Interested in Improving Your Family's Life?

Are you interested in new developments in homemaking? Are you interested in learning new ideas and easier ways to carry out your many jobs including housekeeper, wife, mother, and community citizen. If your answers were yes, homemaker clubs may be of interest to you.

Homemaker Clubs are a group of women in a community who meet together once a month to have a lesson on a particular subject in home economics. Some examples of lessons that homemakers in Rockcastle County will be receiving are: outdoor cooking, controlling household pests, drug abuse, Christmas decorations, colors and designs that look good on you, pattern in home furnishings, and growing old with a purpose plus others. Besides the lessons, many homemaker clubs like to do projects to help others in the community. Homemaker club members also receive a newsletter each month with recipes, garden tips, fashions, etc.

Homemaker clubs are not just a local organization. They are a part of the largest women's organization in Kentucky. Home-maker clubs are found in all fifty states and are part of an international organization. The purpose of the organizations are to promote an educational program in home economics and family living. One long time homemaker member said she felt as if she had a college education in home economics after participating in the homemaker program.

There are now five homemaker clubs meeting in Rockcastle County. They are Quail, Broadhead Willing Workers, Mt. Vernon Night Homemakers, Sunshine and Fairview Clubs. Anyone interested in being a homemaker member can join one of these clubs or a group of women may want to form a club of their neighbors and friends. There is no age limit, both young married women and senior citizens will find something for them in a homemaker's club.

The Kentucky Cooperative Extension Personnel from the University of Kentucky sponsors the Homemaker Program. Mrs. Cheryl Witt, Extension Agent for Home Economics, helps to carry out the program in Rockcastle County.

If you are interested in being part of a homemaker's club, call 256-2403 or stop in at the Extension office in the courthouse. Mrs. Witt will be happy to help you organize a group of homemakers to have you join an existing group.

PANTS WORKSHOP TO BE OFFERED
Having trouble fitting pants and slacks? This is a difficulty many home sewers face.

Pants for women are seen everywhere today — from the backyard to the street to a party. And it seems as if this added freedom for women is here to stay — at least for a while. Pants are easy to make. Most women can wear pants — if they choose the proper style and fabric for their figure type. However, the problem comes into fitting them so they will be comfortable and flattering.

Home sewers, here's good news for you. A workshop on fitting and making women's pants will be held on May 3, 1972 in Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Cheryl Witt, County Extension Agent for Home Economics, will be teaching the lesson. It will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. There will also be an evening session on Thursday, May 4 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. The workshops will be held at the PCA building's new meeting room.

Choosing appropriate styles and principles of fitting will be discussed in the morning session. Actual fitting of pants will be done in the afternoon.

The class will be for those who have had sewing experience. If you wish to attend the workshop you must pre-register by calling the county Extension office at 256-2403.

cer during the four-day camp with business leaders, from different areas of Kentucky as instructors.

As the State FBIA was increasing so rapidly in membership, it became necessary to divide the state into four regions so that more students could have the opportunity to participate. It was during the Leadership Camp at Hardinsburg that this division occurred. Most of the plans and the framework for "the regime" was devised by the students and sponsors attending the Camp. This regional idea has proven to be very successful this year as it has enabled more students from all over the state of Kentucky to participate in various contests and to run for officers. Donna has been very active in her local FBIA Chapter while attending the Vocational School these past two years. She has served on various committees, participated in Club projects and is currently serving as President of the Chapter. She is the daughter of Mr. Preston Collins and the late Esther Collins. While a student at the Harry Sparks Vocational School and Livingston High School, she has maintained a 3.7 standing. This fall, Donna will enter Midway Junior College where she plans to use her scholarship toward her studies in the Business Field.

ARE WE GETTING ANYWHERE?

"Are we getting anywhere against cancer?" That's the question most often asked of the American Cancer Society. The answer is a very definite "yes". And here's why. The earlier you find cancer, the better your chances of cure. In the 1940's, if colon rectum cancer was treated early before it had spread, 51% of the patients were saved - only about one half. Today this figure has risen to 69% - more than two thirds. Among lung cancer patients, early treatment before the cancer had spread led to only 12% survival. Now it is 25% - an improvement, yes.

Miss Shelby Jean Fathergill, FBIA Sponsor, presents Donna J. Collins with trophy and certificate.

Plock Scholarship which was awarded in Louisville at the State FBIA Conference which was held April 6-8 at the Seelbach Hotel. The scholarship was in the amount of $200 which is to be applied toward the recipient's college education.

The Ethel M. Plock Scholarship is given each year in honor of Mrs. Plock who has been a dedicated leader in the Kentucky FBIA for approximately 20 years. It is awarded to an outstanding FBIA member who is planning to attend a college or business school for two years with emphasis in some phase of Business.

