HOME NURSING CARE AVAILABLE

In cooperation with the Southeastern Kentucky Regional Health Demonstration, Inc., the Daughters of Charity have settled in London, Kentucky and are operating a Home Health Agency to care for the sick of Laurel and Rockcastle counties. Operating with a skeleton staff since January, 1972, the agency, according to its administrator, Sister Theresa Peck, is now ready to receive referrals from Rockcastle County.

The agency is set up to provide care to those sick in their homes. Along with professional nursing care, the agency provides social services, home health aide services, physical therapy, and other related services. The office is set up in the ground floor of the old Marymount Hospital out of which the staff operates.

The services are available to anyone residing in Rockcastle County. (Cont. to 12)

Bro. Ronald Sams has accepted the ministry of the Mt. Vernon Christian Church and preached his first sermon there Sunday. Bro. Sams comes to Mt. Vernon from Bedford, Indiana where he had served as minister of the Dixie Christian Church for the past six years. Before that, he was pastor of the Southgate Christian Church in Greenville, S.C. for five years. He is a graduate of Johnson Bible College in Knoxville, Tennessee and a native of Kingsport, Tennessee. Besides his ministries, Bro. Sams served as secretary and vice-president of the Limestone Ministerial Association of Southern Indiana and program director of the Wonder Valley, Christian Assembly for one year and as manager for the past two years. Shown in the above photo are: Bro. Sams, his wife, DeeAnn, and their two children, Patti, 8 and Marcella, 4.

Fiscal Court Refuses To Renew Contract With State

Three members of the Rockcastle County Fiscal Court balked Tuesday on renewing the county's equipment rental contract with the State Highway Department and the motion to renew the contract, by Magistrate Sherman Sargent, did not carry.

The motion was seconded by Magistrate C. W. Phillips but the other three Magistrates, R. L. Cromer, Hewitt Jones and Cleith Thacker, voted no. The Magistrates gave as their reason the fact that since the tax on gasoline was due to be raised 2c on the gallon effective July 1, they felt the state should pay $12.5 a ton to get the rock hauled instead of the usual 90c per ton.

However, in the Attorney General's opinion read to the court, the opinion stated that since the Circuit Clerk's office could not expect no excess fees, then postage stamps could be considered a practical expense of his office and paid by the county.

Judge Carter did not agree with the opinion and once again read the statute to the court and told the court that he had always furnished the stamps for his office. However, the Magistrates decided to go along with the Attorney General's opinion and pay the stamp bill for all the county offices, including Judge Carter's. Judge Carter, however, informed the court that he did not want his stamp bill paid that he would continue furnishing his own.

Dr. Hendrickson is the son of Robert F. Hendrickson of Brodhead, and the late Mrs. Ruth Hendrickson, and is the grandson of Mrs. Emma Prith. He is a graduate of Brodhead High School and Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Virginia where he will do his internship at Roanoke Memorial Hospital.

Owen Allen Parents Petition To Keep School Open

A group of parents from the Owen Allen School were on hand for Monday night's meeting of the Rockcastle County Board of Education to present the Board with a petition. The petition requested that the school be left open this fall when the consolidation of the county schools is scheduled to be complete. The parents gave as their reason for the request that fact that the roads out of that area were not good and they didn't want their children to travel them daily in buses.

The Board considered the request but upon the recommendation of the Board member from that district, Virgil Mullins, that all the rural schools in his district be closed, decided not to grant the petition.

Only one rural school, Blue Springs, will be left in operation this fall. Dr. Rudolph Burdette, Board member from that district, recommended to the Board that the school be left open. Dr. Burdette said that this would allow somewhat the overcrowding expected at Mt. Vernon Elementary School and the school would also accommodate any students who wished to enroll there from the Blue Springs School which will be closed. The Board decided to give students of Sand Springs and Blue Springs a choice of whether they would attend Blue Springs or MVHS.

In other business, the board approved the purchase of a Supply of Lexington's bid on janitorial supplies of $5,070.00; accept bids on cafeteria and typing tables and lockers; employed Eddie Ray Owens as maintenance helper; to replace Paul Mantis; employed Marshall Everett Norton as physical education teacher at Mt. Vernon Elementary School; employed Charles "Tuck" Baker as coach at Mt. Vernon Elementary School.

Four school secretaries were employed. They are: Mrs. Geraldine Nummelty at Mt. Vernon; Mrs. Blanche Baldwin at Brodhead School; Mrs. Barbara Thacker at Roundstone Elementary School and Mrs. Naomi Mink at Rockcastle County High School. The secretarial position at Livingston Elementary School was not filled at the meeting.

