Mrs. Tom Haley of Dayton, Ohio is visiting her sister, Mrs. Eva Black.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elliott have returned to their home in Naples, Florida after visiting her sister and friends and relatives in Livingston, Frankfort and Chicago, Illinois.

W.R. Moore and Mrs. Carrie Moore are confined to their homes with the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Norman and daughter of Knoxville, Tennessee visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Phipps, last week.

Gov. Wendell H. Ford told a joint session of the General Assembly his administration will seek to revamp and expand state governmental services without adding "disproportionate" costs to Kentucky taxpayers.

The governor's State of the Commonwealth address came only a few hours after the 1972 session convened and set forth the "tone" of his administration.

"The question to be answered is whether or not more can be done through the expenditure of fewer dollars," Governor Ford said. "In other words do we have the ability to grow in service without growing disproportionately in cost? I say yes."

Governor Ford declined to give specifics but said he would send the legislature his complete recommendations later in the session.

However, he did promise legislation which, if enacted, would:

- * Make Kentucky's tax structure more equitable.
- * City Kentucky the nation's best environmental program.
- * Streamline Kentucky's election laws.
- * Improve primary, secondary and higher education in the state.

Governor Ford said his administration will make every effort to cut costs, streamline and refine every department of state government.

HIGHWAY DEPT. ASKS GRANT TO GET JUNKED AUTOS OFF ROADS

The State Highway Department is launching a campaign to remove junked and abandoned cars which form an eyesore along Kentucky highways.

Highway Commissioner Charles Pryor said his department is seeking some $300,000 from the federal government to finance the removal.

Pryor said highway employees in each county would locate the junked cars and pinpoint them on maps for removal.

A center of operations then would be established from which work crews would be dispatched to pick up the cars. The cars would be stripped of their engines, crushed in a mobile crusher and the engines and crushed bodies sold as scrap.

Experts say only about 25 per cent of the 125,000 cars removed from service in Kentucky each year reach salvage yards. The rest, about 94,000 are abandoned along streets and highways.

Pryor said the abandoned hulks often are dangerous playgrounds for children, leak pollutants and attract rodents as well as mar the beauty of the state's roads.

STATE'S COAL MINES HAVE 2nd SAFEST YEAR

The State Department of Mines and Minerals says Kentucky's 1500 coal mines had their second safest year in history during 1971.

Some 41 miners were killed during the year; the fourth lowest total since 1947; but coal production reached a record 28.7 million tons.

That one death occurred for each 3,000,044 tons mined, second only to 1969 when one death occurred for each 3,274,205 tons mined.

The figures for 1971 are only estimates, however; and exact figures will be available next month.

Mines and Minerals Commissioner Harold N. Kirkpatrick attributed many of the deaths to carelessness and failure to follow safe mining practices.

UK DEVELOPS BRAND OF LOW-NICOTINE BURLEY

Experts at the University of Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station say they have developed a breed of low-nicotine burley tobacco.

UK scientists said the new line contains about 1/2 per cent nicotine while normal burley strains average 3 1/2 to 4 per cent nicotine.

"To date, I think it's the most significant contribution toward overcoming a possible health issue," said Dr. Glenn B. Collins, plant geneticist in the UK College of Agriculture.

Nicotine is the substance most often suspected in the smoking and health question.

Collins said researchers now cannot say definitely that nicotine causes health problems, but indications are that it does influence test animals and organisms in laboratory tests.

He said the strong point in favor of the new burley line is that nicotine is reduced practically without destroying aroma and taste, as often happens when artificial remedies such as fillers are used.

Collins added that research is under way to also reduce tar in burley, another substance often mentioned in connection with smoking and health.

He is badly mistaken. To become a good jig fisherman takes days of patient practice.

If a fisherman has never had the thrill of jigging big fish, his best bet is to go on a fishing trip with an experienced jig fisherman and observe first-hand how it's done. It's a lot easier that way and the thousands of little tricks necessary to make a good jig fisherman will be offered along the way, as the teacher pulls out good catches and the novice looks on enviously.

OHIO SIGN INCOME TAX PACT

The Kentucky and Ohio revenue departments have signed a reciprocal agreement exempting persons living in one state and working in the other from paying income tax in the state of employment.

The agreement was reached by Kentucky Revenue Commissioner John M. Ross and his Ohio counterpart Robert J. Loydair.

The decision means Kentuckians who work in Ohio will not be required to pay income tax there and vice versa for Ohio residents working in Kentucky.

The Ohio legislature only recently passed an income tax for that state.

The agreement is provided for in both Kentucky and Ohio income tax laws and regulations. It applies only to income from salaries and wages.

be is badly mistaken. To become a good jig fisherman takes days of patient practice.

If a fisherman has never had the thrill of jigging big fish, his best bet is to go on a fishing trip with an experienced jig fisherman and observe first-hand how it's done. It's a lot easier that way and the thousands of little tricks necessary to make a good jig fisherman will be offered along the way, as the teacher pulls out good catches and the novice looks on enviously.

