YOU AND THE DRAFT

Anonymous letters listing individuals suspected of violations of the draft law generally prove erroneous upon thorough investigation. When addresses are provided, however, we refer the communication to the draft board having jurisdiction as a matter of policy. A recent case in point was a letter signed "Patriotic Citizen." The writer furnished a list of five names that he "knew had not registered for the draft."

The listing was for an area in which registration had not kept pace with population gains, voter registration and statistics gathered from other reliable sources. Declining registration in this particular area was of serious concern and we were trying to establish valid reasons why young men were not registering for the draft.

We referred the list to the draft board's executive secretary for investigation. Within a short time, she informed us that three names on the list were properly registered with her board. The other two persons whom we shall identify as Danny and Randy, were not registered. The secretary told us that she had written to Danny and Randy to ascertain whether they had registered with another draft board.

We are told Danny came to the local board and registered. However, Randy ignored his letter and two subsequent follow-up letters.

We suggested that the board write a fourth letter, emphasizing that if he did not present himself for registration within 15 days, the board would have no other alternative than to refer his name to the district attorney as an individual suspected of failing to register.

Within a week following this suggestion, Randy made a belated appearance at the draft board for registration. He was required to make a statement giving the reasons for negligence in registering promptly. This statement now has been forwarded to our regional counsel for advice as to whether further legal action should be taken at this time.

We relate this case with a two-fold purpose. First, to let all young men know that even though there are not any draft calls at the present time, the draft registration process continues. Second, to let them know that our office and all draft boards in this state are following-up to determine whether young men are registering on a timely basis. When this is not the case, boards request legal assistance from the district attorney in getting such individuals on the rolls.

Local fishermen are now finding that they don't have to travel far to find some fine fishing. In the above photo, David Ramsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ramsey, displays a large mouth bass caught Sunday from Lake Linnville. The bass weighed five pounds. Also, last week, Freddie Nee, caught a five pound bass from the lake. In the picture to the right, "Would You Believe," David is shown returning the bass to the lake—so, fishermen you know he's there.

Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

Predators, especially hawks, appear to be among the most misunderstood of wildlife. Despite efforts to educate the public in values of such predators, reports of hawk-killing continue to plague law enforcement and other personnel of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Such a report prompted the following editorial in the March issue of Happy Hunting Ground magazine:

In mid-January 17 red-tailed hawks were illegally shot, apparently with a high-powered rifle, and strung on baling wire over Ky. 210 in Taylor County. At this writing, no arrests have been made. However, intensive investigations by Fish and Wildlife law enforcement personnel and the State Police with cooperation from federal agents, has produced several promising leads. These, hopefully, will result in arrest in the near future, perhaps by the time this is read.

"Sneak killing hawks is now against federal as well as state laws, penalties for conviction could be considerable—a fine of up to $500 and jail sentence of up to six months for each charge in federal court, or state fines of $15 to $100.

New coverage of the slaughter, particularly in the Louisville-Courier Journal, has been thorough and has been responsible in large part, we think for the fact that more than $1,300 in reward money has been raised or pledged.

It is encouraging to us that the news media consider the killing of 17 predatory birds "front-page" news and that readers, listeners and viewers of the news have responded in such a practical manner.

We are also heartened by the fact that a great portion of the reward money was offered by sportsmen (the Taylor County Sportsmen Club offered $250 and is coordinating the reward fund.) This, we think, is but one of many indications of concern by sportsmen for non-game species.

At the same time a feeling of disappointment, and perhaps failure, pervades the offices of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and we think the feeling is, or should be, shared by all sportsmen, sportsmen's groups, other governmental agencies and ecology-oriented organizations.

Perhaps we have done less than we should have, less than we could have, in our educational programs.

Perhaps the kind of person who would commit such a contemptible act is beyond our reach. But if we'd done more in Taylor County, for instance, to teach the value of all wild things, it's just possible that the person or persons who have evidence to give would be more eager to cooperate.

Rockcastle Recollections...

© JOHN LAIR 1973

In 1840, the following Revolutionary War veterans were still living in Rockcastle County:

NICHOLAS HOOK, the oldest living at that time was 100. He died in 1841 and his widow, Sally Hook, continued to draw his pension until her death. Nicholas and Sally Sarah Hook moved to Rockcastle County from Washington County January 23, 1819, settling on or near what was known as the Old Hook Place, now owned by Oliver Dowell. It was here that a grandson of his later built and operated the first horse mill in Rockcastle County.

