

People 65 and Over Can Sign Up Now For Medical Insurance Part of Medicare

People 65 and older who haven't already signed up for the medical insurance part of Medicare can enroll now through April 2 at any social security office, according to social security officials here.

Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses. It is the voluntary part of Medicare, funded by individual premiums and general revenues from the Federal Government. The basic premium is $5.80 a month through June 1973. It will be increased to $6.30 a month, starting July 1, 1973.

"You have 7 months to sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare the first time," a social security spokesman said. "You can apply in the 3 months before you are 65, the month you become 65, or the 3 months thereafter. But you must apply during the 3-month period before you're 65 to have protection beginning the month you become 65. Otherwise your protection will begin with a later month.

"After your first sign-up period ends," the spokesman said, "you can sign up only during a general enrollment period, the first 3 months of every year. If you delay signing up for more than a year, however, you pay a higher premium."

This year's general enrollment period has been extended through Monday, April 2, because March 31 falls on Saturday.

"Previously," the spokesman said, "you had to sign up in an enrollment period that began within 3 years after you became eligible for medical insurance or within 3 years after your protection stopped because you cancelled. The 3-year deadline was eliminated by the 1972 amendments to the social security law.

"If you cancel your medical insurance, you can re-enroll only once," he said.

Nine out of 10 people 65 and over are enrolled in the medical insurance part of Medicare. Last year the medical insurance program paid over $2 billion in benefits on behalf of more than 10 1/2 million people.

The medical insurance part of Medicare supplements the Medicare hospital insurance program which helps pay for hospital bills and certain post-hospital expenses.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

"OUR REPUTATION IS OUR RECOMMENDATION"

TO VOTERS OF ROCKCASTLE COUNTY

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people that have supported me in the past, when I was Deputy Sheriff and my present office as Jailor.

Now I humbly ask your support in the May Primary for the office of County Jailor.

Due to my duties as Jailor, I may not be able to see each of you personally, although, I will do my best. But, if I do miss asking your support, please be assured that I do desire it and will deeply appreciate it.

Also, I wish to state at this time, that I will not take part in any other candidate's race for a county office.

Your vote and support on May 29 will be greatly appreciated.

Install Central Air Conditioning Now- and Save Money.

Believe it! Contractors and dealers generally are more available in the winter so they can install your central air conditioning system quickly, and usually at a saving.

- INSULATION, so important for air conditioning, will help cut your heating costs, too.
- DUCTS, if your home has air ducts for heating, they may be adequate for your new central air system.
- TALK to your friends at your Rural Electric system. They'll help you with information about the right insulation and the places that need it. They can advise you on the size and type of air conditioning equipment that fits your home. Your Rural Electric system has other money saving and electric saving tips, too. Remember, electricity is too good to waste.

The electric way is clean.

ACROSS FROM VANCY'S RESTAURANT

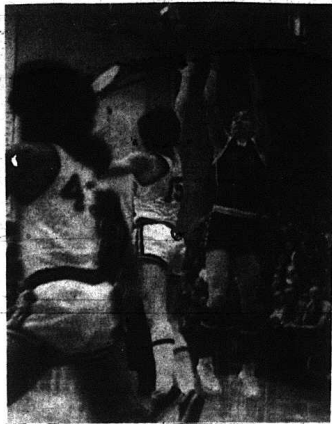

"OH, NO YOU DON'T!" - and he didn't - shoot that is. John Clontz, who seemed to be everywhere in last Thursday night's B-team encounter with Clay County, which preceded the regular game, didn't get this basket and the Rockets had to hope for the rebound and another chance. The B-Team suffered a 39 to 37 loss to the Tigers after losing big to them on their home court just a couple of weeks ago.

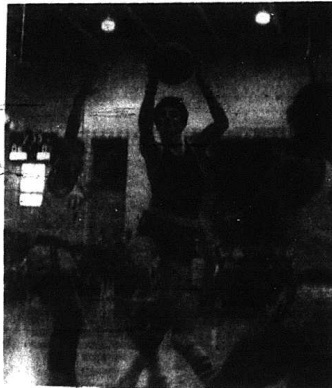

VANHOOK TRIES FOR TWO- Garland Vanhook, of whom big things are expected by basketball fans in the county, tries for two in the above photo. The B-Team Rockets kept the game close all the way but couldn't quite down the hustling Tigers, who will no doubt be worthy opponents themselves the next couple of years, from a look at their younger talent.