The preliminary contest for the Scholarship was held at the regional level at Eastern Kentucky University on March 25. The top three winners at the regional level advanced to the state for competition with the winners of the other regions. At both the regional and state competition, Miss Collins was interviewed by a team of three judges asking questions pertaining to academic standing, school activities, financial need, current events and her interest in attending a college for the purpose of centering her studies around Business.

Miss Collins has attended all the regional meetings for FBIA and, in July of last year, she along with two other students and sponsors attended a Leadership training camp held at Hardinsburg, Kentucky. The purpose of this camp was to help students become better officers and leaders in their local clubs. Classes were held for each offi-

Ballot Light For May 23 Primary

Voters in Rockcastle County will have very little to concern themselves with at the upcoming May 23 Primary.

The only race on the entire ballot appears to be between Robert E. "Bob" Gable of Stearns and former Governor Louis B. Nunn of Lexington. Gable, who is running for the Republican nomination for U.S. Senator. There are three other candidates on the Republican side of the ballot, George Wooten of Hyden, W. Howard Clay of Louisville and (again) Thurman Jerome Hamlin of London, but they are expected to give only token opposition.

The Democrats will also have five candidates to choose from to nominate the Democratic candidate for the Senate seat. The front runner is Walter "Doc" Huddleston of Elizabethtown, the administrator of James E. Wallace of Alexandria, Sandy Rokenmeyer of Frankfort, Charles Van Dyke of Louisville and (also again) Willis V. "Tobacco Bill" Johnson of Lancaster.

Incumbent Congressman Republican Tim Lee Carter has no Republican opposition for the Primary and, therefore, his name will not even appear on the ballot. There are a number of Democrats running for the Democratic nomination to oppose Carter in the fall. They are: B.A. "Bill" Abner, Lyle L. Willis and Bill Worthington. Willis and Abner are a little more exciting in November since by that time the Democrats will have picked their man to oppose President Nixon for that office. Huddleston, no doubt, will be head-to-head with either Gable or Nunn and there is also a local school board race.

NRCWD Construction To Begin May 1

A pre-closing conference for the northern Rockcastle County Water District was held April 20 in the law offices of Allen, Clona & Cox in Mt. Vernon. Present at the conference besides the lawyers were the Board of Commissioners of the Water District, state and county FHA representatives, a representative of the construction company and the engineers.

A date of May 1 for beginning construction of the lines was set at the conference.

It was also decided that the deadline for persons wishing to hook-on to the water at a fee of $100 would be set for May 10. There will absolutely be no extension to this date, a spokesman for the Water District said, and after this date unit construction is completed, the hook-on fee will be $150. After construction is completed, the fee will be $200.

BURIED TREASURE? — The Gross family of Lincoln County uncovered several very old coins from a recently plowed field Sunday afternoon at their farm owned by D.A. Robbins of Broadhead. The farm is located on U.S. 150 near the Rockcastle Line, west of Broadhead, and was the site of one of the last civil war battles. Several relics of the past have been uncovered there, including arrowheads and musket balls. The coins were discovered after members of the Gross family decided to explore the freshly plowed land for arrowheads Sunday. What they found was much more interesting. There were $2.50, $5.00, $10.00 and $20.00 gold pieces found just lying on top of the ground loose plus some pennies. Shown in the field where the coins were found are, from left: Levi Gross, Sheriff Billy Kirby, and Caleb Gross. In front of the men are two of the pieces found, the smaller is one of the old copper pennies (do you suppose that's where a "big penny" got it's name) and the larger piece is a $20 gold piece which was minted in 1863.

John Nichols' Frankfort Watchline

It's kind of amusing to hear both Republicans and Democrats make verbose pronouncements about how politics has no place in the Legislative Research Commission.

The LRC is just what its name implies — basically a research outfit to guide the General Assembly. But it is made up of legislative leaders, dominated by the majority, which always has been the Democrats.

When you gather a dozen or more politicians on the commission, how can you help but have politics hip-deep no matter how it's spelled? The LRC has served as a convenient forum for political maneuvering and speeches.

However, the feeling for years has been that at least the LRC director should maintain neutrality. He has no vote on the commission and is supposed to be strictly an administrator.

James Fleming, who is leaving the post to join Gov. Wendell Ford's staff, has been, as one reporter put it, an unabashed supporter all along of Ford, even in the Democratic primary for governor against former Gov. Bert Combs.

Before that, Fleming gave the same support to Harry Lee Waterfield when Waterfield was lieutenant governor and hence LRC chairman by virtue of office.

So much for that nonsense by politicians about political neutrality in the LRC.

Which brings us to the case of Danny Boggs, a Republican aide on the LRC payroll who got bounced 10 days earlier than scheduled for openly criticizing the Democratic plan for legislative reapportionment.

Boggs had charged in a news conference sponsored by the GOP state central committee that the opposition party deliberately committed massive errors in drawing up census figures for new districts, especially at Louisville.