Cylinder beet, on the left, grows in an unusual form. As you see, this makes for round, even slices when the beet is cooked and served.

Rhubarb chard, right, is a beet grown for its edible leaves rather than its root. The bright red ribs, dark green leaves make it ornamental too.

Beets are grown in gardens for their edible roots, but their edible leaves or their ornamental leaves. The rounded root that you frequently eat is just one form of beet.

Of course you know that there are sugar beets and also mangels, or mangel-wurzels grown for cattle food but do you know that, in addition to garden beets with red roots there are white and yellow-rooted beets?

That shapes vary too! Long Season, also known as Winter Keeper, has an elongated root shaped like a top. Crosby Green Top has flattened, globe-shaped roots. Redheart tells the shape in its name and so does Cylindra.

Swiss chard, too, is a beet but one grown for its edible leaves. While Rhubarb chard is a highly ornamental form that also happens to be good eating. The first usable part from a row of beets will be the tender, young leaves that show you where seeds have sprouted. These usually are too close together because most beet seeds are conglomerates, little clusters of seeds in one group.

Pull the baby leaves to thin the row and give the other plants a chance. Wash them, but only a few minutes, then pour with butter, pepper and salt. A delicacy! If you wish to use leaves only, choose a quick-growing strain of beets with extra-large foliage.

Newer varieties, like Pacemaker, a hybrid, have mono-germ seeds instead of clusters. Thus spacing can be more accurate and perhaps you can avoid thinning.

Casualty And Theft Losses Must Be Proved, CPA Says

Among the deductions that can reduce income tax obligations are those for casualty losses and thefts, but Uncle Sam is very hard-nosed about documentation of such losses, according to Kenneth Bunger, president of The Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants.

Mr. Bunger explains that generally a casualty loss is one that results from a sudden, unexpected or unusual event, and the burden of proving that the mishap or disaster qualifies as a casualty lies with the taxpayer. Even when an occurrence such as a fire, tornado, flood or earthquake causes destruction throughout the taxpayer's community, he still must show that it reduced the value of his property and prove the extent of loss claimed.

Extent of loss is computed in either of two ways, the CPA official says. One is start with the original cost of the property and add any expenditures for capital improvements. Then deduct the depreciation, insurance proceeds, salvage value and a standard 300 exclusion for each casualty (not for each piece of property). Business casualty losses are not subject to the 300 exclusion.

The second way to determine the decrease in value is with contractor's bids for restoring the property to its condition immediately prior to the event. Again, insurance proceeds and the 300 exclusion reduce the amount of deductible loss. The types of evidence helpful in proving a loss, Mr. Bunger says, include inventories, receipts, before-and-after photographs, news clippings, police or fire department records of alarms turned in, and appraisers' estimates.

If the property is insured, insurance company adjusters will provide their estimate of the amount of loss, but if taxpayers consider this assessment low - or if the property is uninsured - public appraisers who are experts in the type of property involved may be called in. If insurance proceeds exceed the value of the property prior to the casualty, there may be a taxable gain.

Otto, Mr. Bunger says, there is a fine distinction between a sudden, unexpected phenomenon, which is deductible, and a gradual, ongoing deterioration, which is not. He cites as an example damage caused by winter weather: unless there is a specific blizzard or sleet storm, the loss is generally not deductible.

The same lack of suddenness and unpredictability rules out deductions for losses caused by termites, dirt, rot, rust, erosion, and drought in an area where dry conditions are normal. In cases of theft, there must be evidence that theft actually occurred. The fact that a piece of property is missing is not enough, Mr. Bunger warns.

down a passing pedestrian. In a short-order, the pedestrian used the boy's parents, claiming they should not have allowed him to play in the street. But the court said such tight discipline by parents is just not customary in this day and age. "Strict control of children is today so rare," said the court, "that its absence is no indication of a lack of reasonable care."

PCA LOANS PASS $1 BILLION MARK

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Louisville has reached a new peak in dollars loaned through the 39 Production Credit Associations in Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Ohio, according to J.W. Brown, President of the Production Credit Associations loaned more than $1 billion to over 73,000 farmer members during 1971. This record high represents an increase over the previous year of $100 million.

Mr. Brown indicated that farmers are finding it necessary to use more money to modernize and expand their operations as well as meet the increased costs of production. Brown emphasized this trend has been developing at a rapid rate over the past two years and is likely to continue as farmers try to keep pace with the changing capital requirements of agriculture.

7, soundly beat the Crab Orchard Cubs on the Cubs home floor last Friday night 80 to 59 and fought off a Subank rally in the third quarter to win at Subank's home floor 79 to 78. In the Crab Orchard game, the outcome was never in question as the Tigers had an 11-point lead at the end of the first quarter and maintained it throughout the game. Leading scoring for the Tigers was Tommy Mullins with 21, followed by Terry Burton with 19, Ronnie Brown 14, Dennis Harris and Pat Crawford with 10 each and Darrell Proctor 3.