PREFERS OUTSIDE* THANK YOU- Dwight Griffin, who normally is quite deadly from about 15 to 20 feet, was a little off his game last Thursday night, but he is another young Rocket of whom the fans say nice things. Dale Whittaker, of whom we failed to get a picture, was high-point man for the B-Team. It seemed there for quite a while as though he couldn't miss. Some fans see him as another excellent ball handler for the Rockets in the coming years.

McCLURE TRIES FOR TWO- Senior Rocket forward Troy McClure did not have one of his better games of the season in the district tournament game against Clay County. He got twelve points for the game. Troy has been one of the outstanding Rockets all year long and will be sorely missed next year by the team.

CASH HEADS FOR THE GOAL- Clayton Cash, another senior RBHS player who ended his high-school career last Thursday night, tries to break into the lane for a quick two points. He made the basket, but the referees called him for walking and the goal didn't count. Cash, who only got two points the first half and ten for the game, had a little trouble shooting, probably since he was being guarded most of the game by one of the highest rated players in the 13th Region, David Stewart. As we understand it, Cash was also named to the all-tournament team.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank everyone who was so kind to us at the time of the death of our loved one, Stanley Payne. We would especially like to thank Dr. Orson Arvin who was so kind, Wray Funeral Home and Rev. Wayne Harding.

We are also deeply grateful to those who sent flowers, food, called helped with the grave or remembered us in any way.

May God bless each of you, Jean M. Payne & Family

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Pauline Stewart would like to thank each and everyone for their kindness during the illness and death of our loved one. Especially we thank Dr. Jack Lewis, the nurses, Bro. Lester Arnold, Bro. Eugene Bradley, the singers, the one who played the music, the pallbearers and those who brought food and flowers and those who dug the grave.

Mr. Sam Stewart and children

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Henry C. Martin wishes to take this opportunity to thank all our friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to us during our time of sorrow. There could never be enough words to express our sincere appreciation to all who helped in any way.

A special thanks to Bro. Homer McNew and Bro. Cecil Dalley for their comforting words, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Witt and family for their beautiful songs, Wray Funeral Home for their service, the pallbearers, those who helped with the grave, the ladies of the Three Links Community, McKee, Sand Gap and Mt. Vernon, who brought food, those who sent flowers and cards and to all who have stood by us with their prayers and sympathy.

May God bless you all as our prayer.

Fiscal Court asks for bids On Library bldg. materials

The Rockcastle County Fiscal Court met Tuesday with very few items of business on the agenda.

The major spark of conversation came on questions from Magistrate Cleith Thacker concerning the appropriation of Revenue Sharing Funds. Mr. Thacker began the discussion by asking the court about purchasing a mowing machine to be used by the county on right-of-ways. He was informed by County Judge Charles Carter that this question had been settled at February's meeting when the Magistrates agreed not to purchase a mowing machine but instead to spend $1,000 each on roadwork in their district. Mr. Thacker disclaimed any knowledge of the discussion except to say that he did remember the agreement about the $1,000 each but was not aware that the purchase of a mowing machine had been ruled out. This then led to the question of how the Revenue Sharing Funds were being appropriated and his question was answered by Judge Carter.

He said that the Revenue Sharing notice which was published in last week's Signal, Judge Carter told Mr. Thacker that these appropriations were the recommendation of the budget commission and, of course, subject to the approval of the Fiscal Court after they had been approved by Dave McGill of the State Dept. of Finance. He subsequently told Mr. Thacker to go ahead and make his motion to change the appropriations to include the advertisement for bids for a mowing machine but Mr. Thacker declined to do so, since the general feeling of the court seemed not favorable to the idea.