GEORGE HARLOE, next oldest, at 89. We have no information on him.

WILLIAM ABNEY was 86. He has many descendants living in Rockcastle and it is hoped that some of them will furnish us information on him for our county history.

JACOB STEPHENS, 84. No information on him.

GEORGE SIGMON, 83. He was the head of a well-known Rockcastle family identified with Sigmon Cave, near Green Hill and the old Sigmon homestead near Roundstone Creek on old 25. I have the old grandfather's clock he once owned. We will expect some of his descendants to furnish information on him and on the Sigmon family.

REUBEN C. PEW was 81 years old when this list was made in 1840. He enlisted in New Jersey in 1778, served 3 years and in 1781 enlisted in the Virginia Militia. He was married in Rowan County, N.C., in 1785 and in 1803 moved with his family to Rockcastle, settling on Skeggs Creek. He applied for his pension in the Circuit Court of Rockcastle County. He died here in 1849 and his widow, Fanny Smith Pew, applied for his pension. A son, Reuben Parke Pew, was drafted at Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, in the War of 1812. His second wife, Nancy Yeater, was born in Rockcastle County in 1796. A descendant of Reuben C. Pew, Mrs. B.B. Waterman, 3406 N.E. 49th Terr., Kansas City, Mo., 64119 is attempting to find his grave, which may be in the family cemetery of the farm he then owned on Skeggs Creek.

WILLIAM SWEENEY was 80 years old in 1840 and living in Rockcastle County at the time. No information on him. Apparently, he had come to Rockcastle after 1830 as the census for that year does not list him.

MOSES FARRIS was 78 and was living here when the 1810 Census was taken as were Hesehial and John Farris, all three listed as heads of families. Prior to that time, several pioneers of the name had been active in Indian affairs in both Lincoln County and what was later to become Rockcastle and Laurel Counties.

ELIJAH DENNY, 77, was in this county in 1830, but where he came from is unknown. The Denny in this area are probably descendants of his and should be able to furnish the required information. He died in Rockcastle at the age of 116. He fought in the Battle of Stony Point, among other historic engagements. Two years after his death in 1867, the last survivor of the Revolutionary Army died at the age of 169.

WILLIAM LAWRENCE was 76 years old in 1840. There were two lines of Lawrence in Rockcastle. Those settling in the Level Green section are represented by Mrs. Rebecca Adams, whose father was Jack Lawrence, for many years an agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company in this county. The other line was represented in Rockcastle by my great grandmother, Charity Lawrence French, and her sister, Rebecca Lawrence Adams, wife of Devil Bill Adams. They were living in Rockcastle in 1840 and it is possible that their father, whose name was William Lawrence, might have been living with one of them at that time and might have been the veteran in question. Later research will be made on this.

FRANCIS RAMSEY, also 76, was born in Virginia and at the age of fifteen enlisted as drummer in the War of Independence. In May, 1788, he was married to Maria, daughter of Col. Richard Allen of Virginia. The exact time of their coming to Rockcastle is not known but his name appears in the 1810 Census. He died in 1842 and his wife in 1850. The exact location of their graves is not known but they are likely buried in the Renoir Valley Cemetery in unmarked graves since many of their relatives are interred there. His brother, Thomas, who was also a Revolutionary veteran, lived and died in Garrard County.

HUMPHRY BATES, youngest of the living veterans in 1840, was listed in Gollis history as living in Rockcastle at that time. If so, he must have come here after 1830, as his name does not appear on any of the Census reports prior to 1840.

This is by no means the complete list of Revolutionary soldiers who settled in Rockcastle County, but only those living here in 1840. Many had died here before that date and many others, who were here before the county was formed, were listed in Lincoln and Madison Counties in areas which were later taken to form Rockcastle.

How many readers have old land grants awarded to an ancestor in the early days? A great many were given to early settlers, some of them by Virginia before Kentucky achieved statehood, many by the earlier land office set up by Kentucky, many for considerable acreage, and very many more smaller plats under a later Kentucky Homestead Law. A grant made in 1802 to George Montgomery of Virginia, embracing Great Saltpetre Cave is labeled Kentucky Land Office Warranty No. 2. This was rather confusing as I felt sure a great many others had been granted prior to 1802. When I consulted Col. China of the State Historical Society in Frankfort, I learned that this represented a certain division rather than a numerical priority. I would like to hear from anyone having one of these old land grant documents in their possession. To find out more on early deeds to some land around Pine Hill, I found records of large grants to General William Smith and John Pearl going back into the early 1800's when land was selling for twenty-five cents an acre. I am presently investigating a 1,000 acre grant to William or Alexander Henderson made in 1786 and including the land on which Mt. Vernon was later located. I am sure that among the old family papers in many homes in Rockcastle are old land grants signed by early Kentucky governors maybe even Patrick Henry, governor of Virginia in the days when Kentucky was only a county of the Old Dominion.

