs. Thomas, library technician with the Kentucky Department of Libraries, for several years. This special project was started last year when Steve Huddleston of Elizabethtown headed a group of University of Kentucky students set out to see "that a Merry Christmas does happen for the impoverished men, women and children in Kentucky's rural Appalachia." This year John Hartman, also of Elbow, heads the student group.

The student group had the energy, drive and an indomitable desire to help others, but the question was where to start. They heard about Mrs. Thomas in Wolfe County and called her. She told them, "We want and need your help," and after second-thinking added "You ought to know that around here we don't think too highly of uncles, long-hair, hippie types. Just thought I'd let you know before you go here."

The answer was "Don't worry. We're not freaks. We're just boys and girls who want to help."

Not only did several of the group show to talk over plans with Mrs. Thomas, but they in turn invited her to their "pad" in Lexington. When she got there, she found students—most of the young men with longish hair but all "clean and neat as a new house"—and Mrs. Thomas explained how she spends every spare hour throughout the year thinking, planning and working on Christmas in areas where there would be few gifts and no extra food.

Some people call Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Santa Claus. If Mrs. Claus has a good right arm it might be Mrs. Pearl Geer, Louisville, regional librarian in the Big Sandy region, who helps distribute gifts and food packages in her area.

But this Jewel Thomas is an unusual woman. She has so many good right and left arms that she has trouble counting them.

"I have an aunt, Miss Crystal Williams, Detroit, who is a buyer for Kresge stores," she said. "She sends boxes of material samples that I give to ladies who sew. She mailed me six dozen shirts to go in Christmas sacks for children. There are the 49's, a radio club in Willowick, Ohio, who get truckloads of clothing to sort and give to needy students in our elementary schools."

It was through the Willowick Club that Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Thomas asked if I would do this year as I did last and take gifts to Allen's Rest Home, West Liberty.

My visit was on Christmas Eve and in the home atop a Morgan County hill I found out why Jewel Thomas tries to get a gift to everyone who needs one. There is nothing quilt-like the eyes of a young girl when she looks down on an armful of doll-baby or of a lad with a puzzle in his hands or toy... unless it is seeing a similar response from weak, pale eyes of the old.

But there are more "arms"—bookmobile drivers in Johnson County deliver gifts to Castle Fork Rest Home and Jenny Wiley Rest Home; Mrs. Ruth Murley, bookmobile driver-librarian in Cumberland County who will deliver gifts in her area; and Mrs. Ruby Gibson in Owsley County; Mrs. John Lawson of Heidelberg collects and delivers clothing work hours. Capt. Nat Britton did this "labor of love" for five years and last year a Powell County trooper made the delivery.

The Wolfe County Woman's Club takes candy and fruit each year to the Myrtle Little Rest Home in Campton, and would do this year as I did last and take gifts to Allen's Rest Home, West Liberty.

As an added help to Wolfe Countians who have a need for clothing, Mrs. Thomas urges them to come to the Community Action Club and select from tables spread with clothing.

Christmas is drawing near, but if anyone finds a doll around their house and wants to get it to Mrs. Thomas for a gift to some little one... hurry, and please, have a dress for her.

Community spirit ran high in Brush Creek recently when local men led by Lloyd Stewart, Earl Mason and Don Bullock got together to erect a much needed school bus shelter near the bridge. With assistance and advice from Mr. Parsons and Mr. Mullins of the school board, the following merchants and persons contributed to the building:

City Gets Settlement In Suit Against B & R

The City of Mt. Vernon's Water Department is $3,300 richer due to a settlement from B & R Road Boring Co.

The settlement was due the city after B & R failed to begin construction of a sewer lift-station at the site of the Harry Sparks Vocational School on which they had been low bidder.

After work was not begun, and the city realized that B & R did not intend to construct the lift-station, a $50 a day default payment was due the city. This payment ran until the city acquired another construction company to build the lift-station. In addition to the $50 per day penalty, the city also sued B & R for the $800 additional cost it cost them to obtain another contractor for the project.

All in all, through the city's attorneys, Allen, Cloos and Cox, a settlement for $4,100 was reached with B & R and this amount was paid the city. The attorney's fee was $800.

The City Council voted Monday night to accept the settlement with B & R.

Several other items of business were considered by the city at Monday night's meeting. The Council discussed the extension of the city's water line to the property of Bennett Hill at off of the road around Lake Linville. Councilman Bob Jasper made a motion to extend the line to the Hill property and Councilman Harvey Rush seconded the motion. The motion carried with councilman Charles Hines abstaining and David Henderson voting against the measure.

Several residents of the Maple Grove area were on hand at the meeting to request the laying of a water line from Maple Grove School for about 770 of a mile. A spokesman for the group told the council that about nine customers would sign-up to take the water.

The Council declined to take definite action on the request but did direct Water Department Superintendent Jack R. Craig to check the area in question, take accurate measurements, and make a report back to the Council.

The Councilmen also decided that there will be an additional parking meter on Main Street in Mt. Vernon.

Col. James Maret Subject Of Bussell Biography

In writing a biography of Colonel James Maret, Opp Bussell, Jr., a Mt. Vernon native and presently a supervisor in the Anderson County School System, has also produced a significant work of Rockcastle County history.

In The Boone Way Man, Mr. Bussell's pamphlet which is being released this week, Rockcastle County's most distinguished citizen is given the recognition that largely passed him by before his death in 1936.