He did bring up one further question regarding the appropriations; however, which concerned the amount appropriated for the library. Mr. Thacker told the Court and Judge Carter that he had been approached by several people who did not like the site chosen for the new library and said that, "anyone can make a mistake and I think I did when I voted for the purchase of the site." The location in question is on U.S. 25 adjacent to the property of Edd Winstead and Dennis Halcomb in Owens Subdivision.

Judge Carter said that he had only had three or four complaints about the site and these were from people who had property they wished to sell for a site.

The discussion finally ended and the Fiscal Court then approved the advertisement for bids for building material for a 40 x 100 foot building. Judge Carter told the court that according to an architect's estimate, the building would cost in the neighborhood of $150,000 to build (which, according to Judge Carter, included the architect's fee of about $20,000; however, he had estimated that the work could be done without an architect and that the building materials and labor cost would be approximately $80,000. Judge Carter said the building would be built with some OEA labor and, of course, other help would have to be hired for the planned one-floor structure.

However, Mr. West of the State Department of Libraries, Div. of Building and Grounds, told this reporter Tuesday that, regardless of other aspects of the situation, there was a Kentucky Revised Statute which strictly prohibited the construction of any building planned for public use to be constructed without an architect hired.

Mr. West said that this statute applied whether or not the building was built with federal, state or local monies as long as it was planned for public access and assembly.

With the approval of advertising for bids for building material for the library, the court moved on to other business which involved a discussion on getting the multitudinous garbage dumping spots in the county cleaned up in the hopes that there would be no further helter-skelter dumping with the present system which went into effect March 1.

The Magistrates agreed, with the exception of J.R. "Boone" Cromer, to evenly divide the $4,605.00 which has been appropriated for environmental programs from Revenue Sharing Funds, between the district and each Magistrate to see that the dumps in his district were cleaned up. Magistrate Cromer's objection to the plan was that he felt some of the districts would require more time and money than others and that therefore the money should be divided on this basis rather than strictly evenly.

The Magistrates also agreed to use county employees to do the clean-up work.

RENFO BOAT DOCK TO OPEN THIS SATURDAY

The Renfro Valley Boat Dock and camping area will open for the season Saturday, March 10. The facility is now under the management of William R. Ramsey, a retired member of the U.S. Air Force.

Mr. Ramsey said that all prices would either remain the same or be decreased to those in previous seasons. In addition to fishing, there are 72 camp sites ready for use and boats are available for renting. The picnic area is also ready for use.

CLAY COUNTY VS. ROCKETS—The scene was set last Thursday night at Jackson County High School for the district clash between the Clay County Tigers and the Rockcastle Rockets. Things really looked bad for a while, as the Tigers jumped out to an early 7-0 lead when the Rockets tall ball didn't pay off. Things went from bad to worse for a while and the third quarter wound up with the Tigers on top by fourteen 43-29. However, the Rockets proved they could hold their own in a running game with Clay County and fought back valiantly, only to lose the game, on what a majority of fans thought were two questionable calls in the last seconds, by one-point, 55-54. Gary Gregory, the Tiger's cool little guard, broke a 54-54 tie with four seconds left in the game by sinking the first one of a bonus free-throw. The Rockets grabbed the rebound but it was too late as time ran out and the Tigers had gained their third successive win over the Rockets this year. In the above photo, Ronnie Brown, a senior guard for the Rockets, goes in for a "gimme" one of the few the Rockets got during the game as the Tigers guarded the inside lanes pretty thick. Brown was high point man for RCHS with 22 points and was named to the All-Tournament team.

Second important step to cooking better electrically... and economically... read the instructions!

USE IT WISELY

Your instruction manual will give you hints on conserving electricity while you cook (thus saving money, too!) how to use stored heat using the precise controls effectively and other important economies.

First move, of course, is installing your new electric range, then read that manual cover to cover. It tells you how to use your range efficiently for perfect results immediately. Even if you've cooked electrically before, remember—electric ranges are constantly being improved. Example: the self-cleaning oven that saves you hours and hours of time and tedious work. So—make it good cooking and good reading electrically.

Rockcastle Recollections

JOHN LAIR 1973

This week, we offer one of the stories of the James Boys in Rockcastle County -- not the one concerning their hidden loot, which we promised earlier but don't want to run until we are more certain of our facts.

