many the classic dog story. It is certainly an enduring tale and has been enjoyed by millions of readers since its first publication more than fifty years ago in 1903.

Buck, a mixture of St. Bernard and Scotch shepherd dog, is stolen from his home in the Santa Clara Valley and taken north to Canada where he is sold to men needing good sled dogs.

A strange thing happens to this big dog when he is thrown in with the snarling, vicious sled dogs of the icy north woods. He becomes a different animal. Little by little he reverts to the wild state of his ancestors. He loses all resemblance of the mild-mannered pet he had been a few months ago. Only one man, John Thornton, a gentle and considerate master holds Buck to the civilized world and even his great love cannot hold the dog for long. The call of the wild is too strong. Wouldn't you enjoy reading this book? Other books along this same line are:

White Fang, by Jack London. A crossbred dog trained to ferocity by cruelty is retrained by a kind master for whom he gives his life.

Wilderness Champion, by Joseph Lippincott. A red hound dog travels in a pack of wolves until he finds his lost master. Stop in at the Rockcastle County Public Library and see what the shelves hold for you.

A class will start November 3rd for anyone wanting to learn to crochet. The class will begin at 2 and continue to 3 each Saturday afternoon.

Dooly and the Smartest, by Jack Kent. Dooly is a giant who has never grown to giant size. However, he discovers that size isn't so important when one is brave. PreS-3

Fannie Lou Hamer, by Jane Jordan. Fannie Lou is a remarkable woman whose life is dedicated to ending the hunger and poverty of the people she loves. 3-5

Two Points For Hockey, by Marion Renick. Playing as a part of a team and not as a star is a lesson that comes hard to Lucky Stan. 4-7

The Home Run Trick, by Scott Corbett. The Panthers, a typical boys baseball team, consider themselves in hot water when they discover they are scheduled to play a girls' team! 3-6

I Saw A Purple Cow, by Ann Cole. An English book that invites exploration into the world of pretend and creativity. All ages.

The Secret Life of T.K. Deering, by Jean Robinson. T.K.'s grandfather complicates his life when he expresses a desire to become a member of T.K.'s secret club, the Buccaneers. 4-6

Four students were taken to Harrison County High School Sunday afternoon, October 23 to audition for the coveted honor of being accepted to participate in the All-State Chorus in Louisville in March. Mrs. Wilcox, Director, could enter 10% of her choral enrollment. The girls were graded on pitch, accuracy, rhythm, tone quality, ability to stay on part and solo grade. All music was sung a cappella in quartets. A tenor and bass from other schools in the district sang with her participants. Among the new books received from the Department of Libraries are:

Forever Island, by Patrick Smith. The theme of this novel is the clash of two attitudes toward the natural world. Set in the Big Cypress Swamp of Florida, an 88 year-old Seminole Indian fights the take-over of his land and existence.

Bell - Alexander Graham Bell and the Conquest of Solitude, by Robert Bruce. A remarkable biography which presents the first intimate look history has ever had at one of the great figures of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

The Land Beyond The River, by Jesse Stuart. The saga of the Perkins family of the Kentucky mountains who prosper as hard-working farmers in nearby Ohio. Influenced by more worldly kinfolk, however, the family moves dramatically into a fraudulent welfare life.

ELECT Ernie Tolle

Rockcastle County JUDGE

Friends, this will be my last chance to appeal to the good folks of Rockcastle County for help in my race for County Judge. I have been greatly encouraged by the voters of the County, of both parties.

There has been some question raised of my being a Kentuckian. I was born and raised in Mason County, Kentucky, and have spent many years of my life in my native state.

I have conducted my campaign on the same high level as I would expect to conduct myself in this high office, should you see fit to honor me with it.

I have no issues to discuss except the intention of doing my duty in strict compliance with the law and fairness to all people who come before me. My sole aim will be to stand for anything that will help Rockcastle County and her people without increasing taxes.

I have no fear of any last minute rumors being started on me as I have tried to lead the kind of life that gives them no foundation.

When You Convert to Electric Heating, Plan to Save on Operating Costs

If you've decided to convert to electric heating for its healthful comfort and the savings on cleaning, redecorating and maintenance, remember that there's a right way to go about it.

- FIRST CHECK WITH YOUR RURAL ELECTRIC SYSTEM. There are many sizes and types of electric heating equipment. The right equipment makes a difference.

- ASK ABOUT INSULATION. The right insulation, good storm doors and windows, and good weather stripping mean greater heating efficiency and lower operating costs.

Your Rural Electric friends can give you many money saving, electric saving hints. Electricity is too good to waste.

