Questions and Answers

Q. I became disabled in January last year and applied for social security payments that same month. I had a 6-month waiting period before I got my first check. Since the waiting period has now been shortened to 5 months, will I get a check for the extra month I had to wait?

A. No. This change in the disability law is effective for months beginning January 1974 based on applications filed in or after that month. In 1972 if you were already getting disability payments before January 1973, you will not benefit from the shortened waiting period.

Q. Shortly after my 18th birthday last summer, my son was severely injured in a car accident, and he probably won't ever be able to work. Even though I get monthly social security retirement payments, my son couldn't get checks when we applied last year because he was over 18 at the time of the accident. Now, I hear that I should reapply for him because of some recent changes in the law. Is this true?

A. Yes. Now a child severely disabled before 22 can qualify for social security payments if one of his parents is getting benefits or died after working long enough under social security. You should call your state or federal social security office to reapply for benefits for your son.

Q. I'm 61 and I've been getting monthly social security disability payments for nearly 3 years. I heard that disability payments are not made to people after 65. Since my payments are a big part of my income, what will I do when I turn 65?

A. You'll continue to get payments after you're 65, but they will be social security benefits rather than disability. The only change is that the payment comes from a different social security trust fund. The switch-over will be automatic and will not cause any interruption in your monthly checks.

Q. I've been getting social security disability payments for over 3 years, and I know I'll have Medicare coverage starting next month. What happens if my Medicare insurance cost me?

A. Because you get disability benefits, you won't pay a monthly premium for Medicare coverage. Medical insurance is voluntary and, if you want this additional protection, the premium will be $6.30 a month. If you don't take the medical insurance, your premium will be deducted from your monthly social security check starting the month your protection begins.

Q. I've been getting monthly social security disability benefits since 1967, and I know I'll be eligible for Medicare coverage starting in July. Will my children, who also get monthly checks as my dependents, be able to get Medicare coverage, too?

A. No. The recent change in the law extends Medicare coverage only to disabled workers like you and to disabled widows and widowers 50 to 65, people 18 and over who receive social security benefits because they became disabled before 22, and certain other disabled people. Minor children are not included.

Q. Will Medicare coverage for the disabled be the same as the Medicare coverage now provided for people 65 and older?

A. Yes, the only difference is the requirement for getting Medicare coverage. Disabled people must have been getting monthly social security disability payments for 24 consecutive months. There is a special provision for people who need a kidney transplant or dialysis.

Opinions From The Office Of The Attorney General

Among opinions released this week from the office of Attorney General Ed W. Hancock were the following:

Voting Rights - Jean W. Bailey, Chairman of the Rowan Board of Elections, requested information concerning a citizen's voting privilege who had been declared incompetent by a court.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Walter C. Herdman replied that idiots and insane persons do not have a right to vote, adding that "incompetent" does not necessarily mean "insanity." He noted that the man was declared incompetent so a committee could be appointed to render financial assistance with his welfare check.

The Attorney General's office pointed out that since the man is already registered he is thus qualified to vote although his qualifications can be challenged on the polls.

Local School Board May Levy School Taxes - Ray Corns, Director of legal services for the Department of Education, sought an opinion as to whether the General Assembly may amend existing laws to allow a local board of education to levy taxes in excess of the fiscal court.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller replied that there was no impediment to such an amendment because a school district is a municipal corporation and, thus, holds the same constitutional authority as a county on the basis of taxation.

Sheriff Must Keep Office At County Seat - Harold Kirby

Democratic nominee for sheriff of Madison County, requested information on the legality of establishing a temporary office in Berea, if he were elected. Although the regular office is in Richmond, Kirby noted that both Berea and Richmond are major cities in Madison County.

According to Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Runyan, no legal authority exists for that arrangement. Existing legislation states that the office must be at the county seat except in counties where a sheriff might already have an established office.

It was the opinion of the Attorney General's office that the exceptions were introduced specifically to accommodate Campbell and Kenton Counties in the last century when Circuit Court activities were widespread. *****

"Safe Cigarette" Could Save Kentucky's Tobacco Industry

Kentucky's tobacco industry, which has come under fire in recent years because of health problems associated with cigarette smoking, will eventually be saved by the development of a "safe" cigarette, according to Gov. Wendell Ford.

Ford, speaking recently at the 24th annual convention of the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Association, pointed out that such a cigarette, termed the "reference cigarette," has been developed by the University of Kentucky Tobacco and Health Research Institute. *****

More than ten million of the cigarettes have been produced and when perfected, it could be a most significant boost for the tobacco industry," he added.

