Re-Entry Rules for Treated Fields Now In Effect - A revised federal agency standard for the re-entry of farm workers into fields sprayed with certain chemical pesticides went into effect on July 13.

The revised standard requires a similar standard which was set to go into effect on June 18, but was withdrawn before that date.

The regulations in the standard set re-entry intervals for fields treated with any of twelve organophosphorous pesticides, including Guthion, Di-Syston and Azodrin.

In order to comply with the regulations, a farmer-employer must warn employees who are expected to be working in an area treated with one of the two specified pesticides.

The warning can be given orally or by posting signs. In either case, however, the farmer-employer must keep a written record of the warning for one year.

The major difference between the amended standard and the earlier standard is the separation of field re-entry times into two categories under the new standard.

The University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service is supplying information to farmers to keep them up to date on the new regulations.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—There's more to a horse show than meets the uneducated eye, as William M. Munford, manager for the Kentucky State Fair Home Show, well knows. "I don't think a lot of people realize exactly how much the Kentucky State Fair and especially the horse show means to the economy of Louisville as well as the state of Kentucky," commented Munford.

Refered to as the World Championship Horse Show, the Louisville event provides a great economic boon to the $235 million tourist business in Kentucky through use of motel and hotel rooms, consumption of horse feed, and the purchase of tack and harness, Munford said.

For the economy of the state, the saddle horse industry means much more than the thoroughbred industry on a county level, Munford said. "You only have pari-mutuel tracks in five counties in Kentucky, and the major horse shows are fairly concentrated," he said. "But there are saddle horses all over the state and there are horse shows in every county. Because most shows are sponsored by civic organizations, the proceeds are returned to the community. Saddle horses also contribute through use of labor, feed and equipment."

In addition to its economic contributions, Munford said that another appeal of the saddle horse industry is its family-type involvement. Often the same show, the entire family will participate in riding, training and grooming.

"This is unlike the thoroughbred or standardized industry, where most of the involvement is with the trainer and the rider or driver," said Munford. "Racing is a spectator sport whereas the horse show is family centered. The whole family can actively participate in as well as watch."

The horse show is important to young people because of its competitive spirit and its opportunity for involvement. Munford said. "Managing the show is a year-round planning job. Concerns setting up classes, ordering trophies and obtaining class sponsors, in addition to a multitude of other details. The gigantic rig inside the Fair and Exposition Center where the show will be held, must be filled with 2,000 cubic yards of dirt, packed and covered with tarbank before it is ruled in top show condition. "It's a lot of work," said Munford. "But it's a lot of fun."

By tradition, the Louisville show is considered by horsemen as the world's championship for saddle horse competition. The Kentucky Derby for thoroughbreds.

Friday, August 17 and continues Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The West Wing Swine Pavilion features Swine competition from Saturday, August 18 through Thursday, August 23. Rabbit and Pigeon judging begins Sunday, August 19, followed by poultry on Monday, August 20.

Over 45 years ago the idea of bringing life theatre to a fair was introduced at the Kentucky State Fair. Since then, drama and the visual arts have become a part of our fair tradition. This year's Kentucky's pioneer heritage again comes to life in dramatic presentations by the Daniel Boone Players. Other offerings will be staged by the Stephen Foster Story Players and Pioneer Playhouse. This year's Kentucky State Fair also sponsors numerous art displays and 4-H Variety Shows. All of this and more is free and open to the public.

As in past years, a wide variety of entertainment will be provided by the Kentucky Hotel Motel Association, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife August 23-25.

The cameras of WAVE-TV will focus on Fair activities as TV Showcase returns with special programming throughout the Fair. WAVE's Morning Show will originate from the Fair daily August 20-25.

Fair regulars should not be overlooked, with 41 and 47 exhibits, Livestock Displays, Quarter Horse Shows, Rooster Crowning, Pipe Smoking Contest, Military Displays, and many other attractions, all being part of the 1973 Kentucky State Fair.

A wide variety of musical entertainment is found among the many paid attractions at this year's Fair.

Opening the Fair music scene this year is the popular Texas born singer-songwriter Mac Davis. Mac brings his easy style and smooth sound to the stadium stage August 16.

Following on August 17th will be the Bobby Goldboro Show. Widely acclaimed for both his writing and performing talents, Bobby, who is now star of his own nationally syndicated TV show, will appear in the Stadium along with Nashville's Statler Brothers.