The electric way is clean.

the downtown library for children from poverty stricken homes. "For most of them," Mrs. Mitchell recently wrote, "the first visit is an awesome experience. Some of them are very quiet and just stare at everything while others just bubble over with excitement." Mrs. Mitchell, a vivacious and highly talented black, also takes a bookmobile to underprivileged neighborhoods. From her journals, I have abstracted one day's experience in attempting "to convince young minds that books are beautiful."

January 29, 3:40-4:40 p.m., the entry begins: "It was like an invasion. I've never seen so many kids in all my life. We had several more mothers this time. They expressed sympathy. 'How can you stand this?' they asked." There were kids all over the place. We tried to get the little kids off (the bookmobile) so that the teen-agers could look in a less frantic atmosphere. "At about 4:00 p.m., we heard the kids yelling. 'Here come the fuzz. You guys gotta get arrested.' And they were right. The police pulled up and asked us to turn down our outside speaker as the neighbors were complaining of the noise. We did, and the police left, looking sympathetic."

"An 18-year-old boy helped us settle the children down. I imagine he thought we were being much too gentle with the kids since his words were certainly not gentle. "It took us almost 15 minutes to leave because the kids would not stay off the bookmobile and thought it was cool to climb the sides of the bookmobile and peek at us through the window. "We finally got away with ten million kids running after us, screaming and yelling. We felt like yelling, too. "We checked out 176 books."

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Fourth District

There are only a few more days left until the November 6th election. I have talked to lots of you and to lots I have not. But, all of you are no strangers to me. I have known most of your granddads and some of you, even your granddads. I have been here in this district all my life and have raised my family here. I am a newcomer to politics and don't know all the hitches that can be used to get elected in this district but I intend to do my best for the interests of the Fourth District when elected.

I was born and raised in Wildie, the son of J. M. and Jeanetta Francis McGuire Parsons. My older brother was vice president and general manager of L & N Railroad until his retirement and two more of the Wildie boys gone on to high paying jobs in their lifetime with Proctor and Gamble but to my knowledge, this is the first time one has run for this office on the Democratic ticket, unlike my opponent who has made this race four straight times.

In 1926, I married my old sweetheart, a strong Republican and have raised five children, four boys and one girl, none of whom are here to vote on November 6th. My wife has registered for the first time as a Democrat but it doesn't make any difference how you are registered, you can vote for me.

I will serve out the next four years working for you on all levels - district, county and state.

General Election Is Important One

Candidate-wise, voter interest in the November 6th General Election in Rockcastle County will, no doubt, be high. There are four contested races on the ballot - the office of County Judge, the office of Magistrate of the Fourth District, the office of Mt. Vernon Police Judge and a race on the judicial ballot - however, these races do not seem to be stirring up that much interest.

But, it is terribly important that voters exercise their right to vote November 6th because there are two questions on the ballot concerning Constitutional Amendments.

Voters are urged to study these amendments carefully before making a yes or no decision on the questions.

I have some opinions about both amendments which I would like to express here. The first amendment is composed of three parts. The first part is for abolishing the elective office of Superintendent of Public Instruction and provides for the election of a State Board of Education. The second section would permit sheriffs to succeed themselves or act as deputies for succeeding terms and the third section would abolish the elective office of Railroad Commissioner.

Constitutional Amendment No. 2 mainly concerns itself with the question of annual meetings of the State Legislature - instead of the once every two year session we now have.

With Constitutional Amendment No. 2, we quickly take issue. There is no benefit, that we can see, beyond the dubious one of harnessing ourselves with more government at greater expense. This amendment even being considered for passage.

Four our study history of this amendment, we have drawn the conclusion that our forefathers, in framing our Constitution, went on the basis of "He Who Governs Least Governs Best." Besides the great additional expense that would be incurred to taxpayers from the passage of this amendment, there are many other drawbacks which we can see. One of the most important to us would be the fact that with annual sessions, many of our competent lawmakers in office now would find the additional time away from their homes and jobs prohibitive enough to rule out anyone seeking the office but someone of private means.

Voters should study this question closely before voting for an Amendment which would have to mean more tax dollars for us in a day and age when the tax bill to each working American is becoming heavily burdensome.

In the matter of sheriffs being allowed to succeed themselves - we also urge you to think strongly before overturning an institution which we feel was framed with good reason by the writers of our Constitution for the protection of the public. Our forefathers, realizing that it is dynamic in office as sensitive as that of sheriff could prove disastrous, wrote this safeguard into our Constitution. We should not trifle with what was obviously clear thinking and sound judgment simply because a strong Sheriff's Association lobby has turned the heads of a few of our lawmakers.

The other issues are petty except perhaps the one concerning the abolishment of the office of Railroad Commissioner. This has been a grave train for a few politicians for years and an office that this state needs about as much as we need annual sessions of the Legislature.