Getting back to Revolutionary War veterans, I am sure the local DAR would like to know the location of the graves of any of these old soldiers in order to have them marked by the U.S. Government with the official bronze marker provided free for the purpose. We would also like to know their last resting place to honor them in our county history.

Many men from Rockcastle County saw active service in the War of 1812. At present, I can recall only the names of General William Smith, Col. William Fish, Thomas Fish, Jr., William (Devil Bill) Adams and Reuben Parke Pew. If you had an ancestor in the War of 1812 who enlisted from Rockcastle County or lived here after being mustered out of service, you can do him a great honor and us a great favor by telling us about him. The same is true of the War with Mexico. Ofhand, I can mention only two Rockcastle boys who saw service in this war—Peter James Bailey, who was killed in the Alamo and Alenworth Adams who escaped only to be captured later by the Mexicans and subjected to pretty rough treatment. In the Kentucky Historical Society REGISTER, January, 1973, Dr. Hambleton Tapp, in his interesting article "Kentuckians at the Alamo" lists Peter James Bailey as having gone to Texas from Logan County. He was, however, living with his parents in Renoir Valley until shortly before 1820.

Dr. Tapp lists sixteen of those who perished in the Alamo as having Kentucky backgrounds including the heroic James Berwick, said to have been born in Logan County, Kentucky, in 1796. Since Logan County court records show that his parents were living there at that time, the proof seems conclusive.

Total Electric Living - The Safest, Cleanest Way to Comfort

When you plan to remodel, or build a new home be sure it's built for total electric living.

- WIRING. Make sure the wiring is adequate for the later addition of major or minor appliances. Consult an expert.

- INSULATION. Proper insulation saves you money when heating or air conditioning your home.

- THERMOSTAT. Make sure yours is operating efficiently. You may be wasting electricity.

- SIZE. A heating or cooling unit wastes electricity and money if it's too large. One that's too small won't do the job. Choose the right size for your home.

Electricity is too important to waste. Contact your Rural Electric system for money saving, electric efficiency hints.

The electric way is clean.

the entire amount goes into the general and school funds and may be used for any purpose that the county government may select. No part of the tax, Osborn noted, is earmarked for direct benefit to the railroad.
The L & N has been a tax-paying "citizen" of Kentucky since March 4, 1850, when it was chartered as a Louisville corporation to build a railroad from that city to Nashville, Tennessee.

little time. What can we do to show our appreciation for the benefits of being an American, our gratitude to our ancestors, our pride in this country and our hopes for the future? What can we in Kentucky do?
Since this great nation was founded upon the belief that all mankind should be allowed to worship God as they see fit, I feel it would be appropriate for all churches to hold a special service in honor of our country's birthday.
Each city or county should have a committee to plan special celebrations. This committee, or civic organizations, could invite a Kentucky Congressman or representative to speak to the citizens about their responsibilities and privileges as Americans and to give them a deeper understanding of our government.
There is little need to mention all the numerous banquets and parades that will hail America's 200th year.
If a drama group could, effectively, re-enact the signing of the Declaration of Independence, we would be inspired to the point of feeling that we had lived a day in history.
On the national level, all this and more will be taking place on a larger scale. On this national level, to show our hopes for peaceful relationships in the future, we could send a "peace message" of 200 words to all countries.
All these things are important but the greatest aspect of our bicentennial year will be the way we, as Americans, regard our home in our hearts.
Let's start off toward our 300th birthday on the right foot; with righteousness, integrity, generosity, honesty and thoughtfulness.
Look Up America! Face a bright new dawn. Let each of us march to our own drummer, but go forward together - proudly, in peace.

Fellow Rockcastle Countians

May 29th of this year is a very important date for you to remember. On this date, we Republicans will make our party's choice for County Judge for the next four years.
As you know, this is ALWAYS an important decision, but our County Judge will do much toward determining our county's future during the next term. I say this because:

Revenue Sharing means that YOUR TAX MONEY is coming back to the county to be spent. I believe that Rockcastle County's Judge should seek the guidance of the people in deciding how and where this money should be used. It appears that future federal assistance will be very limited except for that which is returned to us by revenue sharing; therefore, we must make the decision here as to what will be spent on roads, agriculture, factories, education, libraries, etc.