Vintage Rock and Roll is the order of the day August 18th as the Kentucky State Fair brings Sha Na Na to town for two shows. The twelve members of Sha Na Na, who put their act together while students at Columbia University, rock on in both an afternoon and evening performance at the Fair.

Both country and pop music fans will want to be on hand August 20th as the Fair hosts Donna Fargo and Dawn featuring Tony Orlando. Miss Fargo, whose "Happiest Girl in The Whole USA" topped both country and pop charts, and Dawn, whose "The Yellow Submarine" has recently been certified gold, are sure to be Stadium crowd pleasers.

A perennial favorite, The 5th Dimension, headlines musical activities August 24th at the Kentucky State Fair. A distinctive vocal style and dazzling choreography make a performance by The 5th Dimension an event fair-goers will long remember.

The Third Annual Country and Western Spectacular, August 25th, brings to the Fair many top names in Country Music, including George Jones, and Tammy Wynette, along with Faron Young. These performers have enjoyed years of success and are certain to show the Stadium crowd why they remain among Nashville's top attractions.

The Kentucky State Fair offers more than just concerts. Rodeo fans will thrill to the excitement of the championship show in Freedom Hall, August 17-19. Five performances bring bareback riding, calf-roping and the thrilling bucking broncos to the Fair's arena. Featured during the rodeo will be Country and Western singing star Charley Pride, whose recent hit, "Kiss An Angel Good Morning," has been added to his already long list of chart-topping Country tunes.

The week of August 20-25 offers the Kentucky State Fair World's Championship Horse Show. The 1973 event will continue all week with afternoon and evening shows. Culminating the excitement will be the prestigious $10,000 World's Championship Five-Gaited Class on Saturday night.

A fair just isn't a fair without the bright lights and excitement of the midway, and this year the Lawrence Carr Shows bring such spine-tinglers as the "Turbo," "Spider," and the ever popular "Sky Wheel" to the Kentucky State Fair. The midway will be open every day.

Advance tickets for all these performances, except midway attractions, can be obtained by mail from the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center box office.

The Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center is only a ten minute drive from downtown Louisville, as well as being near the airport and an easy bus ride on special Fair buses from any point in town. Entry is simple, with five convenient gates, and there is ample parking for 27,000 cars on paved lots. Weekdays admission is only $1.00 a carload before 11:00 A.M.

The 1973 Kentucky State Fair with something for everyone - is truly a "Family All-Fair."

PROBATION AND PAROLE UPGRADING - The Kentucky Crime Commission has announced that it has made more than $1.67 million available to the Department of Corrections to upgrade the salary, education and training levels for all probation and parole officers across the state.

OWEN RESIGNS - Charles L. Owen, who has served as director of the Kentucky Crime Commission under three governors, has resigned to enter private law practice.

Several Attractions Set For State Fair Aug. 16-25

Kentucky's greatest annual event, the Kentucky State Fair, is in the final stages of preparation. The worlds of commerce, agriculture and entertainment will meet at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center August 16 through 25. More than one half million people from the Commonwealth and surrounding areas will attend Kentucky's most spectacular 10-day event.

This year's Fair promises an almost unlimited variety of entertainment and activities for the entire family. And, keeping the family budget in mind, many of these are free of charge.

Heading the list of attractions is the 15th Annual Kentucky State Fair Quarter Horse Show. Horsemanship judging and performance class competition take place in the Coliseum August 14, 15, and 16. Free pre-fair activities also abound. These include the annual Sheriff's Posse Trail Ride on Sunday, August 12, the Annual Quarter Horse Show Queen Contest to be held in Newmarket Hall, August 13 and the 4-H Horse Show Judging August 13 through 15, in the Exposition Center's East Wing.

Come and get that summertime circus feeling as "Smiley the Clown greets you on the Midway. He'll be spreading sunshine every day of the fair. M & M's Circus Internationale pitches its candy-striped tent on the East Lawn this year, with family entertainment and death-defying feats daily at 2:30 and 8:30 P.M.

In addition to the sounds of the callopie will be the ragtime music of Your Father's Mustache August 23-25. Performances are at 8:30 and 7:30 P.M. Good food and good fun have long been a part of Kentucky's State Fair tradition. Both are featured August 22 at 7:45 A.M. at the Kentucky Country Ham Breakfast. Auctioned during the breakfast will be the Grand Champion Ham. All proceeds go to charity. The price per pound of last year's ham was $350.00. Multiply that by 15% pounds and you get a ham worth $5,425!!!

The Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation will sponsor a beauty contest on the Stadium Stage, August 22, at 2:30 P.M. Winners of local pageants throughout the state will contend for the title of Miss Kentucky RECC.

The 1973 Fair will again sponsor the High School Marching Band and Majorette contests. Bands will compete for the Doc Cassidy Memorial Sweetstaples Trophy along with first, second and third place trophies. Majorette competition is divided into three classes according to the number in each corps. First through third place trophies will be awarded within each category. Competition and judging for both contests will be held on the Stadium field during Band Day, August 23.

Like to talk to the animals? Here's your chance! The Joe Frisco Exotic Animal Petting Zoo is open daily and free on the West Lawn. Get to know a zebu, a kangaroo, a yak, and even a llama. If your taste in animal life is a little more domestic, this year's State Fair also promises the very best of Kentucky's livestock. Dairy competition begins with quality cattle judging Thursday, August 16-20. The 4-H and FFA Sheep judging takes place in the West Wing Sheep Pavilion

Tribute Paid To Late Judge Robert B. Bird

Tributes to the service of the late Judge Robert B. Bird of the Court of Appeals who died in August, 1970, were heard recently in the chambers of the court which he served eight years as judge and chief justice.

Resolutions were read to the court by Ben B. Fowler, a local attorney, who declared that "Judge Bird was a lawyer and judge of singular ability... who combined legal scholarship with the hard common sense and the earthy humor of his native mountain upbringing."

Judge James B. Milliken, Cold Springs, veteran member of the court, responded for the court with high praise for Judge Bird's abilities and contributions to the jurisprudence of the state.

The portrait of Judge Bird, presented by his family, will be hung in the Capital corridors along with likenesses of other Appellate Court judges.

Judge Bird was preceded in death by his first wife, Edna Davis, of Mt. Vernon. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabel Isaacs Bird, a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Bird Pennington, a step-son, Charles Alfred Mullins of Mt. Vernon; a step-daughter, Mrs. Edna Beard of Canoga Park, California and several grandchildren.

Last trace of an era

BLACKBERRY. What may be the world's last trace of an era extending back 70 million years stands in Letcher County.

The Lilley Cornett Woods, 554 acres with 175 acres of virgin forest, is the largest known remnant of one of the greatest forests of all time the Mixed Mesophytic Forest. That forest contained more species of trees than any other forest in the world outside the tropics.

Eastern Kentucky is the center of a small area in which the Mixed Mesophytic Forest was confined because of geologic and climatic changes beginning 30 million years ago. A few remote mountain areas in China may contain a similar forest and a few small tracts elsewhere contain some traces of the era.

However, the small tracts are not large enough to provide the environment necessary for the continuing renewal of a Mixed Mesophytic Forest with all its variety, according to Harry Nadler, director of the Division of Forestry in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, which supervises the Lilley Cornett Woods.

At least 64 species of trees have been found in the Lilley SUMMER TRANQUILITY—The Lilley Cornett Woods in Letcher County, the largest known remnant of the Mixed Mesophytic Forest, is operated by the Division of Forestry in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. It may be the world's last trace of an era dating back 70 million years.

when Columbus discovered America. There remains a red oak 51.2 inches in diameter, a white oak 47.2 inches in diameter and 150 feet tall, and a chestnut oak 47.4 inches in diameter.

Many of the plants growing in the woods are rarely found elsewhere. Those include crested dwarf iris, pink lady's slipper, spotted mandarin, bellwort and tulium.

Much of the credit for the existence of the virgin forest which bears his name belongs to Lilley Cornett. Cornett bought the woods about 1918 with money earned at 10 cents an hour as a coal miner in Virginia. After buying the land, he refused to sell it or to allow the trees to be cut. The only trees cut were chestnuts killed by the chestnut blight. Lumber needed on the farm was purchased from neighbors. Cornett left the woods in undivided shares to his four sons, who also refused to let the timber be cut. The sons sold the woods to the state in 1969 to preserve it for future generations.

Nadler said the Forestry Division is developing several hiking trails and setting aside much of the forest for scientific study.

