BELL PEPPERS - I have just been notified by Robert Hubbard, Station Manager for Moody Dunbar Company Pepper Processors, that the company will pay $85.00 a ton during the 1974 pepper season for solid red, solid green and striped peppers. Mr. Hubbard now has pepper contracts on hand at the station which is located just south of Mt. Vernon and is ready to draw up contracts for anyone wishing to grow bell peppers next year. The station is now open on Tuesdays and may be opened everyday a little later if need be. If you would like to grow peppers next year, contact Mr. Hubbard immediately.

WHAT TO DO IN OCTOBER - October is the month in Kentucky when that mythical character, Jack Frost, brings summer to an end. For gardeners this is both good news and bad. The good news: hay fever season is over and crab grass has lost its power to engulf lawns and gardens. The bad news: all tender annuals and perhaps the Chrysanthemums will succumb to the power of the cold.

But whether good or bad news, frost is a signal for gardeners to begin clean-up work. In the vegetable garden, pull out and compost all vegetables that are through for the season. In a perennial border, cut back all the old flower stems and pick up and destroy debris from plant materials that may harbor diseases and insects for another year.

Keep mowing the lawn right up into November. If grass is left tall enough to "top over," it will provide a good place for diseases and potential dead spots next spring. If there are trees on or around the lawn, the autumn leaves should be raked and removed at least every week. Grass grows rapidly in fall weather, but not if it is kept cut. By leaf mulch. In most sections, it will continue to grow through November, making weekly leaf raking a necessity.

Deciduous trees and shrubs can be planted in October. Transplant them when the leaves start falling. Also, all newly-planted trees should be staked to prevent the wind from rocking and damaging the root system in winter. Newly planted or transplanted trees and shrubs will benefit from a two to three inch layer of coarse mulch.

October is also bulb planting time. Tully planting should be delayed until late October; otherwise, they may start growth and may be damaged by winter. The gardener may consider some of the minor bulbs like Scilla Siberica, Grape Hyacinth, Crocus, and Dutch Iris. Scilla and Grape Hyacinth do well in clay soils and do not seem to be eaten off in the spring by rabbits as is often the case with Crocuses. Gardeners who force bulbs for winter display should place them in cool window wells or cold frames to induce the eight- to ten-week cold storage period required.

The last half of October is a good time to winterize plants. Tender Chrysanthemums should be placed in cold frames. Cut back roses to thirty inches and tie them at the top to help reduce wind injury during the cold days ahead. Young maples, dogwoods, redbuds, and several other species of shade and ornamental trees should have their trunks covered with commercial tree wrap to prevent fresh cracks and winter windburn. All plants need to be thoroughly watered if October turns out to be a dry month.

Indoor gardeners should assess their needs for potting soil and bring in enough from the garden to last through the winter. Gladioli can be dug any time but wait ten days after the first killing frost before digging Dahlias. Then, if you still have plans for a dried arrangement to carry out the autumn motif, get the plant material before the autumn rains damage them.

PREVENT LIVESTOCK DISEASE - You should try to prevent disease in your livestock before it happens. That is the advice of Don LaBore, Extension veterinarian at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He says one way to do this is to stay informed about the diseases in your area and the ones your animals might encounter. Then follow vaccination programs that will prevent these diseases. Also, keep records so you will know what has been done to your animals - what drugs have been used, what vaccinations have been given, and what diseases have been encountered. Records will pay - do not trust your memory, advises the UK Extension Veterinarian.

Johnny Harold Childress Becomes 13th Fatality

Johnny Harold Childress, 18, of Route 1, Brohead was killed instantly Sunday night, September 23 when his car left Ky. 70 and 7/10 miles east of Mt. Vernon. State Police said that Childress, who was traveling east, left the road, traveled 181 feet, came back on the road and traveled 390 feet before leaving the road again. The second time he left the road, the car struck a tree, cutting it off, and then hit another tree where the car finally came to rest.

