Troy McClure, No. 14, top photo, is shown doing what he did so well all year -- going up against a bigger man and coming out with two points. The easy lay-up for Troy came in the Rockets game Friday night against Casey County. Troy, a senior, got nine points for the night and gave the Rebels fits with his alert ball handling. In the bottom photo, Clayton Cash, also a senior, is shown after shaking his man and going for a "gimme". Clayton is one of the best ballplayers this county has produced in many years and is usually the man called on by Coach Bill Riddle in tight situations because the little guard is known for keeping his cool. Clayton pulled down 10 points in Friday night's contest.

YFA TO MEET

Rockcastle Young Farmer classes meetings are held on Monday nights at the Agriculture Dept. at the Rockcastle County High School. On March 5 at 7:30 p.m., James Herron, Crop and Weed Specialist from the University of Kentucky, will hold a joint meeting with the young farmers and adult farmers at RCHS. This meeting is an open one to all farmers and agriculturists interested. Lee Durham, County Extension Agent, and Russell Parsons, RCBS Voc-Ag teacher, have worked together in making arrangements for this timely and helpful meeting to be held in Rockcastle County.

MAGGARD DRUG STORE

NOTICE

Beginning March 1, 1973, the County will begin pick-up of garbage and you are requested to place or put your garbage in a plastic bag and tie same before placing it in the garbage containers that are placed at different points around the County. You can identify these containers by a sign that says "garbage" on them and they are painted blue for your recognition. These garbage containers are placed at thirty-three (33) different points in the County and are so placed that people working or going to work will have access to them.

Hertofore, we have had complaints of no place to dispose of the garbage. There is no longer an excuse on this point. We will appreciate anything you can do to help in keeping garbage off the roads and highways. Your help will be appreciated.

DAR TO MEET

The Rockcastle Chapter DAR will meet on Saturday, March 1 at 2:00 P.M. at the home of Miss Janie Ramsey at 111 Adams Street, Berea. The program will be given by Mrs. James B. Beauchamp of Danville, who will speak on National Defense. Mrs. Beauchamp is presently Fourth District Director of NSDAR and has served as State Registrar and State Treasurer. The meeting scheduled by the chapter for February 20th was cancelled due to the illness of several award winners and participants. These awards will probably be presented at Award Night near the end of the school year.

Franklin, Ohio spent Thursday night with his mother, Mrs. Della Mae Wilcott. Mr. and Mrs. Ciangman Hamm and Debbie and Mrs. DeWitt Wilcott were in Danville Saturday shopping. Miss Angela Rae Chane and Jerry May of Richmond visited Mrs. Susie Chaney Sunday afternoon.

To The People of Rockcastle County

I take this opportunity to ask for your help in the up-coming Republican Primary. The welfare of this county has always been uppermost in my mind and I feel that in the office of County Court Clerk, I can serve the people of this county honestly, fairly and efficiently. If elected, my first thought will always be of how best to serve you, the citizens of Rockcastle County.

I earnestly solicit your vote and support on my behalf and on behalf of good government for the people.

Thank You

Larry LaFavers, the Rockets big center, and Ronnie Brown, bottom photo, played their last home game at RCHS last Friday night and did more than their share to close out the season on a triumphant note by downing the Casey County Rebels 50-40. LaFavers, on whom a great many fans think the outcome of the Rockets hopes in district play hinges, played one of his best games of the season and netted 12 points for his efforts. Brown's photo is a typical shot of him because he'll go for the basket anytime against any odds and usually comes out with two points. He was high-point man Friday night with 19. Peter Thomas, the other grand old senior on the squad besides Derrell Proctor and Dwayne Mink, scored the first two points of the game Friday night.

DARK PICTURE

Rockcastle Recollections...

By: John Lair

Mr. D. A. Robbins, of Brodhead, corrects a mistake in last week's article and informs me that Norton's History of Education in Rockcastle County is on file at the University of Kentucky rather than at Eastern. Arrangements have been made to secure a copy of it in the near future. Mr. Robbins also furnished us with a copy of the History of Brodhead School, which quotes from the Norton thesis.

