

An Idea Car For The 1970's Rides In Style

An idea car designed for the Seventies shares the spotlight with an experimental car built in 1896 on opposite ends of the Michigan Float in the recent Experimental Inaugural Parade. Passing before the U. S. Capital are the famous "Quadricycle" first car built by Henry Ford, and Ford Division's "Sportiva," which has been the subject of speculation as forerunner of a new generation of Ford cars for the Seventies. The Sportiva is appearing in auto shows nationally to test public reaction to possible future production cars. The Quadricycle is an exact replica of the late Mr. Ford's first car. The idea car for the Seventies has many refinements not even dreamed of in 1896.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

- Q) I plan to file an amended 1971 return to claim a disaster loss deduction for damage suffered in the June floods. Is there any way I can speed up processing of my return to get my refund faster?
- A) Yes. Mark the words, "Disaster Areas Loss," at the top of the amended return you file and on the envelope you use to mail your return. In addition, send your return to the box number at your Internal Revenue Service Center, especially set up to receive amended returns from disaster victims. Call your local IRS office for the special box number in your area.
- Q) I made a political contribution of $150 last month. Can I deduct this on my 1972 return?
- A) If you itemize deductions, you may deduct a political contribution of $50 if you are single or $100 if you are married and filing a joint return.
- Instead of a deduction, you may claim a credit against your tax of one-half of your political contributions up to a maximum of $12.50 if you are single and $25 if you are married filing jointly.
- Q) When do I pay the third installment of my 1972 estimated tax?
- A) The third installment of your 1972 estimated tax is due on September 15, 1972. Send your payment along with the voucher included in your Form 1040-E3 package to the address shown in the instructions for the form. Be sure to include your correct Social Security number on each declaration-voucher, so that payments may be properly credited to your account.
- Q) Can a self-employed individual deduct contributions to his own retirement plan?
- A) Yes. If you are in business for yourself, you may deduct your contributions to a self-employed retirement plan, provided that the contributions are based on earned income and certain requirements are met. You can work in your business either full or part-time.
- For more details, send a postcard to your Internal Revenue district office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publications 560, "Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals," and 566, "Questions and Answers on Retirement Plans for the Self-Employed."

'ROCKCASTLE RECOLLECTIONS'

teaching in his home school, Level Green, at the early age of 18 and continued teaching in the county school for a number of years. Later, he organized the Level Green Academy, erecting his own building and instituted Normal courses for school teachers in the surrounding area who started in his classes as soon as their own terms were finished and continued their studies under him through the winter months. It is told of him that his concentration was so great that he could conduct both an arithmetic and a spelling class simultaneously. While illustrating the working of a mathematical problem on the blackboard, he would ask the spelling class what page in their spelling book they had studied and upon being given the number of the page would give out the words from memory, as he proceeded with explaining the arithmetic problem. Of his nine sons and daughters, seven under his tutelage became outstanding teachers. His brother, "Uncle John" Brown, was a graduate of West Point and for many years a leading lawyer in Rockcastle, as a Sunday School teacher, he had no peer.

Jasper Brown was no less noted as a country newspaper columnist, writing a weekly column for both the Standard and the Somerset papers. His contribution was carried in the first copy of the Mt. Vernon Signal and was continued weekly until his death in 1905. He wrote under the pen name, "Buck Varon, The Sage of Poesum Hollow," and his homely sayings and apt phrases were widely quoted.

Professor Dickerson was a classical scholar but something of a martinet. He held the rap and undivided attention of his students. When he stood on the platform and lectured a class everybody kept a wary eye on him. How else could you dodge an expertly flipped piece of chalk or the substantial hickory pointer thrown unerringly across the room to recall a roving fancy to what was being said?

Another disciplinarian along more unique lines was W.A.B. Davis. It was his custom to cut forked sticks and tie them onto the heels of more dilatory scholars with the admonition that they needed to "Spur up" to overtake the rest of the class. I recall that on a summer day in the old Redoubt school, when there was no fire in the big wood-burning cast iron stove, he put Willie Livesay in it and closed the door, telling him that judging from his general conduct he would be spending most of the time in jail when he grew up and he might as well be getting used to it now.