Consider these issues carefully and make an effort to cast your ballot on November 6th.

About 150 members of the Rockcastle County Farm Bureau were on hand last Friday night for the annual meeting and banquet of the organization at Brodhead School. During the meeting, seven new directors were elected. In the above photo are, from left: Jack Owens, Vice President; Harlan Farthing,

Ladies' Challenge Answered by Jaycees

The ladies have drawn an answer from their challenge to the men for a "Basketball" Battle of the Sexes. Jaycee President Paul Hansel said Tuesday that, "Realizing that women are the weaker sex, the Jaycees accept their challenge on behalf of men everywhere and we will be glad to play the game with one arm behind our back - in fact, we could no doubt tie both of them back and still win." Mr. Hansel further stated that the men will not require any practice since they do not wish to take up any gym time that could be put to much better use by the "Ma." ladies. He also promised that since proceeds of the game will go to the kindergarten, which is a worthwhile project, the men will go out of their way to beat the ladies as it is a worthwhile project, the men will go out of their way to beat the ladies as kindly as possible - keeping in mind throughout the game that although the outcome can never be in question, diplomacy and tact will be used in the win to spare the ladies feelings (most of whom are someone's mother) as much as possible. Mr. Hansel further said, "In this changing world of ours, there seems to be a definite trend back to the domination of men over women and this trend may as well be fostered through this method in this area as any other way." The game is scheduled for Saturday night, December 8th.

at Mt. Vernon Elementary School. Any lady or gentleman wishing to participate in the activities should contact either Mrs. Julie Harris, Mrs. Betty Henderson or Mrs. Nancy Mullins for the ladies' team or Paul Hansel or Sam Ford for the men's team.  ELECTION OFFICERS TO MEET NOVEMBER 2

Pansy McCay - A Lesson In Helping The Underprivileged

A truck from the Strathmore Presbyterian Church of Louisville arrived Saturday at the home of Mrs. Pansy McCay at Burr. The scene was the same as it had been for the past fifteen years since it has been that long that this particular church, in answer to an appeal from Mrs. McCay, has been bringing clothing, shoes, furniture, appliances, bed clothing and dishes for distribution to those in need in this area. Mrs. McCay has lived in this area for the past fifteen years. During that time, she has carried the Word of God to poor families in the county while at the same time administering to their physical needs and she also holds revivals throughout Kentucky and surrounding states. For many years, she had a twice-weekly radio program over WRVK through which she made her appeals for help for the needy. The Strathmore Presbyterian Church of Louisville, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Denney and their son, Cedric, Jr., has answered her plea. Not only residents of Rockcastle benefit from Mrs. McCay's work but she also has organizations which bring needed articles to Jackson County for distribution by her. She visits all over the rural areas of Rockcastle and Jackson County finding those who need help. Then, when she knows that a truck will be coming, bringing articles for distribution, she sends out cards to the families telling them when and where to be. For last Saturday's distribution, Mrs. McCay mailed out over 100 cards to families and just a week before that, she had mailed out one hundred cards in Jackson County telling families of a truck arriving there. Perhaps the most important aspect of Mrs. McCay's work that, in this day and time of paid volunteer workers, Mrs.

McCay devotes her full time, energy and resources to helping the poor and needy without one cent of recompense. Also, for the past several years, Mrs. McCay has received many items, mainly food and clothing, which she has distributed from her home at Christmas and which she also delivers personally Christmas Day. Perhaps Mrs. McCay's zeal for her work can best be summed up in her own words when she says, "I don't want any credit here, the Lord will repay me."  NORTON FARM SOLD

The 90 acre farm of Mrs. Martha Norton was sold at public auction Saturday, October 27th, to Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Perry of Quail for $50,500. The sale was handled by Ford Realty and Auction Company of Mt. Vernon. *****