Coroner Bill Drowell attributed death to a broken neck and multiple injuries. Mr. Childress was born in Pulaski County August 19, 1955, the son of Earl and Broneth Nicely Childress and was an employee of Clow Corporation. Besides his parents, he is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Bea Wickles of Lebanon, Indiana, Mrs. Phyllis Spivey of Indianapolis, Indiana, Mrs. Faye Denney of Louisville and Miss Benama Childress, at home; three brothers, Denney and Ivan Childress, both of Route 1, Brohead and Orvil Childress of Somerset and his grandfather, John Nicely of Route 1, Brohead.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, September 26 at the Poplar Grove Baptist Church with Rev. Lenville Colldron officiating. Burial was in the Poplar Grove Cemetery. Cox Funeral Home was in charge of all arrangements. *****

Rockets Fall To Georgetown 40 - 18

Playing one of their best defensive and offensive games of the year, the Rockets kept the Georgetown Buffaloes worried practically the entire game last Friday night at Georgetown. The final score of 40-18 is not really indicative of the game played by the Rockets. The Rockets drew first blood early in the first quarter after a long run by quarterback John Clontz set up a seven-yard run by Clontz for the TD. The extra point failed but the Rockets were on top 6-0. Penalties helped keep the Rockets from adding any more points the first half but the real blow came when in the second quarter, Mark Bray was injured. Bray suffered a severely bruised hip and was taken to a local hospital. He later returned to the sidelines and is expected to see action this Friday night, at least in a punting capacity. Before his injury, Bray had contributed to the Rockets defense with two tackles which threw the Buffalo quarterback for losses of 7 and 8 yards each. Bray, an excellent high school punter, was a big loss to the Rockets in that his leaving the game early directly contributed to two of Georgetown's scores. One of the Rockets punts was blocked and the Buffaloes seized on their opportunity for a TD and, later in the game, another punter was kicked high and short and rolled to Georgetown's advantage and another TD for the Buffs. The loss of Bray to the defense cannot really be determined but it, no doubt, was to Georgetown's advantage.

Johnny Harold Childress, 18, of Route 1, Brohead became the 13th traffic fatality for the year in Rockcastle County when the above car, which he was driving, left Ky. 70 and hit a tree. Childress died instantly of multiple injuries including a broken neck.

2,836 Locally Have Only Limited Schooling

How many Rockcastle County residents are unable to earn an adequate income because of insufficient education? How many lack the basic reading, writing and arithmetic skills that are needed in better-paying jobs? Most local people have no such problem. Their educational background has been relatively good and has been rising steadily. It has reached the point where the median amount of schooling being acquired is now 8.2 years. For those with little or no education, however, making a living is much more difficult. The problem is national in scope but is more pronounced in some sections of the country than in others. According to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, almost 19 million adult Americans are totally or functionally illiterate. By functionally illiterate is meant those who do not read and write well enough to understand a help-wanted ad, to fill out a job application form or to apply for unemployment insurance. In Rockcastle County, according to the latest figures from the Department of Commerce, there are 196 adults who have failed to complete at least one year of school. Another 1,090 completed from one to four years and 1,550 from five to seven years. The total who have not gone beyond that point is 2,836 in Rockcastle County. The illiteracy problem is Black on April 19, 1925, making their home in Stonington, Illinois. When Mr. Black passed away, she moved back to Berea; however, she became ill in 1963 and spent ten years in the Sowder Nursing Home at Brohead. Funeral services were held Sunday, September 23 at the Cox Funeral Home Chapel with Rev. Curtis McClain officiating. Burial was in the Elmwood Cemetery. *****

WARRANTS TAKEN IN SAT. NIGHT RUCKUS
Five warrants have been taken and three arrests made following a ruckus in Mt. Vernon Saturday night, September 22. Reports are sketchy at this time but the men are charged with Condemning and Banging Together to do a Felonious Act - which included the theft of a local State Trooper's shotgun and blackjack from his patrol car. All three men, Frankie Hensley, Roger Denney and Steve Denney, were arrested and lodged in the Rockcastle County Jail where they waived a preliminary hearing to the Grand Jury and each posted a $1,000 bond.

JOHN CLONTZ quarterback for the Rockcastle Rockets is shown scoring a long gain on the ground during last Friday night's encounter with the Georgetown Buffaloes. Clontz's long run provided the setting for his seven-yard run into the end zone a few plays later for the first score of the balgame and a 6-0 lead for the Rockets. The Rockets were a constant threat to the Buffaloes and the final score of 40-18 was not really indicative of the game.