The Subank game was something else. The Tigers had a 43 to 36 half-time lead but early in the third quarter, 70 to 50, my Mullins, who had scored 17 points in the first half, got his fourth foul and was unable to score any in the third quarter. Subank had a two point lead, 56 to 54. But, in the fourth quarter, the Tigers came roaring back and scored 20 points to Subank's 17, Dennis Harris got 10 points for the Tigers in the fourth.

Tuesday night's win over Subank on their home floor was the first loss for Subank in 16 home games. Coach Bill Riddle said, "They were one of the better ball games we have put together. The boys really seem to be coming along." Friday night's game will get a chance to revenge an earlier season loss against Berea when the two teams will meet at Brodhead, Saturday night, the Tigers hit the road again to play Burgin.

The Price Commission has clarified its requirement for posting of prices by retail organizations. These requirements are as follows:

1. Retailers with sales of less than $100,000 per year are required to display prominently the base prices for those 40 products which had the highest dollar sales volume during the last fiscal year, or those products which accounted for 50% of the total dollar sales volume during that year, whichever is less.

Frankfort Watchline

Redistricting is a bore to the average Kentuckian, but often a nerve-shattering experience to the politicians whose future sometimes is at stake.

For the current legislative session, there are two versions of reapportionment.

One is some leftover homework from a special session last year in which the House and Senate were reshuffled.

A federal court ruled that the act did not entirely meet the one man, one vote rule and ordered Kentucky's Legislature to try again.

That will be done, but not right away. Gov. Ford feels the old bill needs merely some touching up, so what's the hurry?

There's another less publicized reason why legislative reapportionment is being delayed.

The rural lawmakers are the most nervous of all. Their home populations have dwindled and they sometimes are on the verge of practically being produced out of office.

What better club can be used over their heads by an administration which might need their help later if some programs run into trouble?

A cynical view, maybe, but that's the way the cookie crumbles in politics.

Congressional redistricting is the other half of the picture. It has fallen even to excite many politicians and some type of bill is likely to be passed in a few weeks.

Western Kentucky's last and 2nd districts are in good shape, pretty near the ideal of 450,000 population.

The ones that really need an injection of additional people, are the 5th in Southeast Kentucky and the 7th in Eastern Kentucky.

The one that counts this time politically is the 6th, (Bluegrass) where the new measure of Democrat William Curllin Jr. of Frankfort could be a bit shaky under a Factional challenge this spring in the primary.

Curllin, of course, would like to retain "safe" counties and give away only Republican or hostile areas.

With the help of the state Democratic administration which lifted him into office in the first place he just might do it.

Republican Help Unolicited—Those friendly Republicans are trying to help Democratic Gov. Wendell Ford keep his campaign promises.

As proof, they say, look at Ford's pledge to reduce the auto tag fee from $12.50 back to $5.

Minority Leader Harold Demarcus and GOP Caucus Chairman Gene Stuart in the House and the 22 Republican Newsmen on television during the campaign—holding up the "Republican" license plate ($12.50) and the former sample 35.

The Ford side says thanks, but no thanks, and that furthermore the governor never promised to reduce the license fee.

The Administration is Gosh, Long Live the New One—You'll have to acknowledge that the Kentucky State Employee, a monthly magazine under state auspices, is bipartisan.

For years under the Republicans it heaped praise on the economy, efficiency, wisdom and foresight of the administration.

The first issue under Democratic regime opened with: "The new state administration is hard at work on a program to meet Kentucky's needs for the next four years and to pave the way for progress even farther ahead."

That Creditability Gap, Again—One Republican campaign worker, commenting on the failure of the creditability issue to go over with voters in last November's gubernatorial race griped:

"In places like Louisa they thought creditability was some kind of disease."

HEART FACTS

Heart attack claims 674,000 lives annually, about 25 percent of them among men and women under 65 years of age, reports your Heart Association.

Heart and blood vessel diseases are responsible for 54 percent of the deaths in the United States, according to your Heart Association.

Doting Parents

Eichel, hesitant about marrying Fred, decided to put a blunt question to his mother and father. "I love you, son," she said, "but I have doubts about his health. Tell me frankly, is he well?"

They assured her that he was in perfect health. But, as they well knew, Fred was suffering from both tuberculosis and drug addiction. Eichel found out the truth shortly after the marriage, and promptly got an annulment.

But she did not stop there. She followed up with a damage suit against Fred's parents. Grounds: fraud.

At the trial, the parents claimed they could not be expected to make unpleasant disclosures about their own child. Nevertheless, the court held them liable. The judge said their deceit was too deliberate and too important to be excused.

This is an unusual case. But it illustrates that dating parents do not have an unlimited right to favor their child at someone else's expense.

