

Bro. Joe & The Radio

When "Brother Joe" Mobley preached on radio station WRVK at Renfro Valley in April, 1972, an era began for the student pastor. As he finished the broadcast a man arrived at the station, transporting two dead deer on his car. The man explained that while returning from a deer hunt he heard Mobley's sermon on his car radio and needed further instruction from the Bible. He then invited Mobley to visit his home to witness to his family, and the man, his wife, and two teenage daughters and two young sons, became Christians. Then the entire family by baptism joined the Mt. Zion Baptist Church near Broadhead which Mobley serves as pastor. It appears the right preacher was at the right place at the right time. The Rev. Robert Joseph (Joe) Mobley, a Columbus, Ohio native who is a third-year student at the Clear Creek Baptist School, Pineville, became pastor of the Rockcastle Co. church in Oct., 1971. Immediately the church began to grow in attendance and membership. "Soon a man who worked at WRVK one day per week became a Christian. He offered to donate his day's pay to underwrite a radio broadcast if I would conduct the program," said Mobley. The new Christian's missionary concern resulted in the popular broadcast,

"The Mt. Zion Baptist Hour," heard on WRVK each Sunday 2:30 to 3 p.m. A former skilled metal worker, who gave us a highly paid vocation and good income to enter the ministry at age 24, Mobley is proud of his 6-year record as a member of the U. S. Marine Corp. Reserves. However, his background wouldn't lead anyone to think he might have become a Baptist minister! He reports, "I started drinking when I was 14. Then when I was about 16, a teenage friend's death caused me to start thinking. This friend killed himself with a gun I'd helped him steal, using a bullet bought with money we had stolen." "At 21 I committed my life to Jesus Christ, and a year later I promised God I would answer the call to preach if He would care for my family. And He's certainly kept His end of our bargain," Mobley added. "Brother Joe" and Mrs. Mobley were members of the Selzer Road Baptist Church in Columbus, Ohio, whose pastor, the Rev. Bobby Walker, was a close friend and counselor. The pastor urged Mobley to acquire theological training and suggested he attend the Clear Creek Baptist School, a theological school for adults at Pineville. "A friend, who was a Clear Creek student, was so anxious that Mobley attend the Bible school that he contributed $15 for car expense for the trip when Mobley visited; then he decided to enroll at Clear Creek. "At that time an Ohio church of two hundred members asked me to be their pastor. That made it even harder to give up our income, sell our home, and begin training for the ministry. But my wife and I know that's what God wanted us to do," Mobley declares. When Mobley became pastor of the church in the edge of Bluegrass Area, attendance in Sunday School was about 40. Now they average 70 each Sunday. "Twelve people have been converted and joined our church as a result of our radio ministry," declares Mobley, "and we have heard of more than 60 people in other areas who have become Christians through our radio ministry."

Brother Joe Mobley is caught by his photographer as he broadcasts the "Mt. Zion Baptist Hour," heard on WRVK each Sunday afternoon from 2:30-3:00. Rev. Mobley reports that "we have heard of more than 60 people - in other areas (outside his church community) who have become Christians through our radio ministry."

The Rev. Joe Mobley family leaves their mobile home located next door to the Mt. Zion Church, Rockcastle County. Each week the Mobley family makes the 150 mile trek, round trip, from their church "home away from home" to their apartment at the Clear Creek Baptist School, Pineville. Rev. Mobley is a third year student at the Pineville theological school for adults.

The church recently enlarged its building, adding Sunday school rooms and a pastor's study. Rev. Mobley has baptized 60 persons and the church has gained a total of 67 new members since Mobley became pastor. The church has had some unusually dramatic personal decisions, declares Mobley. One man said he was using his job as an excuse for not attending church. (He drove long distances and worked on the night shift.) He has quit his second job works his 150 acre farm so he can participate regularly in church activities. Another man had been attending church for 28 years but he was not a Christian. Several months ago he was converted and is now an active member of the church. "Brother Joe's" father-in-law, the late Curt Haywood, just six months before he passed away, had a large plastic sign made which reads, "BROTHER JOE MOBLEY - Baptist Evangelist - JESUS SAVES." The sign is prominently displayed on Brother Joe's tired Chevrolet and the progress of Brother