6011 Register To Vote

Monday, September 24 was the final day in which voters could register to vote in the November General Election. Under Kentucky's new election law, all eligible voters had to re-register by the 24th in order to be eligible to vote in future elections. According to County Clerk Clifford Bales, 6,011 persons registered by the 24th and this figure is only 789 less than were registered to vote in the May Primary. This percentage is quite a bit higher than the state-wide percentage. Mr. Bales expressed his thanks to everyone who assisted in registering voters particularly Republican County Chairman Clyde Bernalt and Democratic County Chairman Howard Linville. Several drives to register voters were co-sponsored by the two political parties including advertising setting up a booth during the Little World's Fair at Brohead and specific days in which registration drives were put on in individual precincts. At the present time, no breakdown is available on party registration in the county. *****

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

If we were cynics, we'd view the state administration's announced plans to renovate the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center with some skepticism.

It's the timing that bugs us, and the lack of all but the most general kind of information about the project. Out comes Gov. Wendell Ford with $14 million in announced plans, just as the Democratic campaign to retain control of Louisville and Jefferson County government gets underway in earnest.

We can't argue with the need, nor the goal, that of making the Fairgrounds a top exposition center of the South. It's just that no one has any idea when any of this might be completed, nor even when it might get started. Questions about how well it's funded have also drawn blanks from state officials.

We know that eventually the improvements will be made, but meantime, it doesn't hurt the Democratic candidate to have the state administration tell the good voters about the good news.

Lucrative Dinner - No estimate at this writing on the proceeds from the big $100-a-plate Democratic dinner at Lexington the other night.

We take that back. We did have early word from one of the planners, State Sen. and Party Chairman-elect William Sullivan that the take will fall far short of the goal attributed to the Democrats by Republican House Leader Harold DeMarcus. DeMarcus guessed they'd be trying to equal their Spring campaign kitty of 850 thousand bucks. Anyway, the dinner revenue should have been considerable despite the planners backing away from original intentions to sell tickets only by tables at a thousand clams a whack. "Rest assured" the accounting and tally will be both executed and watched carefully in view of the controversy behind that earlier mammoth fundraiser.

The plain truth is that with all the election and corrupt practices laws that have been and will be passed, it's not too difficult to raise money from folks who aren't legally supposed to be giving money.

Surely we're not saying something not universally known when we say it's fairly obvious that restrictions can be skirted in many ways and that Kentucky election officials have few means, if any, to do much about it. That was just as true under the previous Republican administration as it is under the Democrats, though the Democrats complain about being harassed for running an honest fundraising operation.

Let's face it: Political fund-raising is genetically not an above-the-board procedure. The statutes just make the parties go around the obstacle instead of pushing it aside.

Creech Time Bomb? Don't forget the case of Jimm Creech, the All American Governor of what the state claims is a $160,000 overcharge on a moving contract.

Creech, a chauffeur and aide during the Ford and Dee

Hiddeston campaigns, has the choice of folding up or fighting for his money - and apparently his liberty in view of criminal charges added to a state civil suit.

He's chosen to try to prove that certain state officials gave him the go-ahead verbally to charge the state over and above the written contract. That's the core of the trouble. The state denies this.

If the case comes to trial on either the civil or criminal front, there could be embarrassing allegations against the administration. The Creech people have taken a deposition from Don Bradshaw, commissioner of finance when Creech did most of the moving.

On this controversy, we will continue to stick with state government until developments indicate otherwise. After all, the administration did proceed against Creech to recover the allegedly overpaid funds and did press for criminal charges. Hardly the actions of folks with much to hide.

With all the rumors of how Creech is going to spill the beans and so forth, the Ford administration shows a willingness to get the mess cleaned up and that counts for something in our book.

Annual Sessions Resistance - Despite their rosy forecasts by annual sessions advocates of widespread public support, we're guessing the proposed constitutional amendment is going to have some trouble with the voter in November.

Well in advance of the referendum there are comments from many sources opposing the previously-defeated plan, and this resistance comes from both business and labor sources.

It doesn't appear that the atmosphere is exactly overwhelming for annual sessions.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS HONORING MISS MEDLIN

PICTURE IS PADED

Mr. & Mrs. Gordon Pope

Medlin - Pope

Miss Kathryn Medlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Medlin of Berry and Gordon Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Pope of Mt. Vernon, were married in a double-ring ceremony August 18 at 2:30 P.M. at the Riverview Baptist Church of Berry.

The Reverend E. Edwin LeMaster, Academic Dean of Sue Bennett College, London, performed the ceremony. Musical selections were presented by Reverend Ronnie Wolfe, pastor of Riverview Baptist Church.