Not many of the old teachers are left. Miss Maggie Durham, now living in Louisville, having probably the the oldest. Seventy-four years ago, she was teacher at my first full term at Redoubt. And the old Redoubt school, by the way, which many years ago I moved to Rentro Valley where it is still preserved, is so far as I know the last log district schoolhouse in the country. My father attended school there just after the close of the Civil War.

David Singleton, a source of much information, writes that the oldest schoolhouse he knows about was Sand Springs School, on Rattlesnake Ridge, between Roundstone and Singleton Valley, where his grandmother went as a child. Another old log school, the one he attended, was at Cooksburg. Among the teachers were Theo Pigg and Professor Dickerson. Other old schools he remembers were at Dry Fork, White Oak, Fairview, Red Hill, Cave Ridge and Poplar Gap. Willis Johnson, one of our oldest citizens, with a relative memory, told about schools at Brushy Ridge, Abney, Owen Allen and Climax No. 12. This is only a small beginning. Where were other early district schools and when formed? I plan on going to Frankfort to see what can be found in state records. There are none in Rockcastle.

Finally, be it remembered, that but for an unreasonable outburst of civil violence, Berea College would have been in Rockcastle County. In the troubled days when John G. Fee and others were trying without success to found their school in Berea, Mr. Fee and party came to Mt. Guthrie, now Marenburg, with the avowed purpose of trying to establish it in what was deemed the more peaceful community here. Citizens of Rockcastle showed them how mistaken they had been in this assumption by applying a coat of tar and feathers to Mr. Fee and sending him back to Berea, where, shortly after, a mob forced the closing of the school which, however, was later reopened and successfully continued.

Our deepest heartfelt sympathy is extended the families of Stanley Pizze of Disputant, Mrs. Mary Ellen Holmes of Virginia and Paul Phillips of Berea, all who passed away last week. May God bless and comfort them in their sorrow. We also sympathize with other families in their loss of loved ones.

Other guests were Robert Spires and Duwayne of Disputant.

Mrs. Lucille Ponder visited her sister, Mrs. Roy Lee Crocker, of Conway Tuesday.

City Approves Five - Year Street Program In Four Phases

At an early Saturday morning called meeting of the Mt. Vernon City Council, Mayor Roland Mullins submitted a planning proposal for street development and maintenance for the next five years to the Council. The plan is in four phases. Phase One, approved last Saturday, includes seven streets: High Street, Poplar Street, Joyce Street, School Street, Main Street, Langdon Street, and Floyd Street, widening, ditching and/or backslapping. The plan for Phase One was submitted by Chester Hilliard, member of the Street Committee. The motion to approve was moved by Jimmy Robinson and seconded by Dennis Halcomb. This phase will be financed by the new state monies received from the city's share of gasoline taxes levied and which is expected to be received by the city about July 1.

Phase Two, to be completed by April, involves other streets which will get attention this year. The Council is committed to maintain a level of general fund support for streets commensurate with the dollars spent last year, providing this is financially feasible. This year, therefore, will be funded out of general fund monies. Phase Three, to be announced in early fall, involves streets that will be developed and/or maintained during the next fiscal year. Phase Four, also to be announced by next fall, will include the plan for the three years following.

A motion to approve the (Cont. To 6)

Mt. Vernon City Council. Money for the project will come from both the general fund and from money the city expects to receive later from their share of the state gasoline tax.

Graves Convicted

Lugene E. Siler, Jr., United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Kentucky, disclosed today the conviction in federal court at London, Kentucky, of William Clinton Graves, 34, of Route 1, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, for the illegal possession of a .45 caliber Colt pistol by a convicted felon.

Graves, who had previously been convicted in federal court of a moonshine violation, was arrested last September by special agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, Treasury Department. The gun had been purchased Corbin, Kentucky, and the violation was noticed when federal agents who knew Graves discovered that he had purchased approximately 25 guns over a period of 18 months. Michael Murphy, the Assistant United States Attorney in charge of the prosecution, stated that Graves had been trading and selling the guns at the London and Middletown stockyards. Murphy further stated that these "stockyard sales" are a favorite source of a supply of guns for convicted felons and other persons prohibited from buying a firearm since no records are kept.