The governor emphasized the importance of tobacco in the Kentucky economy, pointing out that it is the state's leading money producer. Last year Kentucky marketed more than $1 billion worth of tobacco. *****

HURST CHILDREN FIND "IDENTIFIED" OBJECT

The twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hurst of Route 1, Brodhead, found a balloon on the Hurst farm October 6th with a message from a Fifth Grader in Louisville.

The message, which was dated October 6th, read: "To the Finder, This is the week of St. Francis of Assisi's feastday. St. Francis had a great love for God and God's creatures. I'm this same spirit. I am sending my love and friendship to anyone who finds this message. Would you please write and tell me when and where you found my message and also something about yourself." The message was signed Don Dentinger, St. Francis of Assisi School, Louisville, Ky. Barry and Gary Hurst did get in contact with the youth and found out that 185 balloons had been released by students in the school and the one they found was the first one reported found.

State Police & Military Promoting Highway Safety

Kentucky State Police officials are working with military personnel throughout the state to promote highway safety.

A one-day seminar is being planned later this fall to better acquaint the military with Kentucky's traffic regulations. Enlisted men from Ft. Knox, Ft. Campbell and the National Guard are expected to attend the seminar.

State Police and other government officials will conduct sessions on simulated traffic situations typical to Kentucky and utilizing automobile safety features.

Lt. Ernest Bivens, of the 100th Division of the U.S. Army Reserve, pointed out that a great number of highway deaths involve military personnel. "The military is largely a transient population and is often unfamiliar with local traffic laws," he added.

The State Police is also planning local instruction at Army reserve centers. Lt. Bivens said one solution to traffic fatalities is to "bring the problem down to a local level."

Coal Production & Employment Has Increased in Kentucky

Kentucky has moved into first place in the nation's coal production, according to the latest figures from the U. S. Department of Mines.

As of September 15, Kentucky has produced more than 88 million tons of coal. This is about 3 million more tons than were produced during the same period last year. Kentucky also led the nation in coal production in 1971.

Employment in Kentucky's coal fields was also up to a record 28,700 in September, 2,100 more than the 1972 monthly average. The record production and employment totals come in spite of decreases in the number of mines licensed and presently in operation.

Figures from the State Department of Revenue show that the number of mines licensed in Kentuck, including both auger and strip, was nearly two hundred below last year's total at the end of September.

As of September 30, 1973, there were 1,013 mines in operation as compared to 1,160 active mines through the same period last year.

Governor Wendell Ford cited the coal production and

A Consumer Tip from Extension Specialists at the UK College of Agriculture

Planning tentative menus for the next few days or week can help you prepare a shopping list that will save you time and money at the grocery store. As you jot down the foods you plan to serve, look at each one critically, UK Extension foods specialists recommend. How does the price of each food you plan to serve compare with those of other foods that could replace it in the meal? If you're an experienced shopper, you probably know which foods are the best buys; otherwise, list a few possibilities and compare prices at the store.

employment figures during a recent address to the Kentucky Coal Association. "When Kentucky's coal industry shows a sharp increase in production and record levels of employment, we have to be doing things right. And this is exactly the situation, which means the economic factors are indicators of good times," he said.

DENTAL FACTS

"Teeth influence the shape and appearance of the face and are also needed for normal speech."

"Baby teeth," sometimes remain in a child's mouth until he is between 11 and 12 years old.

Too early loss of baby teeth can lead to irregularities in the position of permanent teeth.

According to dental authorities, most people can brush their teeth adequately using a hand brush.

Rockets Down Estill

The Rockcastle Rockets beat a fourth quarter rally last Saturday night by Estill County to come out on top 14-12.

The game, originally scheduled for Friday night but postponed when, due to a schedule mix-up, the referees failed to show, was one in which Kenny Burton starred for the offense and the defense worked their magic on Estill's ground game.

Statistically the Rockets picked up 347 yards rushing to Estill's 117 and the Rockets allowed Estill only 59 yards passing, although two of Estill's passes scored touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

The Rockets scored all their points in the first quarter on a 35 yard run and an 80 yard run, both by Kenny Burton. Quarterback John Glantz took the ball across for the one after touchdown conversion.

Leading the defense was Jerry Panso who got nine tackles and three assists. Paul Travis, who was below par physically from the flu, came through with 7 tackles and 6 assists and Tim Mayfield did his bit by getting six tackles and three assists. The Rockets' defense also came through superbly by not allowing Estill any punt return yardage during the game.

Burton also intercepted two passes and Bill Brock recovered one fumble. Bray turned in his usual fine punting game by punting four times for an average of 84 yards.

Besides Travis, two other (Cont. to 14)

Challenge Goes Out For Battle Of Sexes

Some Billy Jean King-inspired women (Mt. Vernon-Night Homemakers and others) wish to issue a challenge to the Bobby Riggs-type men (Jaycees and all others who feel that men are superior to women) to a little friendly game of tennis...not basketball!