...ELEMENTARY... BASKETBALL... A basketball doubleheader at Livingston on Thursday, November 8, 1973 has Mt. Vernon facing Roundstone at 6:30 and Brodhead opposing Livingston at 8:00. On Friday, November 9th, Livingston will be at Mt. Vernon, while Roundstone travels to Brodhead. Several changes have been made to improve our feeder system. (1) A split season with the first part being devoted to seventh and eighth grade boys basketball. Except for double-headers, the seventh grade players will play a preliminary game with the eighth graders playing the nightcap. This setup gives more progression to the program and also gives valuable game experience to more players. (2) The latter part of the season will be devoted to fifth and sixth boys and seventh and eighth girls basketball. The boys will play the preliminary with the girls playing the night cap. The addition of girls basketball is a welcome change in our program. Mr. Billy Wise, Assistant Commissioner of the KHSAA informs us that there will be a girls state high school tournament during the 1974-75 school year and that the girls season will coincide with the boys. Congratulations girls, your day is arriving! (3) The junior pro ball will be used in all elementary games. The junior pro ball is lighter and smaller, therefore, more adaptable to small hands and less developed muscles. (4) Defense for the fifth and sixth grade boys and seventh and eighth grade girls will be strictly one-on-one with no zone defenses allowed. For the seventh and eighth grade boys the first three quarters will be strictly man-to-man. The fourth quarter any defense may be used. Technical fouls will be called for violations of defense rules. In conclusion, we, as school officials, wish to thank the sports fans for making last year's athletic program a success. (Cont. to 12) entitled, "One Man Chamber of Commerce" written in January of 1970 by Leonard Kimball, staff writer for the Kentucky Department of Public Information. Joe Haney labored and brought down a mountain. The Democratic representative from West Liberty is a legend - something of a one-man chamber of commerce - in his native Eastern Kentucky. The legend, and the hall fellow-well met views of the legislator-industrial developer go together quite well. But that other appellations, such as benevolent con man, and visionary, also have been used to describe Haney. It's not the kind of con man who peddles phony, gilt-edged shares in the blue sky. His stock is much more substantial. Reflectively chewing his cigar, Joe Haney envisions what his native Eastern Kentucky might become. Then sets out to do it. Even if the job means

Joe Haney Has Big Plans For New Barn At Renfro Valley

"This is the most enjoyable venture which I have ever become involved with," so spoke Joe Haney, who is presently engaged in the building of a "Barn" at Renfro Valley. The 50 x 100 foot structure will be located on an eleven-acre tract purchased from Bennett Hiatt and will feature a Friday and Saturday night Barndance with local talent and Nashville stars. Mr. Haney also said that present plans call for the building to also be used for community activities such as skating one night, square dancing, etc. The Barn is tentatively scheduled to be open by the first of December and Mr. Haney said there were plans to broadcast the show over the radio. The barn will seat a thousand people and there will be a parking area of roughly seven acres. For those locally to learn something about Mr. Haney, who is from Morgan County, we are reprinting below an article

The mountain moving feat was featured by Commerce Digest and other publications at the time, telling in detail just how Joe gets things done. Joe's reputation as a one man Chamber of Commerce is unofficial but he is recognized by West Liberty Kiwanis as 1968's outstanding Morgan County man and listed in both the 1967 editions of "Outstanding Personalities of the South," and "Civic Leaders of America," his accomplishments extend beyond the borders of Morgan County. Among them is his past chairmanship - and he still is a member - of the Gateway Area Development Council which proposes to build an entire city, with 2,600 acres of industrial building sites, in the Midland section of Bath County. The project would create many new jobs for residents of Bath, Menifee, Rowan, Montgomery, Fleming and Morgan Counties. He is also a former chairman of the Northeast Kentucky Development Council, a community action agency supervising projects for the Federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) in Morgan, Elliott, Car-

Volunteers from the Strathmore Presbyterian Church at Louisville are shown helping to distribute some of the articles which they brought to the home of Mrs. Pansy McCay Saturday for distribution to the needy. The program is organized by the young people of the church and is an annual affair.

Frankfort Watchline

It's a strange 1974 U. S. Senate race we're getting into, at least historically speaking. We can't find any major prospects yet who appear eager to sprint.

First, Gov. Wendell Ford... At a time when the seat beckons to the Democrats as never before, offering them their first control of both posts in decades, the governor hesitates. Barring any administration scandal before November, 1974, and assuming that Republican incumbent Marlow Cook won't run again (as the smoke signals appear to be indicating more and more), it's hard to see how Ford could be anything but slide home free without much strain.

His factional enemies would be delighted to have him out of the way up in Washington, where they could push L. Gov. Julian Carroll and try to handle state party chairman J. R. Miller should he start showing more solid ambitions for the governorship in 1976.

His factional enemies would be delighted to have him out of the way up in Washington, where they could push L. Gov. Julian Carroll and try to handle state party chairman J. R. Miller should he start showing more solid ambitions for the governorship in 1976.

Next, Carroll... The Ford forces want him out of the way, too, so they can grab the governor's chair. But Carroll has emphatically said no, no, no. Well, who, then? There are John Y. Brown, Jr., Jefferson County Judge Todd Hollenbach and U. S. Rep. Ron-Mazzoli of Louisville, not necessarily in that order.

It's premature for them to speak openly, but the word we get is that Brown, who never made a political race, is disinclined towards the Senate, or, more accurately perhaps, is inclined toward the governorship. In short, a possible vacuum is opening up in a prestigious political area and the Democrats seem odd as they are reluctant to move in and settle things beforehand.