Judge H. David Hermandorfer sentenced Graves to two years in the penitentiary and then suspended the sentence and placed him on probation.

LIBRARY FUNDS TO BE CUT DRAMATICALLY

Wendell H. Ford and state librarian Margaret Willis recently expressed concern that Kentucky's public library and bookmobile program will be curtailed after July 1 because of cutbacks in President Nixon's proposed budget.

Kentucky's share of federal funds this year under the Library Services and Construction Act (LSCA) is $503,544 compared with $976,270 last year.

Mrs. Willis said that there is some question whether the state will receive the $125,886 of federal funds allotted for the April-July quarter of this fiscal year.

Most of the immediate cutback would be in the purchase of books and other materials that the state buys and distributes to public libraries and Bookmobiles.

Mrs. Willis said that her department is buying $718,000 worth of books this year, of from federal funds.

If you are opposed to this cutback, we urge you to write your protests to Representative Tim Lee Carter, The House of Washington, D.C. 20515; The House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515 or Senator Marlow Cook, The Senate, The Capitol, Washington, D.C. 20510.

$1,630 In Deductions For Local Taxpayers

The outlays that Rockcastle County residents made in the past year for local and state taxes, for charitable donations, for medical services and the like are now appearing in a new light. They have been transformed into assets.

For local people who are assembling their 1972 income and expense figures in preparation for their Federal tax reports, these expenditures now look like money in the bank.

The reason? They represent tax deductions. The more that was spent for such purposes last year, the less that will have to be paid in April, when Tax Day rolls around.

Naturally, only those expenditures for which proper records were kept, capable of substantiation, can be claimed as deductions.

Rockcastle County residents who itemize their deductions will be interested to know how much other people, with incomes similar to their own, were being listing as deductions.

How do their charitable contributions compare? What about local taxes, medical costs and interest paid on loans?

Helpful information along these lines comes from the Commerce Clearing House, an authority on tax law, based upon data released by the Internal Revenue Service.

It shows that, in general, families throughout the country with earnings equal to the Rockcastle County average, have been listing deductions of $1,630 equivalent to 23 per cent of their adjusted gross income.

For those with lower than average earnings, the deductions taken usually represent a larger proportion of their income. Conversely, those in the higher brackets have smaller deductions, percentage-wise. The range is from 16 to 25 per cent, according to the latest IRS figures.

For example, local families at the $8,500 level will have deductions of $1,8 if they conform to the norm, while those with incomes of $12,500 will be deducting about $2,280.

A breakdown of the $1,630 in deductions that is usual among those with incomes similar to the Rockcastle County average shows $232 for charitable contributions, $490 for interest on loans and other debt, $500 for local taxes and $408 for medical and dental expenses.

Frankfort Watchline

Frankfort—That certainly was an interesting point Louie Nunn raised the other day about the Ford administration being able to cut taxes immediately.

The former Republican governor said the current Democratic governor is in great shape to do this because of various reasons.

Nunn, of course, could not help pointing out that one reason was the purportedly excellent financial status which he deduced to the Commonwealth upon leaving office.

Before we say ho-hum three times on such occasions, let it be said we agree with Nunn—and let us add: So what? Of course, Wendell Ford can reduce taxes. So could Nunn have done so a few years ago.

The question is twofold: political and financially practical.

The political angle might be uppermost most of the time. If Ford knows he has elbow room for a tax cut, does Nunn really think the governor will announce it at a time of no particular election benefit?

Of course not. Nunn knows as well as Ford that timing is everything. If a tax reduction is in the offing, it will be arranged for maximum political benefit.

As for the practicality of a tax cut—it's doubtful if the Ford camp is certain of how much the state is going to gain or lose in the midst of confusion over revenue sharing, Nixon administration fund impoundments and Nixon budget cuts.