So that the men may go ahead and get in shape, tentative rules for the game are printed below:

(1) The game will be played by men's rules (to let you know that women are flexible in their skill at the game).

(2) The men may practice as much or as little as they please (BUT...since men are the weaker sex, we feel they will need all the practice they can get).

(3) Those under 25 are not prohibited; however, we will allow any past team here (the ladies are all mature and even though we have not had the chance to become heroes in our younger days, the capability is there, believe us!)

(4) There will be no restrictions on dress (However, we feel generally that the men should look like a team).

(5) The use of razor blades, on the shoes or any other instruments of torture and/or sabotage are banned (The Sheriff will be on hand to frisk each player).

(6) Team membership is not limited (Although only five can play at a time, the men especially should have as many as possible to relieve their exhausted players).

(7) Each team may have two coaches, a waterboy, a manager, a medic, stretcher, two cheerleaders, a pep club and hecklers (You may have to pay to get hecklers!)

(8) The last rule is not really important to mention...but we will...the men may use only one arm (The other to be tied or otherwise secured behind them).

By naming the Jaycees, we certainly do not mean to single them out as male chauvinists but because they donated $50 to the kindergarten (recently for which we wish to thank them) and feel they will see this as another way to help sponsor kindergarten, to which all proceeds from the game will go.

The date for the game is set tentatively for the first part of December.

Five girls chosen from the Castle Chorus at RCHS, accompanied by their director, Mrs. Johnny Wilcox, attended a two-day workshop at Morehead University October 18 and 19. Students were selected from their sight, reading ability and active participation in the Music Department. The girls described the event as a "thrilling and fun-filled experience." Mrs. Wilcox stated that she was very pleased with the lovely sound the Castle Chorus has attained, but that she desires a mixed chorus. The male voices, foundation of harmony, are a necessity in order to reach the desired sound of a full chorus. In the above photo are, from left: Laura Lee Durham, Alicia Dick, Kim Pappas, Genny Russell, Nancy Bruce, and Mrs. Wilcox.

JOHN NICHOLS'

Frankfort Watchline

We're guessing that the annual sessions amendment on next month's ballot is to result and that may apply as well to the other referendum question - the proposed cluster amendment.

Former Gov. A. B. Chandler may have had a point when he theorized that the strategy of pro-annual session advocates was to keep everything as quiet as possible so as not to arouse opposition. At any rate, it's not quite working out that way, if indeed the legislative leaders pushing annual sessions really had that in mind.

Already a number of organizations across a broad spectrum of the farm and labor, farmers', businessmen - are lining up against annual sessions.

To recap a bit. As you know, the Kentucky General Assembly now meets for sixty days every two years and may be summoned by a governor into special session at any time. Of course, once a governor does this, he loses quite a bit of control of the lawmakers, for he cannot order them to adjourn - that's up to them.

Anyway, the proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to meet annually for up to 45 days in a six-month period. It would do a few other things, but the annual sessions is the dominant matter.

The annual sessions enthusiasts like to call their movement one of legislative reform. Their feeling is that you're never going to have a strong, independent, efficient legislature until the field becomes almost a fulltime effort for members.

We wonder how much good would come from what we'd have at that point - professional lawmakers. A new wrinkle, huh?

Opponents have quite a string of arguments against yearly sessions. One of the interesting commentaries comes from Harold Lucas of Florida, once a president of Associated Industries of Kentucky, which incidentally is one of the groups opposing annual sessions.

Let's excerpt some of his points:

"When I was observing the

Tradin' Days

People gathered from miles around in Mt. Sterling recently to try their luck in the fine arts of trading and swapping during annual Court Day. Guns, knives, dogs, antiques, and just plain stuff were fair game for the traders as some 40,000 showed up this year for what has turned into several days of steady bartering.

Legislature in Kentucky," Lucas says. "It seemed to me there were plenty of days with very little activity and some days with none at all.

"It seemed almost as if bills were being purposefully held until the final days for reasons of strategy - and if this has any element of truth, annual sessions wouldn't help on that score at all."

Lucas says annual sessions provide a good excuse for raising salaries, with Florida lawmakers raised to $12,000 annually and perhaps laying the groundwork for yearly pay soon of $20,000. He adds that, despite claims to the contrary, the Florida experience shows that "bad" bills are not weeded out as hoped with the lawmakers having more time.

Another point: Florida's legislative branch is becoming quite a bureaucracy, now numbering four hundred full time employees, with several staffers getting thirty thousand dollars a year.

The most telling argument, we feel, is that the frantic last day is still with Florida - and with Indiana which just went through its first annual session year. We just don't believe the Kentucky voter has any reason to believe the legislators are going to make more efficient use of their 45 days each year than they do now of their 60 days each second year.