In contrast, we remember the 1968 race which Cook won in which a dozen or so Democrats fell all over themselves to compete in the primary.

Now, the Republicans... If Cook does not run, the obvious choice would appear to be former governor Louis Nunn. But he says no, and talks of the financial sacrifice in becoming a politician and apparently pulls himself out of consideration. However, we've advised not to count him out of the next governor's race.

That leaves U. S. Rep. Gene Snyder, who holds forth over two metropolitan areas along the Ohio River and has achieved great strength in his party and even among conservative Democrats. Could Snyder cut it over the rest of the state? He's an effective speaker, and though a big city dweller, seems to have a thing with the country folk.

How about Tim Lee Carter, congressman from the Fifth District. He's popular, articulate, moderate and might be able to make a good statewide showing.

But the question remains... why should Snyder or Carter give up posts which look like lifetime propositions at the moment? Chances are both have thought of it just that way and we're guessing it would take persuasion and pressure to get either to go to the post.

There's Tom Emberton, who lost the '71 governor's race to Ford. He's been rather inactive politically and may want to build up his law practice. He's still young, with good potential, and maybe has learned from his campaign misfortunes.

And don't forget Robert Gable, who tried to defeat Nunn in last year's Senate primary, and failed. Gable is probably the most eager to sally forth, but we're guessing other Republicans who have something to say about such things are previewing his track record.

No Time To Run? - Gov. Ford says he's neutral on the annual sessions issue and we almost missed a slip by he shot at factional foe Carroll the other day. Carroll's on record as supporting legislative reform.

Ford reminded those who plan to be campaigning and who support annual sessions that the legislature will be meeting - if the referendum passes - each of the next three years. He suggested that they might be too busy to handle it all.

Was Ford saying to Carroll "you shouldn't run for governor"? Was he saying "you shouldn't support annual sessions"? Or was the governor suggesting that if Carroll plans to run for governor, he should let someone else run the Senate?

Whatever the message...

Raoul Walsh, director of action classics ("High Sierra," "White Heat," and "They Died With Their Boots On"), is the focus of the premiere program in an eight-part series, "The Men Who Made the Movies." The series begins Sunday, November 4 at 7:30 p.m. EST on Kentucky Educational Television (KETV).

We'll guess it'll get the degree of attention from Carroll that it deserves.

Where Were We? - Looks like we know it all writers don't, after all, know it all.

We note with chagrin those late-breaking reports, seven years late, of a contract out on the life of former Gov. Edward Breathitt because he was bravely battling those who would introduce the horrid multiple-coin pinball machine to the fair Bluegrass.

We recall at the details, sparse as they are in Breathitt's recounting it, of how a couple of ex-cons were to have killed him with a gun they would find waiting for them behind a cigarette machine at a local Holiday Inn.

Gracious. To think we probably bought smokes there that day. Well anyway, all's well, the plot failed, Breathitt was unharmed, and the anti-pinball machine bill passed. Never did hear what happened to the would-be hit men.

If you are a Signal subscriber and are having trouble getting your paper for the past few weeks, we need to hear from you. Two weeks ago, we installed a new addressing system for the paper and since that time we have heard from approximately 200 subscribers who did not receive their paper. This was because the people who sold us the addressing machine made up our new stencils - and obviously missed at least every third one. In any way, we have no way of knowing if you should get a paper as it didn't unless you let us know - so call us and we will take care of ourselves as soon as possible.

When I stop and think about all the avenues of comment which were available to me over the recent UFO sightings, which I passed up, I get a little aggravated at myself. But, the reports have now slacked off and my twelve-year-old son observed the other day that, "maybe they hung around for a while until they saw the mess we were in here and decided to go back where they came from."

COURT OF APPEALS OF KENTUCKY
CHAMBERS, STATE CAPITOL, FRANKFORT
October 22, 1973

I am Judge Pleas Jones, a member of the Kentucky Court of Appeals. I was appointed by Governor Ford, following Judge Homer Neikirk's death, to serve until the next election.

I enjoy the work here. I find it very interesting and challenging to write opinions (laws). I realize fully the tremendous responsibilities, and how these opinions may affect the people. It is very much a man's job and the type of job that taxes all the knowledge and experiences accumulated in life. We read the law. We study the law, and then as a judge, we establish the law as we understand it, in the opinions we write.

The office of Judge of the Court of Appeals is a non-political office. Both my name and my opponents name will be on the ballot designated as the Judicial Ballot. Neither of our names will appear under the Log Cabin, nor under the Rooster. We are both Republicans.

I will sincerely appreciate any help you can give me in my race to remain in the Court of Appeals where I can continue to serve all the people to the best of my ability.

