Rockcastle Recollections

© John Lazar

It is a matter of some concern that requests for Civil War stories for this column, and later the book, have not brought in more family accounts. It seems quite certain that most Rockcastle families who were living here during the war period had interesting accounts of experiences that must have been handed down through succeeding generations to present descendants and we had hoped to gather a good number of them for our country history.

As previously mentioned, Mt. Vernon was not the scene of any serious conflict between the opposing armies but did see some action involved in the passing through of both Federal and Confederate troops. Before his death, at an advanced age, Uncle Bill Arnold, who saw considerable service in the transportation department of the Union Army, recounted many of his experiences, which Ralph Griffin wrote down and preserved in scrapbooks which are now available to me.

Uncle Bill enlisted in the cavalry when he was only fourteen years old and was later transferred to Transport Supply. He drove a four-mule supply wagon between Camp Nelson and Knoxville, passing through Mt. Vernon on his way to and from Cumberland Gap. His father, first name not known, participated in the Battle of Wildcat Mountain but Bill, himself, arrived on the scene after the battle was over. The same thing happened at the Battle of Gettysburg, that bloody engagement having been concluded before Bill got there.

Probably the most serious engagement in which he was involved occurred when a small party of transport personnel was camped, with their wagons loaded with supplies, near Briar Creek, Georgia, when they were fired upon by a detachment of Rebel soldiers and a fierce hand-to-hand battle ensued. During this engagement he saw Bill McKinzie, brother to John and Jonas McKinzie, killed by a Rebel officer with a sword.

Arnold, himself, was never injured during the War but had two bullet holes shot through his hat and another through the leg of his trousers.

At Bean Station, Tennessee, he was with eight or ten transport wagons and drivers when they were unexpectedly jumped by two hundred Confederate soldiers. The attacking force confiscated the mules and the supplies and burned the wagons on the spot, but made no attempt to harm the drivers, which seemed to be the usual procedure. He says that teamsters on both sides were told by their commanding officers to get up no resistance, in case of attack but to immediately surrender their supplies and wagons and their lives would be spared as non-combatants.

Arnold said that he passed through Mt. Vernon many times and that there were hardly any houses there, the main part of the present town being swampy and often under water. He remembers seeing Union soldiers, among whom was Reuben Baker, laying logs for the corduroy road which was built in front of the present Christian Church.

He was at Camp Dick Robinson, camped on a high cliff, when the Confederates made an attack from lower ground. Firing across the river was heavy, but on account of the range little damage was done, most of the bullets falling in the water. Before the fight was over several Confederates were made prisoner and Arnold was one of the guards put over them. He remembered one big, raw boned soldier, barefooted, with feet bleeding, who was crying over the outcome of the battle. He remembers that this man reached out a long arm, got him by the hair and shook him vigorously and said "You damn little squirt! You 'ort to be at home, sweeping fer yore mammy!"

Uncle Bill lived to a ripe old age and had a very retentive memory. He had many stories to tell of his experiences, but unfortunately, only these few which Ralph set down are now available.

Uncle Reuben Baker, 92 years old in 1899, had been private in the Federal army. He was a member of a brigade of 600 men and wagons en route from Camp Nelson to Atlanta, Georgia. Due to a change in orders they did not complete the trip. It was at this time that their participation in laying the corduroy road previously referred to, which was a quarter of a mile long. When this road was uncovered in 1939 by WPA workers it was eight to ten feet below the present street running in front of the church house. Baker said that during the laying of this piece of road General Nelson, the commanding officer, became very abusive to one of his captains, threatening him with a bayonet. Baker believed that this incident led to the killing, later on, of General Nelson by this officer over this incident occurring in Mt. Vernon. Actually, however, General Nelson was shot and killed in the Galt House, a famous old hotel in Louisville, by a Federal officer, Brigadier General Jefferson C. Davis, of Indiana, after General Nelson had grossly insulted him and slapped him in the face. General Nelson was known to be a man of quick and violent temper and General Davis was never indicted nor tried for killing him.

Baker participated in the battle of Wildcat Mountain. His brigade was encamped some distance from the battleground, at the big spring at what was known as the Bright Mullins Place, near Burr, Kentucky. Prior to that time, they were encamped along the Cumberland River, under constant fire of Rebel forces on the other side of the stream.