Joe's evangelistic ministry indicates the sign gift was a good and accurate omen. When school began at Clear Creek August 28 the Mobley family moved back to the Clear Creek Baptist School campus after living in the church's mobile home during the summer. He attends classes during the day and often studies many hours at night. But he keeps his heart in Rockcastle County and looks forward to Fridays when the Mobley family packs up and heads their Chevrolet north for a weekend of visiting and preaching - from a pulpit in a country church and through a radio station's microphone. ***** "QUALITY" (Cont. from 10)

CONSUMER COMMENTS

By Ed W. Hancock
Attorney General of Kentucky

Senior citizens planning to purchase health insurance should consider first what kind of coverage is needed and for how long.

For persons not covered by Medicaid or Medicare, a full coverage policy may be necessary.

Senior citizens covered by Medicaid or Medicare may only need a supplemental plan to cover those periods when one or both of the two health plans do not provide coverage.

Many health insurance policies with riders carry a disclaimer. A disclaimer says the policy holder has been ill during a period of time prior to the signing of the contract.

If the policy holder has been ill, then the policy will not give coverage until the policy holder is illness-free for a stated period of time. The length of time prior to the purchase may vary from policy to policy and company to company.

Make sure the salesman clearly identifies himself, his company, and the type of coverage he is selling. Don't be pressured into purchasing insurance because it is only pennies a week or because of some grand new program that is a once-in-a-lifetime offer.

Fully investigate all policies. Discuss new health coverage with a well-known community insurance representative or contact the Department of Insurance to find out if a company is reliable.

Health protection is worth more than the last glib of a slick salesman to be here today and gone tomorrow.

I've lived in many places and have loved them one and all. But one I love the very most was just a port-of-call. This tiny bit of heaven lies beside a Southern sea. With sands of white and waters warm — They call it Longboat Key.

New Florida's a magic word and 'Long's' precious stuff. But, add to this my Longboat Key and magic's not enough. To tell of Longboat's treasure trove that spills delightful Of living in the sun and surf and sailing by the buoy.

Before my sands have run their time and sunset comes for me, I've got to claim for my home port the one allusion to Longboat Key.

COLONIAL DESSERT UPDATED

Pies were important menu items in 18th century Southern cooking, and it was during this period that most of the traditional recipes evolved. Pie crust of this time was puff pastry; fillings included meat, poultry and fish as well as sweet fruit and custard mixtures.

Puddings, mainstays of Colonial menus, were transformed into pies for guests. Baked puddings, such as custards, were prepared in round pastry "cuffins" without top crusts — forerunners of modern custard pies. These were true custards made of suet, eggs and milk, with the addition of flavoring ingredients such as raisins, nuts, bread crumbs or rice.

Peanuts, native to the Southern states, were popular ingredients in old-fashioned sweet treats. They were highly prized for their unusual flavor and crunchy texture. Here, chopped cocktail peanuts enliven a Southern-style custard pie made with brown sugar. During baking, the peanuts rise to the top with the delicate custard beneath.

Peanuts were among the most important early commercial crops in the South. They were originally grown in Virginia and North Carolina but the writings of Thomas Jefferson imply that they were not of much commercial importance at first. Later, when the boll weevil became a menace to cotton, farmers in other states turned to harder peanuts.

The first peanuts raised for market were sold in Newcastle, Tenn. Gradually, they increased in popularity. In 1845, during the Civil War, when other foods were scarce, peanuts provided sustenance for Confederate soldiers. Union soldiers became acquainted with them while in the South and helped create a post-war demand for the nuts in the North. The peanut was introduced in New York in 1870 and soon became popular Temporary Labeling Requirements For Corn Seed — In the interest of farmers and seedsmen in the State of Kentucky, the following requirements for labeling corn seed sold, offered or exposed for sale in Kentucky are issued.

These requirements are in addition to the general labeling requirements of the Kentucky Seed Law and Regulations, and shall be effective immediately.