Boggs' scatergun blast took in Ford, Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll and just about every Democratic leader in sight. Carroll lowered the boom and dismissed him.

Probably correctly, Boggs after all, went a bit too far and broke the rules by openly castigating his employer. How long would you last if you did that?

Ans, just because politics has been rife within the LRC does not mean Boggs was not indulging in a little of the same.

After all, he checked with former GOP Gov. Louie B. Nunn, his onetime boss, before the news conference was called.

You may ask if we have any moral to all of this. Only that the LRC should make a bona fide effort to select a truly non-partisan director—at least one who will be that way awhile before the politicians of one side or another lure him or convince him their path is the righteous one.

OH, HOW LONG?—Gov. Ford is said to have remarked the other day his planned special legislative session should not last longer than a week.

Maybe not and the governor does decide what goes on the agenda. But we'll hazard the guess the lawmakers will be determined to stay in friendly Frankfort for at least two weeks.

And if the list of topics is expanded, why not three weeks? We'll see.

JUDGES' MANSION?—The

Court of Appeals still is looking longly at the executive mansion as a possible new home to get out of tight quarters on the second floor of the Capitol.

If that move ever materializes, the governor might shift to picturesque Berry Hill, scene of the state Library Department, with a new mansion.

DRINK TO THAT!—A Public Safety employee, after a few drinks one night, decided to see if he could pass Breathalyzer and telephoned State Police to arrange it.

"Sorry," the operator informed him. "They close after 5

Capitol Digest

Gov. Wendell Ford told the annual Kentucky Travel Conference recently that in-state and out-of-state tourists spent some $385 million in Kentucky last year.

The figure represented a $43 million increase over 1970.

Governor Ford said some 35 million out-of-state visitors came to Kentucky in 1971, spending $428 million and providing $46 million in direct revenue to the state treasury.

Tourism is one of Kentucky's most successful industries, he noted, and is growing faster than the state's retail businesses.

"But merchants who cater to travelers are not the only ones who profit from the tourist trade," he said, "thirty cents out of each tourist dollar is passed on to other concerns and individuals for payroll, rents, supplies, taxes and other operating expenses, with lesser amounts going to other recipients."

APPEALS COURT OKAYS HIGHER PHONE RATE COLLECTIONS

The state Court of Appeals has rejected a move by the attorney general's office to block higher collections by South Central Bell Telephone Co. under a recently granted $25.5-million rate increase.

It was another victory by the phone company in a month-long battle with the attorney general's office over the increase.

The high court ruling upheld a lower decision which also denied an injunction against collections on the grounds that the rate increase is not final and thus not appealable.

South Central Bell was granted the increase on an "emergency" interim basis until a final decision is reached by the state Public Service Commission.

Hearings, which will lead to a final ruling on the increase, are continuing.

If the full rate boost is denied, South Central Bell will be required to refund any excess collected.

However, Asst. Atty. Gen. Laura Murrell argued some persons could never recover their excess payments in the event the full increase is not granted permanently.

She cited those making intrastate long-distance calls from pay phones and those who move away.

BANKING CHIEF DISLIKES PROCEDURAL RULING

State Banking Commissioner Leavell Hall says he may appeal a recent lower court decision which could have "far-reaching effects" on procedures for approving new bank charters and branch bank locations.

Approval proceedings previously have been conducted in private by the state Banking Department, but the decision holds that such being is required.

"If this decision stands, it's going to be almost impossible to approve a branch bank without an evidentiary hearing, and almost always have somebody who objects to a branch," Hall said.

He said he is considering an appeal to the Court of Appeals in hopes of reversing the decision. The opinion was handed down by Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs.

"Although the statute does not require an evidentiary hearing... from the nature of the subject matter the quasi-judicial character of the determination to be made, and substantial public interest, the due process requirement of public hearing is superimposed upon the statute by our law," Meigs said.

The Caywoods are a busy young couple. Between work, a young baby and many outside interests there just isn't time for a lot of housekeeping. And the cleanliness of electric heat — no dirt or grime — is the perfect answer for an on-the-go life style. Even when you're gone from home all day the welcome-home warmth from electricity's swift thermostatic response is so nice to come home to and economical, too. When you're apartment hunting ask the key question: "Is it completely modern — with electric heat?"

"They are beginning to see that the enforcement of the law is in their own best interest in the long run."

Beach said his division now is trying to "weed out" operators who refuse to follow reclamation rules and practices.

HEAVY RAINS DAMAGE TOBACCO PLANT BEDS

Recent spring floods, which have closed roads, damaged property and driven many Kentuckians from their homes, also may have long-range detrimental effects on the state tobacco industry.

University of Kentucky tobacco specialist Irv. Massie says the flooding has damaged many tobacco plant beds which could cause a "severe shortage of plants this spring."