George Fredericks remembered that a total of 144,000 infantry passed through Mt. Vernon during the War. He also stated that the roar of the cannon at Wildcat could be plainly heard in Mt. Vernon during the battle. Aunt Matt Bethurum remembered that her father, Jacob Miller, during the Civil War was living in an old log house on property now owned by the Bank of Mt. Vernon, and had a very fine well in his back yard and that every time troops came through the town they always drank the well dry. She said that it was customary for Mt. Vernon residents to take their horses, cattle, provisions and valuables to Great Saltpetre Cave to hide them when they heard of soldiers of either side coming through.

W. B. Sigmon told of Joe Ramsey being drafted by Confederates but later escaping and joining the Union Army. Ramsey was later hanged with a grapevine, a supposed suicide. Sigmon's father, B. L. Sigmon, Jack Barnett, Jack Rimel and Ike Moore, hid out with their livestock on hill above Roundstone, saw Confederates marching around the foot of the hill. Somebody else fired into the troops, and wounded one of them. The Confederate soldiers began to dismount and defile toward their hiding place. Afraid of being surrounded, the men with their horses took off for a new hiding place, finally winding up at Cedar Rapids, an important gap on the old Wilderness Road at that time, and the location for one of a brisk little fight between the opposing forces.

Logan Sigmon, a Federal soldier, was captured and sent to Andersonville Prison, where he was nearly starved to death - escaped and returned to his home near Boone's Gap. One day a man named Higgenbottom came swaggering down the road, sweating he would kill any 'damn Yankee' he saw. Sigmon promptly shot and killed him, leaving immediately for Indiana to hide out. In 1885 he came back to Rockcastle County to stand trial and was acquitted. A number of old Union soldiers got on his train when it stopped at Richmond and accompanied him to the Courthouse for his trial.

Confederates coming through Mt. Vernon took a good horse from Tom Proctor, leaving in its stead a very poor specimen, a veritable "bag of bones." Proctor later fattened him up and he developed into one of the finest horses in Rockcastle County. Proctor named him "Old Reb." He lived to be 23 years old and was highly valued by his new owner.

Outdoor Cooking is Flameless and Clean with an Electric Grill

An electric grill eliminates the need for charcoal, flame starters and smoky fires. You enjoy the charred flavor of grilled steaks and hamburgers without the charcoal chook mess.

When you buy an electric grill or its ideal companion, a lightweight portable refrigerator, be sure they're made by a reputable manufacturer and backed by a guarantee. Read instruction books carefully and follow directions. And be sure they carry the Underwriters' Laboratories symbol of safety.

Your Rural Electric system can give you suggestions for saving money and electricity. Remember, electricity is too good to waste.

The electric way is clean.

There may be a Title I program in the County this school year, but things aren't definite yet. Supt. Charles Parsons tells us that he has received a letter from State Supt. Lyman Ginger which said that he (Dr. Ginger) had been assured that the Program would be funded at least through September and, therefore, school districts could go ahead with staffing their Title I Program. However, Supt. Parsons said that he was not hiring for the Program at present but was waiting for something more definite for a longer period of time on the project. He (Mr. Parsons) wouldn't say whether or not, if the status of the Program remained as it is now, he would go ahead and rehire personnel for the Program, Mr. Parsons did say that he didn't anticipate any difficulty in getting personnel to staff the Program, even at this late date or even later.....

THIS IS THE WEEK FOR THE RENFRO VALLEY FAIR

Kentucky's enthusiastic dove hunters are anxiously awaiting the 1973 dove hunting season, which will open on September 1 and continue through October 31, then reopen for the second phase of the split season on December 1 and continue through December 31.

Dan Russell, chief farm game biologist for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources said that this year's dove crop should be every bit as good as last year's due to a full reproduction already this year.

But Russell also predicted that the opening days of the season may not be as promising in some cases - due to the adverse corn and silage planting conditions in many areas. As these crops mature, hunting should be progressively better with the season.

Russell pointed out that the daily limit will be twelve doves and the possession limit a twenty-four again this year. After two or more days of hunting, possession limits apply to transporting doves, they do not permit an excess of the daily bag limit in the field.

Shooting hours are unchanged this year and will be from 12 o'clock noon to one-half hour before sunset, prevailing time.