- All corn seed sold, offered or exposed for sale in Kentucky shall be labeled to show "on the front of the analysis tag or label the percentage of the seed containing "cytoplasm."
- P2 corn seed shall not be labeled, represented, or sold to be a hybrid.
- P2 corn seed shall not be labeled, represented, or sold to be the same variety as the P1 or hybrid generation.

These labeling requirements do not preclude the use of separate tags or labels containing additional information about the seed lot. However, separate tags stating the percentage of the seed containing "cytoplasm do not satisfy the

"Can the shortages of gasoline be overcome? And if so, how long will it take before supplies are adequate again?" At the present time, we're using about 290 million gallons of gasoline a day in this country. And, this year, it looks as if we'll have to import between one and two percent of that in order to make up the difference between our consumption and what U.S. refineries can make. We'll not overcome the present shortages until we build more refineries, and since it takes about two years to complete a refinery, it's obvious that it's probably not going to be possible to solve this problem in much less than three years.

General Economic Outlook For 1973-74

By H. Lee Durham
County Agent

Total value of goods and services (Gross National Product) for 1973 about $1,285 trillion. This represents about 6.1 percent increase in real growth over 1972.

Economic activity is expected to slow down for 1974 with an increase in real growth of from 1 to 2 percent, sharply down from 1973. A great national product of from $1,375 trillion to $1.4 trillion is expected for 1974.

For 1973 as a whole, price advances may average 5 to 6 percent, which would be slightly more than the 4.9 percent average inflation rate of last year. (1972)

The course of the economy as we move into 1974 is expected to be one of deceleration. Chief among these slowing signs are the expected further declines in residential construction and in business investment in plant and equipment.

Business investment in inventories may rise but act as a restraining influence on the building of inventories.

Consumers have invested heavily in automobiles and consumer durables during the past year. Consumer credit outstanding and debt repayment obligations have risen sharply. Consumers may show a rising caution in spending for non-food items in 1974.

Total government spending in the year ahead will probably rise by around ten percent. Total exports of goods and services are expected to exceed imports by a small margin. The U.S. may be in a stronger trading position than in recent years. Foreign demand for U.S. farm commodities will be unusually high.

The unemployment rate will probably remain under five percent into late 1973 then rise possibly to around 5.5 to 6 percent in mid-1974.

No substantial change in monetary and fiscal policy is anticipated during the year ahead. A change in income tax rates is not expected. A further shrinking of the budget deficit is expected in the 1974 fiscal year.

Price inflation will continue to be a major problem. Worldwide demand for raw commodities, both farm and non-farm, has risen dramatically and will keep upward pressure on prices in the U.S. However, may see inflation rates slowed by mid-1974.

ROCKCASTLE VILLA, a 48-unit low-income housing project on the Old Brodhead Road, is scheduled for completion within the next month. The FHA financed project will include one, two and three-bedroom units. Applications for renting the units, a portion of which have been set aside for the elderly, may be made daily, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the office located in the project. Tommy Parsons is serving as Director of the Project and may be reached by calling 256-4822.

GRAND JURY NAMED -

Selection of a Grand Jury for the November Term of Rockcastle Circuit Court was finished Monday, and Vernon Cummins was chosen foreman. Others selected were: James Arnold, Jr., Ernest D. Bullock, Jr., Craig N. Denney, Davis Drew, Lillie Marie Hensley, Alice Hunt, Nannie Wray Kirby, Dewey Robinson, Ethel Thacker, Gean Towery and Freida Lakes, Secretary.

MRS. DOVIE MULLINS

Mrs. Dovie Mullins, age 75, of Climax passed away Monday morning at the Rockcastle County Hospital after a short illness. She was born in Jackson County on October 29, 1898, the daughter of the late William and Fannie Ramsey Morris and was a member of the Climax Christian Church.

She is survived by: her husband, Nathan of Climax; three sons, James W. Mullins of Mt. Vernon, Billy Donald Mullins of Lexington, and Allen Edward Mullins of New Paris, Ohio; two daughters, Mrs. Eva Anderson of Berea, Ky. and Mrs. Edna Parson of Lexington; one half brother, Paul Morris of New York; four sisters, Mrs. Lulu Crech of Mt. ## Rockets Fall To Oneida In Overtime

Coach "Bill" Riddle's ROCKETS lost their first outing last Friday night to Oneida. The ROCKETS are in what could be called a rebuilding year since they lost four of their five starters in the 1972-73 team, but, with a little experience, this year's team promises to bring some exciting ball to fans in the county.

