Jasper Iron & Metal Company

EDWIN JASPER - MANAGER

The Jasper Iron & Metal, located at Route 5 in London, Phone 864-2517, buys all kinds of scrap metal, except tin and auto bodies.

Scrap metal is worthless to us when it is just cluttering up our yards, but with little effort, it can be converted into dollars in our pockets. It would be wise to take inventory of your yard today and gather up all scrap metal and bring it in to the Jasper Iron & Metal Co. where it can be put to good use. Scrap BRASS, COPPER, CAR BATTERIES and RADIATORS are also dealt in a top dollar.

Almost all metal can be used as scrap metal, so why not have the money in your pocket instead of the junk lying around. This firm has a reputation for being fair in all their dealings, so you can be sure that you are doing business with a reliable firm when you come here.

Remember their location for price quotations or for any information. Call them and they will be glad to assist you.

The compilers of this 1973 Town and Country Review suggest you take advantage of the services offered by this trustworthy junk dealer. If you are in the market to buy structural metal, this firm has a large selection to pick from, both new and used.

The Dream Scheme.

Saving up to make your dreams a reality can be pretty frustrating. You try to figure out a way to tighten your belt a little without pinching too hard. But you can't find any sensible solution, and you end up figuring no dream is worth all that fretting and worry.

But there's an easy savings scheme - U.S. Savings Bonds. Easy to buy and one of the easiest ways to save. Just sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, or buy them on a regular basis at your bank. Either way, that money gets tucked away, and you get a chance to do something more than just dream.

If you've got a dream, buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's a scheme to make dreams come true.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

Well, who's left, as the Democrats keep casting covetous glances at the seat held by U.S. Senator Marlow Cook, a Republican?

First, let's ask if Cook will run again. Sounds like nonsense to doubt that he will, but there are reports he has been offered a lucrative job with private industry and is considering the offer seriously.

Of course, it's hard to believe that any politician would voluntarily leave the Senate, described by many as the most exclusive club in the country. And frankly, we don't believe it of Cook, but we thought we'd pass on the rumor.

Then again, there is former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt, who bowed out of the potential 1972 race in favor of Dew Hudson with the implied promise of the Democratic establishment that he would get the next turn in 1974.

We hear now Ned Breathitt has been telling his friends he won't run, Breathitt already has a lucrative private job that takes him to Washington quite often.

Well, on the presumption Breathitt isn't in it, there's Fried chicken king Jobe A. Brown, Jr.

We can't say much at this time except that our intrepid whippersnobs dubiously about Brown. His possibilities don't strike a responsive chord with us.

Well, how about Jefferson County Todd Hollenbach?

You may recall we wrote at length about Hollenbach's ambitions in that direction, Nouse rehabbing that.

And last perhaps, but far from least, is Gov. Wendell Ford, and naturally before his term as governor ends.

What signs there are all seem to be pointing to Ford as a candidate next year: the reports that he has told friends in Washington of his wish, his refusal to close the door completely in public on the possibility, reports from Capitol sources.

Ford and Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll had a meeting the other day. Nothing sensational about that, but we're told the subject of Ford and the Senate may have arisen.

The key to much of this, of course, is the relationship between Ford and Carroll, who was the running mate of Ford's opponent in the Democratic gubernatorial primary and incurred the enmity of state chairman J.R. Miller for joining with Bert Conas against Ford.

Ford and Carroll certainly are cordial, though some of their aides are not—which allows us to get whispered rumors from both sides, doing little more than confuse us in the process.

Boiled down, it appears that if Ford can turn over the reins to Carroll in good faith and with no revolt within the inner circle, Ford is in shape to go for the Senate.

Like any of these strained matters, there would have to be gentlemen's agreements and promises on both sides.

Our crystal ball is cloudy on any details—and besides the entire topic is highly speculative at this point.

But we know one thing about Kentucky politics. A governor is one powerful figure in the state, and once he's there he's in charge.

In other words, pledges, understandings, pacts or whatever are binding as long as he decides so.

FREDIAN SLIP— House Speaker Norbert Blume wants to move Press Row out of the

PROCLAIMS CLERGY WEEK—Gov. Wendell Ford has proclaimed the week of Jan. 28-Feb. 3 as Clergy Week in Kentucky. The week is sponsored by Civitan International throughout the United States and Canada to honor clergymen. Watching the Governor sign the proclamation are Don Mitchell (left) Frankfort, chairman of Clergy Week, and Joe K. Whisman, also of Frankfort, the governor of the Kentucky District of Civitan International. (Steve Mitchell Photo)

Capitol, and in bringing up the matter to the Legislative Research Commission the other day he read a reply from the Press Row spokesman.