Funeral services were conducted Monday, December 13, at the New Walnut Grove Church of Christ at the Rev. Virgil T. Eubank. Burial was in the Friendship Cemetery.

Dowell & Martin Funeral Home was in charge of all arrangements.

In 1913 Colonel Maret proposed the idea of the Boone Way, a highway extending from Crab Orchard through Mt. Vernon to the Cumberland Gap, in the organizational meeting of the Mt. Vernon Commercial Club. For the next several years Maret devoted his full energies toward the project which was actually begun in 1915. By 1925 the Boone Way had extended to over 2,000 paved miles connecting Mt. Vernon with distant points in Georgia, Indiana and Missouri.

Coupons Still Needed

We recently ran an article about our readers to donate Betty Crocker coupons to purchase a kidney machine for Bill Lucy of Irvine.

Mr. Lucy died on November 22 and the coupons are still being sought.

Upon Mr. Lucy's death, enough money was donated in lieu of coupons to purchase one portable kidney machine and there have been enough coupons donated to date to purchase two other portable machines.

One of the machines is being loaned out to a youth in Western Kentucky and Mr. Lucy's hospital roommate is using another one.

At present, there have been several coupons received toward fourth machine and since effective December 31 General Mills will no longer be giving the machines, the Kidney Foundation has agreed to make up the difference of (Cont. to 8)

Frankfort Watchline

It seems there's never a new Kentucky governor, but that he immediately faces some kind of financial crisis and Wendell Ford is no exception. His first burden is the dwindling Road Fund administered by the Highway Department and it's already spilling some of the "no tax" aura that surrounded the gubernatorial campaigns of the winning Democrat.

Put simply, the commonwealth is going to be about $15 million short next fiscal year of the money it needs to get all the federal matching funds available.

Again, put simply, the Road Fund can't be boosted by dipping into the General Fund, which operates everything else. It has to obtain its own money.

One method is to raise the 7-cent gasoline tax by one or two cents, but didn't Ford pledge no new or added taxes? Well, now he's saying he wasn't talking about the Road Fund.

That's the kind of position that gets politicians into difficulties later when the people are reminded of allegedly broken promises, so Ford adds he has some other ideas to try.

Although the governor has not specified any, his legislative tenant governor, Julian Carroll, is not that reticent.

Carroll, who reiterates his flatly against any new taxes, is talking about floating another general obligation bond issue to raise the money as a stopgap until someone finds a permanent solution. The trouble with that one is that—while technically keeping the administration within its no tax pledge—it merely puts off what might be inevitable.

But maybe Carroll isn't reading Ford's mind properly. We'll find out soon enough when the General Assembly meets.

What About That Christmas Spirit?—Secretary of State Thelma Stovall, a Democrat, has refused to play a bill left by Gov. Louie B. Nunn's Republican administration for Christmas cards.

It was in the amount of $10,100. Our prediction is that Mrs. Stovall won't ever let it through for payment before she takes over as secretary of state next month.

All Those Empty Spaces—As Nunn departed for a law practice in Lexington, hundreds of walls in state offices around Frankfort were missing something—his photographs.

One of the new administration's agonizing appraisals is whether it should fill the gaps with Ford pictures.

The new governor's friends say he doesn't much go in for that sort of thing, but maybe it's either Ford, calendar

INAUGURAL 1971—Gov. Wendell H. Ford Takes Command

Amid fanfare, intermittently sunny skies and a host of television cameras, thousands of Kentuckians gathered in the Capital City Dec. 7 to watch the inauguration of Wendell H. Ford as the 49th Governor.

The parade was the largest in history with over 200 floats and bands covering the two-mile journey from downtown Frankfort to the front of the Capitol.

At top left, Gov. and Mrs. Ford leave Frankfort's First Baptist Church following the traditional 9 a.m. worship service. From the church the first family took their places at the head of the Inaugural Parade. At lower left, they wave to crowds lining the parade route on the way to the reviewing stand where the Fords and Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Julian Carroll watched the four-hour procession.

Gov. Ford was administered the oath of office by Court of Appeals Judge John S. Palmore. In his inaugural address, the new governor declared, "Our responsibility is to the mandate of the people, to the business you have directed us." Shown from the speaker's platform flanking Gov. Ford are, from left, Mrs. Ford, Sen. Steve, son-in-law Bill Dexter and Sen. Walter D. Huddleston.

MT. VERNON FBA MEETS

The holiday season is here and the Mt. Vernon Future Homemakers are making plans for the holidays.

The chapter met November 24 in the school lunchroom and voted on a project for raising money.

With the club planning so many activities for the coming months, we found the need for more funds and decided to sell cookbooks for $3.50 each.

These books would make the perfect Christmas gift and be a great help in holiday cooking. All Mt. Vernon Future Homemakers will be selling these cookbooks before Christmas.

The FBA girls also decided this year to bring Christmas cheer by sending gifts to the children enrolled in the Social Health Program at Mt. Vernon and some toys to the local hospital.

They have prepared a skill that caught everyone's eye on how to get a degree. The degrees are projects where goals are made and carried out by an FBA'er. The girls seemed interested to learn about the degrees and we hope that some members will plan to do one.

In February, the Mt. Vernon chapter is planning a private skating party at the Berea Skating Rink. The Mt. Vernon Future Homemakers would like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.