Regulations prohibit shooting with any shotgun capable of holding more than three shells, or shooting over a "basic" field

CONSUMER COMMENTS
By Ed W. Hanzock
Attorney General of Kentucky

Since transportation represents one of the largest cash outlays made by many consumers, it is important to consider ways to make the most of the money we spend on just "getting around."

For some, public transportation might be a reasonable alternative to owning a personal vehicle. If it would cost less to use public transportation, it might be advisable to put up with momentary inconvenience in return for long term savings.

Most people, however, seem to consider public transportation an unworkable alternative the decision to buy a personal car is already made.

The key elements in the careful purchase of an automobile are analysis and comparison. Each person must carefully weigh for himself such alternatives as whether to buy a new or used car. Careful consideration should include such points as the overall cost of operation, including repairs, maintenance and insurance.

Compare the financing charges of several lenders. Interest rates and lending policies differ and the small amount of time needed for "comparison shopping" may be rewarded by less overall cost.

Educate yourself as to the different car models that are available. Choose several that might be suitable for your needs, and explore these in greater depth. Consumer guides and magazines at your library can help in this area.

The amount you spend for transportation largely depends on how well you plan ahead and how well you use your head! For answers and suggestions to aid consumer problems, call the Attorney General's Consumer Hotline, toll-free, between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 1-800-372-2960.

The Fruits of Summer
Sun-soaked orchards are as much a part of summertime pleasure as sunshine itself. Each year, for a few short months, the fruitbowls of the nation are brimming with crimson-tinted peaches, buttery-yellow Bartlett pears, ruby nectarines, and plums in glorious shades of scarlet, amber, purple and green.

Each of these refreshing fruits is delectable just plucked from the bowl and eaten out of and. In addition to eating goodness, each provides vitamins, minerals and fruit sugars for energy to help sustain the pace of stepped-up summertime activity.

Summer fruits are so good and convenient simply eaten "as is," but they are equally delicious when sliced into a salad and tossed with a tangy dressing, baked in a tart-sweet pie, as a topping for cakes or ice cream, as an accompaniment to meat, fish or chicken, or cooked into any one of a number of savory jams, preserves, chutneys, relishes or sauces.

Here are selected recipes using these wholesome fruits.

It's good to know:

1. That there is an easy way to peel plums, nectarines and peaches. Simply submerge fruit in boiling water for about 30 seconds, remove with a slotted spoon and dip in cold water. The skins will slip right off.

2. That the skins of fresh Bartlett pears are thin and tender so they seldom need paring. To core them easily and attractively, use either a melon baller or 1/2 teaspoon measure.

3. That peaches, nectarines and yellow-fleshed plum varieties are good sources of Vitamin A.

4. That all four fruits are low in sodium, making them excellent additions to special and convalescent diets.

5. That Bartlett pears, nectarines and peaches will keep their fresh-cut look longer if they are dipped in lemon juice or ascorbic acid mixture immediately after cutting.

6. That you can expect about four medium peaches or nectarines, six plums and three or four Bartlett pears in a pound of fruit. The number will vary somewhat depending on size of fruit.

7. That there are about thirty-eight calories in a medium sized peach, thirty-three for the average plum, thirty-five or so in a nectarine and less than one hundred in a fairly good size Bartlett pear. This, of course, also depends on size of fruit.

Peach Salad Composite

6 cups cut-up fresh fruit (grapes, peaches, melon, strawberries, etc.)
1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped
1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon salt
Crisp salad greens

Toss fruit with lemon and chill. Fold cream into mayonnaise; blend in juice, peel and salt. Serve fruit on greens. Pass dressing. Makes six servings.

Melon Ring Buffet Salad

1 hotheydaw, cassa or other melon
12 fresh plums, sliced

6 fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
Walnut-coated cream cheese balls (optional)

Coconut cream dressing
Cut melon into six rings. Peel and scoop out each ring; place on six individual salad plates. Arrange plums and peaches in centers of melons. Garnish with cheese balls. Serve with Coconut Cream Dressing. Makes six servings.

Coconut Cream Dressing
1 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 cup flaked coconut
1/2 teaspoon mace
Combine all ingredients; chill (makes 1-1/2 cups).