The following story is very much as it will appear in the book, "Rockcastle Recollections," with possibly some additional facts that may come in in response to this article. If any of you readers can add anything to it, we will appreciate your getting in touch with us. For instance, what were the first names of the Dillon brothers involved? One signed his name W.R. What was the name of the other? Where was Thompson McDaniels buried? Very likely it was somewhere near where he was killed but it is unlikely that a marker was ever put up over his grave. Does anybody recall ever hearing anything about the location of his grave? In his account of the affair, Robertus Love wrote that the Dillon boys were armed with Civil War muskets. Ever hear anything said about what became of these muskets, or where they could now be found? Pioneer Museum would pay a good price for one or both of them. And now for the story.

In my boyhood, there was a big house, just south of Pine Hill, standing close to the old Livingston-Mt. Vernon road, known then as the old Lee Arnold place. It had formerly been the home of the Dillon family and it was said that two Dillon brothers had killed a member of the James Brothers gang there. Nobody seemed to know too much about it and I grew up in the belief that it was nothing more than a tradition, or "big tale."

In the early 1930's, while Musical Director for radio station WLS in Chicago, I undertook to get together for the station's Musical Collection all available material on old songs floating around the country. With a liberal expense account and no restriction on my time, I was able to cover a lot of territory and visit the scene of many of the songs under study.

My research on the old ballad of "Jesse James" took me to the state of Missouri, where I visited the house in which and asked a lot of questions. The investigation covered a trip to Kearney (pronounced Karney) Missouri, the home town of Frank and Jesse James. There, I met an elderly man named Maret who had been a life-long friend of their mother and step-father, as well as of the boys themselves. He had assisted in burying Jesse, first in the yard of the old homestead and later in the Kearney Cemetery when his mother had become afraid that his body might be taken up and put on exhibition over the country. Maret said that he had placed, for Mrs. James, the order for the first tombstone that marked his grave. He gave me, as souvenirs, a spoon from Mrs. James' old room and a fragment of the tomb which had blown off her arm and killed her small son when tossed by Pinkerton detectives through the window of the room in which they thought Frank and Jesse were sleeping. He also gave me her old camphor bottle with which, she used to say, she had "raised her family."

Mar^{et}, who said he had knifed in Rockcastle County, Kentucky, but did not know their names, introduced me to Jesse's designer, who lived near the cemetery in Kearney and was keeping what was left of her father's tombstone in her garage loft, most of it having been chipped away by souvenir hunters. At Maret's suggestion, I drove out to the old farm home in which the boys had been raised and which Robert James, Frank's son, was then running as a museum. It was from Robert James that I got most of the information I was looking for, which made a very interesting story. I spent the day with Robert and his wife and walked around the old farm as they pointed out the locale of the different events in the boyhood of Frank and Jesse, who were orphaned at an early age when their father joined the Gold Rush for California and died soon after arriving at the mines. It may not be generally known that the father of the James Boys was an ordained minister, having graduated from a ministerial school in Georgetown, Kentucky. Robert said that when it came time for their father to leave on his journey, Jes^e, then quite young, cried and held to him, begging him not to go.

When it came to the real object of my visit, the gathering of information on the musical side of the lives of the outlaw brothers, Robert was not able to be of much help, tho he did tell me the hymn Jesse particularly loved and which was sung at his baptizing when he joined the church -- also at its funeral. (Not many people know that Jesse was once a Sunday School teacher).

I asked Robert James what the family thought about the many books that had been written about Frank and Jesse and if there was any truth in any of them. He said that a newspaper man named Robertus Love had written the only account which they considered reliable, having boarded in the James home for many months while writing his book "The Rise and Fall of Jesse James." Robert said that it had the help and full approval of his father, Frank, and his grandmother, as well as Jesse's son and daughter. I was finally able to get a copy of this book, which has now long sold out of print, and in going through it I found a detailed account of the Pine Hill story.