It is my firm belief that you, THE PEOPLE, deserve the right of a voice in these matters. When elected, I will use every means possible to see that you have this.

Monticello Mfg. Executives Meet With Local Leaders

Executives of the Monticello Manufacturing Company met with Rockcastle County businessmen and civic leaders last Friday to discuss the company's plans to possibly locate a sewing factory here.

At the meeting were Mrs. Constance Feinstein, Chairman of the Board; Lyle Denney, Vice-President in charge of Production; Noah Zimman, President; and Irv Sporn, Vice-President.

Mr. Zimman told the group that his company was definitely going to locate another factory somewhere in this area and that the sites had been narrowed to two-or-three, of which Rockcastle County was one.

Mr. Zimman stressed that the final selection would be made on the basis of labor supply, sites available, and how much cooperation the company can get from the community toward getting the building up.

It was made clear during the meeting that the community would have to furnish to the company a site and water and electricity. And, the water would have to be in an eight-inch line in order for the company's sprinkler system, which they are required to have for insurance purposes, to be used.

Mr. Zimman also said that once the site was selected, the company would immediately begin a partial operation in a temporary location and would employ 50 to 80 women after about a year. Mr. Zimman said his company would build a factory with a full operation, if things went well. The full operation, reportedly, would employ around 200 people, mostly women.

For the temporary site, Mr. Zimman said the building would need to have about 5,000 square feet with water and electricity available; but, the water line would not have to be eight inches. The permanent site would have to have at least eight acres in order to accommodate a 20,000 square foot building, plus parking and room for possible expansion.

Several sites were mentioned at the meeting, including one of 22 acres on U.S. 25 adjacent to the site recently purchased for the new library. The other one, which is located in Brodhead, has the drawback of not having an eight-inch line available to it; but, several men from Brodhead at the meeting said they thought the problem could be solved by possibly running two six-inch lines to the site from different sources. Of course, the site in Mt. Vernon does not have an eight-inch line to it, either, and if chosen, it would be necessary for someone, the City Council, private citizens or other sources, to finance the laying of an eight-inch line to the site.

Mr. Denney told this reporter Monday that the labor survey results were fairly good but that the site was not available at this time since the information obtained from the interviews was being fed into a computer for analyzing.

Junior Pro basketball is advocated by many outstanding coaches, such as former UK basketball coach Adolph Rupp, UK Coach Joe B. Hall, UCLA Coach John Wooden and many others. "Our purpose in participating in this tournament is to evaluate and incorporate elements of Junior Pro basketball into our own feeder system," Livingston Coach Preston Parrett said.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

There are several schools of thought on just what kind of individual should be Kentucky's Public Safety Commissioner.

That's why the appointment the other day of Ron Johnson, heretofore known to us as one of Governor Ford's administration aides, came as such a surprise.

The elements of administrative experience or some law enforcement background keep cropping up in conversations we've had with Frankfort folks about Johnson's appointment. Unless his 15 months of dealing with the Department of Public Safety in behalf of the governor qualifies him with administrative savvy, Johnson's credentials would seem to have gaps in them.

But wait. Other administration spokesmen tell me that Ted Bassett, who as a civilian, they say, made one of the state's best State Police directors ever, had no law enforcement background. He was simply an administrative whiz. I'm informed.

And besides, they continue, Johnson's real value at this particular time is his awareness of Governor Ford's desires for reorganizing the various agencies in Public Safety. They say it's something Johnson's been close to for a long time and that he was a natural to take over the department.

Why the 15-month wait before replacing Republican holdover and long-time professional policeman William Newman? I'm told it was a combination of being pretty well satisfied with Newman . . . not being in any hurry to replace him . . . and looking around for the best man to replace him with.

There are Ford administration critics who agree with his appointment of a civilian to head up Public Safety. Under no circumstances says one, should a state policeman be put in charge of the entire department.

Hold on there. A stalwart in the administration of former governor Louie Nunn says that by naming Newman as Public Safety Commissioner, they tried to get the department out of politics and keep it out of politics.

Johnson, they say, has the brand of a politician. His appointment will bring pressure on the Governor's office to fix tickets . . . to have troopers transferred . . .

"The poor guy's in for a lot of problems," says Nunn's former press secretary Larry Van Hoose. "He's a politician and he's going to get a lot of pressure. He's going to have a hard time explaining that the department is not political."