Until the dust settles, it's hard to see Ford even hinting about slashing taxes. Besides, as we indicated just before the 1974 U. S. Senate or 1975 governor's race is a splendid moment for such pronouncements—if ever materialize.

ON WITH PN!—With seeming muleheaded persistence, the Kentucky Education Association's delegate assembly has decided to push on for a professional negotiations bill in the 1974 General Assembly.

This, if approved by the KEA in April, would be the fourth attempt in eight years. PN, depending on who's teaching it, means that teachers are able to bargain collectively with local school boards about various matters.

The KEA, once a mighty lobby in the legislative halls, has fallen from 32,000 to 27,000 members after its abortive 1970 statewide walkout for more money and benefits.

But don't count it out just yet. The organization was able to get just about every piece of legislation it wanted last year other than PN.

And, after it finds out this summer where it wants to go, we would be the last to underestimate its lobbying potential in the next legislative round.

ON-OR OFF?...WITHSPIN-DLETOP—Some persons might spend a week or two trying to learn how much in alleged research contracts Spindletop of Lexington has drained from the state since it began operations more than a decade ago.

The reporter might get by in tallying all the contracts, but how would he ever know for sure which were "make work" variety and which genuine research requests where a state agency really preferred Spindletop.

We sadly suspect that the bulk of the contracts involved the make-work concept.

The Ford administration can hardly be faulted for trying to recoup something in the way of regaining the almost $2 million in Spindletop's property and buildings at a lever for additional support.

Let it be said that Spindletop got off on the wrong foot long ago and simply has not been willing to try to survive entirely on its own. Meantime, the taxpayers indirectly foot the bill.

GONE ARE THE DAYS—It used to be that when you got your Kentucky Colony— that's the one with the attractive gold seal and the little sash of blue ribbon peeking out—you knew that the secretary of state had personally attended to the official act by putting on the official seal.

Well, we have shockingly had news for you.

The blight of modern technology has invaded one of the most basic Frankfort institutions.

We have learned—yes, we put it on those seals by machine. The personal touch so cherished by millions of people who proudly stare at their framed colonialies is gone forever.

Do you still believe in Santa Claus?

Wait! Before you rent your clothing with grief and disenchantment, we must reveal to you that the change was necessary because of the workload in the secretary of state's office.

Would you believe that about 20,000 colonialies were issued last year?

Guess it's become one of the world's most non-exclusive clubs.

Social Security to Spend More on Rehabilitation

Social Security will be able to make about $45.6 million available in fiscal 1973 for vocational rehabilitation services for people getting monthly disability benefits, according to social security officials here.

This is about $16.2 million more than was available in fiscal 1972.

"The added money means more disabled people can receive rehabilitation training to help them return to jobs," a social security spokesman said.

Social Security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers who are severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more—and to members of their families. In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational rehabilitation services provided by State and local agencies.

In fiscal 1971, social security provided about $30 million for vocational rehabilitation services for more than 45,000 severely disabled workers. About 10,000 were successfully rehabilitated, the spokesman said.

The amount available for rehabilitation services each year is based on the total amount of social security disability benefits paid during the previous year.

ATTENTION FARMERS

If you don't lime it, why plant it

Why Soils Need Lime

Only a few crops grow well on acid soils because they require calcium and magnesium which are replaced by applications of agricultural limestone. This material not only corrects the soil acidity, but also supplies the plants with the needed calcium and frequently magnesium.

Soil pH, which is a measure of the acidity or alkalinity of the soil, affects the availability of all elements which influence crop production. An application of liming material to an acid soil increases the availability of plant nutrients which are important to crop production. Among these are nitrogen, phosphate and others. Liming reduces luxury uptake of potassium by the plants and reduces the availability of aluminum and iron manganese which are harmful to plants if they are present in sufficient quantities in the soil. Liming also helps increase the number and activity of beneficial soil bacteria. It helps improve the physical condition of the soil by supplying the calcium needed by leguminous crops to increase their growth. It increases root development and permeability of the soil.