We have recently dug up information on a former Rockcastle County pioneer family that has long defied the efforts of geneologists in several states — the Bailey family, who once lived in the cabin they purchased from John Rentro and which was the first cabin built in Rentro Valley. I recall that over the years strangers have tried to find out more about the Baileys and used to visit Pappy and Manny Hiatt almost every year to question them, since both Pappy's grandfather, Bennett Hiatt and his brother, Peaslie Hiatt, had married sisters, Ceilia and Sarah Bailey, soon after the coming to Rockcastle of the Hiatt Brothers.

In a recent article, "Kentuckians at the Alamo," Dr. Hamilton Tapp lists seventeen Kentuckians who died in the Alamo, among them Peter James Bailey, who went to Texas from Logan County, Kentucky, in 1836. He was twenty-four years old at the time of the massacre, indicating that the family of Peter Bailey was still living in Rentro Valley when he was born and had apparently moved to Logan County from here, settling in the vicinity of Springfield. Those seeking information on the Bailey family will find it in the records of Logan County. Peter James Hiatt, for many years a prominent preacher in Rockcastle County, was the nephew of Peter James Bailey and was named for him.

Since it is known that Allensworth Adams, another Rockcastle County boy, was also at the Alamo, I had always assumed that they left here together — the Bailey family, who once covered no evidence to support that supposition. In fact, there is considerable mystery surrounding Allensworth's appearance there. A nephew of Allensworth, and the last living grandson of "Devil Bill" Adams, told me many years ago, when he was past ninety, that he remembered hearing Allensworth telling his father of his experiences at the Alamo and shedding tears over the less than heroic part he had played. He said that every man in the Alamo understood perfectly that to remain there until captured by the Mexican army meant certain death, yet all except himself were brave enough to accept their fate. He said that after the first assault by the Mexicans, who were driven back from the walls of the Alamo with great slaughter, the cannonade ceased and the Mexican women were allowed to come on the field and carry off their dead. When one of these women came within speaking distance, he called to her and offered her all his money to bring him a woman's dress and shawl and pass it to him through the cannon embrasure. This she did and he, being a small man, was able to crawl through the embrasure at night and make his escape.

Several years ago I checked with army records of the men who died at the Alamo but could find no record of Allensworth. This is not conclusive proof that he was not there, as records of the inmates of the Alamo and the goings and comings of the people before the beginning of the actual fighting appeared to have been very lax. Most convincing of all was his account of what happened to him following the fall of the Alamo. He and other American soldiers were captured by the Mexican Army and taken on the long death march so infamous in the annals of the War with Mexico. He said, among other things, that they were led, on foot, on long ropes, behind the Mexican cavalrymen and in crossing streams were rushed along so fast they could not take a drink, although perishing with thirst.

This and other accounts he gave are thoroughly substantiated by written history, as well as his story of how he and a few companions barely escaped a firing squad and were finally released from Mexican prison; by the intercession of the office of the President. It is a tradition of the Alamo that no soldier escaped. It is recorded that Moses Rose, a visitor, left before the battle began and was the only one to escape. If Allensworth Adams' story could be verified, it would be a real "find" and could change the history of one of the most sensational military engagements of all times.

We still need lists of those buried in old county cemeteries, especially the small family cemeteries once so prevalent on most old homesteads, which would be very hard to find if a stranger came around looking for them. Most of these old cemeteries, or private burying grounds, have become neglected and overgrown with weeds, briars and bushes and only the people in the immediate neighborhood know where they are. Just now I am particularly interested in finding graves of Col. James Dycart, John Baker, and Reuben C. Few. Baker was probably buried somewhere near Crooked Creek; Dycart around Pongo; and Few on his old homestead on Steggs Creek, perhaps not too far from the Lincoln County line. Joe Clark tells me that a few days ago a man by the name of Baker was at a restaurant looking for me with some history on the Baker family. He did not leave his name and address and since he never did find me I am at a loss to know how to contact him. If he sees this, I hope he will write or call me.