"We're developing the area as an outdoor scientific laboratory for investigations relating to the flora of the Mixed Mesophytic Forest and as an outdoor museum of vegetative progression and development," Nadler said. "All people can visit the area to become aware of the ecological changes in plant life and the environment in the evolutionary process."

An information and museum building was opened recently near the woods.

"What a terrific convenience to just 'plug in' for electric heat and perfect mobile home comfort!"

Mr. & Mrs. Donald Laffoon of Drakesboro

"Mobile home living ends a lot of worries," says Mrs. Laffoon. "And so does our electric heat! No fuel to order or store. No unsightly tanks. Less housekeeping for me because electricity is so clean."

"I'm surprised at the economy," adds Mr. Laffoon. "We insisted on proper insulation to save electricity, and I've yet to spend one red cent on maintenance."

When you make your move to mobile home living, include these three important steps. Demand proper insulation, have them install electric heat, and then just 'plug in' to perfect mobile home comfort!

Due to the food shortage (or whatever) we are beginning to see our grocery store shelves bare - (especially of meat products.) But remember there is a reason for all things. But God still lives and is able to take care of us if we only put our trust in Him. But is America trusting and honoring God anymore? Think about it.

Please remember to attend church and Sunday School. God bless you all.

News and Views from your Rockcastle County Library

Book-wagon traveling libraries were started in Washington County, in Hagerstown, Maryland. Mr. Thomas, a janitor drove a wagon through the county, making three stops a week, beginning in April 1905. The wagon had shelves on the outside so that the books were visible. The inside had been used for gathering eggs, butter and country produce prior to library use.

Today, things have greatly improved in the bookmobile system. The first bookmobile started in Rockcastle County in 1963 and was donated by the Berea rubber plant. It ran 12 days a month for 9 months and 5 days a month for the remaining three months.

We now work 104 hours per month and cover almost every section of the county. There are 218 stops and the bookmobile comes to each stop every 4 weeks.

We have approximately 1200 books on the shelves of the Bookmobile and last month, the circulation was 4,417. There are organization's old records. The records were written by Mrs. Jennie Chinn Morton who "helped" to reactivate the "law historical society in 1895 and served as its secretary treasurer. Col. George M. Chinn, director of the Historical Society today, is a relative of Mrs. Morton.

"RECORDS"

Mrs. Morton's records are filled with her opinions and views of life in state government. For example, in 1917 the Historical Society was stationed in the basement of the present Capitol, and members feared it would be moved to the Old Capitol building in downtown Frankfort. Converting the Old Capitol into a "shirt factory" dissolved their fears, Mrs. Morton's records show.

"This closes the threat so long held over the Society that it should be moved to the "despised Old Capitol," she wrote Oct. 3, 1917. "The whole factory occupies the third floor of the building. For the first time since we occupied the rooms in the new Capitol do we feel at rest concerning the fate of the Society."

In addition to the "despised Old Capitol," other facets of state government also received the wrath of Mrs. Morton's pen. The Legislature of 1912 particularly enraged her.

"On Feb. 21, 1912 she wrote: 'While in the 138 members that compose the General Assembly there are Christian gentlemen, talented and patriotic citizens, yet the mass of them are ordinary in everything, are ignorant of the law and even the common conventionalities of society. They are jealous of their superiors and are ripe materials for bribery. It distresses me deeply to find Kentucky on the downward grade in Christian civilization and progress. But such is the opinion of the men who know the state and they deplore the situation in my presence."

"The ordinary citizen also received criticism. 'The masses are not fit to vote, nor direct government policy,'" the records read: "This is what I have learned from observation of state affairs."

Bright spots for the Historical Society included Boone Day, which is still observed each year on June 7, honoring the day Daniel Boone first saw Kentucky. In 1904, participants at Boone Day were served strawberries, ice cream and cake. "I think it promotes good feeling to have these good things served to the audience, and aids the Society," Mrs. Morton wrote.

Commuting to a state government job was difficult in those days. John Townsend, a writer retained to help edit the Society's magazine, resigned because "he could not attend to his duties here and retain his residence in Lexington."

Mrs. Flowers discovered a valuable paper tucked between the pages of one of the ledgers. The paper, signed by Kentucky's first governor, Isaac Shelby, appointed a Kentuckian as an ensign in the Regiment of the state militia. The document has been entered into the Historical Society manuscript collection.