At one point, the words were supposed to be "Despite the press' feelings..."

But Blume, aware of unhappiness about his removal plans, read it by mistake this way: "Despite the press' feelings..."

CHAT WITH CHUCK—It seems Charles Owens, director of the Kentucky Crime Commission, is not one to hide his light under a bushel basket. In fact, one could call him publicity-conscious in line with the commission's efforts to project a good image.

Well, the commission issued a release while ago about a trip to Washington to plead in behalf of a 15 per cent pay raise for deserving local policemen.

The release said, among other things, that Owen would testify in person, an unusual step.

The story was dutifully sent by newsmen, but one noticed Gov. Ford's schedule for the week—and it had Ford going to Washington, also to testify on the matter.

Owen's release didn't appear to indicate that was so important since it didn't mention the governor.

However, the governor's office, learning of the situation, thought rather differently—and let Owen know about it.

From here on, we expect Ford may get equal play with Owen in Crime Commission publicity when he's on the same trip.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I am taking this opportunity to announce my candidacy for re-election to the office of Clerk of the Rockcastle County Court.

I have been privileged to give my services to the people of Rockcastle County during the past and upon making this announcement, I want to pledge to continue the same because I have extended to everyone.

I feel that some of the practices instituted during my term of office have been very beneficial to the people. Among these are: being available at all hours for the convenience of persons needing to transact their business; complying with all the statutes regarding the clerk's duties and having a good report as certified by all audits made by the State Auditor; having a competent staff who keep abreast of all office matters; attempting to treat all persons alike and be friendly to everyone who enters the office; giving my complete and undivided attention to the matters of my office and attending all meetings and seminars regarding the efficient operation of the office of County Clerk.

It is my feeling that the above, among other things, make me very qualified for continuing my service to the people of Rockcastle County.

STRETCH YOUR FOOD DOLLARS WITH ECONOMICAL, NUTRITIOUS BEANS

Has the holiday spending, income taxes and other drags on your budget done? Well, the experts say that one area where consumers usually cut back is on the amount they spend for groceries, and this helps families in a decline in a family's nutrition.

However, this doesn't fit the case with the bean homemaker. She'll turn to the less expensive source of high-quality nutrition. An excellent example of this is dried bean—nutritious, economical food that is so versatile it fits into any menu.

Dry beans provide a wealth of energy and nutrients at a cost per pound that is minimal. They contain B vitamins, such as thiamin and riboflavin, protein and iron. In fact, a 1/4 cup serving of dried beans provides almost a third of the iron recommended daily for an adult male.

For it should be good news to economy-minded homemakers that dried beans are especially plentiful and cheap now.

Here are tips on buying, storing and cooking dried beans:

When buying dried beans, try to buy them in cellophane or other type of "see through" packaging. Then, look for these factors—brightness of color, uniformity of size and visible defects. In addition, read the label carefully since it may give important instructions for preparing the beans.

In storing dry beans, keep them in tightly covered containers which are kept in a cool, dry place. Stored in this manner, they will have their maximum life. If you're buying in bulk, opening a package, don't mix its contents with that of other packages bought at separate times. Mixing packages will result in uneven cooking since older beans take longer to cook than fresher ones. Keep beans in their original package until opened.

"Electric heat economical? We build homes and we ought to know!"

The key is proper insulation. With the right insulation, you'll be surprised just how low your electric heating bills are.

Something else customers really like is the choice of electric heating systems available. They can choose a heat pump which heats in winter, cools in summer. Or an electric furnace which lets them enjoy the forced air heat they're used to. Then naturally there's radiant electric heat built into the ceiling or electric baseboard heat.

If you're building you really owe it to yourself to look into electric heat. Almost any builder can give you a free estimate. Or you can contact any of our offices.

Rockcastle Recollections...

By John Lair

We publish below the history of the Baptist Church at Lexington, Ky., sent in by Mrs. W.O. Singleton. It is an excellent example of the kind of papers we would like to have on all churches in Rockcastle. You may make a longer report on your church, if you like, but this one is very concise and tells the story quite well.