Rev. Wolfe sang "Each Step I Take," during the lighting of the candles.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. Her gown of polyester crepon and imported Holland lace was hand-fashioned by her mother. The fitted lace bodice was embroidered with seed pearls in a paisley design, pearls on a silk braid trimmed the round neckline, and her long sleeves featured pearls at the wrist and hem of the flounce that extended to the fingers. The full-gathered skirt was surrounded by a double ruffle that extended into a cathedral train. The ruffles were trimmed with the same tiny seed pearls all laid in place by the bride's hand. On her head a crown of large pearls held her veil of silk illusion that fell to the length of the train. The veil was also edged in pearls. The bride's bouquet was an arrangement of yellow daisies, pink miniature carnations, small purple mums and white fever leaf. White lace and white satin streamers completed it.

For her attendant the bride chose her cousin, Mrs. Gary Anderson, as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Sheila Rose and Miss Theresa White. Miss Kelli Pope, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. The attendants were attired in floor-length gowns of Rosewood floored voile in lavender, yellow, green and pink. The peasant-styled gowns had fitted waist, full skirts, beaded ruffles and scooped necklines with a ruffle. They wore white picture hats made of sheer brail with satin ribbons to match the color of their dresses. The nosegays they carried were designed and created by Mrs. Gary Anderson. Inside the circle of holly leaves were wild flowers and garden flowers. The flower girl carried a small white basket and dropped orange and yellow blossoms in the pathway of the bride.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was Dale Scoggin of Brodhead, Ushers were Dwight Pope of Lexington, brother of the bridegroom, and Deangelo Wiser of Liberty. Greg Pope, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

Following the spoken vows, a reception was held at the church. The flowers that adorned the church were arranged by Mrs. Gary Anderson and were a mixture of wild flowers, garden flowers, ivy and magnolia leaves. The bride's table was decorated with a candelabra crêped with the bride's bouquet and the bridesmaids' nosegays. Mrs. Myrtle Williams, aunt of the bride, served the three-tiered wedding cake which she baked and designed. The tiers were separated by four dancing cupid pillars with a cupid on top holding a wedding ring and a dove, symbols of peace and love. Mrs. Sally Fitzgerald served orange-ale punch from a crystal bowl. Mrs. Gary Anderson was in charge of the gift table.

Mrs. Medlin chose for her daughter's wedding a floor-length gown of sky blue polyester trimmed with blue-flowered French lace. Her flowers were blue miniature carnations with matching ribbons. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length A-line styled gown of aqua green polyester. She wore a corsage of green miniature carnations with a mint green ribbon.

Rice packets were made and distributed by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Anna Mae Rose, Newport.

The bride is a graduate of Harrison County High School and Sue Bennett Junior College. She is employed by Kentucky Telephone Company in London. Mr. Pope is a graduate of Brodhead High School, Sue Bennett Junior College and presently is a senior, majoring in sociology at Cumberland College in Williamsburg. After a wedding trip South, the couple will reside in London.

The table shows the cost of the three food plans for four types of families who prepare all meals and snacks at home.

Obviously, most families are not going to spend the exact suggested amount. More or less may be spent depending on what foods are bought and where, how much ready-prepared food is used, whether some is grown in home gardens, how carefully the family plans and buys and the importance the family places on food relative to other needs.

CONSUMER COMMENTS

One of the most common forms of consumer fraud has traditionally been the practice of turning back speedometers on used cars. A recent federal law gives the consumer strong weapons in fighting this illegal practice.

The Motor Vehicle Information Act, which took effect in March of 1973, provides that consumers are entitled to a written statement of the true mileage, if known, or a statement that the true mileage is unknown. The law also makes it a federal crime to alter the mileage reading of any used vehicle.

The most important part of the law is the consumer relief it grants. Any person who alters the odometer on a used vehicle with intent to defraud must pay three times all actual damages, or $5,000, whichever ever is greater, plus the attorney's fees and other costs of litigation.

Any consumer who suspects that his vehicle's odometer has been altered should immediately see the private attorney of his choice, or contact the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection on the toll-free hotline, 1-800-372-2960.

The Rockcastle County High School Football Coaching Staff picked the two players above for special recognition for their play in recent football games. Kenny Burton, No. 14, was singled out for his offensive performance in the Georgetown-Rockets game and No. 10, quarterback John Clontz, for his performance in the KMI and other games.