Annual sessions backers certainly draw sympathy of a sort from newsmen when they complain about the final day and its hypocrisy of turning back the clock until all the work's done.

We know. We have to try to stay awake during those endless final hours, too.

But, ah, human nature! We think that if they let the Legislature meet for five years straight, there would still be that lag on the final day.

Another Casualty - We note with regret the passing from state government of former Child Welfare Commissioner Evans Tracy who resigned that same day. He was another of the mighty fallen before the scythe of state government reorganization in the area of human resources.

The things occurred to us when we learned that Tracy had quit. One, that he was an appointee of Gov. Wendell Ford. Two, that it was exactly one year ago - just before the November general election - that a child welfare expert from the National Council on Crime and Delinquency came to Kentucky and had high praise for Tracy's work.

His name was Sherwood Norman and he called Kentucky child welfare programs, among other adjectives, "exciting." Shading that praise just a tad, we suppose, is the fact that a year before that - again just before the November general election - the Nunn administration brought to Kentucky an expert to praise child welfare programs. His name was Sherwood Norman.

HOME LIFE

DAILY CALORIES AND WHAT YOU NEED - It's relatively easy to find out what your daily calorie need is - you just need to keep an account of your activities and the time spent on each. You can also get a general idea of the number of calories you need by a simpler method.

First, take the midpoint of the desirable weight range; multiply this figure by 18 for a man, by 16 for a woman. The answer will be the approximate number of calories used daily by an adult of average activity. For example: The desirable weight for a woman 5 feet 5 inches tall of average body build is about 125 pounds. If her activities are average, she will use about 125 x 16, or about 2,000 calories per day. If you are vigorously active, your calorie need will be much higher than the number of calories you get by this simple method. You probably need fewer calories if you are relatively inactive, or an older adult.

NEWS OF TRAVEL

THOSE ACCOMMODATING BRITISH HOTELS

American visitors to Great Britain and Ireland can play it cool this summer thanks to a new program of hotel bargain rates. Previously, such rates were available only in the autumn and winter. Now, through October 23, two- and three-day weekends can be enjoyed at exceptionally low prices.

The prices include two or three nights' accommodation with private bath, dinner each evening with coffee, full English breakfast, early morning tea, and tips. Most have radio, television and telephone in all bedrooms as well as free facilities for making coffee and tea at any time.

Trust Houses Forte, the international hotel and catering chain, have picked a selection of hotels which offer ideal locations for that week-end away from it all, home, like Chester, are located in tourist centers; others make excellent touring bases. Many of the scenic Poole, Torquay Motor Hotels are included, so there is an excellent opportunity to enjoy all the Post House facilities at well below the usual price.

If you intend to start a reducing program, it is wise to check first with your doctor. A loss of a pound or two a week is plenty to lose at a time. Some of the tips for losing weight seem insignificant but can be important - season food with spices, herbs, vinegars, and tart juices to give variety and add interest. Learn to like little or no added sugar to cereals, beverages. Budget your calories to take care of special occasions, such as holiday meals and parties. Keep busy so you will not be tempted to eat foods that are not included in your planned meals. Increase activities such as walking instead of riding.

"Food and Your Weight," a publication by the Consumer and Food and Economics Institute, ARS, of USDA, may be picked up at the County Extension Office, Courthouse, in Mt. Vernon.

FOOD CLIPS - If you're in a habit of storing eggs, fish, or other aromatic foods - don't. Try to store them in egg sections or leave them in their carton away from the strong foods to prevent an off-taste.

Spell color does not affect the nutritive value or quality of eggs. Shell color is determined by the breed of hen... it does not affect the nutritive value, quality, or cooking performance of the egg.

Nonfat dry milk lacks the fat and Vitamin A of whole milk. Therefore, if it is used as a large part of the milk supply, additional quantities of dark-green or deep-yellow vegetables should be served to provide additional Vitamin A.

Did you know that you should cover leftover egg yolks with cold water in a tightly closed container in the refrigerator? And, use within a day or two.

If you purchase tomatoes that aren't fully ripe - don't put them in the refrigerator! The cold temperature may keep them from ripening later on. Let tomatoes ripen in a warm place and then refrigerate them.

Did you know that moisture at the neck of an onion may be a sign of decay? Look for clean, hard, well-shaped onions with dry skins.

USDA home economists suggest that you do not use fruits or vegetables that show even slight evidence of mold. An off-flavor is produced by the mold growth in the tissue even though proper processing almost always destroys potential spoilage organisms.

Did you know that oleomargarine and non-dairy creamers have something in common? If you don't think so, take a second look. Both are made from soybeans. In fact, most cooking or salad oils labeled only vegetable oil are primarily soybean oil.

Large eggs are bigger - not better - than smaller eggs.

