County Agent's Notes

What to do in April

If there is one month that makes a difference in gardening it is April. Doing several tasks this month will help eliminate future problems.

LAWN CARE — Two very important practices should be completed before April 15 in order to get a good turf. The first would be to apply a broadleaf weed control chemical such as 2,4-D plus Silvex. Be especially careful about spray drift, and be sure to read the label for other directions. Some folks apply the herbicide with the fertilizer. Be especially careful with these materials under trees and around shrubbery. Remember, heavy applications of fertilizer mean heavier herbicide treatments and if you're not careful, lots of dead shrubbery and trees. You must follow directions for these combinations.

Also, a pre-emergence herbicide that will prevent crabgrass from growing should be applied. Crabgrass germinates around April 10 but if you can't make the April 10 deadline, it still pays to apply the pre-emergence material a week or so later, as the soil needs to warm before most of the crabgrass begins to grow. Materials that effectively destroy germinating crabgrass seeds are dacthal, bensulfide and benefin. Turpan is another pre-emergence material and is the only one recommended for use on newly-seeded lawns.

While we're discussing lawns, let's mention clipping height. Never clip bluegrass shorter than two inches. Don't clip off more than one-third of the height at any one cutting, either. Some folks roll lawns in the spring to level the soil. This is not a good practice, as the operation compacts the soil and seals desirable air spaces.

INSECT-BUG PROBLEMS — Insects are too often major problems on ornamental plantings. Near the end of the month, holly-leaf miners will start causing problems on holly. Opaca, Dr. Ruby Schelner, UK Entomologist, recommends sprays of Lintane (1 tablespoon of wettable powder per gallon or 1 teaspoon Emulstabile concentrate per gallon) when miner damage occurs.

If you have any lagworm cases still on your shrubbery, pull them off and destroy them before a few larvae emerge.

If you had a heavy slug infestation you'll want to get bats out as soon as the weather warms and they start re-appearing. Dust with 15 percent metaldehyde dust or spray with 20 percent metaldehyde liquid, as directed by the manufacturer.

Since you'll be using your sprayer in a great deal this summer, there's a tip on cleaning it. Partially fill the container, using 4 tablespoons of baking soda to every pint of water. Shake thoroughly and spray some through the nozzle. Then clean the outside before discarding the washings in some place where they can do no harm — not in the sewage system.

Prune Your Roses, Flowering Shrubs, Divide Perennials, The Plants — Shortly, roses will be getting their new shoots. By now you should be able to tell which canes have made it through the winter, satisfactorily. If some of the canes have brown or discolored areas, you'll have to remove this portion, cutting about one inch below the discolored area. Since the winter has been particularly hard some may be killed almost to the ground. Some of the summer flowering shrubs that bloom on current season wood can be pruned close to the ground this month. Snowball hydrangea (see page), hypericum and corytoparis are examples of shrubs that can be pruned back this spring.

Fall-blooming perennials can be divided now while the weather is still on the cool side. Be sure to give the plants plenty of water as they re-establish themselves. Chrysanthemum clumps should be thinned to one shoot per one foot area. (To keep down their size, keep pinching out the top until July 1. It is probably best not to fertilize your lawn until the spring growth flush is over. Apply limited amounts after May 15, only if you plan to water frequently, otherwise wait until fall.

Burrows In The Yard? — Moles are with us again! They make their burrows in search of grubs and earthworms. A treatment for grubs should also help in controlling moles. Treat now through April when you find an average of 3 or more grubs per square foot of lawn. Aldrin, chlordane, heptachlor and toxaphene are still registered for controlling grubs. These chemicals are available as granulars, wettable powders or emulsifiable concentrates and should be applied before a light rain or lightly watered in with a hose.

Other Ground Covers

People see crownvetch along the roadside and ask can this be used around homes for ground cover? Of course, the answer is yes. But since it turns brown and looks very unsightly in the wintertime, I would not recommend it except for an area that might be out of the way, where it could not be seen, and is too rough to mow. Crownvetch can be attractive in the summer-time and makes an excellent ground cover when it is started. Normally, it is seeded at the rate of about 1/2 pound per thousand square feet in the spring with an application of about 10 to 15 pounds of complete fertilizer per thousand square feet. Since crownvetch is slow to get started, grasses like tall fescue or ryegrass are seeded with it. Installation of crownvetch is a must.