Please pull the lever beside my name. I am,

Very sincerely yours,

Pleas Jones

LAUNDERING: NEW FIRE PREVENTION TECHNIQUE. Fiber, fabric, and garment manufacturers are committed to children's safety. "A high priority of the industry for some time has been flame retardancy research and development."

"Today, consumers can purchase flame retardant children's pajamas, nightgowns and robes in sizes 6 to 6X. Some manufacturers are voluntarily producing flame retardant sleepwear in sizes 7 to 14."

"The Textile Industry is producing flame-retardant clothing but consumers should follow directions on the care label sewn on flame-retardant clothing. The chart below is available to help consumers understand and follow the brief care instructions found on permanent labels on garments."

Soap and non-phosphate detergents can build up a film on fabric causing a reduction in flame retardant characteristics. Flame-retardant properties can be restored by washing in phosphoric detergent. In areas where phosphates are banned, a heavy-duty, phosphate based liquid laundry detergent may be used to preserve the flame retardancy.

Read the label, directions may vary with different garments. The 'do's' and 'don't's' on the care label are vitally important to a child's safety.

1. Keep toddlers from climbing to the kitchen stove.

2. Use proper screens to cover fireplace openings.

3. Use proper screens to cover fireplace openings.

4. Remove flammable liquids or use safety closures.

5. Keep children well away from outdoor fires.

place livable then find out that it's way to heat all nine rooms, even if we could buy it with the rationing program we probably couldn't afford it anyway. The togetherness of working out pretty well so far but I imagine before the long cold winter is over things are going to get pretty tense around the house... One thing there doesn't seem to be any shortage of is our scandal after another in our present federal administration. President Nixon's claim to fame in the future will probably be as the president who did the most to, along with his henchmen, keep the country in constant turmoil. Oh well, the majority of us asked for him and them, myself included...

By Warren B. Davis Director, Energy Economics Gulf Oil Corporation
"It is true that the gasoline shortage was contrived by the oil companies to drive independent marketers out of business."
"No, the shortage is real and not contrived. It has occurred because our refineries are running at capacity and there is no surplus capacity anymore. In the last two decades independent marketers have prospered by buying surplus product at bargain prices. What there is no surplus product, it makes life very difficult for them. I am confident that my company has not entered into any conspiracy to harass independent marketers. I can't speak for the rest of the industry, but all the evidence I've seen indicates that there is no such conspiracy."

Create and Use Organizations" was led by Mr. Jerry Cox, local attorney. He brought out the following points to the 4-H'ers: "Every American citizen is guaranteed the freedom to operate in the American Private Enterprise Business System. There are more government controls over business today than there were fifty years ago, more education is needed for success in the business system today than there were fifty years ago.

Leaf Fall Raises Threat Of Fires

The approach of warm fall days leads many of the residents of Southeastern Kentucky out doors for woodland hikes or just to clean up yards or fields before winter's cold. With low humidity and gentle breezes to dispel summer haze, one can stand on an Eastern Kentucky mountaintop and look for miles over a riot of autumn color.

When early morning frosts cause leaves to drift from the trees into a deep carpet on the forest floors the outlook for some of the area's residents is toward long days and nights of hard work in the mountains. These are the men of the Kentucky Division of Forestry who will be on call 24 hours per day, seven days a week until the snows of December and January remove the threat of forest fires.

"The combination in fall of dead leaves and grass, low humidity, warm dry days and gentle breezes or strong winds can be a real threat to the forests of Southeastern Kentucky," says Gene Maidon, District Fire Control Assistant at the Division's District Office at Pineville, Kentucky. "We will have a Forest Ranger in each county on call at all times during this critical period," continued Maidon.

"Also from October 15 through December 15 the Division will be manning 20 lookout towers for the detection of forest fires in the ten most Southeastern Counties of Kentucky. We urge people to be careful with fires and to burn only when legal," Mr. Maidon explained that it is illegal to burn without clearing a 150 foot strip between the fire and the woodland until after 4:30 p.m. during the fall fire season and in the spring from March 1st to 15th. "During a hot spring and fall season as many as 400 fires may burn more than 8,000 acres in these ten counties," he continued. "Most of these fires are caused by carelessness in burning of debris and some are caused by smokers, hunters, campers, and children playing with matches. Of course, incendiary fires are those which are maliciously set. This is a felony in the State of Kentucky and is punishable by imprisonment."

Rockcastle Recollections

In response to the invitation for readers to send in their early school day experiences, we have heard from J.B. Proctor of Richmond, Ky., who attended the old Cove District School. He says that he does not know just when the schoolhouse was built, but says an older sister, born in 1872, attended her first school there. He says that three men who taught there at one time, or another were Jim Chestnut, Robert Bell and James Riddle, all three of whom were ministers. He remembers that Rev. James Riddle was the father of Fannie and Virginia Riddle, now living in Mt. Vernon.