The ROCKETS were led in Friday night's game in scoring

Impact of Inflation In Local Area

To what extent has the rising cost of living affected residents of Rockcastle County?

Have incomes in the local area increased fast enough in the last few years to enable the average family to absorb the higher cost and have something additional left over?

Prior to the last year or two, most families, locally and elsewhere, were able to keep ahead of the game because their earnings were rising more rapidly than their costs. More recently, however, with galloping inflation, many have been falling behind.

A study by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit research organization, shows what has been happening to people's buying power.

"Because of taxes and inflation," it states, "pay increases of up to 35 percent in the last seven years fall short of giving a family the same purchasing power it had with the smaller 1966 income." Those with bigger increases, however, ended up even or better.

In other words, the cost of living has gone up more than 85 percent, putting a squeeze on the family's pocketbooks.

How has a married man in Rockcastle County, for example, who earned $8,000 in 1966, made out with the $2,500 in pay raises he may have received since then?

The figures show that not only has his raises been erased by the tax-inflation combination, but his after-tax pay today is worth about $390 less than it was seven years ago.

For the married man who made $10,000 in 1966 and is getting 35 percent more than that now, the Tax Foundation details how his $3,900 pay increase turned into a $468 net loss.

His income taxes, Federal and State, went up $598 on average and his Social Security tax rose $355. Inflation caused an additional loss of $3,016.

Thus, his expenses rose $3,968 in seven years and his income only $3,500, which left him $468 short of the break-even point.

Other calculations, based upon the general figures contained in the report, indicate that a Rockcastle County man who had a $5,000 income in 1966, which rose to $6,750 in 1973, ended up with a net loss of $140 and that the one who had a 1966 income of $12,000 lost approximately $510, despite a 35 percent hike in salary.

4-H VARIETY SHOW

Seventy-nine 4-H'ers performed in the 1973 4-H Variety Show held at Livingston County Saturday night. Sixteen acts represented five schools in the county. First-place club act was "Thee Haw" presented by the Willing Workers 4-H, 7th & 8th Grade at Brodhead. Second place club act went to the Loyal Clovers with "Old Mac Donald Had A Farm." First place specialty act was "Toney Ropers" done by the Rockcastle County Teen 4-H Club, and second specialty act went to Roundstone Rebels, 8th Grade at Roundstone with "Cost of Many Colors." Cash awards were provided by the Bank of Mt. Vernon.

An imitation of the famous "Thee-Haw" TV Show won first place for the Brodhead Seventh and Eighth Grade 4-H Club at last Saturday night's 4-H Talent Show held at Livingston School.

A new entertainment barn is presently under construction in Rembo Valley. The barn is being built by Joe Haney of West Liberty on an eleven-acre site near the City's water treatment plant on U. S. 25 and is scheduled for completion within the next few weeks.

Frankfort Watchline

There was a seminar on legislative budgets the other day at Louisville and maybe your first thought is that it's pretty dull stuff. Well, it was, generally.

But the money in Frankfort is what really creates all the sideline action in and out of the legislature. So it behooves us to understand a few things.

Observing a part of the proceedings, it was obvious to us that the Finance Department, whatever it's called officially under "reorganization," needs to be communicating better with the lawmakers, particularly the new ones.

What we heard was jargon straight from the shelves of stereotyped bureaucracy - words that mean nothing to most people, but carry a degree of sanctification for the "in" crowd. At one point, James King, director of the Office of Policy and Management, and a very sincere public official, was saying something about "incrementalism." One wag then whispered, "down with incrementalism!"

James Hall, the OPM deputy, explained the new policy of budgeting by programs instead of by agencies. Well, he tried, anyway. We did get a fleeting notion that some of it may have come across.

To the credit of state officials, they admitted some mistakes already made in the brief-six months since the new concept got off the ground. They also promised not to try to hide anything in the next budget, which, because of all these changes cannot be meaningful compared to the previous spending documents.