"ALCOHOLISM"

await the result.

2. Generate questions and seek provocative discussions, which is the true source of the educational process.

3. Work through and with the superintendent, principal, and the teaching force. Essentially, the Alcoholism Services team will be a source of knowledge, films, literature, physical and mental health information.

Mark Stephens, Field Coordinator, and Margie Hampton, Educator, Alcoholism Services, remarked: "We have received the green light to inaugurate a pilot program in August, 1972 in Whitley County. A grading range system will be developed for grades 7-12 and eventually will reach grades 1-6. The objective that everyone concerned has in mind is that both education and awareness will be achieved at an early age, hopefully with beneficial results to the new generation of adults."

Although A.A. and Al-Anon groups as a matter of principle and experience do not affiliate with outside agencies or organizations, they do approve of the efforts of the Alcoholism Services staff and other "problem drinkers." Over a period of years dating back to the 1930's, A.A. has devoted its time and experience to helping the alcoholic who "desires to stop drinking." Essentially, it is a matter of group therapy, and in the past 35 years the organization grew from two men in Ohio to its present strength in both the United States and most foreign countries as well.

Jerry Carter, Alcoholism Field Coordinator for Laurel and Rockcastle Counties, remarked: "In the six-county area, there are groups in Corbin, Mt. Vernon, Chesapeake, Burning Springs and the Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center in London. The Field Coordinators at the Mental Health Centers have all of the required information and contacts, and stand ready to help in any way possible. Though no Alateen groups are currently in existence in the six-county area, the possibility exists that some of these groups will be formed in the future as part of this effort at 'public awareness' to alcohol abuse and alcoholism."

Of the five basic services which comprise comprehensive Alcoholism Services, emergency service not only serves the alcoholic, his family and the community, but also serves as a catalyst for developing community involvement. Emergency services for the six-county area are provided on a 24-hour basis. In emergency services, we can be handling anything from an extremely severe case of alcoholism, where the time of the essence, to a case of public drunkenness. Once the detoxification process is underway, on the doctor's recommendation, the patient can be admitted to the Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center in London. Here a minimum of 14 days of treatment, information on alcohol abuse, therapy and consultation takes place.

Maryam Ashraf, Alcoholism Counselor, and Donnee Kern, Registered Nurse, observed: "We try and combine a little bit of love and kindness with the rehabilitation specifics and therapy required. Minimal rules have been established since the program is a voluntary one, and the hope we have is that the alcoholic will come to our program with some degree of motivation, though this is not always the case."

The point is that the alcoholic should be given full information about his malady, that he does have "hope," and that help is available if he chooses to cooperate. He should be given the opportunity to gradually reach a productive place in our society, but that the choice and his commitment can only be made by himself alone.

Ben Hiatt, Coordinator of Treatment and Rehabilitation, Alcoholism Treatment Center, London, added: "When the patient leaves here, we don't just forget him. The Field Coordinators keep in touch with him, and the family is also helped to cope with the problem. Our services are flexible."

What's it all about? The Cumberland River Mental Health Center realized very early that alcoholism ranks among the communities' most serious problems, and modern applications for treatment and rehabilitation were made possible by an NIMH (National Institute of Mental Health) grant to the Center on September 1, 1971. What did this mean?

1. The grant provided the required funds for starting salaries. The additional monies required to implement the comprehensive program of Alcoholism Services necessarily had to come from other sources. Our respective communities will most certainly be asked to help via information of the Center's activities, its needs and requirements, and its plans for the future.

2. Five basic services are involved. They are: Emergency Services, Inpatient Services, Intermediate Care, Outpatient Services, and Community Education. A broad-scale approach to the problem was required because the disease that comprises alcohol abuse and alcoholism is shrouded with a "stigma," gross ignorance, considerable bias and a host of interlocked community socio-economic problems.