Large refers only to the weight of the egg - not to the quality. Is it true that you should store eggs with the large end up in your refrigerator? It is true, keeping eggs large end up will keep the yolk from sticking to the shell and help them keep their natural quality longer.

Eggs do need to be refrigerated in order to keep their natural quality. If you let them sit in a warm area for any length of time, they will lose quality.

If a carton of USDA-graded eggs is labeled "large" all the eggs together must weigh at least 24 ounces. There may be some slight variation between individual eggs.

You pay for the fat on the meat you buy, so use any extra for cooking and seasoning. Evaporated milk can really be used in place of milk or cream on cereals and puddings and in cooking and can really be a money-saving habit.

Variety meats such as beef, pork, or lamb liver - or kidneys - are all bargains in vitamins and minerals.

Remember, to get the same amount of Vitamin C, it takes about two and a half times as much tomato as orange or grapefruit juice.

Do you ever use the leafy tops of your beets and turnips? These, like kale, spinach, mustard greens, and collards, are cheap sources of Vitamin A. They contain other vitamins and iron, too.

Add flavor to food value and use molasses often instead of white sugar in such foods as baked beans, cookies, puddings and bread.

There are four general classes of pickle products: Brined pickles, fresh-pack pickles, fruit pickles and relishes.

Remember that cucumbers deteriorate rapidly, especially at room temperature. The best advice is to use them as soon as possible, or refrigerate them or spread them where they will be well ventilated and cool.

Uniodized table salt can be used in pickling, but the materials added to the salt to prevent caking may make the brine cloudy. Do not use iodized table salt; it may darken pickles. Use pure granulated salt if available.

Cider vinegar, with its mellow acid taste, gives a nice blending of flavors, but may darken white or light-colored fruits and vegetables.

USDA home economists suggest that you do not use fruits or vegetables that show even slight evidence of mold. An off-flavor is produced by the mold growth in the tissue even though proper processing almost always destroys potential spoilage organisms.

Langdon School, or "The Dormitory," as generally designated in the phraseology of our day, evolved through many names from a simple beginning as Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute, organized in 1888 with James H. Cook, J. Williams, M. W. W. D. N. Williams, Dr. A. C. Lovell and J. W. Brown as directors and C. C. Williams, president. The building which occupied the two-story frame building which had been erected on Richmond Street in Mt. Vernon, the contractor, A. C. Carr, had the building sold in 1893 to satisfy unpaid bills which he held against it.

The school building was bought by John L. McKee, agent for the Transylvania Presbytery, representing Presbyterian Churches of Kentucky. The school continued to operate under the name of Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute until it was transferred to the Brown Memorial Church of Baltimore in 1905, after which it was known as Brown Memorial School.

In 1904 Miss Ida M. Taylor had become principal of the Institute and remained in that capacity for some time. In 1902 the Institute had bought the S. H. Martin residence in Mt. Vernon for the purpose of erecting a dormitory to be used in connection with the school which was destroyed by a fire in the Martin residence and when completed in 1905 was a two-story wooden structure sufficient to accommodate around one hundred pupils. A Mrs. John P. Langdon of Baltimore, Maryland furnished the money to build the dormitory, which was named for her. The Brown Memorial School Building and the Langdon dormitory came under the management of the Board of Home Missions of the Brown Memorial Church.

In 1910 Mt. Vernon formed its graded school and purchased the Brown Memorial School Building. The Langdon Dormitory was turned into an Industrial Home for girls, becoming a social as well as a scholastic center for the young folks of the town and surrounding community. Many of our country boys attended there the first more or less formal parties of our careers.

These parties were well chaperoned and under the watchful eye of the teachers, who made them an occasion for teaching good manners and proper deportment. It was something of an ordeal to attend a party at "The Dormitory," but none of us ever passed up an opportunity to undergo it. I well remember that the floors in the party room were the first polished hardwood floors some of us have ever seen and no sheet of ice was ever any slicker. The very first time I stepped across the portals of the room the small rug on which I took my first nervous, vigorous step took off with me across that floor and landed me amongst a collection of potted ferns not intended for anybody to be amongst. Miss Sissons, I believe, was the heady teacher who graciously got me out of this entanglement and back to the middle of the floor. I moved locations but few times for the remainder of the evening and then with cautious and tender footsteps almost light enough to walk on eggs.

It is not to be supposed that all contact between the dormitory girls and the Mt. Vernon boys was made through these well-chaperoned channels. By secret and special arrangements certain boys would visit the dorm at night and hold converse with the girls, standing outside and whispering through the opened window to the girls in the darkened room. This was possible, of course, only on the first floor, which explained why so many of the girls maneuvered to get assigned the downstairs rooms rather than those on the second floor. This clandestine courtship was perfectly harmless, of course, but strictly against the rules. As a punishment for all concerned, and a warning to all who might be expected to be concerned, all visiting privileges were cut off.