A comparable situation arises when parents are accepted not of unfairly pushing a marriage but of unfairly breaking one up. For example:

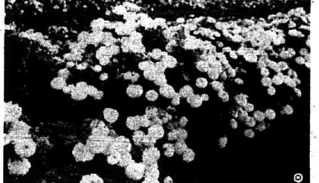

A mother was sued by her daughter-in-law for alienation of her son's affections. It seems that the mother had waged a relentless campaign against the marriage, not so much because she loved her son as because she hated his wife. The court decided this too was outside of parental privilege and ordered the mother to pay damages.

Of course, the law does grant parents a considerable amount of freedom to speak their mind in another case, a youthful husband who was having marital difficulties went to his father for a man-to-man talk. The father urged him to get a divorce and he did.

Could the father be held liable by the divorced wife for alienation of affections? A court as he could not, because his interference was within the reasonable limits of a parent's role. One judge put it:

"Times of stress, natural in any case, may lead a parent to bring counsel and advice. If the law does not condemn."

GOLD GALORE

Huge golden-yellow blooms and perhaps 25 on a single plant are yours with Gold Galore, a new hedge type marigold, which is an All-America Selections bronze medal winner.

Surely no marigold was ever more accurately named than this one with huge, double golden-yellow flowers that cover the tops of the bushy plants. Really, it furnishes gold galore.

This variety is one of the recently introduced "hedge" type, so-called because the plants are sufficiently uniform in both height and spread that a row of them may be used for a hedge.

Its vital statistics: height, 18 to 24 inches; spread, equal to height; flower size, 4 1/2 to 5 inches in diameter; flower type, double, carnation form.

The plants are denser than those of other varieties blooming at the same time; the flowers are larger, while both plants and blossoms retain their vigor through sustained heat, drought and rain.

Do not be upset if the first, early flowers of Gold Galore that bloom in your garden appear close to or under the foliage; the later ones will be well above the leaves. Larger than the first blossoms, and borne on short, sturdy stems.

All these good garden characteristics have earned Gold Galore an All-America Selections bronze medal for 1972. When you grow this marigold, you'll know why it deserved the award.

SWIRLING COLORS

It almost looks as if the bi-colored flowers of the new Circus petunia were being bound and wound. Salmon-tinted red centers of petals are edged with white.

A circus means rings and swirling, brilliant colorful figures in them. The new Circus petunia gives the effect of these and movements without really making either.

1972 All-America Selections bronze medalist, Circus has frilly, 3 1/2 to 4 inch wide flowers with bi-colored petals, the colors rosetted with a salmon tint, the centers edged with white.

It must be the placement of the petals that gives the swirling effect for, actually, the colors are quite evenly divided on each individual petal. The blossoms, also, are evenly distributed over the compact plants.

The hybrid vigor lies in this variety shows in the dense foliage. Usual compactness, rarely over a foot high or more than 2 feet wide, and a basal branching habit are characteristics of the plants.

Circus is a grandiflora petunia, free flowing than many other double varieties. A pot filled with Circus becomes an instant focal point in the garden and a solid bed of Circus is a real dazzler.

Congressman Carter Comments On REAP

Representative Tim Lee Carter of Kentucky said today that he is extremely pleased that an additional $55.5 million has been made available for the 1972 Rural Environmental Assistance program (REAP).
Congressman Carter further stated that he had written to the President, the Department of Agriculture, and the Office of Management and Budget during mid-November to strongly urge that the funds be released. The $55.5 million will augment an initial allocation of $40 million, announced last October, so that states and counties could begin operation under the 1972 REAP.

The program provides funds for soil and water conservation, and pollution prevention and abatement practices in rural areas. Under REAP, the Federal Government shares—generally on a 50-50 basis—the cost of such endeavors in the effort to solve rural environmental problems for the primary benefit of the total rural community and the public.

Kentucky's Fifth District Representative continued by stating that demand and interest in REAP-funded projects has increased markedly in the past three years. Two hundred thirteen watershed projects have been approved since the beginning of 1969. There has also been a substantial increase in demand for REAP forestry practices over previous years.

The Rural Environmental Assistance program is administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service through its farmer-elected committees. The Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, and Extension Service provide technical and educational assistance.

Mother Exchanges Welfare For Nursing Training

A husband used to come over the living room in Janet Locke's home last spring when she turned on the television. The high school broadcast three times a week on the Kentucky Educational Television Network.
"I told my boys if they didn't be quiet I'd study," she said. Months later, the quietness of four small boys and the studying of their 24-year-old welfare mother have more than paid off.

Her mother said she earned her high school equivalency certificate.

In mid-January, Mrs. Locke begins as a full-tuition student in pre-nursing at the University of Kentucky. She hopes to become a registered nurse within two years.

"I used to ask myself why I am on welfare," she said. "I felt I had the ability to do something with my life."
"If figured it I could get my G.E.D. (General Educational Development) certificate, I could get a better job than what I had. With only a twelfth-grade education, the only job I could get was being a maid."

Before going on welfare, Mrs. Locke had held down two jobs, working an average of 12 hours a day.

"But I was killing myself, and still not making as much as I now receive from my monthly welfare check," she said.