Below are some Quick-Made Dishes:

Peaches 'n' Beans
Mix two tablespoons any fruit juice with two tablespoons brown sugar in skillet; heat. Add six peeled fresh California peach halves; sprinkle with cinnamon. Cook over low heat, turning several times, until well coated. Add one pound can pork and beans; heat thoroughly.

Pum Brunch Idea

For brunch, scramble eggs and prepare pork sausage patties. Then for an exotic companion, cut six fresh plums in half. Melt three tablespoons butter in heavy skillet, add pinch of cinnamon. Add plums; heat through, turning frequently to coat with butter-cinnamon mix. Serve with eggs, sausage and toasted English muffins.

Bacon Bartlett Bake

Partially fry bacon strips. Pare, halve and core fresh Bartlett pears. Spoon orange marmalade into pear hollows. Lay bacon over pears, place in shallow pan and bake at 350° F. five minutes. Serve with fluffy cheese omelet.

Peach 'n' Sausage Breakfast Treat

Cook one pound sausage meat in skillet, stirring until cooked through but not brown. Drain fat; add three slices bread crumbled, 1/4 cup chopped parsley and one egg beaten with 1/4 cup milk. Stir to mix, then put in shallow 1-1/2 quart baking dish. Top with halves of fresh peaches, rounded side up. Bake at 350° F. for fifteen minutes.

Peaches 'n' Cream Pie

Filling:
6 fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
6 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 cup whipping cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Pastry
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons shortening
4 to 6 tablespoons ice water

In mixing bowl combine flour and salt. Cut in butter and shortening with pastry blender. Add ice water and stir with fork until dough forms a ball. Chill.

Preheat oven to 450° F. Roll out 1/2 pastry to line nine-inch pie plate. Fill shell with peaches. In small bowl combine remaining ingredients; pour over peaches. Roll out remaining pastry; put over top of pie and crimp edges. Slash top; bake ten minutes. Reduce heat to 350° F. and continue baking 45 to 50 minutes. Serve warm or cool with ice cream, if desired. Makes six servings.

BRADFORD G. MULLINS

Bradford George Mullins, 70, of Killarney, Florida died Thursday, July 12.

A native of Mt. Vernon, Mr. Mullins moved to West Orange County, Florida twenty years ago where he owned and operated Mullins' Fish Camp. He was a Protestant and a member of Orlando Moose Lodge.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Laura E. Three Florida youths were fatally injured early last Sunday morning when their 1965 sedan slammed into a parked tractor-trailer truck on Interstate-75 about four miles South of Mt. Vernon. According to Coroner Bill Dowell, the wreck occurred about 4 a.m. and wasn't discovered until about 6 a.m. Mr. Dowell said all three occupants of the car died instantly of severe head and internal injuries. The truck was parked in the northbound emergency lane and, reportedly, had reflected warning signs on. There were reportedly no signs of the car's braking before impact. Killed in the collision were: Victor H. Alberts, 19, driver, of Cleveland, Florida; was discharged from the Army this month and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Michael of Hollywood, Florida. Rockcastle County's traffic fatality count for the year now stands at six.

Health Care Surveyed In Rockcastle County

How well equipped is Rockcastle County to take care of the medical and dental needs of its people?

How does its supply of trained health personnel—doctors, dentists, nurses, therapists, optometrists and the like—compare with the supply in other communities?

Although the number of men and women in such occupations has increased, nationally, during the last seven or eight years, following Federal initiatives to expand the supply, there is still a big shortage.

As pointed out by the President: "The United States now spends more than $75 billion annually on health care, and, for most people, good service results."

"Yet, despite this huge annual national outlay, millions of citizens do not have adequate access to health care. Our record in this field does not live up to our potential."

Details on the number of people in health services in Rockcastle County and in other communities across the country have been made public by the Census Bureau.

They show that the number in the local area who are so engaged is approximately fifty-four.

They are listed in three categories. The first consists of "physicians, dentists and related practitioners." This includes medical and osteopathic physicians, podiatrists, pharmacists and chiropractors, if any. Locally there are fourteen.

In the second group are dietitians, registered nurses, therapists, clinical laboratory technicians, dental hygienists, radiologic technicians and such. There are eleven listed locally.