The Baptist people of Lexington met September 25, 1803 for the purpose of organizing a Missionary Baptist Church. The meeting was called to order by Bro. J.C. Carmichael as chairman, stating the object of the meeting, Scripture was read by Bro. Fortney and prayer by G.F. Popper, reading of church covenant and acceptance of articles of faith and covenant of the church. Dattoston Archer, Bro. Fortney, There were songs and handshaking and greetings by the brothers and sisters. Bro. J.T. Blackburn was selected to act as first clerk and secretary of the church. The Charter Members of the church were: Mrs. Maggie Singleton, Mrs. Modie Pope, Miss Laura Greer, Mrs. Fannie Perkins, Mrs. Emma Davis, Mrs. Modie Rice, Mrs. Lucy Woodall, Mrs. Fannie Modie, J.T. Blackburn, George Pope, Jan. F. Davis, Richard Woodall, and W.F. Jones. Bro. E. Woodall was ordained as deacon of the church. Bro. F.P. Gales was the pastor during the building of the Lexington Missionary Baptist Church. The church was dedicated Sunday morning, July 8, 1804. Rev. J.T. Fortney of Nashville preached the opening prayer. The Rev. J.O. Dow, of Louisville, preached the dedication sermon. Rev. J.C. Carmichael gave the dedication prayer. Benediction was by the pastor, Bro. E.P. Gales. There was excellent music by the choir.

We are well-informed in our family histories and old histories on the various counties of the county. I am experienced considerable difficulty in working out the history of the French family in Rockcastle County. My father's mother was a French, the daughter of William and Charity Lawrence Fryer. They raised their family just south of Lexington. My mother's wife, Anne, was the daughter of John and Jane, who spent his life along Rockcastle River. I don't know where Pop and William lived. William French, my grandmother's father, came from around Mt. Sterling, Ky. Some of his descendants were his descendants through. One was killed at the battle of Blue Licks. One married one of Col. Richard Edwards' daughters in Booneborough. William French seems to have been one of the black sheep of a good family and a confirmed alcoholic. His wife's sister, Rebecca Lawrence, the first white child born in Danville, Ky., was the wife of Devil Bill Adams and my grandmother was partly French in her blood.

My grandfather, Jerome Burke Lair, was teaching school in the Lexington settlement, which was then called Fish Point, in 1815 and he and Ann French were married at the close of the school term. He told me that the trustees did not have the money to pay him at the close of the school and offered him the land on which the town of Lexington is now located in lieu of his salary. Since he was getting married and needed the money he turned down the land and waited until they could raise the cash. This is about my personal knowledge of the history of Lexington but I am hoping that someone who knows more about it will send in additional information. I was born there in 1895 while my father was working in the railroad repair shop. Lexington was then an important railroad center. I remember the old turn-table in use when the terminus of the railroad was Lexington and trains were turned around there and ran back to their starting point at Louisville. While it was the end of the railroad line timber men from back in the mountains used to raft logs down to Frankfort, Ky., ride the train to Lexington and walk from there back home. One day I went to work a short time at the end of the big wooden bridge that crossed Roundstone Creek near the old depot that stood between Bamcock Hotel and the Mullins House. Loggers would stop there to load up on chimes and crackers to eat on their long walk home. Some of them lived as far away as Lee County, Virginia. Who remembers when the old wooden wagon bridge fell through and killed a herd of cattle being driven across it?

The mention of buried treasure a week or so ago stirred some of the boys up in this county. Some of them came to see me to talk about the Fifth Silver Mine story as it related in Rockcastle County. Next week, we will run in this column some of the facts and legends connected with this story. In the meantime, I wish readers would send in all the stories they have heard about money hidden or to be buried somewhere in the county. Next week, we will try to first come to talk about Brett's Silver Mine, the Green's Ferry treasure and any other readers send in information.

Another thing to look into in this connection is counterfeiting that once went on in this county. I have a very old pamphlet written by Edward Hawkins, who was hanged in East County for murder in 1871. In his written confession before his execution, he tells of a counterfeiting ring, national in scope. He says Rockcastle County was headquarters for making the money and that "retirees" came in Louisville from all over the United States and played it up for distribution. Cincinnati was also a distributing point. The men engaged here in making the coinage were sworn to good behavior as not to attract attention to the work. Nobody was allowed to spend any of the counterfeit in this county. Hawkins does not give names of Rockcastle men engaged in the work, but does give initials. He said he first acquired some of this money from W.R., who lived near Seaford Case. He says he did not know the name of the man who was making the money but that R.K. was the principal man in making the counterfeit of it and that his underwriters were R.L., M.C., L.L., T.L.L. and G.S. Hawkins wrote "They are the principal men of that kind and all live in Rockcastle County, Kentucky on a cross called Mammoth, except R.R., who lives on New Creek."