GROCERY SHOPPING - How Much Should You Spend?

No one can tell homemakers exactly what they should be spending for the family groceries each week - no way! But, there are guidelines they can use to judge if their grocery bills are out of line for the family size and income.

Guidelines, in the form of monthly estimates made by U. S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service (ARS) on the cost of food eaten at home, show that a family of four with two elementary school children average from $38 to $59 per week, depending on which of three USDA food plans the family follows. On the low-cost food plan, our hypothetical family spent $38.20 per week in July; $49.00 on the moderate-cost plan, and $59.50 on the liberal plan.

These three food plans reflect the buying practices of U.S. families with low, medium, or high incomes. All plans allow for meals that are, of course, well balanced nutritionally. The major difference is that the lowest cost plans include larger quantities of inexpensive sources of nutrients - such as

The Human Side of the Library

Charles F. Hirds, State Librarian

I have known Ruth Burdette of Columbia, Ky., for more than two decades, and she has known my mother's people since her childhood days.

Two years ago, after a lifetime of reading and research, she began to go blind. Thanks to the Talking Book Program of the State Department of Libraries, Mrs. Burdette has continued to read.

Wanting a reader's reaction to our service for the blind, I asked Lowell Thomas, a librarian and oral historian, to talk to her about the program.

Following is part of the conversation Ms. Thomas had with Mrs. Burdette:

"How did you first find out about the program?" Mrs. Burdette was asked.

"Well, I had heard people talk about it, and I asked Mr. Allender (Bob Allender, senior extension librarian) about it. My sister then went to Louisville to this Brownsboro Road place and got me the record player. She brought it out and soon the books began to come."

"What kind of reading material do you like?"

"All kinds frankly. When I could see, I read everything I could find on English history and English architecture and, of course, Kentucky history.

When I first started with talking books, my next interest, since I knew little Kentucky history would be available, became the study of nature. Before I didn't read much about nature, but I always saw everything around me. I most enjoyed a book by Edwin Teague called Sprangtime in Britain."

"What other kind of books do you read?"

"All the English history books they had and quite a bit of fiction, most of which I had already read, but I didn't mind reading them again. The last one that I finished was The Cameron. The reader is Bert Blackwell who is marvelous. He takes the parts of all the characters, both sexes, and really talks like a woman or an old man."

"Is there anything I can pass on to Frankfort?"

"Yes, I set Eiley Queen's Mystery Magazine. I'm a real fan of mysteries. It has been hard for Frankfort to understand. After I have finished a story book, I would like more mystery books. I like to read them, especially at night. I have one on the machine now by Emma Latham."

"How many talking books have you read thus far?"

"Well, I have a notebook in which I have listed names of talking books I have read. So far I have filled a dozen or more pages with titles. But I'm talking too much. I could go on and on."

PLANS FOR OUTWOOD

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Staff members at Outwood, a state mental retardation facility at Dawson Springs, were told at a recent meeting of a study being made to determine the feasibility of moving the residents to Western State Hospital in nearby Hopkinsville.

Both Outwood and Western State Hospital are in Christian County and are operated by the Kentucky Department for Human Resources.

Officials of the department's Bureau for Health Services stressed that the proposal was still tentative and subject to further consideration.

More efficient resident care, better physical facilities and economy of operation were cited as factors leading to the study.

Health Services Commissioner Dr. Dale H. Farabee said in Frankfort that all employees of the Outwood facility would be offered jobs at Western, should the department decide to move the Outwood residents to a new mental retardation unit there.

Dr. Farabee said a declining patient load at Western had made available "excellent quality space" that could be utilized for the mental retardation unit. The commissioner explained that in the last ten years, psychiatric patients had decreased from 1404 to 484, due mainly to improved treatment methods and the community programs operated by comprehensive care centers.

Presently there 310 residents at Outwood served by a staff of 347.

Members of the Kentucky Advisory Council for Mental Retardation have endorsed the concept of the transfer from Outwood with the provision that a mechanism be firmly established for follow-up to guarantee quality care for each individual resident.

Our Division of Water is presently conducting comprehensive surveys of held at the facility, located on the American Greeting Card Road, within the near future.

selected municipal waste water treatment plants in the Commonwealth.