School custodians were re-employed. They are: Homer Jones, Brodhead; Bennie Durham, Ernest Mink and Charles Durham, Livingston; B.H. Holt and Lena Rucker, Roundstone and Charlie Hines, Mt. Vernon. The custodians for Rockcastle County High School were not employed.

The Board also voted to gravel a portion of the parking lot at the new high school with creek gravel. The project will be advertised for bids. Blacktopping of the parking lot is not included in the construction contract since it was an alternate to the base bid which the school board could not afford to include in the contract.

The advertisement and acceptance of bids for paving streets and the parking area around the vocational school was approved by the board, subject to receiving a grant of $10,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission. The Board would have to match the $16,000 grant with $4,000.

It was decided to dispose of the rural schools being consolidated this fall with the exception of Sand Springs and Maple Grove Schools, since these two schools are expected to be used by the KIPP kindergarten program as centers.

To be sold at public auction, with a minimum bid of $500, are the Red Hill and Cove Schools. Five other schools will be sold by sealed bids. They are the old Victory School, Climax, Owen Allen, Cave Ridge and the Johnetta School building, the land reverts back to the original owner.

A two-month option was taken on the 12 acres belonging to Joel "Huster" Gentry for $2,400, by the Board. The Board had previously asked the State Department of Education, Department of Building and Grounds, to approve a land trade between the Board and Mr. Gentry but the trade was not approved.

Frankfort Watchline

While Gov. Wendell Ford's administration tells everyone how moderate it has been about cleaning house among state workers, many of its followers on the local level chafe at the situation.

They complain privately—and sometimes in public—that the promised jobs have not materialized, that all they get is excuses and the pledge that more jobs will be opening up.

One legislator, mentioning the situation at a recent political gathering, referred to the complainants as "two-bit politicians." At the same time, he indicated he was not saying the phrase in scorn—and that such politicians constitute the backbone of the party.

The hard facts are that, to get elected, Ford and his people had to promise or hint that jobs would await the victors. We're not talking about commissionerships and that level, but about work farther down the ladder as a reward for political effort.

December arrived and thousands of Ford supporters were agitated at the prospect of a Republican exodus from state jobs. But it didn't happen. The Ford camp says the leader did not want to fire for the sake of firing, that he had promised the voters a meaningful merit system.

Maybe so, but there is a more practical factor. The distinguished former Gov. Louie B. Nunn's reign still are returning to haunt the state treasury because many were carried out arbitrarily, sloppily, without second thought.

The state has shelled out more than half a million dollars in back pay to employees who stuck it out on appeal and won their cases. Eventually, according to Ford aides, the total may approach $1 million.

Such a cost gives hesitation to the new administration, which incidentally has adopted a new method whereby patronage is handled from state Democratic headquarters here, not the governor's office.

But there is another factor—the U.S. Senate race of state Sen. Dee Huddleston, whom Ford very much wants to defeat. Nunn, it is an embarrassment, even a hindrance, to the party unity Huddleston needs to have grumbling on the grass roots level because of the patronage problem.

Two-bit politicians? True perhaps, but they are the ones who attend the dull party functions year after year—not only during presidential contests. They are the ones who telephone and offer rides on election day.

Their impact is not to be scoffed at and Huddleston appears to need every vote he can get.

Yet, the Ford regime wants to continue to present a good image on state employment. It's really a dilemma.

REPUBLICAN POST-MORTEM —Some observers are predicting Robert Gable, the runner-up to Louie B. Nunn in the GOP senatorial race, is a possibility in the 1975 governor's race.

Gable's a nice fellow, but you'll have to continue us. His total of 16,000-plus votes in a fairly lavish expenditure and intensive campaign is none too impressive.

LIC SURPRISE—The Legislative "Raesaro" Commission dipped into a non-political pool in selecting Jackson White, an Anchorage attorney, as a new director to succeed James Fleming.

White is not a politician. Furthermore, he did not apply for the $25,000 a year job. Both good omens.

We understand Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll, the LRC chairman, had quite a bit to do with the selection.

HOWS THAT AGAIN?—During the 6th District credential committee meeting, at last week end's Democratic convention, a woman spokesman—or a spokeswoman if you like—told reporters about the challenges that would be filed.

"One of our challenges is that the delegates are sexually unbalanced," she said. She meant, of course, there were too few women selected. On discovering how her quote would sound, she begged not to be identified as saying it.

1972 LAW FOUND

IMPOSSIBLE TO OBEY

It appears the 1972 General Assembly passed a law which will be impossible for the state's savings and loan associations to obey.