What is the correct story on the Cave Springs Fight of many years ago? So far, everyone I have talked to has a different version of it. Richard Mullins, near whose old home the fight took place, tells me his father's account of it was to the effect that several of the Mullins clan were gathered around a little "grocery" (saloon) on his grandfather's farm, which Richard still owns, when a group of Hayses, from near Scaffold Cane, some of the Maupins from Madison County, and perhaps others, came along looking for stray hounds. There was a cedar chair full of moonshine by the grocery door, with a gourd in it, inviting one and all to quench their thirst. Everybody drank, and the more they drank the more belligerent they got. Finally there was a free-for-all fight and some of the visitors, bowie knife experts, ran down and killed a few unarmed people. Old Calloway Mullins, patriarch of his tribe, was stabbed through a kidney and the person who stabbed him took refuge in a cave, where he was pursued by Ashtley Owens, deputy sheriff, and son-in-law of Calloway Mullins, who in the darkness of the cave succeeded in finding the man and killing him with a hatchet. Information found in the Cox family history indicates that Egbert Moore, Quince Jones and another young man by the name of Locke, went from Mt. Vernon to the Cave Springs fight and were stabbed to death by the Hayses and all laid out on the floor of the Phillip Singleton cabin. I have heard from other sources that two of the knifemen were tried and sentenced to the penitentiary, where one was drowned in the prison "water cure" for refusing to work at pumping out the water turned in on him as punishment. It was Felix Bowman, I believe, who during his lifetime told me that some of the Hayses on their way to Cave Springs had stopped at a barn lot on the way and carved up a steer to see if their knives were sharp and in good order.

If this story is incorrect in any detail, or if you have heard a different version of it, please correct us. We don't want to print an incorrect version in our book — and won't print it at all if it is offensive to any descendants of the principal characters involved. One reason for running these reviews in the Signal is to give everybody a chance to correct any mistakes and register any objections they may have to any statements made. We will give every avenue to such communications and will not ignore any legitimate complaint on any story not definitely backed up by actual court records.

FRANK NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

It was rather amusing the other day to read about complaints on Capitol parking by Don Mize, editor of the Lexington Herald.

Not that Don was wrong or unduly griping. For a visitor to the Commonwealth or nation, in fact for anyone except those privileged to obtain reserved space around the buildings, the whole situation is at best an inconvenience and at worst — as during legislative session — a mild nightmare.

It's when we get to the point of what to do about it that things become a little laughable.

You could, of course, strip away the privileged spots for various officials and, gulp, even newsmen.

Lots more parking room, right? Wrong. It would be more than a drop in the bucket, but perhaps less than a splash in the bucket. We don't think it would solve anything.

You could also, though Don didn't mention it, simply ban any parking by any car with fewer than two or more occupants.

This, on the surface, makes more sense because it attacks more of the heart of the problem — which is that there are too many cars and, too many cars significantly, too many cars with only single drivers. But, no, we sadly conclude this is a drastic measure which would prompt creation of another minor bureaucracy of security employees checking every vehicle. It's not worth the effort.

Well, any other suggestions? We'll gladly admit we don't have any suggestions for an easy solution.

It's frustrating for a visitor to drive round and round the Capitol without a space available except blocks away.

But, really, it's also part of modern life — the growth of state government and the invention of the internal combustion engine.

However, we'll be happy to receive suggestions and pass the likely ones on in this column. Maybe some genius will solve the problem.

OFF TO COURT AGAIN...

Republican attorney Danny Boggs, a persistent hurr under Wendell Ford, is trying again to ambush the enemy party in court.

Robertson in Jefferson County was haggling over legislative redistricting, Boggs charged...

And with some merit — that the Tories used were not factual. He was fired shortly after. Legislative Research Commission staff of which he was initially a loyal member, even of the opposition.

Then, not long ago, he challenged in court Gov. Wendell Ford's appointment of former State Sen. Tom Harris as czar of the new Environmental Protection Agency. That's still pending.

Another recent Boggs foray is a suit against Ford charged inequally among political parties regarding trustee appointments at the University of Kentucky.

Someone, that brought to mind a crack by the late Will Rogers and maybe some challenged UK trustees can use it.

"No, I don't belong to any organized political party."

WENDLE A DEAD PIGEON?

Wendell Ford, who always claims to be the people's governor, apparently is for the birds as far as the pigeons are concerned.

Years ago I remember, but former Gov. Louis Num's administration took drastic action against the pesky birds who were overpopulating the Capitol. To be blunt, the pigeons were poisoned on a massive scale.

A few survived — a few always do — and their numbers increased to the point where droppings became an occasional danger to humans below. Well, the Democrats apparently have shown they can be as nasty to pigeons as were the Republicans.

Somehow, mysteriously, pigeons have been dropping to the Capitol grounds, never to get up again. And so on in the governor's office seems to know what's happened.

One was theorized that they committed suicide.