The purposes of these surveys are:

- To determine if the plants are producing the effluent for which they were designed.
- To determine the effect of the effluent on the stream it flows into.
- To provide data for use in designing new treatment plants.

To provide evidence for enforcement action where required.

To train municipal operators and new staff personnel.

The surveys usually consist of 24-48 hours of sampling and observing the various components of the treatment process. Then laboratory analysis are conducted to determine the characteristics of the waste and the removal efficiency of various pollutants.

Special emphasis is placed on working with the plant operator to assure that he understands the processes and operation of the facilities.

The operator of the facility is the key to the plant's efficiency. Even a well-designed plant will not produce the removal efficiency of pollutants required to protect the stream if it is not operated properly. Conversely, in many cases, good operators have made plants produce an acceptable effluent even though the plant was overloaded.

After the survey is completed, recommendations for improvements will be made to the municipalities.

The staff of the Division of Water tries to perform about 30 of these special surveys each year.

A heart to heart talk about health care costs

We've all been hit in the pocketbook by increased living costs. Like other goods and services, health care costs have risen too. And, if we are to continue to improve our medical services and facilities, additional increases will occur.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky, we're doing everything we can to help hold down health care costs while helping to maintain quality health care. We keep a close watch on our own operating expenses to keep them among the lowest of prepaid health care organizations in the nation. And, we work closely with providers of health care services to help hold down expenses and claims administration cost.

You can help too. Don't ask your doctor to put you in the hospital unless it's really necessary. Don't stay longer than you must. Every day someone spends in a hospital unnecessarily, raises the cost of health care for everyone.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield programs are available for college students, growing families (includes maternity benefits), individuals, even a plan for those over 65 that supplements but does not duplicate Medicare.

Send today for details of the plan that fits your needs. And to find out more about what we at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky are doing to help hold down health care costs, write for our free booklet "The Cost of Health Care... What's Being Done."

Dysart, William Carson, William Smith, Absolom Renfro, John Burdette, Henry P. Buford and John Dysart.

For the support of the academy the trustees were allowed to survey out six thousand acres of vacant and unappropriated land, anywhere in the state, proceeds from the sale of which were to be used in erecting a suitable building, purchasing books, etc. for the students in attendance. It was also provided that part of the land might be used to pay for having the land surveyed and properly entered.

Land for this grant was located, in different size tracts, in Cumberland, Adair and Casey Counties and the board entered into an agreement with William Smith whereby he was to receive 2500 acres of this land for his services and expenses in surveying the grant and securing proper patents for it. This work was done between 1810 and 1820 but was not paid for until 1859, when a deed was made to Smith's heirs for the 2500 acres previously referred to.

There seems to be evidence of great laxity on the part of the board of trustees and those succeeding them. The first one hundred acres sold went for one dollar - one cent per acre. The next sale was in 1839, when another hundred acres was sold, this time for one dollar per acre. In 1859 another tract, acreage not mentioned, sold for $337.50. In the same year a tract of 105 acres was sold for $75.00 and an additional tract of 25 acres for $25.00. During 1890, one hundred acres sold for $200.00, the highest price per acre up until that time. In 1865, 229 acres brought $300.00, and this was the last sale on record of the seminary lands.

In the meantime, however, there was revenue from other sources sufficient to erect a school building and support some sort of school, because in 1873 the legislature passed an act authorizing the judge of the Rockcastle County Court to sell the grounds and the old dilapidated building on it and to turn over the proceeds to the county school superintendent for equal distribution among the common schools of the county.

Whether this was done or not we are unable to determine, since the county clerk's office and all records were destroyed by fire in that year. Whatever records concerning the operation of the academy were ever in existence were also destroyed in the fire.

In 1890 a stock company was formed for erecting a new school building in Mt. Vernon. The trustees of the Rockcastle Seminary furnished $900.00 toward the expense of its erection and citizens of the town and county furnished the rest. When completed, it was occupied by the Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute. After the completion of the building, there was not enough money on hand to pay the contractor and it was sold to the Board of the Presbyterian Church in 1895 for $1,867.75.