3. The goals and objectives are these: a) The services must start at the bottom with the "high risk" group. The community knows that the problem "won't just go away" for its been with us and with others for many years. b) Seek an early intervention -- for the disease of alcoholism is a progressive one and the choices are recovery, insanity or death. c) In education and consultation, bear in mind WHO? Among these elements are the public at large, the problem drinker, alcoholic, the family and other care-giving agencies. Obviously the end goal is COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT -- for without this key ingredient, the entire program will fail.

Alcoholism Services is essentially a "Trailblazer" in South-eastern Kentucky in that while considerable knowledge and experience had been assembled and written on alcoholism in metropolitan areas -- they were few guidelines and nothing written on rural alcoholism. This called for assembling a versatile, flexible and diversified group of people to comprise "the Alcoholism Services team." An effective start was made last September. Much has been accomplished. Much more remains to be done in rural alcoholism and Appalachia. Community involvement is the answer and you will be asked to help.

Burley Growers Receive $1,855,750 For '71 Crop

Rockcastle County Burley producers marketed a total of 2,295,109 pounds of tobacco in 1971 for an average price per pound of 82¢ but, they brought home $225,448 less than they did for their 1970 crop.

The deficit in money received in 1971 ($1,855,750) was due to the fact that 525,057 more pounds of tobacco could have been marketed in 1971 than were.

The average yield per acre in the county was 2,156 pounds. This figure was arrived at by dividing the total number of farms with tobacco bases (1,424) into the total pounds produced (2,295,109). The average pound allotment is 1,466 pounds.

The effective quota for 1972 is 3,168,848 pounds (100% of the quota for 1972) and the average price support rate for 1972 will be 74.9 per cent, an increase of 3.4c a pound over 1971's figure of 71.5c.

Over the past five years, Rockcastle farmers have received a total of $10,871.89 from the growing of Burley tobacco.

The breakdown is as follows: 1967, $1,825,368; 1968, $2,161,352; 1969, $2,143,524; 1970, $2,061,198 and 1971, $1,855,750.

There are no changes in the poundage contract regulations for 1972.

Did it over the hill talk last Thursday night? They tell us that at Sand Springs, the Hall was as big as baseball when it fell and could believe it after some ballstones were brought to the office Thursday afternoon (see picture elsewhere on front) and after they had been lying on the ground for seven days they were still 1 1/2" to 2" in diameter. In addition, 1.86 inches of rain also fell. We understand things got pretty rough around Livingston when the Rockcastle River created last week but things also looked pretty rough at our next door neighbors early last Wednesday morning. We had worked up here rather late and when my husband came home from work about 2:30 a.m., he looked out the window and lo and behold, there was a lake next door. We actually debated a little while before calling our neighbors to tell them that we thought they stood in imminent danger of floating away but finally decided that they might appreciate it. I'm still not sure whether or not they did although I was later told that they did go out and untie their dog who was having a hard go at keeping his head above water. But, we have been blessed with four beautiful days of sunshine since then and a friend of mine is already complaining of the sunburn she received Tuesday while soaking in the sun.

Heard that Mrs. Mary Ellen Noe was keeping busy these days trying to get her setting hens lined out? It seems Mrs. Noe decided that to get her hens used to setting on eggs, she would use golf balls for starters. Belknap of several miles in the county could think of much better uses for those golf balls...

Alcoholism - Under Attack In Southeast Ky.

Alcoholism, one of the more serious problems in Southeastern Kentucky, has come under attack by the Cumberland River Mental Health Center. Although most of the area is "dry," there is an estimated 4,400 alcoholic living here. The Mental Health Center felt that a concerted effort should be made to develop a well-organized plan to cover the facets of the illness.

In September of 1971 the Center was awarded a staffing grant by the National Institute of Mental Health to begin a community treatment, rehabilitation and education program concerning alcohol abuse and alcoholism.

Roland D. Mullins, Executive Director, stated: "What we visualize is a team of specialists in Alcoholism Services who will be thoroughly trained in what is currently known about alcoholism, one that could act as a task force within the scope of our Regional Mental Health Centers in the six county area."

In the few months since the program was initiated, much has been accomplished. A staff of 16 people, representing a variety of disciplines, has been hired. Court School Programs have been started, public education meetings have been held with church groups, civic organizations, ministerial associations, and the Fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous and AA-Anon groups.