It seems that following the robbery of a bank in Huntington, West Virginia in 1875, the four men who committed the robbery followed an escape route that headed them toward Rockcastle County. Following an announcement of this in the newspapers, the two Dillon boys figured they would come along the road which ran in front of their house so they armed themselves and set up a twenty-four hour watch for the fugitives.

On the night of September fifteenth, their patience was rewarded when they saw four men coming along the road in the moonlight. Two of them were walking directly toward where the boys were concealed and after an exchange of several shots all four got away. The brothers were satisfied, however, that they had hit two of the men and early next morning went out to look for them. They found one in a dying condition hidden in a nearby cornfield, carried him into the house and sent for the doctor, but all to no avail as he soon died. After he had been placed in his coffin, three strange men came to the Dillon home and demanded that the coffin be opened. None of the men were at home (naturally) so the women in the house complied with this request. They reported that the big man of the three had taken the coffin with tears rolling down his cheeks stood and looked at the corpse for some time and when he left took with him the watch the man was wearing. He asked where the man who had shot him might be found, but the women denied all knowledge of his identity or whereabouts. The three men then disappeared and later the people in the neighborhood buried the victim, then for many days went armed in expectation of a retaliatory raid by his friends.

The slain man was Thompson McDaniels and was identified by the cashier of the Huntington bank as a member of the help party. His brother, Bud McDaniels, had been killed not long before, following the robbery of another bank. The four men involved in the Huntington robbery were Frank

It Will Pay You Big $'s To Renovate in 1973

Never in the history of agriculture in Kentucky has there been a greater need and opportunity to improve pastures and hay fields and really get paid well for your efforts, then now. With the open winter to date and the excellent grazing season that has just been experienced, most Kentuckians have been able to leave animals out for longer than normal. And never have we had more cattle to eat the feed we produce. Thus pastures have been grazed closer than they have been at this time in the past decade.

Conventional renovation by liming and fertilizing, mechanical tillage, smoothing, and seeding to legumes in these fields is going to be easier in the spring of 1973 than in past years in many areas. In other areas, labor and equipment simply are not available. Also, time will be short to renovate as completely as most farmers would like. Because of close grazing, especially of orchardgrass, timothy and bluegrass and in a lot of cases fescue, many farmers can seed the fields to legumes following fertilizing and liming and tread the seed into the soil with animals. When seeding this way, be sure the areas are tramped heavily before and after seeding. In most cases, the stocking rate should be 10 to 20 animals per acre for at least 7 to 10 days before and after seeding. This will no doubt call for electric temporary fencing, but most farmers need these anyway for best follow-up grazing management.

A seeding of red clover and ladino will work best in renovation by tramping. In conventional renovation, 6 to 9 pounds of certified Kenland red clover seed and 1 to 2 pounds of ladino clover seed should be used per acre. When treading by animals, the seeding rate should be increased 25 to 50 percent. Make these seedings by March 20 for best results.

March is the month to begin outdoor activities. This includes general clean-up of debris that has accumulated during the winter months. Remove sticks, trash and leaves that have fallen or blown on the lawn. You will want to use care in the clean-up so that the new growth of grass is not damaged. It is best to pick up sticks, rocks and trash by hand. Leaves can be removed by sweeping the lawn gently with a broom type rake.

A good looking lawn is smooth. If you have low places they should be filled with good soil and seeded. If there are mounds or bumps, these will need smoothing and reseeded or the use of sod.

FRUITS

Grape vines should be pruned in late February or early March after severe cold weather is past. Don't prune when the wood is frozen because frozen canes are brittle and the vines may be damaged. In pruning remember that this year's grapes will be bore on wood that grew last year.

Apple trees and peach trees should also be pruned now but do not overdo it.

Vegetables and Gardens

Homer gardens are invaluable in many ways. Gardening provides the family with a food supply that is daily fresh and rich in the many vitamins essential for good health. Other benefits include good exercise and relieving of the many tensions in modern day living. I'm sure you can think of other benefits in gardening.

You can begin your garden program this month by planting some of the cold crops starting March 15. These vegetables include cabbage, cauliflower, onions and lettuce transplants. For home grown transplants, start indoors by sowing tomato, pepper and eggplant seeds.