ENVIRONMENTALLY... SPEAKING...
 By Thomas O. Harris, Com. Ky. Dept. for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

Along with all our other environmental problems, we also have a noise problem in the nation and the state. This is a problem which I find greatly concerned about - and I believe the people of the Commonwealth share that concern.

Although it is a relatively new concern, the department's Division of Special Programs has begun investigating ways to control this type of pollution in both its forms. Noise problems are divided into two categories - in-state and in-state noise. In-state noise deals with noise within a state, including factories and just general nuisance noise. Intra-state noise includes airways and highways.

According to the Noise Abatement Law passed by Congress last October, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Transportation will furnish us with regulations and technical equipment to control our in-state noise. Intra-state noise will be supervised and controlled by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Recently, three of our personnel attended a Highway Noise Seminar in Sacramento, California sponsored by the U.S. Department of Transportation. They received training in vehicle noise abatement of all kinds including cars, trucks and motorcycles. The training and information will be used by this department to develop and recommend regulations for control of noise pollution.

Both federal and state regulations will be formed within the next couple of years. We hope to gain the knowledge now which will enable us to write and enforce regulations which we can all live with in the future. *****

CONSUMER COMMENTS
NEWS SUMMARY

If you are unemployed, just out of high school, or dissatisfied with your present position, you need to be especially certain to know all the facts about businesses which promise opportunities for employment or advancement, but which require you to pay money for these opportunities.

Some so-called "training schools" are actually only salesmen for actual schools, which conduct the courses. Such companies often sell an unsuspecting consumer a course for several hundred dollars which could be purchased directly from a school for many times less than that amount.

Consumers should be cautious when promised that employment is guaranteed or that the school will try to find jobs

READ THE CLASSIFIEDS

OVERVIEW-An ever view of surface mining and reclamation is the goal of reclamation inspectors who conduct tours of the Kentucky coal fields for the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. A University of Cincinnati biology class recently surveyed the various successions involved in mining and reclamation while visiting Falcon Coal Company mines near Jackson in Breathitt County.

TOUR-Explaining contour mining reclamation procedures to members of a University of Cincinnati biology class is Ken Cobb, regional inspector for the Division of Reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection. Cobb and other inspectors recently guided the class on a tour of mining and reclamation sites operated by Falcon Coal Company near Jackson.

KENTUCKY AFFIELD Dept. of Fish & Wildlife

By Hope Carleton Dove of Hunt & Wildlife

Deve hunting in Kentucky is as traditional as country ham, bluegrass and even the Kentucky Derby. Many hunters look forward to shoots, which have become annual affairs where friends and family reunite as much for fellowship as for hunting.

Those who are not a part of these traditional hunts (or those who hunt for sport) can still find some excellent hunting, particularly since more areas than ever are now supporting feeding places for doves.

To locate fields where these birds have gathered in large numbers to feed on corn, silage or other small grains, check the season's news for reports on resting doves. Generally, their feeding area will be nearby. Or, if the hunter notices that doves seem to be flying in one direction, he can follow them where they are feeding.

Once the feeding area has been located, ask the landowner for permission to hunt on his land. Many hunters scout an area before the opening date, so they will have a good idea of where the season's opener (Sept. 1 through October 31 and from December 1 through December 9). Hunting hours are from 12 noon until one-half hour before sunset, prevailing time. Hunters may take 12 doves per day and are allowed to transport up to 24 birds after two or more days of hunting.

That only 12 may be possessed at any time in the field. New-comers to dove hunting should know that doves with shyness or modified barrels and light loads of number 7 1/2 or 8 shot are the most effective during the early part of the season. However, as the doves become more wary, a full choke barrel and high brass shells with 6's or 7 shot will be needed for the season.

Since early September weather is usually warm, tag and wear cool clothing which blends into the background. If you want any dove to come within shooting range, stay as close to white or light tan clothes.

A good retriever can be an aid to any hunter. By finding birds which fall into the cover of a dog ear save the hunter a great deal of time and help recover lost or crippled birds. Dove hunting is also good training for the hunter and good exercise for older ones, but be sure to take a drinking container for them - the heat is bound to make you thirsty.

Dove hunting has its own special set of rules and regulations. Make sure that you are familiar with these laws, and if you have any questions contact your local conservation officer, district wildlife director, or the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. *****