The time came when a big hayride and picnic was planned for the young folks of the town and some of the boys whose girls were languishing in the confines of the dormitory wanted to invite them to go along. The principal at the time, Miss Rose McCord of fond memories, was appealed to to lift the ban on the girls. She said that she would do so only if the boys came over and apologized for the visits they had formerly made without permission. The young man chosen for this important diplomatic mission was not exactly a saint George Washington, George, you will remember, could not tell a lie; this boy could, but wouldn't. He marched bravely over to face Miss McCord and told her that he was sorry that her feelings had been hurt - sorry if it had upset the school - sorry anybody had found out about it - sorry that the girls had had to suffer for it - but he would not say that he was sorry for coming to see the girls, for if he said that, he would be telling a lie, which he did not propose to do. Miss McCord was so admiring of his straightforward answer that she allowed such girls as were invited to go ahead and enjoy the picnic. It would do no good to give the name of this young man, because who would believe that the dignified president of the Bank of Mt. Vernon could ever have been involved in such a matter in his more youthful days??

But it was not from the social side only that Langdon did so much for this community. They employed the most capable and efficient teachers possible, bringing in from the East several well-matured women who were wholly dedicated to teaching and training the students under their supervision. Many of them doubled as high school teachers in the Mt. Vernon graded school system and they left their mark upon the community, affording us the first glimpse we had of educational practices beyond our own local schools. Some of the principals, especially Miss Rose McCord and Miss Anna Stewart, helped greatly in the promotion and building of the old Mt. Vernon Graded and High School building which served the community up until the opening of the present Rockcastle County High School, combining the high schools of Mt. Vernon, Broad and Livingston and housing them in one of the most modern and well-equipped school buildings in Kentucky, regardless of the size of the town in which they were found.

High points of the Langdon training schedule were classes in home economics and related subjects and a strong Bible course. It will be a long time until the Langdon influence is no longer felt in this community. The old building was auctioned off for a ridiculously low figure when the Missions Board closed it down, feeling that their help was no longer needed here as much as in other mountain communities. There are few pictures extant of the old date dormitory building, which occupied the site of the present beautiful home of Dr. and Mrs. George Griffith. The house now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cox was built and used by the classes in housekeeping. Instead of listening to lectures or reading a book on housekeeping, the girls, in groups of from four to six, were assigned to live in the house for a number of weeks and graded on the efficiency and neatness maintained during their occupancy of it.

In some issue of the Mt. Vernon Signal in comparatively recent years I seem to recall a good article on the Langdon School by Raymond McClure while special writer for the Signal. Before preparing the school chapter for our county history, I will want to find that article and perhaps quote largely from it, as I believe Raymond did considerable research in the preparation of it.

And while the subject is up, I want to repeat again that my job on the proposed history will be that of editor, almost as much as that of author. I will welcome clear, concise reports suitable for the pages of the book by anyone who cares to cover a particular subject and will give the writer of such report full credit in the finished work. Also, this might be a good time to again remind readers that Rockcastle Recollections, when published, will not be in the nature of a profitable venture. If the subject were of general interest to readers everywhere and several thousand copies could be sold, most any publisher would take over publication and sale of the book and pay a royalty to the writer, or writers. Hardly any county history will sell as many as one thousand copies and most of them not more than five hundred, because only the people living in the county involved will want a copy. What all this actually boils down to is that somebody, generally the author, pays for publication of the book and tries very hard to sell enough copies to break even. This, however, is a phase of the venture that will come later. First the book must be written, then we can begin to concern ourselves with its sales.

CONSUMER COMMENTS
By: Ed W. Hassock
Attorney General of Kentucky

Insurance is an important part of every family's budget. The difference between having a good, well-integrated insurance program for the family and having only adequate coverage can mean more than being unnecessarily wasteful of the family's budget.

Having an uncovered casualty loss can be a truly tragic experience.

With this in mind, consumers should exercise great caution in developing a family insurance program. This requires great deliberation and planning with an expert in the insurance field.

Consumers should beware of all insurance programs no matter how good the program sounds in the advertisement. Typically, equivalent coverage can be purchased at much lower cost from a local insurance agent. It is very difficult for the average consumer to know what coverage is actually offered in a mail order insurance policy. The use of such a policy can also result in large gaps in coverage.

In any major purchase, a consumer should seek all the buying assistance that is available. This is particularly important in the purchase of insurance.

