Fickle Traffic Light

For a few dazed moments after the collision, Charles could not figure out what had happened. Then he remembered: the traffic light had changed directly from green to red, skipping amber. Unable to stop, he had rolled into the intersection in front of an oncoming truck.

Blaming his accident on the fickle signal, Charles determined to seek damages from the city. But at a court hearing, the city denied liability.

"We can't be held legally liable every time a signal gets out of order," the city would be swamped with lawsuits.

However, Charles' attorney proved that this particular signal had been malfunctioning for a full week before the accident. The court concluded that the city was guilty of negligence, and granted Charles' claim.

Some cities still retain their "sovereign immunity" against being sued. But in most places, a motorist can indeed collect damages for an accident caused by a traffic light or a stop sign that has been neglected.

There have even been cases holding the city liable when a stop sign was obscured by foliage. Thus:

A motorist hurt in a crash blamed it on the fact that a stop sign was hidden by the leaves of a tree. In its defense, the city pointed out that the tree was growing on private property — "out of our jurisdiction."

Nevertheless, the court imposed liability. The judge said that even if the city could not have trimmed the tree, at least it could have chosen a better place to put the sign.

Of course, the city is not liable if there is no causal connection between its negligence and the accident. In another case, a fallen stop sign had been left lying on the ground for weeks. One day a motorist failed to halt at the corner and struck a car in the crossing.

But it turned out that the motorist, who lived in the neighborhood, knew perfectly well it was a stop street—even without seeing the sign. The city was duly cleared of responsibility. The court said the city's failure to restore the sign simply had nothing at all to do with the accident.

Culture, Crafts, Companionship

Success Story: Small Town Culture Centers

PORT CHARLOTTE, FLA. — Life in a small community is ideal — uncrowded and friendly — but it lacks big-city cultural advantages, say many Americans.

Not so, say the 25,000 residents of this southwest Florida town 23 miles north of Fort Myers. They combine relaxed living with intellectual stimulation by operating their own community cultural center.

Winner of a 1971 award from the National Education Assn. for its excellent adult education program, the million-dollar Port Charlotte Cultural Center offers courses for academic credit and for fun — and it enjoys the highest percentage of community participation in the U.S.

This success story began in 1960 when General Development Corporation, builder of Port Charlotte, donated land and founded what is affectionately dubbed "Port Charlotte U."

Residents from every state in the U.S., seeking early retirement to live the good life in Florida's sunshine, moved to Port Charlotte because the fishing was fine, the golf was great, and the temperature averaged 74.3 degrees, year around.

Many were retired bankers, college professors, teachers, military officers, financial executives. From this brain bank, Port Charlotte U. drew its organizers, fund raisers, teachers and volunteers. General Development also continued giving financial support.

The growth has been inspiring — from 200 students enrolled in 13 courses in 1960 to 2,700 students in 150 classes today. The Adult Education Assn. of Charlotte County now supervises operations, and the cost is a five dollar donation per course.

Port Charlotte U. has become a sprawling complex filling a downtown block with 50,000-book-capacity library, 40-seat theatre used for movies, concerts and plays, school classroom building and cafeteria-lounge.

There is no generation gap in this student body. From six to 85, they study together — square dancing, Spanish, oil painting, archeology, bridge — even "how to think like a Florida fish."

There are also social events of all kinds, providing retired folk with companionship and meaningful activity. In turn, these people contribute by joining the volunteer group, 1000-strong, working in offices, craft gift shop, coffee shop, cafeteria. When need arises, they raise necessary funds. A typical project is the October fest given by the Port Charlotte Women's Club to benefit the scholarship fund.

General Development and other business firms are called on for special aid in what is truly a community-wide operation. The better-than-ever cultural program achieved is shown by this year's music menu: concerts by the Berlin String Quartet, Cornell University Glee Club — even two operas!

This successful venture has prompted two other General Development communities in Florida to accept grants of land and start their own cultural centers — Port St. Lucie (5,000 residents) and Port Malabar (4,500 residents).

That's what's happening in Florida — small town living enriched by do-it-yourself culture.

Retired professional people learn landscape painting for fun and profit in one of 150 classes offered at "Port Charlotte U."