"We used to start out the day at 5 a.m. when I would drop the children at my sister's house. I often wouldn't get home until after dark."

As soon as Mrs. Locke began receiving welfare checks, her social worker asked if she would be interested in earning her high school equivalency certificate. Free textbooks were provided for the television lessons.

"It was so happy when they told me I passed the exam," she said. "I just couldn't believe it. I always wanted to finish my education, but when I got my divorce, I made up my mind I was going to do it."

She had a choice—to stay on welfare or to try to do something about it. Right now I feel opportunity is knocking and I'm trying to take hold."

Mrs. Locke was selected two months ago to receive her nursing education through the WIN program, funded by the Federal government and administered by the state Department of Economic Security. WIN (Work Incentive) was created to train women on welfare for jobs.

Mrs. Locke is one of 2700 Kentuckians who has enrolled in KETV-TV High School. More than 750,000 adult Kentuckians 25 and older do not have high school diplomas.

KET begins telecasting a new semester of TV High School, starting Feb. 15 at 7:30 p.m., E.T.

Persons interested in enrolling should contact their local school superintendent or write KET, in care of TV High School, 600 Cooper Drive, Lexington, Kentucky 40502.

Questions and Answers

Q. My 12-year-old son and I both received monthly social security disability payments after my husband's death. When I remarried a year ago, my benefits stopped. Since I was divorced last month, can I again receive monthly benefits on my first husband's earnings record?

A. Yes. Call or visit any social security office to file a new application for benefits. You will need a certified copy of your divorce decree.

Q. I am attending high school and receiving monthly social security benefits as the son of a disabled worker. Is it true that social security will pay part of my college tuition?

A. No. But social security will continue to send you the same monthly cash benefit you are now receiving as long as you are a full-time student under 22, and not married. You can use this money to help pay your college expenses.

Q. I have a 20-year-old daughter who is studying to be a beautician. If I retire, can she get monthly benefits from social security on my earnings record?

A. If you receive monthly social security benefits, your daughter can also receive benefits until she reaches age 22 if she is a full-time student at a State-approved school and remains single.

Q. In addition to paying me cash wages, the farmer I work for furnishes me with board and housing. Can the value of this room and board be counted as wages for social security purposes?

A. No. If you work on a farm, only wages paid in cash count for social security purposes.

Q. I am confined to a hospital. Since I can't come to the social security office to apply for monthly disability benefits, what other arrangements can I make?

A. Call or write any social security office. It is quite likely that the necessary forms can be completed over the phone and mailed to you for your signature. Or, a representative from the office will visit you at the hospital and assist you in filling out the necessary forms.

Q. I recently took a part-time job for the holidays after 12 years of homemaking. I know my social security number, but I have misplaced my card. My employer insists on seeing my card. What must I do to get another one?

A. Ask for a duplicate card at any social security office.

Have a question about social security and its retirement, survivors, disability or Medicare benefits? See your telephone directory for the phone number and address of the nearest social security office.

KU Backs Up Request For Increased Rates

Kentucky Utilities Company has backed up its request for increased electric rates with evidence of the need for the additional revenues to meet substantially higher operating costs and to attract the investment capital for its necessary construction program.

Without increased rates, W.A. Duncan, KU president, told the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, the company "cannot continue sound financially and continue its ability to grow, as its customers' needs demand that it grow, so as to continue providing required amounts of dependable service."

He noted that a substantial part of the growth in the electrical requirements which the company must equip itself to supply is represented in the increased use of existing customers.

"It is the general pattern in the industry, and our company is no exception that loads double about every 7 to 10 years. Everybody is simply using more electricity. For example, a few years ago, few of our residential customers had air conditioners; now 49 per cent have either window units or central systems. Everyone now has at least one television, and many have two or more. One-third of our customers now have food freezers. All residential customers are adding electric appliances; and many of our industrial customers are expanding their usages."

"Virtually every expense of carrying out the operations of the industry has increased substantially," he said, stating out the cost of fuel—KU experienced a 75 per cent increase in the price of the coal it used during the last two years—as probably the most significant increase in operating costs.

"Since we spend about $20 million a year for coal—fuel being about 26 per cent of our operating expenses—an increase of 75 per cent in the unit cost of coal obviously has a very substantial effect on our operating costs."

Mr. Duncan pointed out that the company had lowered its rates during each of the years 1962 through 1967 and that the new rates the company seeks would result in returning the company's general level of rates to slightly below that which existed in 1961.

He explained that present fuel adjustment clauses allow the company to recover only about half of the increases in its fuel and purchase power costs.

Other witnesses testifying in detail concerning the factors they said make it necessary for KU to seek the increases in its rates were A.C. Anderson, controller; W.B. Buchanan, assistant vice president; John S. Ferguson, W. Truslow Hyde, Jr., A. Clay Stewart, financial vice president; John T. Newton, secretary and treasurer; J.W. Bradley, assistant vice president; and William Evers, Mr. Hyde left well-known financial consultant from New York, and Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Evers are Middle West Service Company engineers. The others are KU officers.