If you are a Kentucky resident and have a question on a consumer problem, you may call the Consumer Protection hotline, toll-free, 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., weekdays, at 1-800-372-2960, or write the Attorney General, 309 Shelby Street, Room 110, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

Ford Visits Eastern Kentucky
Gov. Wendell Ford recently set up a one-day office in the Floyd County Courthouse in Prestonsburg. Ford and other government officials from various departments were on hand to meet and talk with Eastern Kentucky residents.

Among the many visitors were members representing four counties in the Black Lung Association who came to protest a proposed law which would cut black lung benefit rolls.

Every season in Kentucky seems to have something special to offer enthusiastic hunters and fishermen.

Spring brings on the White Bass and crappie runs, followed by bluegill on the nest. Wild turkey hunters have their heyday, too, while jump fishermen ply their skills as summer comes rolling in.

Squirrel and dove hunting arrive as fall approaches and then it's also time for casting the bank for Black Bass or hunting deer as the leaves change their colors.

Some sportsmen hunt quail, rabbit or grouse in the fall and winter. There are those who know that during November and December the big Rainbow Trout are on the prowl and that this is the time to break another state record. (The existing record Rainbow Trout is listed at 14 pounds, six ounces. It was caught by Jim Mattingly from Somerset.)

Below the dam in the tailwaters of Lake Cumberland, many large Rainbows have been stocked for more than 20 years. In the last four years, over a quarter-million trout have been placed in these cold, swift waters by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Even though this program is on a "put-and-take" basis, all of the stocked trout are not harvested. In fact, five pounders are not uncommon, and every year ardent trout anglers swear to the fact that trout larger than the current record have been hooked and lost.

Fred York, veteran conservation officer with the Department of Fish and Wildlife, says that November and December are the two prime months for the big Rainbow. The water flow during this time is generally slow and, with the coming of winter, these monster trout seem to go on a heavy feeding frenzy.

While some anglers choose to fish on the bottom with whole kernel corn, garlic chesne, nightcrawlers or even marshmallows, others cast flashing spoons and spinners. At peak times, almost any method will take a limit.

Trout fishing below Cumberland Dam is good downstream to well below Burkesville - more than thirty miles of cold-flowing, trout-producing waters.

Launching areas are located below the dam and at Burkesville. A 14-foot john boat with a ten horsepower or larger motor will suit the needs of a float trip quite well.

The possession limit on Rainbow Trout is eight, and a trout stamp is required in addition to a valid fishing license.

The Commonwealth has many other troutproducing lakes, streams and tailwaters. For a detailed stocking schedule, as well as a complete rundown on trout fishing areas, contact the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Div. of Public Relations, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky., 40601.

Balancing Your Pocketbook And Your Meals

No doubt increased food costs are making you take another look at your grocery list. You're wondering how to serve your family economical meals that still give them foods they like. And equally important is seeing that they get foods that are "good" for them.

Tuna, an old-time favorite, makes it easier to balance both your pocketbook and your meals. It provides the same body-building proteins yet costs less than many meats and poultry. Why not try something different - Dilly Tuna Log? This treat is made by combining Condensed Cream of Celery Soup, tuna, chopped onion and green pepper, lemon juice, and dill leaves. Spread this mixture on biscuit dough, then on a jelly roll, fasten and bake for 30 minutes. Blend the remaining soup with additional lemon juice and dill for a saucy sauce that is quick to prepare. Use condensed soups in many sauces - they're an easy way to vary your menus.

DILLY TUNA LOG

2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) Condensed Cream of Celery Soup 2 cans (about 7 ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked 1 cup finely chopped onion 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper	2 teaspoons lemon juice 1 1/2 teaspoons dried dill leaves, crushed 2 cups biscuit mix 1 cup cold water 1/2 cup milk

In bowl, mix 1/2 cup soup, tuna, onion, pepper, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1 teaspoon dill. Combine biscuit mix and water. Mix as directed on package for rolled biscuits. Roll into rectangle (13 x 10 1/2). Spread tuna mixture to within 1 inch of edges. Roll up, beginning at wide side. Seal ends. Place seam side down on greased baking sheet. Make several slits in top. Bake at 375°F for 30 minutes. Meanwhile, blend remaining soup, milk, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1/2 teaspoon dill. Heat; stir occasionally. Serve over loaf. Makes 6 servings, about 2 1/2 cups sauce.

TO ALL VOTERS OF BOTH PARTIES:

I want to make it clear that you can vote for any candidate of your choice on the November 6th Election. You don't have to be a Registered Republican to vote for a Democrat - You can cross over and vote for anyone that appears on the ballot, regardless of who he is or to what party he belongs. This is a Free Country, and we have this free right - You can switch as you like.

You can fool part of the people part of the time. But you can't fool all the people all the time.