Rockets Take First Game; Beat Annville 65-51

It took the Rockcastle Rockets a little while to get going in their first game ever played Tuesday night, but the final score of 65-51 over Annville, gives them a perfect record to date. The first two points, after four minutes and fifty seconds of the first quarter, were made by Ronnie Brown on a lay-up. Turnovers plagued the Rockets early in the game and although they got them almost completely under control, were a big factor in the Rockets not running away with the game.

The Rockets were down 8 to 0 when Brown went in for two. They steadily piled on points and finally took the lead the first time at 9 to 8. Then throughout the first quarter and half of the second half, there was only a one-point difference in the score until the second minute when the Rockets opened up a five-point, 25-20 margin. A last second shot by the Annville Bulldogs made the half-time score 25-22.

The Rockets came out strong in the second half and steadily pulled away from the stubborn Bulldogs for the first margin.

One oddity of the game occurred when Paul Travis, starting player for the Rockets fouled out in the fourth quarter with four fouls, a mix-up at the scorer's table obviously.

It was a fun game to watch, the outcome of the game was never in question in the minds of fans even though the Rockets had a tough time getting started. For a team playing their first game together, they looked good. Their passing was rough but there were flashes of brilliant play and their teamwork, for so early in the season, was exceptional.

Leading scorer for the Rockets was Troy McClure with 16. Dwayne Mink was next with 14. Clayton Cash got 12, Ronnie Brown 10, Larry LaFavers, 5, Paul Travis 4, Roger Thomas 4 and Casey Carroll 2.

The Rockets are fortunate in having two good centers in LaFavers and Mink. LaFavers worked the boards beautifully and Mink did an excellent job on getting open for his soft set shots.

Friday night, the Rockets host their first home game in their beautiful new gymnasium when Oneida comes to town. Then next Tuesday night, in what may be the Rockets' first real test, Clay County comes to town. The Thanksgiving Tournament will be held Friday and Saturday, November 24 and 25 with Crab Orchard, McKinney, Lone Jack and the Rockets participating. More details on the Tournament will be in next week's issue of the Signal.

Films on forestry and preventing forest fires were shown to the upper grades in the schools Smokey visited.

Larry Dale Carter of Mt. Vernon was one of several hunters in the county who killed a deer during the recent gun season. As far as we know, Larry Dale's was the largest killed, a ten-point buck which he killed on Chestnut Ridge.

Frankfort Watchline

Talk is cheap after an election and hindsight is 20-20. However, it's our duty—and preference—to join the post-mortem discussions.

First, why did Republican Louise Nunn, who left the gubernatorial less than a year ago, lose to Democratic state Sen. Walter (Doc) Huddleston while President Nixon swept the state by more than 100,000 votes?

Organizational—Several GOP officeholders have told us the organization needs a pretty good strategy overhaul—that party leaders had made many grass roots workers angry. Voters were surprised sometimes to find no GOP campaign workers at the polls last Tuesday.

Look, we've outnumbered 2 to 1 by the Democrats in the registrar books, "one state legislative seat," "two sewer changes, so our organization has to be at least twice as good. It's not good at all."

Issues—R was a campaign full of heat and not much fire. Blatantly, the caliber of campaigning was low. Who's at fault? We think both major candidates.

Did either really bite into relevant issues very often? No. Maybe they didn't have time because they were too busy trying to respond to enemy charges about chair disabilities, questionable campaign financing and so on.

Occasionally Huddleston mentioned his activities in Congress. Nunn had a few things to say about a national coal excise tax, but focused on attacking Huddleston because he was on the same ticket as presidential nominee George McGovern.

In fact, Nunn indicated in an interview after his concession statement that if he had the campaign to run again, he would have done things differently.

Thinking the timing of removal of bill sales tax on most food—came off a month before the election—had a bearing on Huddleston's victory, we can't flatly say. But it sure contradicts what for him was Nunn's identification with the 2-cent sales tax increase in 1968.

Yes, Nunn struck back with considerable references to Huddleston's buying into the Democrats in taking off one tax and imposing 15 others for a total of $225 million in the last General Assembly. Apparently, that carried little weight with voters.