To that, Johnson retorts that Van Hoose shouldn't judge future performances in the Public Safety field by his own experiences . . . and he says emphatically that tickets won't be fixed and personnel won't be switched for political reasons.

Meantime, if it matters what the attitude toward all of this by the 14 hundred employees of the Public Safety Department? *****

News Credibility
Gov. Ford can't be blamed in the future if he casts a dubious eye at news reports that is out-of-state versions.

Seems a cub reporter on the Greenville, S.C. Piedmont got his information mixed up. Ford was scheduled to give an address there March 5, but two days earlier the newspaper reported the meeting was moved to Charleston, set back two weeks and Ford had been dropped as speaker.

Funny, but none of this was true and the governor spoke as scheduled. By the way, his topic was "Confidence in Government."

Famous Sons — The odds against two state commissioners coming from the same town of 1,000 in Kentucky are . . . pretty high.

But Burgin in Mercer County can claim Secretary of the Cabinet Donald Bradshaw and Human Resources Cabinet Secretary Laurel Trug.

"All the cabinet secretaries in state government claim Burgin as their hometown." True quipped.

Well, anyway, until Phase Three of state reorganization.

by perlina m. anderkin

Just didn't have time to mention it last week, but hope you noticed it any way. Of course, I'm speaking of our new typesetting machine. If you didn't notice the difference in the type-tell me and I'll ship the machine back to them, because, for what it cost, anyone should be able to tell the difference. Seriously, it's a work of art. It is actually a mini-computer and anyone who had anything to do with making up a newspaper in the days of hand-set type will certainly appreciate how far the printing industry has come in the last ten years.

We love it and are planning on installing a darkroom in the next few months so we hope to keep improving the quality of the paper for you, our readers....

I didn't realize what a controversy I would stir when I captioned a front-page picture of Mrs. Ann Mullins as the first woman rural carrier in the county. Actually, I was lucky, I was right by accident but my readers disagreed. Several called me from out in the county, to tell me of Mrs. Myrtle Mullins, who carried the mail many years ago on what is now Route 3 and there were other ladies mentioned. But, what our readers didn't know, and neither, truthfully, is that the ladies were "contract" carriers as differentiated from "rural" carriers. What I think this means is that they bid their route in at an amount for which they would do the job; whereby, Mrs. Mullins was the first lady carrier hired by the post office department the same as men carriers have been hired for the past several years.

Be that as it may, we apologize for the hurt feelings of relatives of former lady "contract" mail carriers but, it was a technical difference and I am only glad that I, by chance, called Mrs. Mullins a rural carrier and not just plain mail carrier....

You know, you can see the saddest faces anywhere these days at the meat counters of our grocery stores, and mine is usually one of the saddest. I have figured out more ways recently to cook hamburger than I ever thought possible. But, even though I could probably take a mortgage on all my assets and come up with enough to buy beef occasionally for my family, I refuse. I think it's outrageous to pay over a dollar a pound for chuck roast and I won't pay it. 89c a pound for hamburger is ridiculous but without it and balogna, my family would become strictly vegetarians. There are several meat boycotts, not only of beef but pork as well, in progress throughout the country and I for one am heavily in favor of them. The law of supply and demand would finally catch up with "them" whoever they are, and the price of meat would surely come down if the demand were not great.

I could write my Congressman but if his attitude weren't anymore sympathetic than the President's I wouldn't be any better off. The President recently made the remark that the people could eat fish and poultry instead of beef, or something very close to that. He should remember Marie Antoinette's remark about "Let them eat cake," which she made shortly before her head rolled....

The Mt. Vernon Woman's Club recently sponsored an essay contest with Dana Lynn Craig of Roundstone School winning first prize of $5 in the elementary school division and Jill Stevens, also of Roundstone, winning second prize of $3 in the same division.

Our citizens of America take many of the liberties our country provides us for granted. Many of the privileges and blessings that are not blessings of citizens of other countries. Our citizens need to be made more aware of these differences and made to appreciate these things more. What our nation needs is a revival. This revival should have the Kentucky motto as a theme—"United We Stand, Divided We Fall."
This revival should involve all newsmen, 24-hour-for-one week, preceding the Fourth of July, there should be a thirty to ninety minute program on all television channels and all radio stations. These programs should be centered around patriotism. There could be speakers who are national heroes such as

Our nation needs to be made to realize the freedom and the blessings which we enjoy that other countries do not. We need to be aware of each others needs and be considerate and thoughtful - no matter what color, race or creed.