I was always told that a lot of the counterfeit money was stored in the old Langford House (McPerron place) here in Mt. Vernon. He was said that on one particular occasion, a two-horse wagon, the bed filled with silver dollars to a depth of three inches, was driven through the back door of the house and unloaded in the big stone-walled basement beneath it. This wagon had sent out to Louisville or Cincinnati by the stage coaches which ran through here at that time. Harvey Bostie always told me how where a considerable number of counterfeit coins were hidden in a big chest back of the old Langford place but could never get into it to see what was in it. He said he was engaged in the same sort of work with a short piece of a wooden post driven in as a bumper. This bumper Great Saltwater Cave used to speak of the old village settlers and frequently mentioned a "Money-making job" whenever I asked some of their one day how he got his name and if he made his money trading in stock, farming or just how they told me that he had a good set of mules and that when he needed money, he just went back to Great Saltwater Cave and made what he wanted. I thought this was just a big tale, but only a couple of years ago, I picked up an old book on the life of a famous bar tender in the Virginia mountains and in one paragraph the writer mentioned "Mammoth Mollie, the great counterfeit?" I learned later that Solomon Mullins had come to Rockcastle County, Kentucky, from Virginia, so it all fits in pretty well. Apparently the "the counterfeit" that was the counterfeit came all over the country. Doing down here in the hills, apparently no government investigator thought to look here for the source. This is approximately what I will print of the story in the book. If anyone can add additional facts or corrections, I would be glad to hear from you, as we set in the old history as correct as possible. Our reason we are printing our findings on these random matters in the Signal now is to get them substantiated before publication. Once they are printed in the book, they should be changed. Don't hesitate to write in if you think we're wrong about anything you read in the column. Your comments will be greatly appreciated and fully considered.

VOTE FOR HEWITT JONES FOR MAGISTRATE IN DISTRICT ONE

AT THIS TIME, I WANT TO ANNOUNCE MYSELF AS A CANDIDATE FOR ELECTION AS MAGISTRATE IN DISTRICT ONE.

DURING MY SERVICE TO THE PEOPLE IN DISTRICT ONE FOR THE PAST SEVEN YEARS AS MAGISTRATE, I AM PROUD OF THE SERVICE AND SUPPORT GIVEN UPON MY PART RECORD.

I AM SURE YOU REALIZE THAT ONE CAN NOT ACCOMPLISH ALL THE THINGS HE WOULD LIKE TO DO IN ONLY SEVEN YEARS OF SERVICE, BUT AT THE SAME TIME, I AM PROUD OF THE MANY THINGS THAT I HAVE ACCOMPLISHED. I HAVE WORKED HARD TO IMPROVE THE DISTRICT, I HAVE WORKED TO HELP THE PEOPLE IN THE DISTRICT AND FOR ALL THE COUNTY. THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT AS TO MY QUALIFICATIONS FOR THE OFFICE. BECAUSE WE HAVE ALREADY ACCOMPLISHED MANY GREAT PROGRAMS AND OUR DISTRICT IS GOING FORWARD, I AM ALSO AWARE THAT THERE IS MUCH MORE TO BE DONE AND WE NOW HAVE SOME GOOD PROBLEMS THAT ARE IN THE PLANNING STAGE WHICH I WOULD LIKE TO COMPLETE--AND WITH YOUR HELP AND SUPPORT WE WILL COME OUT ON TOP.

I EARNESTLY ASK FOR YOUR VOTE AND SUPPORT FOR MAGISTRATE IN DISTRICT ONE.

The Electric Heat Pump - The "Most" in Year "Round Comfort Conditioning

If you're thinking about the comfort of electric heating and air conditioning, consider the advantages of the electric heat pump

- ONE UNIT comfort conditions your home all year long with no seasonal equipment changes.
- AUTOMATICALLY, it reverses itself between seasons for heating and cooling, for comfortable living.
- INSTALLATION is a simple job since only one unit is involved.
- SAFE. Unlike flame operations, there are no flames, pilot lights or storage tanks.
- ECONOMY. It uses less electricity than separate electric furnace and air conditioning systems.

Electricity is too important to waste. Contact your Rural Electric system for money saving electric efficiency hints.

The electric way is clean.