When Sen. Gibson Downing, a Lexington Democrat who's retiring, came on for some historical perspective, things began to fall into place because of Downing's talent for getting to the point quickly and clarifying the issues. His thesis was rather interesting. Paraphrasing the challenge that one can change the world if he would but take the first step, Downing told the lawmakers that they can understand and change the budget if need be if they just give it the old college try and work, work, work.

Well, almost change it. House Minority Leader Harold DeMarcus, an old pro at the game, asked if the governor still really doesn't have the last word, and Downing had to acknowledge that he does.

Budgets are truly scruffy documents that cover the coming two fiscal years with a confidence that never ceases to amaze us. It's all there - how much Kentucky will have to spend and how much the agencies will be allowed to spend.

And it all hangs on - an accurate estimate, which thanks to William Herzal of Revenue has been true for many years. If the estimate is way off, the whole thing teeters on a false premise. But don't worry. If that's all there is, all agencies would merely have to cut back all along the line because Kentucky law does not allow deficit budgets.

Just must come out balanced - plus a few extra million in surplus to carry over. The main point is that the governor is still the big honcho in monetary matters and that's the source from which much of his power over the General Assembly emanates. He has the authority to strike back financially at his detractors or those who balk at supporting his programs. This can be done by threatening to cut out certain benefits to the legislator's community of the legislator does not cooperate.

We say that a prime example was the 1968 session in which a Republican governor found himself saddled with a Democratic Assembly. Or vice versa. The governor was successful in many of his endeavors, however, as witness the five per cent sales tax.

But everything is and has been cozier with the legislative and executive branches now loaded with the same party.

Old Pals - At the budget session the other day, Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll approached a new staffer of the Legislative Research Commission (of which he's the chairman) and looked at the man's name tag and said, "I'm Julian Carroll, I don't believe I know you."

The surprisingly candid new employee looked at Carroll's name tag and said...the same

A RARE BREED - Dr. Burton Cohen is a rare breed in Kentucky, one of the few practicing otolaryngologists in the Commonwealth. But Dr. Cohen is striving to solve the problem by seeking support for a University program to train ear, nose, and throat specialists. Dr. Cohen gives freely of his unique abilities as he chats with a nurse from the Department for Human Resources while conducting a clinic at Kosair Children's Hospital. Dr. Cohen relates well with the children at Kosair, since at the age of 10, he was a polo victim at this Kentucky institution.

MORE FOREST FIRES FORESEEN

Kentucky recently has been plagued by a marked increase in forest fires, according to State Forestry Director Harry Nadler.

Most of the leaves have fallen and as the forest floors dry out, the chance of fires increases rapidly, he explained.

Until recently, regular intervals of rainfall reduced the number of forest fires during this year's fall fire season in Kentucky.

During fall fire season-Oct. 1 to Dec. 15-it is illegal to set off anything flammable within 150 feet of a woodland or brushland, except between the hours 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight.

Last year Kentucky suffered 977 forest fires, only one of which had a natural cause, Nadler said. He described persons burning brush and debris as the principal cause of 834 of the fires, while careless cigarette smokers initiated 203 fires and malicious acts were involved in 200 fires.

ramblings...

by perkins m. amerski

For those of you who have been wondering why your water that comes through the Mt. Vernon Water System looks like it's dirty before you use it - Jack Coates, District Department Manager, has the answer. He told us recently that it was being strained through a panty hose and the hose had gotten a run in it.

Smart alecky, right? Seriously, Mr. Craig tells us that at certain times in the year, the lake does a "turn-over" which literally means that the bottom of the lake comes to the top and vice-versa. He says there is no way of forecasting how long this condition will exist but that it in no way makes the water harmful to drink.

This has really been a blah week with nothing very exciting happening that is printable anyway. I have decided the only thing that will get me out of the rut I'm in is a week's stay in the sunny South; and if weren't for a few incidents like taking the kids out of school, money, the gas shortage, money, time, etc., that's where I would be. Guess I will just have to try to jerk myself out of my lassitude....