Mr. Proctor says that he will remember the old school schoolhouse, but that in 1894 or 1895 it was torn down and a new one was built on a site just across the road from it. It had home-made benches and seats of wood which were painted white by Uncle Bud Chestnut and his son, Lee. After that, Lee attended school there for several years, after which he attended medical school and became a doctor and came back and taught one school at Cove, after which he married and practiced medicine in Mt. Vernon. This was, of course, Dr. Lee Chestnut who practiced so many years here.

Mr. Proctor says he attended school at Cove beginning in 1896. Among these teachers, he remembers Mrs. Monroe Pennington, Tom Cross, Bob Bell, Sallie Cook, Lee Chestnut, Helen Singleton and Bessie McFarlane.

Mrs. Etna Hayes Coffey of Wildie, Kentucky, who is one of our historical standbys, writes that her father, Thomas C. Hayes, was born in 1860 and started to school at Medical Springs when he was 6 years old. His first teacher was Mrs. Beacher and boarded with his family. The old log school house was built on the Riley Barnett place and was to revert to him when no longer used for school purposes. Jim Matt Coffey now owns the property. After several years, the school was closed, but was reopened again in 1891.

Mrs. Coffey, who was born in 1882 and started to school when she was 8 years old, using the old blue back speller, which she still has, and attending Green Hill School. This was a log building and part of the seats were of split logs, with wooden pegs. Among her schoolmates, she remembers Bessie Hollingsworth, Mary Barnett, Minnie Rymel and a Miss Burdett. The Green Hill Schoolhouse was an old one, being there in 1867 when her grandfather, Adam Griffin, moved there.

When the Medical Springs school reopened in 1891, she started to school there, with Jim Riddle as teacher and Lee Proctor next followed by Betty Hunt Parsons. Other teachers she recalls at a later time were Joshua Borling, Charles O. Davis, Anderson Burdette, Logan Lynn and Jenny Lou Reynolds.

She says their first lessons were to learn the alphabet forward and backward, count to one hundred, forward and backwards, learn the multiplication table up to ten, forward and backwards, then they had to learn the names of all the presidents of the United States and all the capitals of the states. Then they took up the primer, then a first reader and learned to spell every word in the blue back speller up to the word "Botany."

The old log house was torn down and sold to W.W. Coffey about 1914 for $5.00 and used for stovewood. In the old days, water was carried from the spring by the pupils and passed around and all drank out of the same dipper. There were no toilets and the woods were used for that purpose.

Willis C. Johnson, Mt. Vernon, Kentucky, 67 years of age but blessed with a remarkable memory, writes about the old Climax school, which he remembers as a little log house with holes cut out of the log walls on each side to serve as windows, without glass but with shutters to close them up when the school was vacant. Benches were made of split logs, with pegs driven in to hold them up. The school house was located on the very headwaters of Brush Creek, one fourth mile from Climax and was called the Brush Creek School before the Climax post office was established.

Mr. Johnson says that his mother, whose maiden name was Christina McGuire, taught this school several years, beginning in 1892 when the only textbook used was the old blue back speller. She was first married, in 1865, to James B. Dooley. During the Civil War, he was prisoner at Andersonville, where his health was so impaired that in 1868 he died and his widow was married to George M. Johnson in 1871. To this union were born George, Henry, Willis, Grover and Theresa Johnson.

Mr. Johnson says that the Dooley and Johnson families have furnished several teachers for Rockcastle county since 1892. Renie, a daughter of Willis C. Johnson, did teaching - Professor Shaw, who was married to her, also taught. His sister, Theresa and his brother, Grover, were also teachers. William Isaac Dooley began teaching about 1894 in Rockcastle. His first school was Brushy Ridge and he was paid $20.00 per month. He had a son and two daughters that were teachers, Bill started teaching at Red Hill in 1906. Margaret taught at Climax, Red Hill and other districts. Ethel taught for 45 years in Indiana. Frank Dooley taught several years, beginning in 1897. He taught the Johnson school in Johnson County, the Crooked Creek and Hickory Valley Schools in Rockcastle, three month term schools, paying from twenty to thirty dollars per month. He also furnished four teachers from his family, Ella, Fairy, John and Clay Dooley, bringing the number of teachers to fifteen in the family of Mrs. Christina Johnson.