FARMER'S-BUSINESSMEN'S BANQUET - The Annual Farmer's-Businessmen's Banquet is scheduled for Friday, November 2, 1973 at 7:00 p.m. in the Rockcastle County High School. The businessmen are the hosts seen in trees from mid-summer to fall. These webs should not be confused with those of tent caterpillars, which appear in spring. The caterpillars feed on the leaves of over a hundred kinds of fruit, ornamental, and woodland trees. The insect is of no importance in orchards that are regularly sprayed for codling moth control. In Kentucky, nut trees seem to be the favorite hosts. The caterpillars confine their feeding to leaves that they have covered with webbing and usually not much of the tree is affected.

FALL WEBWORMS - The fall webworm is the caterpillar stage of a moth that is responsible for the unsightly webbing

Control - Several small wasps are parasites of the caterpillars, and they are also preyed upon by a few true bugs and spiders. Because of their hairiness, the caterpillars are not eaten by most birds. Cuckoos and screechows, however, do feed on these and other hairy caterpillars. Toads eat many of the caterpillars that crawl from trees to pupate.

Besides these natural controls, there are several other means of reducing the fall webworm population. On private property where only a few trees are involved, the small nests can be pruned out and the contents crushed. Some people prefer burning nests out with torches to save the tree limbs. Torches can be made of Kerosene-soaked rags attached to poles.

When pruning or burning out nests if not practical, several insecticidal sprays are available which give excellent control if applied when the nests are small. Use the following insecticides: Methoxychlor, 2E; Diazinon, 25W, AG500, 50W; Bacillus Thuringiensis, 3.2%W; Sevin, 80% S.

BAT RABIES IN KENTUCKY - About the week of August 19, a young man was taking a nap at his home on Frames branch, Powell County, Kentucky. He awoke from his nap and felt something near his head. He struck at it and the thing bit him on the ear. He called to his wife who brought a broom. The man struck at the flying bat several times with the broom but the bat escaped through the ceiling. Nothing more was thought about the bat bite.

The man was sick on September 2nd and saw his physician several times and was hospitalized about September 9th. He complained of headaches, sore throat, chills and later a stiff neck. Symptoms progressed and differential diagnoses of tetanus, heavy metal poisoning and viral encephalitis were considered. He developed convulsions and had a respiratory arrest. The nurse gave him mouth to mouth resuscitation and he responded.

The Center for Disease Control, Atlanta, Georgia was consulted. Antirabies globulin was given. A positive diagnosis was made from corneal smears that were F.A. positive. Detectable Antibodies were also present at this time. Early Saturday morning September 22nd, the patient developed pneumothorax and cardiac arrest that could not be reversed. On reinterview the wife remembered the incident of the bat bite and also the symptom of facial pain.

Residents of the area report numerous bat stings. Bats have been captured by the epidemiologists but have proven negative to the rabies test.

VOTE REPUBLICAN Elect
HUBERT THACKER

JUDGE
ROCKCASTLE COUNTY

FELLOW ROCKCASTLE COUNTIANS:

The Day of Election will soon be here, and I know that all of you are planning to cast your vote for the candidate you think will be in the best interest of Rockcastle County. At this time, I remind you that I have described my position on issues from week to week in this newspaper. I will continue to do this in next week's paper. I will not have a lot of last-issue rumors to spread about my opponent, and I believe that you should disregard those rumors that candidates wish to start just before the Election. I wish to urge my opponent to keep these last two weeks of campaigning on a constructive level. Remember, we must be friends, both during and after the Election, as we must work cooperatively in the interest of our community.

I believe that there are several important issues in this Election. I have not hesitated to state my position on these Outstanding County Needs:

- (1) I believe that our County Government should cooperate with the towns and all agencies to work in behalf of the County.
- (2) I believe that we need leadership and encouragement in getting more Jobs for our people. Our young people need a chance to stay in our home County and make a decent living.
- (3) I, as County Judge, will feel a responsibility toward providing ambulance service. With cooperation between our Hospital and Interested Citizen Groups, this can be done.
- (4) As your County Judge, I will speak out in behalf of the educational opportunities for our children.
- (5) I believe that the Citizens of Mt. Vernon, Brohead and Livingston should feel that they are welcome to join with the County in a good garbage disposal plan.
- (6) My position is that our Agricultural efforts should receive more encouragement. A late survey shows that our County's income from farms is over seven million dollars per year. With help and encouragement, this could and should be at least ten million dollars a year.

HOW CAN WE DO IT?

Some people would say that a Tax Increase would be necessary. I SAY NOT! Common sense tells us that we are being taxed enough already. If we were not, we wouldn't be getting money back from the government in the form of Revenue Sharing. Indications are that our County, Rockcastle, will get at least $14,000 this next year in REVENUE SHARING alone!

I say that if we manage our money wisely, we won't need new Taxes. I believe that you'll agree.

Sincerely,
HUBERT THACKER