The Alcoholism Services found that an area of service that needed to be implemented was Emergency-Deinstitutionation-Rehabilitation, if a total program of recovery for the alcoholic was to be successful. To meet this demand, a lease was obtained to use the fourth floor of the T. B. Hospital at London.

Alan C. Easley, Director of Alcoholism Services, was very happy about the acquisition. He said: "We will now be able to carry through with a complete program for the alcoholic - many of them can be helped."

This Center is located on the northeast end of the fourth floor of the hospital. It occupies approximately 3,200 square feet which provides an inpatient capacity of 12 beds and office space for the Alcoholism Counselor, Family Services Coordinator and nurses who provide coverage on a 24-hour, seven day a week basis.

Easley stated: "A staff physician recommends both the entry and exit of the patient for the rehabilitation process. Included is a series of group therapy sessions, family counseling, as well as some exposure to A.A. and AA-Anon groups."

John Nichols' Frankfort Watchline

When you think about it, former Gov. Louie B. Nunn is not the only Republican candidate for U.S. Senate and state Sen. Dee Huddleston not the only Democratic candidate in the field. But Nunn and Huddleston apparently would rather you didn't think about it. That way they can get to home base — grab the nomination May 23 — with a minimum of fuss, bother or embarrassment.

For example, the former governor implied at a news conference the day after filing that if rivals Howard Clay and Robert Gable didn't annoy him, he wouldn't attack them.

And Huddleston has ignored his thousand-to-one underdog rivals entirely, flailing at Nunn well in advance of the November election.

The lesser candidates may not feel the favorites are playing the game fairly. They may be pleading quietly for Nunn and Huddleston to slap them around.

Ordinarily both primaries would turn into old-fashioned infighting. But as soon as the legislative session was over the Democratic administration was going to start firing my state employees to make room for the waiting lines of jobseekers who have been sorely disappointed by not coming to Frankfort immediately after inauguration.

Well, it hasn't happened yet. For some reason, the Ford camp is proceeding cautiously on workers covered by the state Merit System.

Nunn, of course, showed no such hesitation when he took office in 1967 and among the several thousand dismissed right away were many merit employees.

The catch is that eventually a number of such cases were taken to court and won by the victims — at a cost to the state in back pay which eventually minutes when he learned Nunn already had filed.

We do have to credit Nunn with enterprise and innovation. In a single release from his headquarters the other day, the former governor managed to misinterpret a federal court ruling on congressional redistricting, label Huddleston a legislative incompetent, advise the Democrats on how to benefit from their alleged mistakes and predict that a new legislative reapportionment law will be declared unconstitutional.

You Can't Get Lower—Gov. Wendell Ford made a minor slip during a news conference in which he explained how small the population variation was between congressional districts in a court-contested act.

The governor claimed the deviation was below zero. How's that again. *****

Where's The Axe?—Reports circulated around the Capitol that as soon as the legislative session was over the Democratic administration was going to start firing my state employees to make room for the waiting lines of jobseekers who have been sorely disappointed by not coming to Frankfort immediately after inauguration.

Well, it hasn't happened yet. For some reason, the Ford camp is proceeding cautiously on workers covered by the state Merit System.

Nunn, of course, showed no such hesitation when he took office in 1967 and among the several thousand dismissed right away were many merit employees.

The catch is that eventually a number of such cases were taken to court and won by the victims — at a cost to the state in back pay which eventually may total $1 million when all the cases are finished.

The current regime is well aware of the obstacle, and when it gets rid of an employee, you can wager that the case probably is strong enough to survive appeal. *****

Watch That Word—A highway trade magazine ran a picture of Highway Commissioners Charles Pryor and three contractors and related businessmen at a convention.

The caption said that Pryor "talked turkey" with the contractors.

Well, we hope for Pryor's sake that word is not misinterpreted. *****

Safety Program To Be Held At Mt. Vernon

The Champion Highway Safety Program which features nationally known race drivers, will be presented at Mt. Vernon High School, April 24, 1972, at 8:45 a.m. by Gene Hartley, Indiana-time competitor in the famed Indianapolis 500-mile race.

Arrangements for Mr. Hartley's appearance here were made by Mt. Vernon Automotive.