From March 20-30, set in the garden broccoli, brussels sprouts and kale transplants. Plant rhubarb and asparagus in a permanent spot in the garden. Plant Irish potatoes, radishes, turnips, peas, mustard and parsley seeds.

The dependent parents of a deceased worker who was covered under social security can get monthly social security survivors benefits if they are 62 or older.

LAFAVERS EYES THE GOAL- Larry LaFavers, the Rockets big senior center, played a good game against the Tigers. Although he only scored 8 points, he rebounded well and went high on all the tip-offs to get the Rockets their fair share of them. One of the problems the Rockets suffered from throughout the game was Clay County's defense which kept alert and didn't permit the Rockets to get the ball inside to LaFavers, where he practically was unstoppable. LaFavers, along with Brown and Cash, were the three Rockets who made the all-tournament team.

$2000 PER ACRE BARRIER BROKEN BY PICKLE GROWERS Prices Increased On Pickles For 1973

More pickle growers in Kentuckiana earned over $2000 per acre and $1000 per acre in 1972 than in any year before, with the Champion Grower on one acre earning $2031.64 while the Champion Grower on 1/2 acre earned $1110.47. This record was made even though the 1972 growing season, with its cold weather followed by more than usual rainfall, was not very good for a successful vegetable growing season in general.

Pickle growing should be even more profitable in 1973 due to a price increase in several grades to be paid to the farmer. Another increase in pickle earnings will come from a higher percentage of hybrids to be included in the pickle seed blend for 1973. It's hard to tell just how much more money this will make for the pickle grower, but there will be approximately 25% more hybrids in the seed blend.

The University of Kentucky Extension Service lists the following advantages to raising pickles:

- .. Guaranteed Market
- .. High Dollar Earnings
- .. Guaranteed Prices
- .. Quick Cash Crop (12 to 13 weeks from planting to end of harvest).
Planting is normally completed between the 1st and 10th of May. Picking starts around July 1st, and normally ends after the first week in August.
- .. Good Family Project
- .. Most labor takes place at a date which doesn't interfere with other crops such as corn and tobacco.
- .. Grower is paid at time of delivery to the receiving station.
- .. No special machinery or equipment is required.
- .. Out of pocket expense is small.
- .. Income is received when other crops are not ready for sale.
- .. Cucumbers are easy to grow.
- .. You don't have to be a big farmer to get a contract.
- .. Acreage is not government controlled.

All people in Rockcastle County who have idle land, or know someone who has land, are invited to find out more about the pickle program by contacting:

REPORTS TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY

I am by nature an optimist. I believe that men of good will, working together and utilizing available resources, can solve almost any problem. This country's history - from the voyage of Columbus to the moon landing - has been testimony of what men can accomplish through ingenuity and perseverance.

That brings me to two vital segments of Kentucky's economy, tobacco and coal. Both of these products are extremely important to the Commonwealth's economic well-being, and both are under serious attack because of alleged harmful effects on health and the environment.

I would be the first to say these allegations deserve serious consideration. But I would also be among the first to contend that with proper funding and research we can eliminate possible detrimental effects of these two products.

With respect to tobacco, it would be foolish to take drastic action against this crop unless its alleged detrimental effects can be proven conclusively, and unless a thorough research program has been conducted on solutions to any harmful effects. You would have trouble convincing me that a nation that can put a man on the moon and bring him back cannot eliminate possible detrimental effects of tobacco.

Kentucky is conducting just such a research program at the University of Kentucky, where some $5.5 million will be spent on tobacco research over a two-year period. The federal government needs to spend much more money in this area. In fact, I think the government has an obligation to do so.

The same applies to coal. With the coming energy crisis, our country will be forced to utilize the 500-year supply of coal that is still untapped. But in using the coal, we must avoid harming the land and the environment.

I want to see more federal money put into coal gasification and other types of coal research, so we can eliminate the pollution from coal burning.

Admittedly, we have problems with tobacco and coal. But rather than acquiescing to those problems, we must overcome them. And I am confident that it can be done, if we as a nation but have the will.

The best buys in protein of the meat and meat alternates priced were dry beans and peanut butter.