The State Highway Department almost did it for me last week. Talking about blood in their eyes, I am told (I fortunately was not on the premises) that a couple of representatives of the Department were in the office bright and early Friday morning to protest their innocence of an employee of the Department being the culprit who has been throwing litter on the side of Highway 180 last week. They informed us that Allen & Co. were contractors for the job and they were sure that it was one of their employees rather than a Highway Department employee. Oh, well, do you suppose I will hear from Allen & Co. now....

Fa'd a visit to the new library building, presently under construction, on the 25th, and was highly impressed with it. It's huge and should really be beautiful when completed within the next few weeks, hopefully.

I didn't get to the basketball game at Oneida Friday night, decided to keep the smaller children at home and not leave the cold night air, and after what happened with the bleachers, I'm glad I didn't. My husband went, taking three of the children with him, and during the B Team game, the section of bleachers they were sitting on, along with fifty or sixty others, fell. Thankfully, no one was seriously injured, although we lost our camera flash battery which was squashed underneath. That was about the only excitement of the B Team game, we understand, since our team was overrun by over forty points. The A game, which I had expected we would take in a walk-away, was lost by four points in a double-overtime. Oneida now has a four and two record. The general consensus of the fans seemed to be that with a little experience, the 1973-74 ROCKETS team will prove to be an exciting one to watch....

Of course, that wasn't all the excitement of a recent ballgame, and I never miss the chance to tell a good joke, especially on myself. We were at Brodhead at a Seventh Grade basketball game when I got excited over the game and yelled and coughed at the same time. The result a front tooth on my parrot (which had broken off some weeks earlier and stuck back on until I found time to get it fixed) flew out of my mouth and went skidding across the gym floor. Needless to say, I kept my mouth shut for a few moments while I frantically tried to figure out where it might have wound up. Of course, I couldn't stop the game and tell them I had to find my tooth so at half-time I decided to look for it. I didn't want anyone to know what had happened and asked my husband what I could tell those who asked what I was looking for. He suggested that I say I had lost a contact lens - then I reminded him that I had worn regular glasses for years in case he hadn't noticed yet. I didn't find the tooth, but a local dentist came to my rescue Friday and made me fit to appear in society again....

KENTUCKY WILDLIFE

By Hopa Carleton Dept. of Fish and Wildlife. Since the duck migrations into Kentucky have just begun, it is still too early to arrive at any estimate of this year's duck population in the state.

The expected decrease in numbers is reflected in this year's shorter season, from Dec. 12-Jan. 20. However, there has been some relaxation in the rules governing the taking of redhead and canvasback ducks.

The daily limit on coots remains at 15 with a possession limit of 30, and the limit on mergansers is five with a possession limit of 10.

During the period of Dec. 12-20, hunters may take, in addition to the basic bag of four ducks, up to an additional blue-winged teal daily and have four additional in possession.

Duck hunters are subject to the usual licensing requirements in Kentucky, but those who must also purchase a federal migratory bird hunting stamp (duck stamp). All persons transporting waterfowl must leave one fully feathered wing or the head attached to the bird for identification purposes.

Duck hunting is permitted on all public hunting lands except Central Kentucky Wildlife Management Area (Madison County) and on Lake Wildcat Wildlife Area (Floyd County). Also, the Sauerbeer unit of the Sloughs area is closed not only to hunting but also to fishing, boating or trespassing from Oct. 15-March 15.

Waterfowl hunters on Barkley, Barren, Buchhorn, Green, Nolin and Rough River Lakes should also remember that they must register all permanent pits and blinds with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, at the Resource Manager's Office located near the dam at each lake.

Once, the most abundant species of birds ever recorded in the passerine phylum of North America is no longer around!

S. Germany and Canada. The exercise, conducted by the joint chiefs of staff and NATO, focused on the procedures and techniques for receiving, equipping, assembling and employing units after they arrive, rather than on rapid deployment of troops from the U. S.

Immediately after arriving overseas, the redeployed units drew combat gear and vehicles from prepositioned storage sites in Germany and moved to the exercise area to begin the seven-day field maneuver.

News & Views from the Rockcastle Co. Library

After years of looking at books by day and reading books by night, I have developed the feeling that there are books that will cure all conditions: physical, mental, emotional, and industrial. I rarely talk with a person that I do not find myself mentally selecting a book for him to read. That, of course, is not unusual. Even non-readers often turn to books when an emergency arises. Such as the woman who approached the librarian with "I want a book on personal hygiene. I think I've got it."