In commenting on the program, Hartley said, "On the race track of the highway, each driver is the biggest factor in assuring safety. By keeping a car in good operating condition, being mentally alert and practicing common courtesy, all of which reflect the proper attitude, we could substantially reduce the annual traffic death toll."

Now in its 17th year, the program has been presented to over 14 million teenagers throughout the U.S. over 700 high schools. It has brought numerous awards to its national sponsor, Champion Spark Plug Company. Among these are three National Safety Council Public Service Awards and the Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., award for outstanding service to highway safety. Other citations have come from United States Auto Club, Continental Casualty Company and the Public Relations Society of America.

Mr. Hartley of Indianapolis, Indiana, one of the most talented professional drivers in the history of the sport whose father was also a well known race driver, began his career in 1947 driving midget race cars. Three years later he competed in his first Indianapolis "500" where his driving skill earned him membership in the famed Champion 100 Mile-An-Hour Club, an exclusive organization of men who have completed the 500 miles at Indianapolis.

America's Comfort Team—Electric Heating and Proper Insulation

Electric heating is the cleanest, most efficient way to keep your home warm and comfortable in the winter. And you can make it even more efficient and even save money by making sure your home is properly insulated.

Proper insulation of ceilings, walls and floors prevents heat loss. Storm doors and windows prevent escaping heat while weather stripping of windows and doors help keep the cold drafts away. It's important that all doors and windows fit tightly.

Proper insulation is a good investment that returns benefits in clean, 100% efficient electric heat. Ask your Rural Electric System to help you make certain your home is insulated properly for comfort as well as economy.

At Local Shriners' Hospital

From the Lexington Herald Leader
Bluegrass Review Section

Among many a child's closest friends you'll find a bedside table of gray flannel giraffes and polka-dotted elephants, some without tails, some without ears and some minus most of their stuffing.

Only trouble with these creatures, the children will tell you, is they never eat their dinner, never romp and play and never say much of anything out loud.

Not so for the four-legged friends of eight-year-old Jonathan Treadway. The elephants and lions and tigers he knows have stripes and spots of all the right colors, make fierce animal noises and are just as convincingly terrifying as wild beasts should be.

Once a year they all come to visit at his home.

The animals' visit is just one part of an exciting kaleidoscope of children's dreams come true that spills forth on Jonathan's front lawn one afternoon each summer. Tumbling together in a conglomeration of crazy colors are jugglers, clowns, trick horses and their pretty, costumed riders.

Shrine Circus Day at Jonathan's part-time home, Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children on Richmond Road, is one of his two favorite events each year, he says.

The other is Christmas. Jonathan, crippled with paralysis of both legs, leans forward in his child-sized wheel chair as his mother says, "Tell us about Christmas."

"I had a lot of Christmases," he grins, recalling the year he spent Christmas in a ward at Shriners Hospital then celebrated the season a second time when he came home a month later.

Then he tells about Christmas at the hospital, and how Santa makes his rounds on foot through the wards, passing out games and red bags of toys while in-visiting everyone to a dinner of turkey, cranberry sauce, mixed vegetables, mashed potatoes, cakes, ice cream and a glass of milk.

Most of the dinner talk concerns the Christmas play staged earlier in the afternoon, a courageous drama in which Joseph is a boy on crutches and wise men approach the nativity scene not on handsome camels but in wheelchairs.

Minor stage tragedies muffled over by children that night at dinner are not unlike those heard following any grade school play. "I forgot what my name was," laments Jonathan, remembering how he almost muffed a long speech. "We only had five days of practice."

That was Christmas of 1970. Today, Jonathan spends most of his time at home or in classes at James Lane Allen public school, visiting the hospital only on clinic days as an outpatient. He is walking much of the time now in double leg braces with the help of crutches. He is most eager to recommend the hospital to any other children like him, for he knows that had it not been for treatment there, he might still be confined all the time to bed or a wheelchair.

Today, Jonathan's memories of Shriners are speckled with recollections of surgery, picnics, school, visiting friends on other wards, birthday parties, and his very own Circus on his front lawn.

Tomorrow, if and when Jonathan ever stands straight and tall on his own, he may remember one more thing—at a time when he needed a lift someone cared enough to stoop and help him stand, not because they pitied him but because they believed he deserved a chance.