In order to continue to supply adequate and reliable service, Mr. Duncan stated, during the six years, 1971 through 1976, the company will have to spend $489,948,000 for additional facilities. In those six years, the KU will have to far more than double its investment to supply its customers.

Of this construction figure, KU will probably have to spend a minimum of $77.5 million for environmental control equipment within the next five years, Mr. Duncan testified, adding that the expenditures for such items as electrostatic precipitators to control dust emission, scrubbing devices to control sulfur emissions or cooling towers "do not increase the revenue-producing capability of the company's system. Instead, they decrease the power producing capability and efficiency of the generating facilities on which they are installed" and increase expenses associated with these how much to plant on their farms. The only crops under restricted plantings are rice, peanuts, tobacco, extra long staple cotton, and sugarcane."

LET'S LEARN TO SEW

A beginning sewing course will be held beginning the week of February 10. There will be eight lessons of two hours each.

The lessons will be once a week and deal with such things as buying fabric and patterns, adjusting patterns to fit, garment construction, making necklines, sleeves, hems and putting in zippers. The course will be held on Thursday nights from 7 to 9 p.m., starting February 10, once a week, until March 30 and another session will be on Monday afternoons from 1-3 p.m., starting February 7, once a week, until March 27. Meeting place will be determined later. If interested, call the county extension office, 286-2409, before February 1.

Hunting & Fishing

Jug fishing is a method of taking fish in the dead of winter. Contrary to popular belief it is a scientific endeavor, not one of strength and awkwardness, as so many casters are prone to believe.

It is the best method and often the only method for catching black bass when the lake waters are high and murky to muddy and when the weather is cold. It was devised many years ago by fishermen on Herrington Lake who were unwilling to give up fishing just because of bad weather and water condition.

They rigged long cane poles with strong line to which they tied a large, heavy hook and a cork tied in place by a fairly heavy sinker. By placing night-crawlers, sometimes as many as four, on the hook and dabbling this lure into the water alongside the lake's shore, they were able to catch huge black bass which were lurking in this area, probably in search of food.

In the colder water the bass were a bit lethargic and did not hit artificial lures with the vigor necessary to effect catches. But the tantalizing night-crawlers offered ready food.

After a bit of experimental fiddling with the bait, the bass will finally make up its mind to partake and will muster his energy and blast into the lure with full force. It is at this time that the fisherman blasts back in like manner and with one forceful motion hauls the bass out of the water and into the boat.

Because the fisherman does not "play" the fish some insist that this is not the sporting way to catch a bass. But, they are wrong.

If they would merely try the sport—experience the cunning that is necessary to move the boat ever so quietly along the lake bank without spooking the bass while at the same time jigging the lure in the water close to the bank, the doer would know full well the skill that is essential. Without such expertise, jigging will not yield fish. It's as simple as that.

And if a fisherman thinks he can deftly acquire this knowledge in a few trips to the lake

Bully In The Family

Sixteen-year-old Teddy had a nasty habit. He would coax younger children into secluded places, then beat them up. Finally, the father of one of the victims filed a damage suit against Teddy's parents.

But in court, they denied liability. "The mere fact that he is our son," they argued, "does not make us automatically responsible for everything he does. We never encouraged him to beat anyone up." But if they had never encouraged Teddy, they had never discouraged him either. The court decided they had shirked their duty as parents, and would therefore have to pay the claim. Parents who are overly permissive may find themselves in trouble in the courtroom. If they tolerate a dangerous habit in their child, they can usually be held legally liable for the consequences.

But it is a matter of degree. While the law says parents must try to curb the child, it does not insist on success. Take this case: Chuckie, age five, liked to toss rocks at his playmates. To deter him, his parents tried everything from scolding to spankings—all to no avail.

But this time, when a damage suit was brought against the parents, the court held them blameless. Saying they had done their best, the court observed that they could scarcely be expected to keep Chuckie under lock and key.

Furthermore, standards of discipline may change with the times. In another case, a boy playing football in the street overran the curb and knocked over a car, and was held liable for everything he does. We

This perfectly formed, cactus-type zinnia is a hybrid of great vigor with an unusual creamy-white color. "Dialoche" is the word that best describes it.

Carved ivory — what picture do these words conjure up in your mind? A beautiful statue with delicate lines? A string of beads, each carved into a flower? Any such image will come to life when you see 1972's All-America Selections one and only silver medal winner — a truly lovely zinnia named Carved Ivory. It is hard to describe such perfection of form, let alone such antique ivory. It is easier to ask you to think of a piece of the shade of this new zinnia.

The soft-appearing slender petals and extra deep bloom plus the unusual color add up to a flower of great distinction. The bushy, well-branched plants grow about 2 1/2 feet high and do not need staking. Flowers start to appear earlier than those of other white or near white zinnias and are larger (4 to 5 inches in diameter) and more uniform. Carved Ivory's hybrid parentage insures great vigor of growth.