Cox Named County Chairman Of Youth Education Program

Jerry J. Cox, attorney, has been named the county chairman of the Youth Education Program instituted mid-way through the 1972-73 school year, to inform students of the rights and duties afforded them under the Constitutions of the United States and Kentucky. He will serve as chairman for the 1973-74 school year.

Feedback from the program, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education in cooperation with the Kentucky Bar Association indicates that students toured courthouses, observed trials, and were addressed by attorneys. The success of the program is due to the cooperation of the superintendent and teachers with the attorney chairman and local lawyers.

Audit Report Gives O.K. To Transaction

J. W. Alsip, Director of the Division of Finance, Department of Education, has given a clean bill of health to the high school's $3,000 transaction on Primary Election Day. The audit was conducted by Don Buchanan, Accounts Examiner, on a request from Superintendent Charles Parsons.

Mr. Parsons asked for the audit after charges of using school money for election purposes were publicly hurled at him during July's Fiscal Court meeting by County Judge Charles Carter. The specific incident brought up by Judge Carter involved the cashing of a $3,000 check election day by Bige Towery, Assistant Principal at RCHS.

Mr. Parsons stated at that time that the money was used to buy books from students and to pay refunds on lockers and decided later to request the audit. In a report to Dr. Ginger, J. M. Alsip, Director, Division of Finance, said, in part, "after an inspection of the records and after obtaining statements from people involved in the transaction, (that) cashing the $3,000 check, we have determined that Rockcastle County High School Principal, Clester Saylor, did on May 29, Election Day, cause a check for $3,000 to be drawn on the Rockcastle County High School and cashed at the Bank of Mt. Vernon. We were able to determine, according to the records and statements from teachers and students that the funds were used as follows: $2,072 for purchase of textbooks; $563 refunds on lockers, and $368 redeposited for a total of $3,000."

The report further stated, "Except for the fact that a $3,000 check was cashed on Election Day, May 29th, we were not able to find anything unusual or irregular about the expenditure of these funds.... In conclusion, after examination of the records and after obtaining the third group comprises nursing and other health aides, health trainees, practical nurses, dental assistants and lay midwives. There are twenty-nine in this classification.

As to the ratio of health personnel to population in Rockcastle County, the government's figures show that there is one health worker locally for every 229 people. Throughout the United States as a whole, the average is one for every sixty-nine and in the State of Kentucky, one for eighty-eight.

The chances of a person getting adequate medical and dental care depends, to a large extent, on where he lives. The health services he can get if he is a city dweller far exceed those available to the rural resident.

Admission to the event will be $2.00 for adults and children under 12 admitted free.

Jack Reed Craig, Water Department Superintendent, is shown with the fifteen parking meter heads which were destroyed by vandals and the money stolen from them. The meters are valued at $1,500.00. The City is offering a substantial reward for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons who committed the crime Saturday and Sunday nights.

Members of the Mt. Vernon Fire Department are shown above extinguishing an oil and gasoline fire for practice during their recent training school held here. The nineteen-member Department underwent twenty hours of training under the supervision of Bill Simms, Instructor for the State Fire Marshall's Office. Mr. Simms is also chief of the Laurel Fire Department in Harlan County. John Cox is chief of the local department.

John Lair and Christian Appalachian Project will be letting a contract after August 2nd for a new barn in Renfro Valley. According to Mr. Lair, the building will be electrically heated and air conditioned and will be in operation year round. Besides a regular weekend Barn Dance, Mr. Lair said the building, which is expected to be completed by fall, would also be used for various community activities. Mr. Lair also plans to construct a Museum later on the site.

Frankfort Watchline

In a way, it seems such a waste of paperwork, time and effort by educational leaders... They've come forth with a superb effort to explain why Kentucky needs $120 million more a year in taxes to upgrade and equalize the public secondary and elementary school system.

The contentions have been widely publicized by news media.

An organization called the National Educational Finance Project has issued the package and it no doubt will be similar to the final report by a citizens advisory committee this fall.

And to what avail? Let's face it, few legislators in their right minds are going to recommend a vast increase in the state personal income tax or a raise in the local property tax to help the schools or teachers.

You don't have to be an expert or political observer to draw that conclusion. Just ask your local legislator. Of course, he's asking his local constituency and we know what the majority are saying if asked.