14. Governor Julian Carroll announced he had discovered the law puts an impossible burden on the industry by requiring state savings and loan associations to have federal insurance by June 18, or stop making two types of loans. Those are second mortgage and direct reduction loans. (Cont. to 3)

Cong. Tim Lee Carter Comments

In view of the President's recent summit conference in Moscow, analysis subsequent courtesy to Iran and Poland, Congressman Tim Lee Carter of Kentucky expressed hope that the nations of the world can see more from an era of confrontation to an era of negotiation and cooperation.

Kentucky's Fifth District Representative pointed out that the leaders of the world possess "grave and difficult responsibilities in sowing the seeds for solutions to our conflicts," but he emphasized that it is "the people of the world who will inevitably suffer if effective solutions are not found."

Congressman Carter continued, "I am extremely pleased that the United States and the Soviet Union have reached agreements including the limitation of strategic offensive arms, a limitation on anti-ballistic missile systems and accords to protect our health and the environment. Further, I feel it to be important that the leaders of our two nations have agreed to establish the Joint U.S.-U.S.S.R. Commercial Commission which will conduct negotiations on trade, including the repayment of the Soviet Union's World War II Lend-Lease debt to the United States."

The first session of this Commission will convene in Moscow in July of this year.

Through the exchange of scientific and technological information, and through the establishment of contacts between American firms and Soviet State Enterprises, Representative Carter stated that "we can look forward to the joint accomplishment of endeavors which neither nation would be likely to under-

"CAPTULO DIGEST"

LA. Governor Carroll said it would be impossible for firms which do not have such insurance to meet the deadline, since it takes up to two years to get coverage.

He suggested that an interim legislative committee decide whether the law should be changed during the special legislative session this month.

The Legislative Research Committee agreed, and also formally asked Governor Ford to include legislative redistricting in his call for the session. That would be correct recently discovered errors in Jefferson County districts.

CAMPSITE CONTRACT CALLED INVALID

The State says a controversial contract for private development of campsites at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park, Gilbertsville, is and always has been invalid.

The contract was signed during the final week of the New Administration and has drawn heavy criticism since then.

The state Property and Buildings Commission has unanimously recommended that the Parks Department notify the contract holder, Holiday Campsites, Inc., that the contract is null and void.

Ast. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan suggested that approach, on the grounds that the original contract lacked essential information concerning the development and accompanying sewage treatment facilities.

Runyan said there are many legal objections to the effect that a contract must spell out all aspects of an agreement in order to be valid.

Because the campsite development contract lacked such essential information, Runyan said, Atty. Gen. Ed Hancock felt it was invalid from the beginning.

INSPECTORS GET MORE TIME TO STUDY STRIP MINE SITES

Buddy A. Beach, acting state Reclamation director, has told his field inspectors to "take all the time they need" to determine if proposed strip mine sites can be properly reseeded with minimum environmental damage.

Such inspections are required before the Reclamation Division can approve a strip mine permit application, but Beach indicated some shortcuts have been used in the past.

In a television interview, he said the inspectors now are free of political pressures and that the practice of "walking through" permit applications has been ended.

Beach said it is merely "being realistic" to recognize that political maneuvers have been used in the past.

"It's a fact of life, I suppose," he said. "It's hard to fault a mine operator for not exhausting every move to get a permit."

Last March, Governor Ford ordered a three-week moratorium on new permits to allow time to study the situation and any changes needed.

Beach said the conclusion was to use the full 20 days available to study each application and inspect each proposed mine site.

FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE LAW TO GET COURT TEST

Kentucky's new financial-disclosure law seems headed for its first court test.

Basically, that law requires members of the General Assembly, officials elected statewide, Court of Appeals judges, circuit judges, Commonwealth's Attorneys, and candidates for any of those offices to file annual statements of their finances with the state P.L. Law of Election Finance.

Another section of the law extends its provisions to the editors and newsmen of Kentucky's larger newspapers.

K. P. Vinsel, executive director of the state Registry, said the agency's attorney, William Burbank, will submit the financial-disclosure law to a court test in the near future.

Vinsel noted that the attorney general's office already has said parts of the new law are unconstitutional, including the section affecting large newspapers.

Since an attorney general's opinion does not carry the force of law, Vinsel said a recent meeting of the bipartisan Registry authorized the court test.

Under the court test, the Registry is bound to try to enforce all the sections of the

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH — AND WE WOULD LIKE TO SAY . . .

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE Dairy Industry!