On Food Prices-Looking Back
What were the best buys? Hamburger, beef liver, chicken, turkey and some kinds of fish rank in that order as the best buys at the meat counter.

Salmonellosis: 7 Precautions-
It is estimated that each year over 2 million people in the United States - or one person out of 100 - suffer from salmonellosis.

Most expensive selections were and continue to be as one would expect: loin steaks and chops of beef, pork, lamb and veal.

Though often mistaken for a 24-hour virus because of similar symptoms-headache, fever, stomach cramps, diarrhea and vomiting-salmonellosis is an infection of the stomach and intestines that is caused by salmonella germs which are sometimes present in such foods as fresh poultry, meat and fish.

Food shoppers trying to replace meats with meat alternates can use more dry beans and peas, peanut butter, eggs and cheeses. These foods are suitable replacements for meat because they also provide protein, B Vitamins and minerals for which meat, poultry and fish are valued nutritionally.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), salmonellosis can also be transmitted from pets, such as turtles, to humans. In other words, your children can catch the virus by playing with someone's pet turtle.

The disease generally lasts from one to five days. Although it usually is not fatal, it can be dangerous to the very young, the very old and people already weakened by illness.

To curb the possible spread of salmonella germs at home, USDA recommends the following precautions.

Assume that some uncooked poultry meat and seafood may contain salmonella germs. Slice thorough cooking kills these germs, cook foods in the home at 155 degrees (F). Obviously, avoid eating raw fish, meat, poultry or eggs.

Although cooking kills salmonella germs, using the same platters and utensils before and after cooking can recontaminate the food with salmonella.

To safeguard against "cross contamination," also wash hands, kitchen counter space, utensils, dishes and cutting boards after contact with raw meat. Concerning cutting boards, it is recommended that one board be used only for preparing meat and another be used for cutting vegetables, cheese and other foods.

When defrosting meat in the refrigerator, keep it away from all other food and preferably in the meat keeper. Blood from raw poultry and meat can be contaminated with salmonella and can, in turn, contaminate any foods with which it comes in contact.

After cooking, do not allow meat or poultry to stand a long time at room temperature. Bacteria grow well under these conditions and can recontaminate the food.

Be on guard for the symptoms of salmonella infection in pets. If a pet is having stomach problems, keep its feeding dishes, toys, bedding and other similar items away from sources in contact with the family's food, such as the kitchen sink, drain board and food service utensils. Hands should always be washed after handling a sick pet.

Keep children away from certain pets-turtles, baby chicks and ducklings-that health authorities recognize as notorious salmonella carriers.

To the "Meat of the Matter" ... Golden Glazed Pork Loin with Apricot Mushroom Sauce

The "meat of the matter" of any menu is the main dish - meat of the meat. In this nation of beef lovers, flavorful pork is often overlooked when planning the meaty entree. And what an oversight! In the palate when pork is omitted from your dinner tables, the meat of the matter is missing. For an especially delicious entree, serve Golden Glazed Pork Loin with Apricot Mushroom Sauce. The secret to its golden brown glaze and flavorful sauce is Condensed Golden Mushroom Soup.

GOLDEN GLAZED PORK LOIN WITH APRICOT MUSHROOM SAUCE

4-pound loin of pork (rib-side) 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) Condensed Golden Mushroom Soup (one 8-ounce) unpeeled apricot halves, drained and chopped
2 tablespoons honey 1/2 cup water
1/4 cup sliced green pepper 1/2 teaspoon ground mace

In roasting pan, roast meat fat-side up at 325° F. for about 3 hours (40 to 45 minutes per pound or 170° F. on meat thermometer). Meanwhile, prepare glaze by combining 1/4 cup soup and honey. Brush meat frequently with glaze during last 30 minutes of roasting time. Remove meat from pan, spoon off excess fat, saving drippings. To make sauce: In saucepan, cook green pepper and onion in butter until tender. Add remaining soup, apricot halves, water, and mace. On top of range, in roasting pan, blend soup mixture into drippings. Heat, stirring to loosen browned bits. Serve with roast. Makes 8 servings, about 2 cups sauce.