Both the gardener who wants something easy to grow, yet different in his garden and the flower arranger who wants to add distinction to arrangements will be delighted with Carved Ivory.

Food Clips

Keep only as much butter or margarine in the butter compartment of the refrigerator as needed for immediate use. Don't let butter or margarine stand for long periods at room temperature, exposure to heat and light hastens rancidity. A firm chunk-solid as steak in some stores is best used as Swiss steak or braised. It is definitely a less-tender cut, but it has a well-developed flavor. It can be identified by the round arm-bone-having very little waste; allow about 6 to 8 ounces per person.

Use dried or frozen eggs only in foods that are to be thoroughly cooked unless the label states that the product is safe to use in uncooked or slightly heated foods.

It's chestnut time! Blanch chestnuts by putting them in boiling water and letting stand 2 minutes. Remove a few at a time, cool slightly, then peel with a paring knife. Nuts are difficult to peel, return them to the hot water for a minute or two. Roasting will also loosen the skins of chestnuts. Remove shells and skins while nuts are warm.

Dried fruits offer several advantages. They need little storage space, they are relatively light in weight, and pack well for lunches and trips. They can be eaten without cooking.

Green peas and green lima beans hold their nutrients better if left in their pods until ready to use. If shelled, put them into plastic bags before storing in the refrigerator.

Choose your favorite apple—a fragrant Winesap, a juicy Stayman, a tart Northern Spy... each variety has its own appeal. And the versatile apple can lend flavor to your main course, bread, or dessert.

Losses of vitamins A and C occur when vegetable leaves are bruised. To prevent bruising use a sharp blade when trimming, cutting or shredding. Hamburger:

An American Tradition
You're at the meat counter of your grocery store, looking for nutritious but low-cost meats. Chances are you'll select at least one package of ground beef. It's an American tradition. But no matter what type of ground meat you select—ground chuck, sirloin or round handle it carefully to maintain its quality. Save your grocery shopping after you run your other errands.

Ground beef like other parabolics, should be among your last purchases. Don't leave it for long in a warm car. Take it home right away and put it in the coldest part of your refrigerator—usually near the ice cube compartment or in a special meat keep.

Freeze it if you're not going to use it within the next day or two. Hamburger or ground beef can be frozen at 0 degrees F. For two to three months with little loss of quality.

Repackage ground beef wrapped in market paper before freezing. If you're freezing and do the same with fresh ground beef store-wrapped in transparent paper if you plan to freeze the meat for more than a short time. Meats for the freezer should be wrapped tightly in moisture-resistant material such as aluminum foil or freezer paper.

Improper wrapping or punctures in a package may cause freezer burn—the drying out of the surface tissues of the meat. It's not harmful, but does make the dehydrated area tough and tasteless when cooked.

Proper, air-tight wrapping may darken the surface of ground beef—through lack of oxygen—but this doesn't change the wholesomeness of the meat. In fact, you'll find that the meat will regain its bright red color when exposed to the air again.

Ground meat that you plan to refrigerate should be wrapped loosely so that the air can circulate around it easily. In this way, juices draining to the bottom of the package partially dry out, retarding bacterial growth. If you plan to leave ground beef in the original, transparent store-wrap, it's smart to loosen a corner of the package for this reason. How you thaw ground beef is very important in its wholesomeness, too. When possible, defrost ground beef in your refrigerator. But if you must defrost it faster, put it in a watertight bag in cold water or in a closed double paper bag at room temperature. These methods help keep the meat's surface cool while it thaws so that bacteria do not multiply and grow. Keep these facts in mind when you buy ground meat. Handle it with care-for safety and better flavor.

Beef Rice Balls in Tomato Sauce
1 pound ground beef
3 tablespoons chopped onion
1/4 cup rice (uncooked)
1/4 cup dry bread or cracker crumbs
1/3 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
1 can (10 1/2 oz.) cream of tomato soup
1/2 cup water

Mix together beef, onion, rice, crumbs, milk, salt and pepper. Shape into 12 small balls. Fry slowly in fat in skillet. Turn to brown evenly. Add soup, then rinse soup with water and add this to the skillet. Cover and simmer 1 hour.

If you prefer, the balls may be browned and put in a 1/2 quart casserole. Then heat the soup and water and pour over the balls. Cover the casserole. Bake in 350 oven 1 1/4 hours. Make any variation.

Stroganoff

2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons flour

Melt the margarine or butter in a skillet. Sauté onions until golden colored. Add beef and garlic. Continue stirring until meat is browned. Add flour and salt, then add soup and simmer uncovered for 10 minutes. Stir in sour cream. Sprinkle with parsley.

A. Generally, your Medicare claim must be filed with the Medicare office in the State where you receive the medical services. In that case, Medicare can track the costs for a particular medical service with an area. Your Medicare Handbook gives a complete list of places where Medicare claims are to be filed.

Q. My 67-year-old father traveled to Alaska to work last summer. While he was there he had to see a doctor. Will Medicare pay for a doctor's services in another State?