Lime is the most economical factor involved in crop production on most soils in the humid areas, as they are acid in varying degrees. The application of needed fertilizers is also one of the most economical factors in crop production. The wise use of water - both rainfall and irrigation - is still another factor involving crop production. However, the one which is most frequently by-passed is the application of agricultural limestone and this is the first step in a sound fertility program on most soils in the humid area. Failure to apply this material limits crop production and wastes fertilizer dollars as well as the producer's capital investment and his labor in crop production.

VOTE FOR HEWITT JONES FOR MAGISTRATE IN DISTRICT ONE

I take this opportunity to thank each of the voters in District One for giving me the pleasure of serving you as your Magistrate for the past years.

Having served you in the past, I earnestly solicit your vote and support upon my past record as your Magistrate.

But I am sure each of you realize that one cannot accomplish all the things he would like to do in one short term; however, I am proud of the many miles of road work we have done in this district.

I have worked in harmony with the Fiscal Court, attended the regular meetings and done everything possible to assist the citizens in my district as well as others in the county.

My qualifications for this office are not questionable because since I have been your Magistrate we have worked together and accomplished many good programs.

I have kept my records up to date and our district looks much better and more prosperous because of our work on so many roads.

We know there is much more would like to remain your Magistrate for the ensuing four years to see the program completed.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence in District one on May 29, 1973 Primary Election.

Disabled with Workmen's Compensation Can Get Larger Social Security Checks

More than 40,000 disabled workers getting both workmen's compensation and social security disability benefits get larger social security checks because of a recent change in law, according to social security officials here.

Combined social security and workmen's compensation monthly payments still can't be over 80 percent of the worker's average monthly earnings before he became disabled, a social security spokesman said, but the new law adds another way to figure the average earnings.

"His average monthly earnings can now be determined by his highest earnings in any one year of the 5 years before he became disabled," he said.

Previously, the average had to be based on earnings in 5 consecutive years, or if it worked out to a higher figure, the number of years used to figure the amount of the worker's social security disability benefits.

To get social security disability payments a worker must be severely disabled before 65 and unable to work for a year or more and must have a certain amount of work credit under social security.

"For more information about how workmen's compensation affects social security payments," the spokesman said, "call, write, or visit any social security office."

"COUNTY AGENTS NOTES"

the cuts with a fungicide.

Check your gladiolus corms. Throw away any that have brown rot or mold. If you didn't clean them last fall, now is a good time to remove the soil, the old shriveled corm, and all but one corm scale. This scale can be removed just before planting, but for now, it will protect the corm from drying.

Plant Trees After Thaw: Toward the end of the month, when the ground has thawed, you can start planting deciduous trees and shrubs (those that lose their leaves in winter). Trees planted at this time will have more time to root into the soil before the top part leaks out. If your plants are balled and burlapped, be sure to make the holes at least six inches larger than the soil ball. For a one and one-half inch diameter tree, the hole should be approximately 30 inches deep and at least that wide. Mix the soil with hay and vermiculite. Add a couple of handfuls of lime to neutralize the acidity of the peat. Do this only if the new plant requires a neutral or alkaline soil.

Cattleman May Need to Stretch Winter Feed Supply: Many Kentucky farmers are running short on hay to feed their cattle this winter. With several more weeks of winter still ahead, hay is selling at record prices in some areas.

A number of factors are responsible for the hay shortage, according to Curtis Absher, Extension beef cattle specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. For one thing, there are now more beef cows on Kentucky farms than ever before. The number of beef cows two years old and over is now estimated to be some 1,850,000 head.

Furthermore, weather conditions last summer and fall were not ideal for forage production. Much of the state experienced a shortage of rainfall during the early part of the summer. Later on, in the fall, forage crop growth was limited by the limited amount of available sunlight. Heavy fall rains allowed cattle to trample a lot of forage into the mud. The wet weather also delayed corn and soybean harvesting and prevented some small grain seeding for pasture.

The growing popularity of storing hay in the field may be a factor in the hay shortage and this has reduced the amount of hay which is marketable or can be moved easily from farm to farm. In addition the 10 to 20 per cent loss associated with field storage further reduces the amount of hay available to feed cows this winter.