Massie said many plant beds have been washed away completely. Others, he said, have been damaged by hail.

"The remaining beds have plants bunched together, and many of the small seedlings are partially damaged," he said.

"The question is, where are farmers going to get plants this season?"

Massie said the beds could be reseeded and planted in about 50 days under ideal conditions. That would provide plants for transplanting by about June 15.

However, the wet weather also has put Kentucky farmers well behind schedule in corn planting and plowing.

The Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says only about 45 per cent of the spring plowing is completed and about 6 per cent of the state's 1.2-million-acre corn crop has been planted.

CHECKS UNCOVER DANGEROUS LP GAS UNITS

Kentucky may have more than 100,000 dangerous, improperly installed LP (liquefied petroleum) gas units, the state Fire Marshal's office says.

The situation was uncovered by recent spot checks of LP installations around the state. Such checks, conducted in recent years, were substituted by Fire Marshal Warren Rowland after improperly installed LP cylinders caused several fires in Hopkins County 10 weeks ago.

Although the inspections are not yet completed, Southworth said they indicate an estimated 70 to 80 per cent of Kentucky's LP installations are faulty.

He urged LP gas users to check their units and call their dealers if they suspect faulty installation.

Southworth also warned that LP-natural gas or fuel-oil hoses that were shut off in flooded areas should be reinstalled only by qualified servicemen.

"VANCEBURG TO CELEBRATE 175TH BIRTHDAY IN JUNE"
By Helen Price Stacy

In the spring of 1911, George M. Thomas of Vanceburg wrote a history of his family for his daughter Araminta, who was born in 1855 and who in 1872 was married to Judge Samuel J. Pugh. The letter from father to daughter included much information about the early days of Lewis County and the county seat, Vanceburg.

brate its 175th birthday.

It was on June 30, 1797, that Joseph C. Vance and Moses Baird bought 55 acres of land from Alexander Keith Marshall (who had received it in a land grant from Virginia), on which to plot the city of Vanceburg.

The city was chartered by an act of the General Assembly on Jan. 21, 1827, and approved Jan. 25, 1827.

Like most county seats, Vanceburg had some predecessors. W. C. Dugan wrote in a history for The Lewis County Herald that the court held at a tract of "one acre and eighty poles" west of Quicks Run for a seat of justice. This did not materialize and two years later, in 1809, the county seat was moved to Clarksville, four miles south of Vanceburg. The court ordered a courthouse to be built of logs, 24 by 30 feet and two stories high.

The community of Vanceburg was along the banks of the Ohio River, which was the "highway" of that era. Steamboats plied the waters, creating much river business, particularly from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, about 79 miles west. In 1864 Vanceburg was named the county seat by an act of the legislature and a brick courthouse was built.

In addition to Vanceburg's accessibility by river, salt was an important factor in the settlement of the community and the nearby area. In 1762 a group of Frenchmen traveled from the French colony that became Portsmouth, Ohio to Salt Lick Creek, one mile south of what now is Vanceburg. They needed salt for their homes, but they soon realized the commercial value of the salt and went into business.

In 1796 Moses Baird came to the region, acquired the land and proceeded to plot the town. His co-worker, Joseph Vance, a young man who worked as a salt boiler and wood chopper, rose to prominence and later became Governor of Ohio.

When the state legislature incorporated Vanceburg in 1827, the following were named as town trustees: Roland F. Parker, James Carr, George Swingle, Joseph N. Ralston and Ben T. Holton.

Vanceburg was located in the path of an ancient Indian trace from Chillicothe down the Scioto Valley, on through the Bluegrass, the cane country and Tennessee, and on to Alabama. The Shawnees, Iroquois and other Indians used the Scioto as a war road to travel south for battle with the Cherokee.

gram will involve churches, schools, industry and civic organizations. No one will be left out. Many will participate in a pageant to be produced by Edward Kennedy, Lewis County native and professional drama producer.

Kennedy has enough material for a dozen historical pageants or dramas, for Vanceburg is steeped in history that predates even Simon Keston and Daniel Boone.

The George M. Thomas letter to his daughter stated that Lovina Scholl Thomas's grandmother told him about the Indian siege of 1782 at Bryan's Station when she was 10 years old, the year she died. She had come to Kentucky in 1769 with Daniel Boone, and before the siege was one of the girls who went out of the fort to get water.

"In January 1847 she told me all about the siege and her trip to Kentucky. She was blind when I saw her but her mind was as clear as a bell. She was very small and frail."

Much history of Vanceburg and Lewis County, as well as many other counties in the commonwealth is contained in a book, "Northwestern Kentucky Papers," by Dr. William M. Talley. Dr. Talley resides in Vanceburg during the summer months and teaches at McGill University, Montreal, Canada, the rest of the year.