Learning of the situation, editor S. C. Van Curron of the Frankfort State Journal offered help to the Capitol birds.

"There's a large bunch of pigeons that make their home at the old State Arsenal on East Main," he wrote the "pigeon editor" of Press Now.

"Maybe you ought to call on these military birds to make war on the people who are making war on the Capitol pigeons."

Install Central Air Conditioning Now - and Save Money

Believe it! Contractors and dealers generally are more available in the winter so they can install your central air conditioning system quickly, and usually at a saving.

- INSULATION, so important for air conditioning, will help cut your heating costs, too.
- DUCTS. If your home has air ducts for heating, they may be adequate for your central air system.
- TALK to your friends at your Rural Electric system. They'll help you with information about the right insulation and the places that need it. They can advise you on the size and type of air conditioning equipment that fits your home. Your Rural Electric system has other money saving and electric saving tips, too. Remember, electricity is too good to waste.

The electric way is clean.

VOTE FOR HEWITT JONES FOR MAGISTRATE IN DISTRICT ONE

I take this opportunity to thank each of the voters in District One for giving me the pleasure of serving you as your Magistrate for the past years.

Having served you in the past, I earnestly solicit your vote and support upon my past record as your Magistrate.

I am sure each of you realize that one cannot accomplish all the things he would like to do in one short term; however, I am proud of the many miles of road work we have done in this district.

I have worked in harmony with the Fiscal Court, attended the regular meetings and done everything possible to assist the citizens in my district as well as others in the county.

My qualifications for this office are not questionable because since I have been your Magistrate we have worked together and accomplished many good programs.

I have kept my records up to date and our district looks much better and more prosperous because of our work on so many roads.

We know there is much more would like to remain your Magistrate for the ensuing four years to see the program completed.

I earnestly solicit your vote and influence in District one on May 29, 1933 Primary Election.

CHANNELS 22 AND 46 TO AIR SHOWS ON MILK PRODUCTION
Rockcastle County farmers who could use a boost in farm income may want to find out more about producing manufacturing milk. This is an enterprise which provides a steady income and has a bright outlook, according to H. Lee Durham, Rockcastle County Extension Agent.

Durham points out that the investment required for a manufacturing milk enterprise is much smaller than the investment needed to set up a Grade A operation. The barn and a good supply of feed are already available on many farms, so a relatively low investment in cows and milking equipment can start a milk check coming in every two weeks.

Durham says the demand for milk is increasing, mostly because people are eating more cheese. It takes a hundred pounds of milk to make ten pounds of cheese, and the demand for cheese is expected to double in the next ten years. This means twice as much milk will be needed for making cheese.

Kentucky has several milk plants which make cheese, but they cannot get enough milk from Kentucky to meet their needs. In fact, the Bluegrass State is the fifth largest producer of American cheese in the United States, but most of the milk used to make this cheese has to be brought in from outside the state.

"TV Milkline," a series of four television programs about manufacturing milk production, will be broadcast in March. Rockcastle County milk producers and those who are interested in learning more about milk production can see the programs over WKSQ, Channel 29, in Somerset, or Lexington-Richmond.

The four half-hour programs will be shown at 7:30 p.m. (Eastern time) on the four Tuesdays in March - March 6, 13, 20, and 27. They will be carried around the state by the Kentucky Educational Television Network. The programs were produced by the Kentucky Dairy Products Association and the University of Kentucky. Much of the filming was done on location at a manufacturing milk dairy farm near Taylorsville, Kentucky.

The "TV Milkline" series will be hosted by John Nicolai, Extension dairy specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. The first program will deal with the nutritional needs of the dairy cow. The right combination of protein, energy, and vitamins and minerals which a cow needs for maximum milk production will be discussed. Feeding will also be emphasized in the second show. A balanced ration will be mixed showing what the farmer can do with the feed he has available.

The third program will cover the basic procedures to be used in milking cows. Special emphasis will be placed on sanitation, cow preparation, washing of equipment and cooling milk. The final show will deal with the money aspects of a dairy operation. A UK farm management specialist will discuss the income which can be earned from a herd of cows maintaining an 8,000 or 12,000 pound production average. The costs involved in a dairy enterprise will also be discussed.

CAMPS '73
In Spring just around the corner and Summer not too far away, now may be the time to make plans for 4-H camps. There are four opportunities for the young people in Rockcastle County to attend a 4-H sponsored camp.