This is the philosophy that underlies operation of all Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children throughout North America. Jonathan, as 1971 Lexington unit poster boy, represented to the public the many thousands of children cured or materially helped by these hospitals, who have been cared for without any cost to them or their families.

ANNUAL ASSESSMENTS

The bills are paid by annual assessments to each Shriners, by funds raised from the annual Shrine Circus and by endowments from donors through willis or gifts.

Who qualifies for treatment? Any child under 14 years old, suffering from orthopedic, that is, bone, joint or muscle problems, whose parents or guardians cannot afford medical care. Among defects seen in children brought to these hospitals are rickets, webbed fingers and toes, club feet and have dislocated hips, arthritis and tuberculosis of the joints. Eligible for treatment at the Shriners burn institutes are children who have acute burn injuries involving an extensive portion of the body.

When Jonathan first entered the Shriners Hospital, the examining team of medical doctors planned for him much the same program set up for all patients: surgery, application of casts, provision of braces, X-ray, physical therapy and recreational therapy. His stay ran the average length, about 50 to 60 days.

Children entering the hospital need not bring anything with them, for clothes and toys are provided. Every child, in fact, receives his own bag of games and toys the day he arrives.

Once settled in his ward, a child enters a busy routine of attending state accredited school in hospital classrooms, making new friends and participating in recreation programs in addition to medical treatment. His parents may visit him as often as once a day. When he finally leaves, he's usually loaded down with gifts from friends and staff.

The way to the hospital, no matter who the child might be, is always by way of the Shrine. When a Shriners learns of a crippled child not being helped he contacts the parents, describes the hospital's facilities and hopefully gets their permission to send the child there. Once a parent consents, everything possible medically is provided for the child.

Families interested in seeking treatment but who don't know a Shriners may obtain an application form by writing to Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, 1800 Richmond Road, Lexington, 40502. Or, they may contact a doctor. A Shriners subsequently will contact them.

DURING RAIN STORM

The decision to build the first Shriners Hospital occurred, most dramatically, during a rain storm. Tradition says that when Shriners at Portland, Oregon, voted in 1921 to sponsor a hospital, the storm cleared suddenly and the sun shone. One year later the first Shriners Hospital opened at Shreveport, La.

Actually the Shriners first gave consideration to hospitals in 1919 when an Atlanta, Ga., Shriners attending his annual convention dreamed one night of establishing a crippled children's hospital. Once awake, he considered more seriously the possibility of putting the power of Shriners behind a chain of crippled children's hospitals. However, his idea did not meet with immediate enthusiasm for at that time Shriners, a branch of the Masonic Order, was organized primarily for good fellowship rather than charitable works.

Lexington's first Shriners Hospital was a 16-bed facility at Harrison and Maxwell streets, close to Good Samaritan Hospital. The old hospital was sold in 1964 when Oleka Temple opened its spacious new institution on Richmond Road, Turkey, some of the crippled children once aided at the old hospital serve as adult volunteers or staff members in the new hospital.

Since opening the first hospital in 1922, Shriners have helped more than 160,000 children. The program has expanded over the years to include 10 orthopedic hospitals and three burn institutes, operating on a $22.5 million annual budget. Central Kentucky is serviced both by the orthopedic facility on Richmond Road and a burn institute at Cincinnati, Ohio.

The cost of hospital expenses is staggering and continues to spiral. For example, Shriners estimate per patient costs in orthopedic units at $1,630 and in burn institutes at $10,000. But Shriners consider the amount of dollars spent insignificant when weighed against opportunities of returning young patients to their rightful place in society.

This philosophy, through the years, has come to be expressed in a slogan, "never does a Shriners stand so tall as when he stoops to help a crippled child."

What do Shriners get or expect to get from this program? Only the pleasure that stems from helping someone who needs help.

What has it cost? No estimate is available. The bills channeled through the hospital could be tabulated. But the personal gifts that have come from Shriners, in the form of presents, loans, job opportunities and whatever, never have been tabulated nor will they be. They come from the heart, and the heart doesn't keep those kinds of books.

What is it worth? Ask Jonathan. His knees, even an eight-year-old can tell you how much easier and better life can be with a little help from your friends. *****