And as one reporter pointed out, in the past seven months we've seen a couple of former governors—in different parties—cut down their attempts to seek further high office. Both were governor when the two segments of the 5-cent sales tax were passed.

Personality—We had the classic situation of charges and countercharges on credibility and honesty.

But in that verbal duel Huddleston, with "an affidavit" as one attorney put it, came out ahead even when lambasted by Nunn as being soft on drug pushers, abortion and amnesty.

Although Nunn was looked upon as having been a pretty good governor, even by Democrats, he did not exactly look lovable to the electorate. Maybe he did not even look likable because of the no-nonsense, even icy appearance. This, of course, is an intangible, subjective assessment.

A TIMELY FLAP—Franklin Constance wondered for six days why the clock stop their courthouse wasn't turned back an hour when daylight time had changed its semi-annual flip on the last day of last month.

For years, a courthouse follower would be paid $10 twice a year by fiscal court to make the precarious ascent to the weathered grying dome of the 110-year-old building to spin the hands of the big clock. It was no different, except for one detail. The man just pined on the county payroll in the meantime and still wanted the extra $10, but the county said the task fell within the scope of his new job.

Apparently no one else was willing to rise to the occasion, if you will pardon the pun. Looking down at the dome from our office here on Capitol Hill, we can't blame them. Agreement was finally reached and now all is well—time-wise anyway—in Franklin County.

THE AWFUL TRUTH—As an official in the Educational Department was explaining the state agency's budget to the state school board, a board member interrupted him to comment that the explanation was not reflected in the document he had before him.

"We're dummys on the board," the member added. "Yes, I know that," the official replied on before finishing. As everyone broke into laughter, the embarrassed official quickly tried to make amends.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor: Practically everyone who reads the Mt. Vernon Signal is now aware of the recent federal revenue sharing and grant from which our county will receive money.

Under this program there is certain broad general categories in which this money must be spent. This now means that the governing bodies of Livingston, Brothhead, Mt. Vernon and Rockcastle County must face the difficult task of deciding what needs are most vital to their respective governmental unit.

Undoubtedly there will be many suggestions of how this money should be spent. Practically all of the suggestions will be good ones and likely will be ideas for governmental services that are necessary and beneficial.

The Rockcastle County Jaycees have been discussing this program for some time and the long range effects it will have on all the people of Rock-castle County. At the last meeting of the Jaycees it was voted unanimously that the Rockcastle County Jaycees sponsor a program to institute a building drive for an expanded library facility for the people of Rockcastle County, and in so doing, request that the local governmental units consider using part of this money for this purpose.

This does not mean that the Jaycees are presenting to tell any of the local governmental units how to spend their money from this program. Instead it means that a drive need to be started by the Jaycees for the use of all the people of Rockcastle County.

Some time ago the citizens of the whole county voted to begin a library. The spirit of this smallish and progressive step should not stop it merely having a library, we should now interest ourselves in continuing support by making our library even more of an asset for the county. A new building could enable our people to more effectively utilize the existing library material.

Government, at all levels, must be responsive to the needs and desires of the people. The Jaycees have now stated publicly their position and in the hope that other service organizations and individuals will assist, we await a response from the local governing units by their actions on planning and actual spending of this refunded tax money.

Fans, the Officials and Athletic Department of Rockcastle County want to welcome everyone to the opening game of the gymnasium of Rockcastle High School on Saturday night, November 17th against Owata Institute.

We want to appeal to everyone to give a good time and to always be aware of the fact that it behooves each of us to back our team to the hilt but we must support our team in a sportsmanship like manner.

Remember, that the officials are rendering a service in helping to promote clean sports, therefore, we must do our fair share by upholding the officials rather than booing them.

Please be sure that you are not in violation of any of the school building, however, it is a pleasure that is enjoyed by many and we want you to have an enjoyable time at the ball games, in light of this, you will be allowed to go out to the gymnasium and to return to the gymnasium when you wish to smoke.

The lunchroom is very accessible and you will find it a pleasant place to have a smoke also enjoy a coke and a sandwich, if you wish. Plenty of containers will be available for your refuse and we want to encourage you to help our maintenance people who have a tremendous job to be ready for school the next day.