While I do not advocate treating our ailments by books with the exclusion of medical advice, some books can be helpful in understanding your condition.

The following books are among those that may be borrowed from the library.

Heart Attack: New Hope, New Knowledge, New Life, by Dr. Myron Frazmetel. For those who have suffered a coronary thrombosis and for those who have not but wish to avoid it.

This Is Mental Illness, by Vernon W. Grant. How it feels and what it means.

One of largest livestock Shows to be held in Ky.

Planning began recently for one of the nation's largest livestock shows - the National American Livestock Exposition which is to be held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville next November. State Commissioner of Agriculture Wendell Butler met with representatives of livestock organizations, the Louisville Convention Bureau, state government and the press to lay the groundwork for the first major livestock show to be held in Kentucky. Commissioner Butler said that Louisville already has excellent facilities but with Gov. Wendell Ford's recent announcement of $14 million in improvements on the Fair and exposition Center, Louisville's facilities will be second to none. The show will include beef cattle will be included in the show and the exposition's planners hope to expand to include swine and sheep. The possibility of a major livestock show arose in Louisville after the American Angus Association expressed interest in holding its annual national meeting in Louisville next year. That show will be a part of next year's major exposition. The five-day exposition, to be held the week of November 17, 1974, will also include the National 4-H Livestock Judging Contest, now held in Chicago, the Louisville Steer and Carcass Show and junior exposition programs.

ture. And, keeping the leftover turkey in a warm oven for later snacking is definitely a "no-no" The turkey, dressing and bread or gravy should be put into different containers and put in the refrigerator as soon after the meal as possible. And, if there are large quantities, they should be put in several small containers rather than one large one to speed up the cooling process.

If leftovers won't be used within one or two days, put them in the freezer rather than the refrigerator. The small package of cooked turkey will thaw out in a very short time. And, finally, be sure to heat leftover turkey and dressing thoroughly before serving. This will usually kill any harmful bacteria that might cause food-borne illness.

Peter Piper's Second Pick

Peter Piper may have picked himself a peck of pickled peppers, but his second peck was probably a parcel of crisp, juicy cucumber pickles. Why? Because he knew that pickles are not only good by themselves, but they can make other foods taste better. The kinds of pickles you can buy are almost as infinite as the different kinds of cooking there are. Just stand in front of the pickle counter in your local store and you can reach that conclusion for yourself.

First is the dill pickle, flavored primarily with the aromatic herb dill, and sometimes supplemented with various mixed spices. The dill pickle comes in three variations: GENUINE DILLS* prepared by a long process of natural fermentation; processed dills, which start out in a brine of salt and water and are then later in a dill solution; and the quickly fermented, cucumber-dill "overnight" pickle.

Some dill pickles are "ho-sher" or "tother-style." The term has religious significance in accord with Hebrew law, but in the United States has come to mean that the pickles are more highly spiced with onion and garlic.

After the dill pickle comes the sour pickle. As with the dill, the cucumber is first fermented in a salt brine. Sour pickles are finished in a solution of vinegar and spices. Some relishes and piccailis are made from sour pickles.

The third basic kind of cucumber pickle is the sweet pickle. These "start" as sour pickles from which the vinegar has been drained. They are then put into spicy liquors and aged, until the desired degree of sweetness is attained.

As with many of the other foods you buy, USDA has U. S. grade standards for pickles. These grades help manufacturers to properly make and accurately label the products they offer for sale.

When buying pickles, check the labels. This should help you decide which pickles the flavorings are the types that suit you. Pickle prices vary from item to item and brand and brand. This is because some types are much more costly to make. Small whole cucumbers, long processes and more costly spices and other ingredients are reasons for high priced items.

When Gutenberg invented the printing press in 1456, the first thing he published was his famed Bible. One of the 41 known copies of the Gutenberg Bible, now in the Library of Congress, is valued at $300,000 - a record price for a complete Bible.

The Bible has much to say about money. Like other riches but not by right; in the midst of his days they will be lost, and at his end he will be a fool."