The Finance Project report... we won't bother you with the many details... seems a sincere and muted appeal to idealism.

It says quietly, if not simply, that Kentucky wants better schools... and it should... it must pay for them. It says there is no reason this state... even while below the national average in per capita income... can't strive to improve their schools. It says the price is really not too high financially anyway because, for one thing, local property taxes are well below the national average.

Ah, all too true, perhaps. But the brutal facts are immovable. Most Kentuckians, in our opinion, see no great urgency to move upwards quickly and are not willing to make sacrifices.

One reason this is so is the mood of the times, maybe. Inherent in that Finance Project report is the idealistic goal of true equality of educational opportunity. That is, that means uplifting the poor districts at the possible expense of the larger ones.

Now, where is the motivating impulse among the populace to equalize opportunity? We don't detect it... especially in these days of worrying about the cost of living and what not. And especially not in a basically conservative state. It is comparatively low in Kentucky, but you'll never convince a property owner of that.

As for the property tax: It is comparatively low in Kentucky, but you'll never convince a property owner of that. We've sometimes wondered at the irony of Kentuckians' sensitivity to property taxes and how casual they seem to be about the sales tax which, until the food exemption, was taking perhaps a bigger proportional bite out of their pocketbooks.

But it is really so hard to understand? We pay pennies on the dollar and hardly miss them, hardly realize that those pennies pile up in a year's time to more than we may pay on our house taxes.

Maybe the answer is to charge the property tax at the rate of pennies a day.

The Fund-Raising Cycle... Well, we thought so all along, and so did Democratic Party Chairman J. R. Miller... he says. The party's gigantic fundraising campaign has passed muster in the office of the secretary of the U. S. Senate.

Ah, but it never will pass muster among the Republicans, and from the tone of everything said about it during the recent GOP legislative workshop the other day, it will become a prime campaign issue in November.

The Republican spokesman have gone so far as to label it a scandal that surpasses Watergate.

Nonsense. Both parties in Kentucky are guilty of hiding the truth in fund-raising. And Watergate is another world in comparison, an altogether different monster.

ramblings...

by: perlina m. anderkin... Did you realize that we have a first in Rockcastle County? That distinction is owned by RCHS basketball coach Bill Riddle. The story goes like this. Mr. Riddle was playing softball at the Brodhead second base and was running for ground when he injured his leg. A bone specialist said that he had completely dislocated his leg but somehow managed not to break a bone. The doctor said it was practically an impossibility but had happened.

Anyway, Coach Riddle is now getting around on a crutch and his ballplaying days are over - at least for this summer. You noticed that I kept away from any inference to age in detailing the above story. I didn't dare because several remember two or three summers ago when I was attempting to play with the women's softball team. I hit a ball and headed for first with a tremendous burst of speed (which for me is comparable to a fast turtle) and when I arrived on first base realized that I had pulled "charleyhorses" in both legs and could only stand on first base and cry. My husband finally came and led me off but it took some weeks to work those knotted muscles out. And the fact is, I was considerably younger than now, so age doesn't really have anything to do with getting hurt, right?.....

Were you all aware that Rockcastle Countians had so many dogs and were so fond of them? Mrs. Gladys Kirby, Deputy Sheriff, reports that to date approximately 1,300 individual tags have been sold, about 1,200 kennel tags and around 40 kennel licenses. One thing we have heard complaints about from some farmers is that dog owners seem to think a license gives their dog the right to roam freely over someone's property hunting, etc. This, of course, is untrue and owners should make an effort to understand the dog laws thoroughly.

Did I mention blackberries in last week's issue? Believe me, I won't again. Mrs. Mabel Beppert came through with 2 1/2 gallons and last out last Friday night to make some jam. Well, it had been years since I had helped Mother make it, but I vaguely remembered her saying half and half (sugar and berries) - so that's what I started with. Well, after this concoction had cooled for about an hour and a half, I got worried and called my next door neighbor for help (I had already tried to call Mother long distance and she was out gallivanting around somewhere). My neighbor informed me that she only made jelly but she called an aunt for help and we were told that you just had to cook them for a long time until it jelled. Well, after what seemed like hours and hours - it did and I was the proud possessor of six pints of jam. On Saturday, I decided to try my