There will be plenty of personnel on the grounds to aid you in parking so that you may get out when you desire.

Please cooperate with these people so that we can keep a lane of traffic open in case someone may need to leave by emergency.

In case of inclement weather, we intend to keep two entrances open so that you will have a minimum distance to walk to

THE FAMILY LAWYER.

Barbs From the Bench

On trial for burglary, the defendant was trying to explain why he had been observed near the store of the crime at three o'clock in the morning. But the judge was skeptical.

"Honest people," he said caustically, "are in bed at three o'clock in the morning."

Was the judge's remark prejudicial? Indeed it was, ruled an appellate court, granting the defendant a new trial.

The court said the judge said the judge had no right, even by way of sarcasm, to blacken the defendant's reputation.

"The jury," said one expert, "can be easily influenced by the slightest suggestion from the trial judge," whether it be a nod of the head, a smile, a frown, or a spoken word. It is imperative that the judge conduct himself with utmost caution in order that the unusual power he possesses shall not be abused."

Unfortunately, a new trial is costly in both time and money. Accordingly, even if a judge has said something to disparage the defendant, the appellate court will usually overlook it if there seems to be no great harm done. Often a judge who realizes his mistake can "take the sting out" of what he has said by instructing the jury to ignore it.

Now is a judge expected to be superhuman. In the heat of a trial, it is very understandable that flashes of impetuous emotion.

In one case, while the judge was talking with a lawyer, the defendant kept interrupting. Finally the judge burst out:

"I don't like it. You are here to answer questions. If there is any more of that kind of talk, you will be in jail for contempt of court."

But this time, an appellate court found no grounds for a new trial. The court noted that, even though the judge should not have lost his temper, he should be excused for a natural reaction to a stressful situation.

The United States Supreme Court once summarized the matter as follows:

"A defendant is entitled to a fair trial but not a perfect one."

the entrance. You may enter the building at the front entrance or on the southwestern end near the lunchroom.

Our upper side bleachers have not arrived as yet but we have our fingers crossed they will arrive before the opening night as we have what we believe to be a faithful promise from the company.

In case the bleachers should fail to arrive, please bear with us as we are sure they will arrive soon.

Finally, may I say that we have one of the most beautiful school plants in the State of Kentucky, it belongs to the people of Rockcastle County. We want you to use and enjoy it and we want to say that we are grateful for your help in maintaining the beauty of this institution.

SUNSET MAN CONVICTED

James S. Siler, Jr., United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, disclosed today that Tom Roark of Somerset was convicted Monday on his plea of guilty to the improper use of a tobacco stamp case of age at federal court in London.

Roark sold tobacco using a marketing card which had been issued for another farm. Approximately 470 pounds of tobacco were improperly sold using a card belonging to a relative of Roark.

The case was investigated by the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Agriculture. This marks the second conviction for this offense in the past months in the Eastern District of Kentucky.

Siler said, "similar cases will be prosecuted, if necessary, in order to protect those taxpaying farmers who have been earnestly following the law."

Assistant United States Attorney William D. Kirkland today disclosed that the case of United States versus James Harris was set for trial on January 8, 1975. Harris, a former postal employee of the Corbin post office, is charged with the taking of a registered mail pouch containing $100,000 in United States currency being mailed to a bank.

They say all foods, including meat and poultry, contain some bacteria. The inspection mark means that the product is wholesome, not that it is germ free. Few, if any, foods are germ free.
Proper handling and cooking, however, will keep these microorganisms at safe levels. No matter the amount of meat or poultry you're buying, it should come from well refrigerated display cases and be in packages that are not torn or damaged. Once bought, it should be returned to refrigeration quickly.
Storage after arriving in the institution or home is equally important. If it's going to be used in a few days, the meat or poultry may be stored in the coldest part of the refrigerator in its original wrapping.