What can farmers who are running low on hay do to make more efficient use of the feed they have? Separating dry cows from those with nursing calves is a good place to start. Dry cows need only about 60 per cent as much feed as cows with nursing calves.

Fifteen pounds of good grass hay per day will provide adequate protein and energy for a 900-pound dry cow. A cow of the same size nursing a calf needs about 25 pounds of the same kind of hay. She probably will not eat that much hay and may need some supplemental energy such as corn.

When hay is expensive, corn may be a better buy in terms of TDN. He has made a comparison of hay, milo and molasses with corn on the basis of the value of total digestible nutrients per ton. He uses corn selling at $1.68 per bushel, or $60 per ton, as the standard. Shelled corn contains 80 per cent TDN, compared to 71 per cent TDN for milo, 63 per cent for molasses, and 50 per cent for hay. Thus, if the TDN in a ton of shelled corn is worth $60, the TDN in a ton of milo is worth $53, the TDN in a ton of molasses is worth $47, and TDN in a ton of hay is worth $37.50. In other words, the comparison shows that if corn is available at $1.68 per bushel and hay costs more than $37.50 per ton, corn is the cheaper source of TDN.

$2000 PER ACRE BARRIER BROKEN BY PICKLE GROWERS

Prices Increased On Pickles For 1973

More pickle growers in Kentuckiana earned over $2000 per acre and $1000 per acre in 1972 than in any year before, with the Champion Grower on one acre earning $2031.64 while the Champion Grower on 1/2 acre earned $1110.47. This record was made even though the 1972 growing season, with its cold weather followed by more than usual rainfall, was not very good for a successful vegetable growing season in general.

Pickle growing should be even more profitable in 1973 due to a price increase in several grades to be paid to the farmer. Another increase in pickle earnings will come from a higher percentage of hybrids to be included in the pickle seed blend for 1973. It's hard to tell just how much more money this will make for the pickle grower, but there will be approximately 25% more hybrids in the seed blend.

The University of Kentucky Extension Service lists the following advantages to raising pickles:

- .. Guaranteed Market
- .. High Dollar Earnings
- .. Guaranteed Prices
- .. Quick Cash Crop (12 to 13 weeks from planting to end of harvest).
Planting is normally completed between the 1st and 10th of May.
Picking starts around July 1st, and normally ends after the first week in August.
- .. Good Family Project
- .. Most labor takes place at a date which doesn't interfere with other crops such as corn and tobacco.
- .. Grower is paid at time of delivery to the receiving station.
- .. No special machinery or equipment is required.
- .. Out of pocket expense is small.
- .. Income is received when other crops are not ready for sale.
- .. Cucumbers are easy to grow.
- .. You don't have to be a big farmer to get a contract.
- .. Acreage is not government controlled.

All people in Rockcastle County who have idle land, or know someone who has land, are invited to find out more about the pickle program by contacting:

castle County will not cover the territory we had expected to cover and I can see that it will take a lot of work and patient search to do a satisfactory job on it.

In the first place, I had expected to be able to find the thesis written by Professor Egbert Norton covering the history of education in Rockcastle County back to the eighteenth century. I had expected to find the eighteenth century history of education in Rockcastle County back to the eighteenth century, but have so far been unable to locate it. Professor Norton, Principal of Brothless High School, had attended Eastern Kentucky University during summer session to get his degree and, upon graduation, had written his thesis as indicated above. I found notice of it in an undated copy of the Signal, containing also the statement that he was filing it with school authorities for future reference. Lena Kelsey checked the University files; but since I could not give her the exact date, she was unable to come up with a copy of it. I checked the County Superintendent's office here, but without success. I have understood that this was a very complete and accurate report, so will keep on the trail of it until it is located.

I was very much disappointed to learn that Rockcastle School records of earlier days are non-existent. I have been informed that they were destroyed by fire in about 1888. A few records going back to 1925 can be found, but nothing of any practical value to this work.