A letter from James Jackson Ping, a former Rockcastle County boy now living in Hardin, Montana, tells of his school experiences in Mt. Vernon under Miss Ella Joplin and Professor Shaw, who extracted from him the early promise that he would never drink, smoke or use profanity. He pays them the highest compliment of saying that any success he has made in life he owes to these two dedicated teachers.

When he became old enough to teach school, in his county examination for license to teach, he made a grade of 99.95%, his only mistake being in the spelling of a single word. After teaching at Popewell, Oak Hill, Mt. Vernon and Beardsden - he moved to the Ozarks section of Missouri and after later graduating from the University of Missouri was for eight years the superintendent of the Liberal, Missouri, school. During his tenure of office, he married one of his teachers, Ruth Blevins, and in 1916 with his wife and small daughter, made the move to the Mountain State where he established a place of business and another at Lodge Grass, south on the Crow Indian Reservation. After 42 years of successful operation, Mr. and Mrs. Ping are now retired.

ter, Rowan, Greenup and Lewis Counties.

It doesn't end there. He's also served as the West Liberty city councilman, president of West Liberty Kiwanis and as lieutenant-governor of the Ky.-Tenn. District 7 Kiwanis.

And, currently, he is a member of the Kentucky Board of Business Schools; vice president of Morgan County's New Pleasant Valley Country Club; chairman of West Liberty's Municipal Housing Board and a member of the city's hospital board, director of Mental Health Board, six counties, Member of Fair Board, and Honorary President of P.T.A.

Joe acknowledged as a leader in the drive to bring industry and new jobs into Eastern Kentucky, he was instrumental in convincing Silex Corporation, a Texas-based furniture manufacturer, that it should locate at Sandy Hook. People of Salyersville and Stanton also credit Joe with helping attract new factories to their communities.

Knowing Joe is to understand how the West Liberty shoe plant and other manufacturers, discovered Eastern Kentucky, for moving mountains is nothing new to him. He has been a dirt farmer, rural school teacher, toolmaker, Seabee, business executive and now a legislator. In one way or another, he's been moving mountains all his life.

Under the circumstances, it is easy to understand why. As the 98th District's freshman representative in the General Assembly, Joe worries about such issues as teachers' salaries, tax relief for low income families and the need for more industry, in rural areas.

Joe says he is a "hopeful" we'll pass salary increases for county officials," he says. Born 49 years ago on the rock-strewn slopes of a weathered farm at Nickelsville, Ky., Joe barely remembers his mother who died while he was still a baby. What he does remember comes out as the picture of a boy whose early years were both lean and uncompromising. "I had to walk three or four miles a day to get to grade school," he says, "often in the snow and rain without enough clothes to keep me warm." Getting through Morgan County High School was tougher yet. "I stayed with an uncle and aunt for a while," Joe says, "but I didn't want to wear out my welcome so, for the last two years, I roomed with a janitor and did janitorial work to pay my board." "And then I got an extra $4 a month working for the National Youth Association," he says. After high school came a scholarship and a two-year stint

Shortly after moving to Hardin, Mr. Ping had purchased stock in the Old First National Bank there, later serving on the board of directors and eventually a president until selling his bank stock and retiring in 1973.

Certainly Mr. Ping (formerly known here as "Jack") has accomplished much in life. When he says he owes it all to two of his earliest schoolroom teachers, he speaks well for their dedication to their job and his own honest appreciation for their efforts so characteristic of the old-time teacher in the old-time country school.

Mrs. Virginia P. Holt, in her twenty-third year as a teacher in the Rockcastle County School System, calls my attention to a statement made in this column some time back that that there were no more small district schools in the county. She says that the Blue Springs School, where she teaches primary grades, is the only two-room county school in operation and that no one-room schools are anywhere in session in the county. Her companion teacher at Blue Springs is Professor John D. Love and she says that it is really a very efficient school plant. They have a reading teacher, an aide, a lunchroom and cook, water in the building, fuel oil heat and tiled floors.

Mrs. Holt writes that since she was five years old, she has always wanted to teach school and during her entire teaching career has loved every minute of it. She has a wonderful collection, of which she is justly proud. She has a photograph of each school child she has taught in her entire 23 years of teaching - something I am sure no other teacher can boast of.

at Morehead State Teachers College where he picked up a teaching certificate. His high school record won that scholarship although Joe, usually, tells it a bit different. "One day, I was walking down the street wondering how I was going to make my way through college when Judge Caskey (then Morgan County judge William Caskey), a member of the board of regents, gave me a scholarship."

But scholarships don't include clothes or meal tickets. Joe had to work that out for himself, and the way he tackled it was completely predictable: "I had a job nights and, through it all the summer, I worked for different farmers at 50 cents a day, hoing corn or whatever they wanted me to do."

Later, there was a job teaching first through eighth graders in a small schoolhouse