TEEN ENVIRONMENTAL WORKSHOP
The objective of this camp is to create an awareness of Kentucky's Natural Resources and effective use of our environment. The camp is for any sophomore or junior in high school who is concerned about our resources and environment. The camp will be held April 9-13 at the Lake Cumberland 4-H Center, Jakes, Kentucky. The Rockcastle County Soil Conservation District will sponsor two youths who wish to attend. More can attend if there are openings at the camp. Applications can be made at the County Extension Office in the Courthouse. The deadline for the application is March 10, 1973.

4TH GRADE CAMP
A 4-H Camp especially for 8-10 year olds, does just completing the 4th grade will be held June 19-22. At this camp, 4-H'ers will be able to participate in crafts, swimming sports, tours and other group activities. The camp is held at the J.M. Felner Memorial Camp at London and the fee will be $12.00.

TEENAGE CAMP
A special weekend camp is scheduled for teenagers in the Wilderness Trail Area including Rockcastle County. The camp will start on Friday evening, June 22, and end on Sunday, June 24. The fee will be $3.00. This will be an opportunity for 4-H'ers to participate in supervised camp with activities planned especially for teenagers.

4-H CAMP
4-H'ers in Rockcastle County, grades 5th through 8th will be able to participate in 4-H camp, July 2-5 at the J. M. Felner Memorial Camp at London. Included in the $15.00 camp fee are sports, swimming, hiking, natural study, crafts, and other group activities. Any group or individual who wishes to sponsor 4-H'ers for camp, can contact Cheryl Witt, County Extension Office. You may be able to help a child attend camp who otherwise may not be able to. Also, young persons 19 or over, who wish to have a summer job, may apply for a camp staff position at the 4-H Camp in London, Kentucky. The positions include boating and swimming instructor, recreation instructor, nature study, archery, gun safety (VRA approved). For further information and/or application, contact the County Extension Office as soon as possible.

4-H'ers in Rockcastle County will receive more information about attending 4-H camp in April and May club meetings.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. e. Burton were Mr. and Mrs. Russell Long, Willis Thompson, G.D. Burton, Owen Burton, Janet Burton, Delbert Long, and Lewis Brown. Milton Lee Deborde is home from Germany where he has been stationed with the U. S. Army. He has now been discharged. A large crowd attended the funeral of Mrs. Josie Rogers.

BOONE

In Remembrance of my sister, Retha Mae Payne, who passed away January 17, 1973. The call was sudden, the shock severe, I never thought such grief so near. The pain of parting without goodbye, will be with me until I die. Some may forget you are gone, but I will remember, no matter how long.

W.R. Durham and Carl wish to extend their deepest sympathy to their sister and aunt and family.

Mrs. Nellie Harris is very ill in the Good Samaritan Hospital at Lexington with a broken leg. She is the grandmother of Mrs. Flossie Cain.

Sally missed by sister, Ruth (French) Mical, Akron, Ohio.

Two of these three Young Farmers of America (YFA) members were recently named district winners during a YFA Convention held at Lake Barkley Lodge. From left: Marvin Cromer was named district winner in tobacco production; Dexter Roberts was district winner in dairy and also received his Ky. YFA degree and Hal Hunt, far right, was a delegate to the convention along with Mr. Cromer, who also received a door prize of a bushel of Broadhead seed corn.

Attend YFA Convention

Two Young Farmers of America (YFA) members attended the Kentucky Young Farmer's Convention held at Lake Barkley Lodge February 23-24. Marvin Cromer and Hal Hunt were delegates to the convention.

The delegates toured Broadhead Bros. Farms, an operation consisting of some 8,000 acres in Trigg County with 6,000 acres of tobacco, 2,000 acres of corn and a livestock operation which includes an 800 crossbred beef cow herd.

At the present time, purebred herds of Maine-Anjou, being built. The cows are A-I bred to these breeds. All heifers and bulls are performance tested and culled on performance. Their goal is to have dairy crossbred brood cows that will wear a 750 pound title are wintered on pasture with supplemental stalked hay as needed.

Also on the tour was their swine operation which consists of three-year crosses of Hampshire, Yorkshire and Duroc is carried on. The operation is completely automated and is a farrowing to finish operation, marketing about 5,500 head of hogs annually.