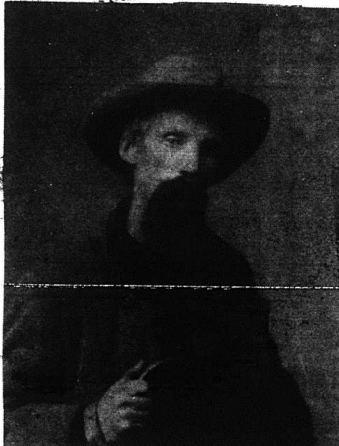

Checking with Collins' History of Kentucky, I find that the state did not make a very good showing in forming and perpetuating a good public school system. Collins points out that early land grants of six thousand acres each, were set aside for Kentucky counties, including Rockcastle, but unequivocally states that through gross mismanagement these lands were soon disposed of without particular benefit to the schools in each county. In 1838 a law was enacted for the establishment of a general system of Common Schools in Kentucky, but within the next ten years no progress was made. In the case of Rockcastle County, at the end of that ten-year period there were only seventeen schools, with seventeen teachers and total enrollment of between four and five hundred students in the whole county.

The six thousand acres of public land allotted to Rockcastle County, upon the formation of the county in 1810, was earmarked for Rockcastle Academy. Trustees appointed were James Dyzart, William Carson, William Smith, Absolom Rentro, John Burdette, Henry Buford, and John Dyzart. They were empowered to choose vacant land anywhere in the state and to give half of it to it if surveyed. The rest was to be sold to pay for a school building, books, etc.

William Smith was chosen to select the land and make the survey. He picked acreage in Adair, Cumberland, and Casey Counties and started surveying but did not finish the job until 1820. He never received land or payment during his lifetime and it was 1899 before his heirs received it. Assembly changed the school name to Rockcastle Seminary and appointed two new trustees to agree with such of the old board as were yet alive. In 1824 they deeded one hundred acres to John Smith for one dollar and by 1873 all the remaining land had been sold for twenty six cents per acre. The legislature then ordered the rundown school building and the acre of land it occupied to be sold and divided among all the school districts in the county. Whitehead Academy was formed in 1860 as a private school, occupying what was since known as the Old Williams Building. In 1880 a new school building, called The Collegiate Institute, was built and was sold in 1897 to a Presbyterian Missionary Society and named Brown Memorial. In 1912 Langdon Memorial bought the property and also built a dormitory on the lot where Dr. Griffin's home now stands. There were other schools in Mount Vernon, besides the county school system organized in 1910. Mrs. Rosie Nesbit had a private school in the apartment building now owned by Dr. and Mrs. Jack Henderson, and Miss Ida May Adams taught another, the name of which I do not remember.

Elaborating on above findings, a fairly good history of schools in Mount Vernon has gotten together, but we are especially interested in district schools the county over. Rockcastle County had several early instructors of more than ordinary ability, three of which are legendary: Mr. Shore (Story), Jasper Brown, and Professor Dickerson. If the average resident of Rockcastle County past three score and ten was asked to name the outstanding educator of the County for all time, only a few would fail to name Jasper Brown for that high honor. I do not know which, if any, institute of higher learning produced him, but undoubtedly he was thoroughly grounded in the principals of a liberal education of his day and time. He started

A recent change in the social security law increased the amount available for vocational rehabilitation from 1 percent of the previous year's total disability payments to 1.25 percent for fiscal 1973 and 1.5 percent for fiscal 1974 and after," the spokesman said.

About $29 million in additional funds will be available for rehabilitation services in 1974.

After

there's still
with light for recreation

Plan now to get more out of spring and summer with outdoor light... when fun time can go right on after sun time. Then you'll be all set to really enjoy being outdoors at night: games, entertaining, family backyard picnics. Even now that young pitcher might want a headstart on the Little League season.

Outdoor lighting installation involves no big problems or costs. Electricity used is minimal - a 100-watt bulb, for example, burns 10 hours for about 3¢. So why not talk to us, at any of our offices, about the many benefits of outdoor lighting (including safety) - and the many kinds available. No obligation.