A. Yes, Medicare will pay bills for doctor's services performed in any part of the United States. You father should file a claim with the agency that handles Medicare in Alaska. The name and address of that agency is listed in the Medicare handbook which your father received at the time he signed up for Medicare.

Q. I was taken ill while I was on vacation in another State. After I got home, I sent my bills into Medicare like I always do, but they returned them for me and told me to make the claim where I was sick. Why can't I file my Medicare claim here?

County Agent's Notes

Landscaping
January is the month when, sitting by the fire, we grow the best flowers, shrubs, and evergreens. It is fine to talk about what others have or are doing, but it's the time when plans should be made by you, the individual homeowner. The outside of the house is just like the inside, in that it takes constant planning and budgeting, as well as plenty of work, to create the appearance you want for your home.

We believe firmly that the place to begin is by making a plan. Perhaps you will say that you cannot draw, but you do not need to be able to make a sketch what you have and then be able to add the things you want. Use this sketch where you can get it when needed, and when you see a plant that appeals to you, study your place, look at your sketch, and if you think it will look good, make plans to get it. For example, you may see an evergreen that strikes your fancy - select a place for it and if it will be satisfactory here, then get out your plan and mark it on the plan.

When you do this you are doing two things that are very fundamental - (1) you are studying your place critically, and (2) when you write it on your plan you have a record and will not forget it. One can easily look at a full-grown tree in the winter when it does not have any leaves on, and tell just how large it will grow. Then ask yourself if you have room for that kind of a tree at your place. The same may be said for evergreens and shrubs. We are sure that the homeowner who has one of these plants, regardless of how crude it may be, is on the right road to having a better looking place over the years. Another thing in the budget; you may like some plant, but may have to wait a year or so for your budget to stand the test.

Now is the time to write a post card or letter and get the flower and nursery catalogs. They are all ready for distribution, so be sure and get yours. You will find new kinds of flowers and good information about the old ones. We have often said that it is better to get fresh flower seed than to try and save them from plants you may have grown last year.

Go easy on the new kinds of flowers - a few will be all right, but be sure most of the kinds you order are the tried-and-true ones. After the new ones have been tried for a few years and proved to be good, then buy them. Most of your seed order, however, should be for the old ones which you know will succeed for you.

January is the month when you should be sure that the newly planted evergreens have enough water to keep the ball of earth around the roots moist.

Select a day when the temperature is above freezing and carefully pour 3 to 6 gallons of water around the stem of the plant and let it soak into the soil. This simple thing may be the difference between losing and saving a valuable plant. Apply this water once in January and once each month until we have plenty of spring rain. Then in the spring if you have a young plant that is having trouble starting to grow, apply plenty of water.

Farmer's Tax Guide

A limited number of Farmer's Tax Guides, 1972 Edition, published by the Internal Revenue Service, are available at the County Extension Office. The Farmer's Tax Guide is provided to help you prepare your 1971 Federal Income tax return. Tax rules of importance to farmers are explained, and examples are used to show how they apply to actual situations. This year's edition covers the new Asset Depreciation Range System and new rules for voluntary withholding of income for agricultural labor, and for depositing income and social security taxes. Also included is a reminder to farmers of their possible liability for Federal Tax on Highway Motor Vehicles. Filled-in samples of the Federal Income Tax Return, Form 1040, Schedule F-Farm Income and Expenses, and other schedules used by farmers are shown on the first few pages.

Dairyman
Are you having trouble keeping abreast with the latest developments? Have you found that problems increase faster than you expected when you increase herd size? In order to provide the latest information that will benefit the dairyman, the Animal Science Department of the University of Kentucky and Kentucky DCA are sponsoring the First Annual Dairyman's Conference. This conference will be an educational program covering all facets of the dairy business. Some examples are: Minimizing Feed Costs, Latest Developments in Milking Machines, Feeding automation, Manure Disposal, Raising Dairy Beef and several others. In addition, a special panel discussion will be held to cover the important details of the dairy business. This panel is comprised of leading dairymen from the Commonwealth of Kentucky. This outstanding program will be held at the Samuels Hotel and Resort, Horse Lane on the East Side of Louisville and the dates are February 4 and 5, 1972. So dairymen mark those new calendars on February 4 and 5. Pre-registration materials can be obtained at your county Extension office. Contact Bureau to Survey Nine Types of Farms

During January 1972, the Bureau of Census will be mailing out "type of farm" survey report forms to a selected group of farmers. There will be nine different survey forms used. One each for cash grain, tobacco, cotton, potatoes, sugar and other specialized field crops, vegetables, fruit, livestock, dairy and poultry.

Each form is designed to collect information pertinent to that particular type of farm enterprise. Each form is designed by sections so that if the answer to the last question is "no" the farmer may skip to the next section. The trends shown in the 1969 census indicate that there is an increasing degree of specialization. The completion of the "type of farm" survey report forms will help obtain a truer and more complete picture of this specialization and may set the pattern for future censuses of agriculture.