Since the trustees of the Rockcastle Seminary had furnished $900.00 of the money used in erecting the new building, they agreed to donate that amount to the Presbyterian Board provided they would agree to accept for training each year nine students in the county, one from each of eight districts and one from the county at large. I was lucky enough to get the scholarship for the county at large, otherwise, I would never have been able to attend

In 1910, Mt. Vernon formed a graded school district and purchased the Brown Memorial School building. The Langdon Home was changed to an Industrial Home for Girls, with the girls attending The Mt. Vernon High School after leaving the grades at Langdon. In 1927 Mt. Vernon erected a new school building, towards the cost of which the Langdon school made a cash contribution of $9,000. Various members of the Langdon faculty - principally Miss Rose McCord and Miss Annabelle Stewart - were extremely active in promoting the building of the school. Dr. John D. Henderson, U. G. Baker and M. T. Crawford gave liberally of time, money, land and materials to the building, when completed, was a source of much pride to the community.

In the meantime, Livingston and Brodhead had also been supporting high schools. In fact, the Brodhead School was the first to offer high school subjects in a public school in Rockcastle. In 1972 these three high schools graduated their last classes and became incorporated in the new consolidated county high school, occupying the wonderful new building erected at Mt. Vernon and opened in 1972, graduating its first class in the Spring of 1973. This and other advancements made in Rockcastle educational facilities will be noted later on. The purpose of this article is largely to trace the earlier history of education in the county, a task in which I am being immeasurably helped by consulting a thesis prepared by E. F. Norton at the time of his graduation from the University of Kentucky. Mr. Norton, a Rockcastle boy, Principal of Brodhead School from 1920 to 1935, chose as the subject for his Master's Thesis "History of Education in Rockcastle County" and devoted a great deal of time and research to the project.

An early private school, The Mt. Vernon Academy, was conducted by Mr. John L. Whitehead, in the old building long known as the D. N. Williams home, later the Tip Langford residence but earlier as the McCall home, formerly owned and possibly built by Rev. James McCall, whose tanyard, the first business operation in Mt. Vernon, was nearby. Mr. Whitehead wrote some years later, from his home in Johnson City, Tennessee, that a Professor J. W. Sherman of Tennessee in about 1875, bought the McCall residence and converted it into a private school building. Mr. Whitehead later bought him out and continued the school under the charter of The Mt. Vernon Academy. Early teachers were Professor John Rogers, Jr., of Danville; Professor A. G. Lovell of Indiana, and Miss Dora Spillman. Mr. Whitehead conducted this school for a period of about five years and then went into other business, including the operation of one of Mt. Vernon's first drugstores.

At one time Miss Ida Mae Adams conducted a very successful private school in her home, which stood near the spot now occupied by the John Griffin residence in Mt. Vernon, and some years prior to that Miss Rosie Nesbit taught in her home, long known as the C. C. Williams residence and now owned by Dr. Jack Henderson. By the way, I remember as a small boy that Miss Nesbit wrote a novel, called, I believe, "Virginia Rose," or some similar title. I am very anxious to secure a copy of this book. Will buy or borrow, whichever best suits the owner. If you know where there is a copy, please advise.

Who knows the location of Mt. Vernon's first public grade school? When I first knew it, it occupied the building now housing Alcorn's Antique Shop, but I have been told there was an earlier building at another location. In the next article in this series, I will try to come up with information on the early schools in Livingston and Brodhead and the Langdon School, going from there into the very difficult task of giving the histories of some of the earlier rural schools which dotted the county. For this I must depend entirely upon verbal history and tradition, since there is no record in any available in the office of the superintendent of public instruction for the county. I have been told that all records were destroyed in a fire, either in 1928 or 1938. About the only thing which has been preserved, through the thoughtfulness of some person or persons, is a list of all school superintendents, with their photos, which make a very interesting display.

In one-way burglars are very obliging, they stay away from well lighted homes. Afraid they'll be spotted by alert neighbors and identified for the police. Not sure whether the family's up and around or not. So they go about their work where danger enjoys itself - in the dark.

Light is nice to come home to as well. Makes you feel safer as you drive up and walk in. And plenty of light - with our special pole* service - costs only $4 25 a month. This includes installation, electricity, maintenance, even lamp replacement.

Next week I will run a list of names of all the rural schools in the county, so far as I have been able to obtain them. There will also be a list of some of the better known teachers of the earlier schools, and, if after seeing these lists, you can add a name to either of them, your courtesy in doing so will be greatly appreciated.