For long term freezing, the meat or poultry should be tightly wrapped in moisture resistant material such as aluminum or freezer paper.
Until the cooking day arrives, the food should be kept refrigerated.
Ideally, frozen meat or poultry should be defrosted in the refrigerator. Meat or poultry may also be defrosted in its watertight wrapper. Careful thawing procedures are especially important for poultry.
If the bird must be thawed at room temperature, its surface should be kept cool during thawing. This can be done by placing the bird, still in its original wrapper, in a closed double-paper bag until the bird is pliable.
It is important, especially with poultry, that cutting boards, counter tops, knives or pans which contacted the raw poultry or meat do not come in contact with the product after it has been cooked.
For this reason, soap and water or a cleanser which kills bacteria should be used on surfaces on which the raw meat or poultry was prepared.
Your hands, utensils and other surfaces which contacted the raw products should also be sanitized thoroughly before contacting the cooked product.
The actual cooking of the meat or poultry should not be taken lightly. Poultry especially should be cooked completely at one time and it should never be left partially cooked to be finished later.
It's safest to cook dressing outside the bird. But if you do want to cook the dressing inside the bird, stuff it just before roasting.
The internal temperature of the roast or bird is the proper test for sufficient cooking.
Fresh beef should be cooked to a temperature of 140 (for rare) to 170 degrees (for well done).

Turkey should be cooked to an internal temperature of 180 to 185 degrees. The stuffing inside the turkey should be brought to 165 degrees.
Leftovers should be covered tightly and refrigerated or frozen promptly. Whenever possible, large quantities should be put in several small containers rather than one large in order to speed cooling.

County Agents NOTES

LANDSCAPE NOTES

Many things in connection with ornamental plants require specific attention during November. For example, the lawn must be fertilized, the roses prepared for winter, the final plantings of trees, shrubs and evergreens made, and while it is a little late, even the bulbs of tulips, jonquils and crocus may be planted. The leaves must be raked off the lawn to prevent smothering the grass, all dead flowers should be removed and burned, and bare spots in the lawn may be sodded, the earlier these things are done, the better, because we sometimes have rather severe winter weather about the end of the month. The feeding of the grass during November is one of the best means of assuring better looking lawn next year. A good, high-nitrogen fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash should be used to feed the lawn. The amount of lawn to be fertilized is calculated in square feet, and 15 pounds of fertilizer should be applied to each 1,000 square feet. Those fertilizers which have slow-release stalks should place them on the lawn just as soon as the tobacco is stripped. The stalks should be placed on regular order so that they will look neat and at the same time be the right distance apart to do the most good. These stalks will supply plant food for the grass and at the same time give some protection to the young grass as it starts to grow from the seed sown in September. Occasionally some home owners may have occasion to "drip" droppings, these are especially good for bluegrass. The droppings should be scattered in late November or early December. These droppings are no danger of burning the grass, and the odors are not noticeable during winter.

Plantings of trees, shrubs and evergreens may be made any time until the ground is frozen. While it makes little or no difference to the plants whether they are transplanted in the fall or spring, many people find it more convenient to do the work in the fall, especially if there is possibility of water being scarce next summer in case of a prolonged drought. The important thing is to do a good job of planting and be sure the plant does not sway in the winter wind. As for shade trees, it may anchor them. Evergreens should have the soil tamped around the stem once or twice during the winter to hold them upright and prevent the soil having an opening around the stem.

BACK YARD FRUIT TREES Growing fruit in back yard does not need an economic reason any more than any other hobby or recreational activity. If your off-duty time is worth money, you can buy a tree, less than you can fish for them, you can buy roses for less than you can grow them, and you can buy fruit for less than you can grow it. If you enjoy growing back yard fruit, do not let others belittle your enjoyment by placing economic value on the fruit and satisfaction you get from your accomplishments. However, there is a price to pay. The price is a regular care program. You wish to produce quality fruit free from insects and disease. Pruning and spraying equipment, proper fertilizer, and spray materials, and their timely use are essential. Full utilization of the fruit will require proper storage and/or processing knowledge and facilities, and the inclination to use them. Your county extension office has a fruit spray chart and other production and utilization information.

You cannot grow good fruit under shade trees. For proper development, most of the tree fruits require full sun at least 3/4 of the day. Less fruit will be obtained as shade increases. For ease of spraying, pruning, and harvesting, consider dwarfed or naturally small-sized trees. These can be used in your landscape just as artistically as large fruit trees and many ornamental trees. Some fruit trees are well suited to espaliering (training flat against a wall), or growing in a hedge row on a trellis.