This month is a good time for all of us to take a closer look at our Dairy Industry. One thing is certain, it has become big business and is getting bigger every day. And our dairy farmers have done an excellent job in increasing production to meet growing demands. They are using the most modern, up-to-date equipment in rigidly controlled modern plants. We salute them for a job well done!

Evergreens

During June and the first half of July is perhaps the best time of the entire year to prune evergreens in Kentucky. These plants have made their early spring growth and when it gets hot they slow up in their growth but will soon be setting buds for next spring's growth. By pruning now, the plants will set buds around the end of the small twigs where the cut was made and this means a thicker, denser plant which always means better looking evergreens.

The rules for pruning are:
1. Never cut the top out of the evergreen until the plant is as tall as you want it to grow.
2. Remove one-half to two-thirds of the new growth. By examination of the different kinds of evergreens, it will be found that it is comparatively easy to prune in this way.

Neglected evergreens that have not been pruned for years often have to be discarded because they cannot be pruned as drastically as other plants. This means that the plant that has grown 3 to 6 feet above the eaves of the house cannot be cut back that much and remain alive. The spreading type of junipers and yew may be headed back 15 to 18 inches and they will fill in and become better looking. Usually, the upright kinds will fill in and become dense by a small amount of pruning of the ends of the outside branches. The bottom branches should never be cut off evergreens because the best looking ones are those that have branches clear to the ground.

The junipers will have a small green shoot, or rat tail, and this is what is headed back on these plants. The shoot-stems may also be pruned with the pruning shears.

For the boxwoods, they will look better if the young shoots are cut singly with a sharp knife over the finger. When box are pruned this way they do not have a smooth, glazed appearance that will result from using the pruning shears.

If the evergreens have not been pruned for several years, they have grown out in such a way that they can never be restored to the desired shape. The thing to do in cases like this is to remove a part of the lopsided growth, perhaps one-third, then next year, if the plant responds to this a little more can be removed.

Evergreens that have grown entirely too tall for their location can seldom be headed back very far. Cut only main stems that do not exceed 1/4 to 1/2 inch in diameter. Even then, the cutting may cause the plant to start to die.

Tractor Drivers, Protect Your Ears!

A farmer who is exposed to high noise levels may gradually lose his hearing, say agricultural engineers at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The safe level set by industry is 85 decibels, but tractor tests at the University of Nebraska show that many farm tractors go over 90 decibels at 75 per cent of full load. That's about what many tractors average while plowing, disking, or doing power take-off work. If you have noisy machinery, you should wear ear protectors - ear muffs or ear plugs - if you run the equipment regularly, the UK engineers say. Your hearing is in danger if you notice ringing in your ears or if you can't hear high-pitched sounds after using machinery for several hours.

Be On the Lookout For Sod Webworm Moths

It's that time of year again - time to watch out for signs of sod webworm and, if you find them, to start control measures. What are the signs? Those small buff-colored moths that you see around your house lights at night are sod webworm moths, and their offspring can cause serious damage to your lawn. During the day, the moths hide in the grass. Anyone walking on the lawn may stir them up to fly about in a jerky, zig-zag manner; then they quickly return to their hiding places in the grass. At night, they're attracted to house lights, which are good places to check for the moth's presence.

The moths themselves cause no problem - it's the larvae (worm stage) which hatch from the eggs laid by the moths that can hurt your lawn. The larvae clip off blades of grass close to the ground in an area about the size of a baseball or larger. During hot, dry weather, this area turns brown and dies.

During wet seasons or when the lawn is kept well-watered, sod webworm's damage is usually not so severe. If the soil has enough moisture, the grass can outgrow damage from webworm feeding, and the webworms don't like wet conditions, either. Dethatching lawns to remove the webworms' hiding places also helps discourage them.

These measures help cut down the number of sod webworms, but insecticides may be needed too, for adequate control. And spraying must be timed right to be effective. Spray with carbaryl (Sevin), diazinon (Spectracide), trichlorfon (Dylox), or Zectran 10-14 days after the moths are most plentiful.

Homeowners often make the mistake of treating their lawns when they see a lot of moths - or when the dead spots appear on the lawn, but treatments at these times usually are not effective. Since the recommended insecticides lose their killing power in a short time, spraying while the larvae are feeding is important. That's why you should check for moths and spray 10-14 days after you see the largest number, thus giving the larvae time to hatch from the eggs laid by the moths.

The number of moths found in lawns now will increase until they reach a peak in mid-June and then gradually become less numerous until early July. The moth population will then increase again to another peak in early August.

Information on how to use the recommended insecticides is available at the Rockcastle County Extension office, court-house, Mt. Vernon 256-2403.