VOTE REPUBLICAN Elect HUBERT THACKER

JUDGE ROCKCASTLE COUNTY Nov. 6th, 1973

TO MY FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS OF ROCKCASTLE COUNTY:

As you know, on November 6th, we, the citizens of Rockcastle County, will decide who is to serve as our County Judge for the next four years. I take this opportunity to remind you that I am a Candidate for this important office. I am running as a REPUBLICAN. I have an opponent for this office who is a DEMOCRAT, so it is very important that you remember to vote.

As has been said, the office of County Judge is very important to us, the citizens of Rockcastle County. I am aware of this importance and the many responsibilities that a County Judge has to accept. Rockcastle County has many needs and with the help and cooperation of you, the good people of this county, we can meet those needs.

Once elected, the Judge's office will be a place where you will feel welcome. I want the advice and suggestions of all interest groups and individuals within our county. I believe that this is one of the ways that a Public Servant can assist the people.

To remind you of my business and work experience, I have served as a Fiscal Court member for two terms, worked as an order buyer and livestock dealer and, presently, I am a farmer and my wife and I operate a small grocery store.

I wish to serve you as your County Judge. With your help, we will have a good and progressive administration these next four years.

YOUR FRIEND
HUBERT THACKER

P.S. Remember to VOTE November 6th.

Kentucky's hunters need to shape up - physically, that is. A sportsman who is confined behind a desk for most of the year, or who is out of shape for any reason, may have his long-awaited hunting trip spoiled by fatigue and sore, aching muscles.

Even the hunter who has already got in some dove and squirrel hunting should pay attention to his physical condition since generally little physical exertion is required in pursuing these species. Later trips to hunt rabbits, quail,

While the hunter is getting in shape, the hunter is getting that his hunting dog is probably also out of condition. Even a good dog won't be able to endure over a few hours of hunting after a summer of inactivity unless he gets some pre-season exercise. A trip to the vet is in order, both for a physical checkup and for a physical booster shots and worming. With proper pre-season conditioning, both you and your dog will be able to put in a full day of hunting come November.

This is a good time to make sure that your gun is in top safety condition and to start getting your shooting eye back in shape by practicing on some moving targets. Many of the sportsmen's clubs throughout the state have trap and skeet ranges. If you are not a member, now would be a good time to join, not only for the shooting facilities but for the fellowship with others who share your interests in the out-of-door.

Other pre-season activities might include obtaining farmers' permission to hunt or checking out some of the one million-plus acres of public hunting land in the state. Copies of "Places to Hunt," a guide to these public hunting areas, will be available from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Capital Plaza, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Finally in May, 1787, the Continental Congress convened in Philadelphia for the purpose of writing a constitution for the confederation. Two factions were among those convened - those who wanted to continue the loose federation and those who wanted a strong central government. It was obvious that the Nationalist leaders would dominate the convention. Throughout the hottest summer of fifty years with all windows closed for secrecy, the delegates labored. Why secrecy? Because it was obvious to the delegates that what they said in May would not necessarily be what was decided in September and that their efforts would be severely hampered by a storm of public opinion, speculation by the press and advice from the home states. Each delegate took the oath of secrecy and the silence was absolutely strict. Rumors were rampant, egged on by the press. Some said the country had failed and were going to petition England to take it back. Others said it had been decided to ask King George's nephew to come over and be King of America. James Madison's father wrote his son saying, "Jemmy, if ye can't tell me what is happening, can ye please tell me what isn't?"

The delegates continued behind closed doors. Since few states ratifiers came and others left in anger, the big question was no longer shall we become united, but how can the interests of both large and small states be served. By a series of compromises by early fall, all members had agreed on a style for the country. It was decided that a preamble should be added to say why they had done as they did. It began, "We, the states of Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia, etc." but one member rose to say that we were now a nation of people - not merely a group of states and so it began anew. "We, the people of the United States of America..."

It was a great experiment like no other in history. Surprisingly, the public immediately accepted it and within a year the required nine states had ratified it. Catherine Drinker Bowen called her book about the Constitutional Convention, "The Miracle At Philadelphia." "If miracles are men's prayers answered and their wishes fulfilled, there was a miracle at Philadelphia in 1787."

Mrs. Ashley has published the 1820 and 1830 census of Rockcastle County in the Kentucky Assessor's Magazine published by the Kentucky Historical Society and has just published the 1880 Census of Rockcastle in folder form. Guests of the chapter were Mrs. Mahala Lytle, Miss Frances Moore, Miss Lucile Stephens, Miss Clara McDonald and Mrs. John Nelson.
